Much of the wanton destruction done by Germany is intended for the moral effect. This attitude, based on a contempt for their enemies, is typically German.

We hope it is not a violation of neutrality to suggest that the vacancy on the firing line caused by the wounding of our old friend Colonel du Paty de Clam should be filled by sending to the front General Pate de Foie Gras.

The War news of to-day is permeated with too many bombastic utterances attributed to men in high places on both beligerent sides. One may take it for granted that whatever threats and optimistic assurances escape from military and political sources, they are veiled in such parliamentary language as to be quite courteous in tone and void of coarseness.

Germany was really defeated at the battle of the Marne ;and, what is more, she knows it. The occupation of Antwerp, and possibly Ostend are merely picturesque displays of military strength against inadequate defence on the part of a diminutive nation, calculated to divert attention from disastrous failures in France and against Paris.

The latest number on the war program is "invasion of England by sea." We should not underestimate the enemy; who might during a mighty naval engagement effect a lanching in the spirit of desperate adventure. But it is safe to say that every man who landed would have bid farewell to The Fatherland forever, having burnt his bridges behind him, so to speak.

Every Stiff Joint Limbered, Rheumatism Cured

THAT OLD FAMILY REMEDY, "NERVILINE" IS GUARANTEED FOR THE WORST CASES CURES NEURALGIA, BACKACHE, AND LUMBAGO

Rheumatism to-day is unnecessary. It is so well understood and so readily curable that every day we have reports of old chronics being freed of their tormenter.

"I can speak confidently of the Nerviline treatment, for the simple reason that it cured me," writes Albert B. Cornelius, from Kingston. "You can't imagine how stiff and lame and sore I was. Nights at a time I couldn't sleep well. I followed the Nerviline directions carefully—had it rubbed into the sore regions four or five times every day. Every rubbing helped to reduce the pain. The swelling went down. I got a fair measure of relief in a week. I also took two Ferrozone Tablets with my meals. They increased my appetite and spirits, purified my blood and toned up my system generally.

"I am as well to-day as a man could be—in perfect good health. I give Nerviline all the credit."

A large family size bottle of Nerviline costs only 50c., or the trial size 25c., and is useful in a hundred ills in the family. Whether it's toothache, earache, headache, neuralgia, lame back or a cold, Nerviline will cure just as readily as it will cure rheumatism. For family use nothing equals Nerviline.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest,

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

STAGE JEWELRY

Not Expensive Although It Makes a Regal Showing

While it is quite true that many actresses wear real jewels when upon the stage, much of the glittering stuff which looks so imposing across the footlights is a sham. Royal crowns may be purchased anywhere from $7.50 to $15.00. For the latter amount something very gorgeous indeed can be obtained—all encrusted with precious stones.

Queens' tiaras come cheaper, and for $2.50 one can get a very decent sample. The gems are of colored glass—emeralds, rubies, topazes, sapphires, etc.—except the diamonds which are of plain cut-glass. They cost about 75c a dozen for the cheapest, though the finest ones, such as are appropriate for a monarch, come as high as $1.00 each. What makes them so expensive is not the glass, but the settings, which are made by skilled jewellers.

However, many gems are sold loose for attaching to robes and other garments worn on the stage. They are also set in girdles, bracelets, necklaces, daggers, and swords. A magnificent dagger encrusted with diamonds and rubies as big as pigeons' eggs costs only $12.50. If it were real diamonds instead of imitation it would be worth at least $200,000. Diamond bracelets of the most superb description fetch only $5.00 a pair, while a diamond necklace is worth one-third more. Knightly and other orders are quoted at from $15.00 to $18.00, some of them being [illegible] elaborate.

Steel Wheels for Motor Trucks

One of the most interesting developments in the steel casting business has been the increase in the use of steel wheels for motor trucks. Automobile engineers have turned their attention to steel because the high quality of wood required for truck wheels is being rapidly exhausted. Also, wood wheels cause a good deal of trouble by variation of size, and cannot be used successfully in very dry climates.

While the cast-steel wheel overcomes all of the above objections, it has the disadvantage of excessive weight, the development of cracks, and it is not resilient as wood.

PUBLISHES DAILY PAPER FOR MEN IN TRENCEES

London, Oct. 17.—The Westminster Gazette says the Paris Daily Mail has done an excellent piece of work in starting an edition of that paper especially for the trenches, keeping the soldiers in touch with home news. Lord Northcliffe has given his personal attention in France to the improvement of the paper and to its distribution.

The work has been so well done that the men in the trenches have their daily paper by noon each day. Naturally, the news from home is welcomed by the men, and the distribution of papers becomes a very valuable public service.

WOMEN SEEK FOR MASCULINE SOUL

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—A group of advanced women thinkers of Pittsburgh will shortly organise a class for the study of the mysteries of the masculine mind. The matter was discussed at a gathering of women recently, and the movement, originating in this city, bids fair to become of world-wide interest, superseding the present craze for the study of the child and feminism.

"The peculiarities of the masculine mind and temperament have never been studied as they should be," said one woman, "and I predict that the next great social question will be the study of masculinity.

"Feminism is becoming a bit stale, and our novels have depicted all kinds of women, possible and impossible, and I now think it is man's turn to have the light of expert research turned on his nature, his motives, his feelings, his inconsistencies, his faults and weaknesses and above all his mystic charm by which he has held womankind throughout the ages. Let us this winter form a small circle of earnest women to study 'man.'"

The idea was received with the enthusiasm and schemes for a course of study are already being mapped out. Among the subjects proposed were, "Is man endowed with a soul? Why cannot he raise a window blind without getting it crooked? Why does he insist on exposing the privacy of the home by rolling every blind to the ceiling and in public places, such as saloons and cafes, hide behind painted windows, heavy curtains and screens? Why does a man, who cannot take care of a baby for an hour without losing his own temper and spoiling that of the child, believe himself possessed of judgment to guide the state? By what mysterious power does a man hold the devotion of a woman who knows much more than he does?"

The class will hold another meeting in the near future to further its scheme of study.

"Talk Up Your Trade—Telephone"

"When trade slackens up and orders begin to come in less frequently, I always get busy at my telephone," said one of our subscribers recently.

"It's the best way I know to keep the business geared up to normal and to avoid those dull streaks that make such a difference in the year's profits.

"I find that by using the long distance telephone to round up old customers, to go after new trade and to economize my own time and energy, I can keep my business pretty well-balanced all the time."

If your business is not quite up to normal, why not get busy at your Telephone and talk up your trade?

BUTTERMILK FOUNTAIN

Equipped With Agitator for Use When Desirable

A buttermilk fountain that resembles the type of fountains used with bottled spring water has been designed by a Canadian dairyman. The ice chamber is almost exactly the same, having a receptacle in the centre into which the buttermilk flows, when a jar is placed over it, and a space surrounding for ice. The spigot, however, is unusually large, so the flow of the liquid will not be impeded, and so that it may be easily cleaned. The jar containing the buttermilk is of a special type, with an agitating device running through it and operated by a handle at the top. By revolving this agitator a few times, or moving it up and down, the buttermilk will be sufficiently stirred. This same apparatus may also be used for sweet milk or cream, where agitation is desirable.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). cf a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

WATCH COST OF MILK

Dairy Farmer Should Know Each Cow's Production

The manufacturer perhaps more than the retailer looks closely after the matter of cost knowing that his principal hope of making a good profit lies in attaining economy in the actual production of the article, for no profit can be expected if the selling price is below the cost price. Is not the dairy farmer a manufacturer? So it would seem to be wisdom to look the more closely after cost especially as he does not expect the selling price of milk to soar. Assuming that the farm is in good condition and carefully handled, what does milk cost per hundred pounds? That can be ascertained only by keeping records of each individual cow. Cows may appear to be good heavy producers, but their value as economical producers can only be determined when their yield of milk and fat is checked up by the scales and test. Of what use is it when the factory pays 95 cents per 100 pounds to keep cows whose milk costs $1.25 per 100 pounds just for feed alone? This is what often happens till cow testing is taken up. It is quite possible to have one dollar's worth of feed return two dollars' worth of milk through good cows, that is cows selected by the test. This is both economical and profitable milk production. The average cow is not an economical producer because she has not been selected, but, like Topsy, "just growed." A dairy farmer will prove his business ability as a manufacturer when the herd is composed of economical producers. Make each cow pay a good profit.

Germs in Salt

We deem salt, of all minerals, to be an essential to health, as well as a vital necessity in the preparation of our food. Yet the pure, white, refined salt consumed by millions of people is alive with germs—mud germs. A famous physiologist states that salt is one of the most germ-ridden foods we consume.

Grey salt is made a delicate tint by the addition of mud that has gone through no refining process whatever, and which contains from 6,000 to 75,000 bacteria per gram. The refined salt is not in a much better condition. It lies in a refinery under a blanket of clay; its refinement consists of a sea-water bath. It is then dried and heated until crystallized. This latter process fails, however, to remove or destroy the 2,000 or 3,000 bacteria per gram that have been imbibed from the clay blanket.

Hole in Bottom of Sea

It is said that a hole nearly a mile deep was formed in the bottom of the sea off the coast of Panama by Central America earthquakes. As a result of these earthquakes, a submarine cable was broken, and a cable ship was sent out to make repairs. The ends of the cable were found to be buried under enormous masses of material, and, where the Government charts published in 1904 showed a depth of 1,000 feet, soundings made from the cable ship found a depth of 5,000 feet. This remarkable depression is located off Los Santos Province about 15 miles from the mainland, and is about half a mile wide.

CHANCE WON FORTUNE ON THE DIAMOND

Expert definition of the word "amateur" can be had from Frank Leroy Chance. Chance at one time caught for an "amateur" team in California at a salary of $125 a month, which disposes of the amateur question.

Chance's father was William Harvey Chance, president of the First National bank of Fresno, Cal., and his ambition was that his son follow his footsteps, and if he had been alive in 1898 when Frank was deciding between baseball and banking, the chances are that Frank would never have drawn $25,000 a year as a baseball manager.

Chance was born Sept. 9, 1877, at Fresno. He attended the public schools and belonged to a "kid" nine, of which he played any position and was the star hitter. In 1896 he played with a semi-pro team which did not pay expenses, and the next year found him back at college, but he played Saturdays and Sundays with an "amateur" team for $125 a month. Chance batted .479 with this club and was signed by Jim Hart, owner of the Chicago National league club, for $1,200 a year. He joined the team in 1898 and made good, despite his greenness. In 1902 Manager Selee transferred Chance to first to get the benefit of his hitting, and in 1905, when Selee quit, Chance was made manager.

Chance found the makings of a good team. He made it great with a few trades, and the marvelous Cub machine resulted, winning pennants in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910 and world's series in 1907 and 1908.

When C. W. Murphy became president of the Cubs, Chance secured a tenth interest on the same terms. In 1906 the club paid for itself and Chance owned the stock clear.

As manager of the Cubs, Chance received $10,000 a year. After his "release" in Cincinnati he retired to his orange grove, determined to quit the game, but $25,000 a year, plus the hypnotism exerted by the American league heads, caused him to change his mind.

LEADING OFF BASES

It Can be Got Down to a Science and Helps to Win Games

"There is one outfielder on the Browns who should be one of the best base-runners in the American league," says Branch Rickey. "That he isn't is entirely due to himself. I watched him a whole season and I have yet to see him slide back to first when a pitcher threw there."

There is little doubt Rickey meant Bert Shotten.

"What does it prove when a man never has to slide back to first to beat a pitcher's throw?"

"It means that he isn't getting a big enough lead. It means that, instead of worrying the pitcher and thus helping the man at the bat, the base-runner is underestimating his own ability. Every inch off first base means that much less distance to cover on the steal, and every out at second on a fast man is by a matter of inches.

"The baserunner should keep experimenting on how far he can lead off from the bag. I want all my men to take as much off first as he possibly can. Then he'll help the batter and he'll worry the pitcher."

FIFTY MILE GOLF DRIVE

Certain extraordinary facts with respect to Mars have been established by the astronomers, says an article in the "London Magazine."

It is known that the size and density of Mars are so much less than the size and density of the earth that a man weighing 200 pounds here would weigh only 75 pounds there. Lead there would weigh no more than stone with us, and stone there no more than water here.

A man on Mars would be eighty-three times more powerful than an earth-dweller. He could leap a wall 8 feet 4 inches in height with no more effort than it would cost him here to [illegible] over a 3 foot fence, and he would be able to drive a golf ball 50 miles [illegible]

Copper Jumps

"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

How About YOU?

So long as copper was simply a by-product of a few mines—a plaything for the Indians—nobody took New Mexico Copper Mining very seriously—but

Those days are past. As a Copper State New Mexico is coming into its own on the jump!

Here is Your Chance--

The Republic Mines Company offers you an interest — as much as you care to acquire — in its enormous tonnage of excellent Copper, Gold and Silver Ore ready to take out and sell, at a price to return you handsome profits upon your investment.

It has tried the experiments—taken the risks—acquired a magnificent estate—demonstrated its ore bodies and their great value—and now offers you

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

As light as lager,
but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅝ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WHAT COAL CAN DO

Does anyone realize the power of coal as a worker? A man was set to work a pump as hard as he could all day, and at the end of ten hours it was found that he had done just as much work as a little less than 2 ounces of coal could do.

Taking all the energy put forth by a hard-working man during one whole year, the same amount of force would be furnished by 36 pounds of good coal —or, say, 40 pounds of average coal.

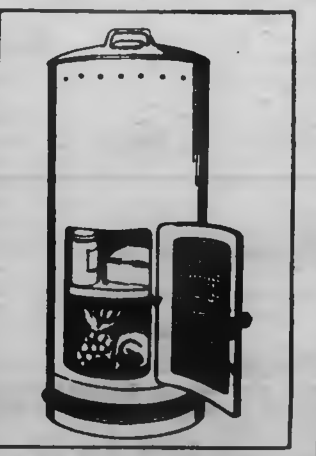
Of course, even in the best engines, the greater part of the working energy of coal is wasted. But even if only one-tenth is turned to account, 150 pounds of coal is equal to a man working for 300 days of the year.

A horse can do as much work as ten men, but 1¼ pounds of coal has as much working force as a horse expends in one day. So that a ton of coal, if we could use all its force, would do as much work as six horses working for a whole year!

ICELESS REFRIGERATOR

Keeps the Contents at a Desirable Temperature by Use of Water

The iceless refrigerator is not intended to put the ice man out of business, but is meant for service in localities not traversed by that august individual. This cooler consists of a stout wire mesh covered with an absorbent cotton cloth. The base and top are of metal, with provision made for accommodating a quantity of water. After this has been poured into the interior of the cooler it is conveyed to the cloth by means of several wicks, so that the cloth is always moist as long as there is water in the tank. The evaporation of this water on the exposed surface of the cloth causes the temperature to lower, so that the interior is maintained at a temperature of about 50 degrees, which is sufficient for a great many purposes.



REFRIGERATOR WITHOUT ICE.

VALUABLE FISHERIES

Many Fish Found in British Columbia Waters

The fisheries of British Columbia are the most valuable in the Dominion. Of the $35,000,000 worth of fish produced from all the Provinces in Canada in one year, this one contributed fish to the value of $14,000,000. Salmon halibut and herring are the three chief varieties of fish which inhabit the waters of British Columbia.

The Fraser River, especially that section of it flowing through the lower mainland, contributes most liberally to the fisheries of the Province. The salmon pack in all parts of British Columbia in a year amounted to 996,576 cases, of which the lower mainland district, including the Province's largest canneries at New Westminster, contributed 173,921 cases, or almost twenty per cent. of the entire pack.

The fishing business on "the coast" is only in its infancy. The rivers of the northern part of the interior are practically unknown, so far as their fertility is concerned, and the fishermen on the coast are only beginning to realise the immense wealth which lurks in the numerous bays and inlets of the Pacific coast.

A Share of the Catch

In the French fisheries on the Newfoundland banks the fishermen do not work for wages, but for a share in the catch. Before they leave France they receive an advance payment, varying from $75 to $150, to be deducted from their future earnings. If, as not infrequently happens, a man's share at the end of the season is not sufficient to cover the amount advanced to him, the owner of the vessel loses the difference, and the man himself comes home with empty pockets. The fisherman's total earnings in seven months of hard labor and exposure probably do not average more than $150. Strangely enough, the men appear to be content with their lot, and all the reforms that have been effected toward improving their wages and the conditions under which they labor have been initiated by naval officers, administrative officials and enlightened ship-owners.

Wholesale Smuggling

Wholesale smuggling of horses, cattle and grain across the Canadian border, amounting to thousands of dollars was unearthed by Collector of Customs Judson La Moure, Jr., of the district of North and South Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. According to information from Hallock, Man., near the centre of the smuggling district the operations were carried on along the border between St. Vincent and Warroad, Minn. There is no customs port between these two points, which are about 100 miles apart.

SMOKERS IN FACTORIES

Their Carelessness Causes Many Needless Fires

It is an open question whether the careless fool or the deliberate criminal does more damage by fire. Advantage seems to lie with the fool, because he is everywhere gladly bringing down destruction, while the fire bug must go about his deadly work stealthily, at weird hours and in awkward places.

Chief among the fools who carelessly cause fires is the smoker. His blazing match is cast down still alight. His cigarette end falls into piles of paper or shavings. The burning ashes of his trusty pipe descend gently into oil vats and barrels of gunpowder. If the fool destroyed only himself, the world could bear his actions philosophically, but he usually escapes while better men perish.

In England great wealth was accumulated by a man who was shrewd enough to locate small tobacco stores opposite factory entrances, but his fortune represented the loss of many fortunes by his brother manufacturers.

Smoking should be absolutely prohibited in or about every Canadian factory, and employes breaking this rule should be dismissed. If the rule became national, manufacturers could inform each other of these dismissals and could refuse employment to persistent offenders. If it were enforced there would be fewer fires, better work would be done, and the smoker would enjoy his weed more keenly in the evening, after a day's self-denial.—Industrial Canada.

NO SALT HORSE

It Costs Huge Sum Nowadays to Provision Ocean Liners

In these days, when the high cost of living is so much in the public mind it is interesting to know what it costs a steamship to provide the necessities of life to the hordes of passengers who cross and recross the Atlantic. The annual statement of the North German Lloyd Company throws some interesting light on the subject.

For one year the company's bill for provisions alone was $4,920,000, while during the same period the coal man was paid $7,376,735 for 1,758,740 tons of coal which were shovelled into the ships' furnaces during the twelvemonth. For these two items alone—provisions and coal—the company paid the enormous sum of $12,296,735.

The itemised provision bill showed that the butcher got $1,685,000 for meats. This does not include fish and game; for the former the company paid an additional $239,660, while the bill for the game amounted to $412,360, a total of $652,020.

Preserves cost $255,760 for the twelve months and fresh vegetables ran into the respectable figure of $128,110, while for "sundries," including bread, flour, spices, fruits and the thousand and one articles that are used in the kitchen, the company paid $1,688,890.

More potatoes were consumed during the year than any other single article, the total amount having been 17,875,873 pounds. Flour ranked next with 6,313,152 pounds, fresh beef third with 5,769,124 pounds, while the bread was fourth with 2,353,083 pounds. The passengers consumed 7,098,560 eggs, 4,271,000 oranges and lemons 707,625 pounds of onions and 383,807 pounds of salt. They used 465,340 pounds of coffee and 41,729 pounds of tea and 529,619 cans of sterilised milk, to say nothing of 14,918 bottles of fresh cream.

THE GREAT LAKES

We all know in a general way that Lake Superior is the largest and Lake Ontario the smallest of the Great Lakes, but the relative facts are scarcely known to the average person. While Lake Michigan ranks second in size, being forty-five miles shorter than Lake Superior, it is twice as deep as its greatest depth, the figures being 900 feet for Lake Superior and 1,800 feet for Lake Michigan, so that in cubical contents the latter far outreaches Superior. Lake Huron's greatest depth also is a hundred feet more than that of Lake Superior, so that the greatest is not superior to everything after all.

Lake Erie and Lake Ontario are comparatively shallow, with maximum depth of 204 feet and 412 feet, and yet we should not like to fall overboard in either of them. In width—maximum figures—Lake Superior comes first with 160 miles, Huron second with 105, Michigan third with 84, Erie fourth with 60, and Ontario last with only 52 miles of greatest breadth.

In comparison with its area, Ontario leads with a drainage of 29,760 square miles for its area of 6,700, the others being Erie, drainage, 39,680, area 23,000 square miles; Michigan, drainage, 70,000, area, 22,400 square miles; and Superior, drainage, 85,000, area, 32,000 square miles. Drop in elevation is very gradual, Lake Superior being 600 feet above sea-level, Michigan 578 feet, Huron 574 feet, Erie 564 feet, and then comes a big drop to 234 feet for Lake Ontario.

How to Grow Old

Don't smile.

Suspect everybody.

Keep your wireless station tuned to rumors, trouble, gossip or misery.

Specialize the grouch habit.

Envy your neighbor.

When you hear of another man's good fortune, feel mean about it.

When you sit down to dinner tell your wife and the children what everything costs.

Never mind the pleasant day. Rain to-morrow.

These are sure and positive rules.

It Pays to Advertise

When a duck lays an egg, she just waddles off as if nothing had happened.

The hen advertises.

Hence the demand for hen's eggs instead of duck's.

Germany's Export Trade

Germany's foreign trade last year was as follows: imports, $2,672,750,000, as compared with $2,672,750,000, in 1912, and exports, $2,[illegible],000 as compared with $2,299,250,000.

NEST IN CACTUS STALKS

Mexican Woodpecker Makes Its Home in Giant Plant

There is a species of woodpecker in northern Mexico that frequently makes its nest in the stalk of one of the large cactuses—the giant cereus—which abound on the plains in that region.

Undismayed by the spines that cover the trunk of the huge plant, the bird clears a space, and with great labor digs a short tunnel and a flask-shaped cavity in the tough, fibrous wood.

Both the male and female woodpecker work at the task, and they use the same nest for several years unless the growth of the plant disturbs it. Such a nest is safe from all natural enemies.

Occasionally this handsome woodpecker—Centurus elegans—digs its tunnel in the trunk of a palm instead of the cactus—a circumstance likely to lead to the destruction of the tree. After the young have flown and the nest is left empty, the small seeds of the wild fig are often carried into it by birds or bats.

The moisture of the rainy season causes the seeds to germinate and to grow tendrils that before long reach the ground and take root. The wild fig grows rapidly until in a few years it wholly envelops the palm and suffocates it.

STRANGE CHEQUES

Documents Will be Honored Even When not Written on Paper

A cheque, as an order for payment, if otherwise valid, is perfectly good if made out on material other than the orthodox form provided by the bank.

Some time ago a cheque written on an oyster shell was drawn for a sum of $5.00, presented, and cashed by a bank at Atlantic City, New Jersey. It was plainly written, and nobody thought of dishonoring it on that account.

There is a Manchester cabinet-maker who frequently draws cheques on thin slips of wood lying about his workshop. If his cheque book is handy he uses it, but if it is not, then a slip of wood has to serve.

Cheques have been drawn on collars and cuffs, or portions of them, and duly cashed.

A cheque for $100 is held as a curiosity by the bank on which it was drawn. It is made out on the leather tongue of a boot, as the outcome of a wager respecting the payment of such a cheque. Two business men were disputing one day about the obligation of a bank to honor a cheque so drawn, whereon the one who upheld its validity undid his boot, cut out the tongue, and forthwith plainly wrote a cheque upon it. Both then went to the bank, where it was presented and cashed.

Will Lassoo Gorillas

"Buffalo Jones," who used to divert himself lassoing buffalo on the Western plains, has found a new sport—lassoing gorillas. No full grown specimen of the great ape has so far been taken alive. But "Buffalo Jones" is now in the French Congo to get some for the London Zoo. A moving picture man will trail the gorilla hunter.

Boxing for Olympics

The Amateur Boxing Association of England is trying to have boxing contests listed with the events at the Olympic Games. "Boxing was one of the favorite outdoor sports at the ancient Greek Olympiads," says President John H. Douglas, "and the modern Olympic meets will never be complete until boxing contests are given as important a place on the programme as the Pentathlon and the Marathon race."

Margaret Leila Gets a Year

At Saturday's police court Marggret Leila Duncan was charged with vagrancy. It seems that Margaret made all kind of promises of reform to Matron McElheney of the Salvation Army after the latter had paid, from her own personal funds, the girl's fine. As she left the court Margaret was accompanied by two men and, to use a slang expression "Went bad." The girl pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was committed to the Mercer Institute for one year.

May Interest Local Liveries.

The charge preferred against a local livery man for negligence of duty was ventilated before P. M. Jackson at this morning's session of the police court. The defendant had been engaged by certain parties to attend a funeral for the purpose of conveying the friends of the deceased from their home in north William street to the railway station. The appointed hour arrived, but no "cabby." The charge was withdrawn by Chief Short on evidence showing that the parties lived a few doors north of the boundary line of Lindsay in the township of Ops. Many local cab men attended the court and profited by the magistrate's remarks, who intimated that the law demands that all cab men who do not attend on time are subject to prosecution and it is left to the magistrate's option what penalty to impose upon the parties guilty of such violation.

Lively Time at Y.M.C.A.

Lively times around the Y.M.C.A. are in prospect for the next two weeks for during that time the association will endeavor to break all records in a short term membership canvass. Thirty three workers are to canvass for senior members and many boys are working on behalf of the boys' department, the goal being 300 members and $1000 by the 1st 21st Nov. The effort was opened Thursday evening at a supper served by the membership committee and which was attended by 30 workers.

A number of short addresses were delivered by the workers present, Gen'l. Secy. Weserve acting as toast master. Each speaker prophesied that the success would be attained and that the banquet offered the team doing the best work would be awarded to the team which he represented.

The membership committee offers a fine watch fob to the individual who does the best work in the canvass and a nice Y.M.C.A. emblem to the worker who enrolls five members. Several prizes are being offered to the workers in the boys' department, so shoulder to shoulder the boys and men are out to win.

Trent Canal News.

The Randolph Macdonald Co'y having completed its contract on the lower end of the Trent Canal, is now moving its plant to Washago, on Lake Couchiching, where it has the contract of the First Section on the Severn Division of the canal. A formidable fleet came in on Friday from Hastings. Two stout tugs, a huge powerful dredge, and a scow camp for the employees. The Dredge No. 8 draws five feet four inches of water and as there was only four feet, ten of water in part of the Canal, naturally there was difficulty. The dredge of course had tremendous power to draw itself, and did so through the first part of the canal, though it snapped a new two inch rope like a bit of whip cord. Fronting the fireball the snubbing posts began coming out by the roots. It was then decided to place the stop logs in, east of the Swing Bridge, and by daming across there sufficient of the leakage was cut off to raise the canal six inches, and this eased the dredge up so that it was enabled to drag itself through. It was expected the dredge would meet with trouble in getting through the Kirkfield cut from Balsam Lake. Another dredge has yet to come through as soon as one of the tugs can go back for it.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

CLEARS THE HEAD, OPENS THE NOSTRILS
STOPS SNEEZING, CURES CATARRH

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuff or spray. Such treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhozone the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapor of Catarrhozone is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic, no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of Catarrh is to use Catarrhozone."

ed that Parliament would disapprove of the policy of the Government, and that your disappointment in this became the reason.

"You forget to mention that since the South African War the British people gave South Africa her entire freedom under a Constitution which makes it possible for us to realize our national ideals along our own lines, and which, for instance, allows you to write with impunity a letter for which you would without a doubt be liable in the German Empire to the extreme penalty.

"As regards your other statements, they have been answered and disposed of in Parliament. From these discussions it will be apparent the neither the British Empire nor South Africa was the aggressor in this struggle. War was in the first instance declared by Austria-Hungary, and thereafter by Germany, under circumstances in which the British Government employed its utmost powers to maintain peace of Europe and to safeguard the neutrality of Belgium.

"So far as we ourselves are concerned, our coast is threatened, our mail boats are arrested, and our borders are invaded by the enemy. This latter does not occur, as you say, in an involuntary manner, with an apology which letter, at any rate, was never tendered to the Government. Under these circumstances it is absurd to speak about the aggressive action on the part of the Union, seeming that altogether with the British Empire we have drawn against our wish and will and entirely in self-defence into this war.

"As regards your insinuation concerning the loan of £7,000,000 which the British Government was kind enough to grant us and for which the public of the Union, as evidenced recently in Parliament, are most grateful, it was of such a despicable nature that there was no necessity to make any comment thereon. It only shows to what extent your mind... has been obscured by political bias.

"You speak about duty and honour: my conviction is that the people of South Africa will in these dark days when the Government as well as the people of South Africa are put to the supreme test, have a clearer conception of duty and honour than is to be deduced from your letter and action. For the Dutch speaking section in particular, I cannot conceive anything more fatal and humiliating than a policy of lip loyalty in fair weather and of a policy of neutrality and pro-German sentiment in days of storm and stress. It may be that our peculiar internal circumstances and our backward condition after the great war will place a limit on what we can do, but nevertheless I am convinced that the people will support the Government in carrying out the mandate of Parliament and in this manner, which is the only legitimate one, fulfil their duty to South Africa and to the Empire, and maintain their dearly-won honour unblemished for the future.

"Your resignation is hereby accepted.

(Signed) J. C. Smuts."

Plucky Belgians Take a Hand in Forcing Germans Back--Light Cruiser "Undaunted" Adds to Her Laurels By Capturing Mine Layer In North Sea

GERMAN ADVANCE ON CALAIS BLOCKED BY FRENCH AND ENGLISH

Allies Reached Disputed Ground of Advantage First--Ostend Not Yet Controlled By the Enemy--Brilliant Work of the French Cavalry Surprised the Uhlans, Who Precipitately Retired

London, Oct. 19—The advance of the German force threatening the northern French coast has been halted for the moment, says the correspondent of The Chronicle in northern France. The Germans have suffered heavily in the recent fighting and are now short of ammunition and stores. However, they are preparing to strike a heavy blow. It is probable that they will attempt to penetrate the defences of Dunkirk with the object of overrunning the French coast as far as Calais and Boulogne. The heavy siege guns from Antwerp are being moved toward the present German line while large bodies of German troops are being pushed forward. A large force of Germans is centred at Thourout twelve miles southwest of Bruges, Belgium.

Dunkirk is calm, although the city realizes that it is menaced. Along the front of both armies the duty in the trenches is made more unpleasant by heavy rains and the ground between the armies, in many cases, is a bog. The weather is turning colder and the mists and fogs make the low-lying country unhealthy.

Allies Get There First.

A correspondent of The Times in France telegraphing Sunday declares that any plan the German General Von Kluck may have had for sweeping down on Calais has failed because he says, the allied forces arrived there first.

"When last Thursday week the Germans put out a feeler toward Hazebrouck, from which a raid on Calais would have been made," the correspondent continues, "the French cavalry assumed the offensive and performed a very gallant feat at arms. The Prussians held the right bank of the River Lys, and searchlights and mitrailleuses were trained on the two forts at Merville and Estairres.

Swam the River.

"The French cavalry commander, under cover of night, collected his men near Aire, on the left bank of the river, without being detected. Here the current is swift and the water is deep, and the Germans had regarded the river at this point as unfordable. A French trooper, who is an expert swimmer, stripped and swam across the stream, bearing a light line. When he reached the opposite bank he hauled a heavier rope across and made it fast and other men and horses began to cross. When dawn broke two thousand French Dragoons were on the right bank of the river. The Uhlans saw themselves outnumbered and outflanked and retired toward Armentierres.

May Not Hold Ostend.

Lille has been evacuated by the Germans for the third time," says The Telegraph's correspondent in the north of France. "This evacuation was made necessary by the Allies' capture of Laventie and Estares, which forced the Germans hastily to leave the plain between Hazebrouck and Lille.

"Everywhere along our left flank we have been successful and the Germans are falling back under pressure which they cannot resist. It is not even certain that they will hold Ostend. Refugees tell me that there were no Germans in Ostend on Friday.

"The German army has not been defeated in the western theatre of action, but its position is one of extreme peril. The allies took Bailleul, 17 miles northwest of Lille, on Thursday."

Reported to Have Captured a German Mine Layer, Disguised as Hospital Ship, in the Act of Planting Mines--Conveys Her Prize Into Harwich--French Cruiser Cruiser Sinks Austrian Submarine

London, Oct. 19.—The Central News has sent out a despatch from Harwich, in which the correspondent says he has learned upon good authority that the British cruiser Undaunted, accompanied by two torpedo boat destroyers, has captured a German mine layer in the North Sea.

The mine layer, the despatch says, was disguised as a hospital ship.

The Undaunted is bringing her prize into Harwich.

The Press Bureau is without confirmation of this incident.

ONE SHOT BY FRENCH CRUISER ENOUGH.

Cettinje, Montenegro, Oct. 19.—Via London, 1.46 p.m.—An Austrian submarine was sunk in the Adriatic today by a French cruiser.

Two submarine vessels went out from the Bay of Catarro to attack a French fleet, which was making its way along the Dalmatian coast. They were quickly sighted, however, by the French lookouts, and a well directed shot sent one of them, the leader, to the bottom. The other submarine escaped.

VIENNA; AND THE FACTS.

In the eastern war area the great battle of Poland appears to be progressing in favor of the Russians who claim to have checked decisively the German forces in their attempt to cross the Vistula. The Russians in and around Warsaw are being temporarily protected from fresh German artillery aggression by reason of the impassable condition of the country thru recent rains and owing ta the destruction of the only railroad from Lowicz to Warsaw on which the Germans could transport their heavy guns.

Around Przemysl the Austrians claim to have killed and wounded 40,000 Russians and also to have crossed the Carpathians, but on the other hand the Russians repulsed an Austrian attempt to cross the River San. That the Austrians are meeting with vigorous opposition is admitted in the latest Vienna despatch which says that "our troops are advancing as against a fortress."

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT MAY MEET NEXT MONTH

Politicans Talking to This Effect--New War Credit Needed in Addition to Fifty Million--Endorsement of Advanced War Policy

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—A session of Parliament, to be summoned early in November is the expectation today in political circles, although there is no official conformation and Cabinet Ministers say the question is undecided.

It is the general belief, though, that the House will be called to meet as early as possible next month. The Government will ask for endorsement of the advanced war policy announced by Sir Robert Borden and for the funds necessary to equip, train and mobilize some thirty thousand men. Fifty million dollars were voted at the emergency session of Parliament, but more will likely be needed to carry the war proposals of the Government through to the end of the fiscal year.

ALLIES STRIKING GERMANS HARD IN BATTLE OF FLANDERS

Paris, Oct. 19. An uninterrupted offensive movement by the Allies at certain points in Northern France was predicted here today as the battle was resumed. The retaking of Armentierres, on the River Lys, on the Belgian frontier, and the occupation, ten miles west of Lille, of the right line leading towards Douai via Givenchy and Fromelles, was considered as constituting an excellent advance guard position by reason of its numerous places of support.

This, with the progress in several other sections, notably Arras, gave the Allies hope of a continuance of their advance.

Lieut.-Col. Rousset, the military critic, in reviewing the military situation, refuses to concur in the statement made that the battle of the Aisne has been definitely won by the Allies.

"One never knows what will happen," "and while the enemy will not take the return route, a revival of its activity can be produced in another vicinity, especially if the Germans see the theor manoeuvre in the north is endangered. But it is certain that upon the horizontal line, going from the Oise to the Meuse, the Allies have nothing to fear, as every effort of the Germans from this side would certainly be stopped.

"As to the new battle," that of Flanders, it is clearly offensive on the side of the Allies. The circumstances which inspires us is that it will develop on ground more favorable for attack than for defence, and that it is undulating land, widely spaced, where troops can easily defile for aggressive movements.."

GOOD START FOR THE SECOND CONTINGENT

St. John, N. B., Oct. 19.... On the Ottawa announcement of the second contingent plans, Lieut.-Col. D. L. McAvity today formed the nucleus of an infantry regiment here by enlisting for foreign service the home defence company of the fifty-nine men who have been on duty here. It is said there is reason to believe that the second body to go from New Brunswick will be a regiment of one thousand, under Col. McAvity's command.

TYPHOON KILLED TWENTY.

Tokio, Oct. 19.—It is announced that a typhoon has struck Kiao-Chow, destroying the landing pier. Twenty Japanese sailors were drowned.

The Belgian Army Must Still Be Reckoned With By Foe

Further south in France reinforcements from Brussels are said to have been brought up before Lille which the Germans are reported as bombarding in a desperate attempt to retake the place.

The Belgians themselves have been putting in some hard knocks. According to last night's Paris official communication they have held the Germans in an attempt to cross the River Yser, southwest of Dixmude, Belgium. This was the first heard of the Belgian forces since the evacuation of Antwerp and now they are found appropriately and picturesquely defending that little splotch of their ownland.

King Albert, unheard of for some time, is said to have cheered the men in the field. Some of the London papers describe the German evacuation of Ostend as a retirement to the coast. The allies' progress to the south threatened the Ostend garrison, making a retreat imperative. The despatches are far from unanimous on the direction of the retirement, however, most of them describing it as a passage to the west, and any attempt therefore to analyze it is but conjectural.

BELGIAN ARMY STILL FIGHTING HELPING DRIVE GERMANS BACK

In Spite of Heavy Reinforcements Germans Fail to Break Link in Strong Steel Chain of Allies Opposing Them--All Attacks Thrown Back--Allies in Contact With British Navy

Paris, Oct. 19.—The French War Office gave out an official statement this afternoon as follows:

"In Belgium the heavy artillery of the enemy has cannonaded, but without result, the front from Nieuport to Vladsloo, to the east of Dixmude.

"The forces of the allies, and notably the Belgian army, have not only repulsed further attacks on the part of the Germans, but have advanced as far as Roulers.

"On our left wing, between the River Lys and the Canal of La Bassee, we have advanced in the direction of Lille. There has been very stubborn fighting on the front from La Bassee to Ablain and to St. Nazaire. We are advancing from house to house in these localities.

"To the north and to the south of Arras our troops have been fighting with respite for more than ten days, and with a perseverance and a spirit which never for a moment have been relaxed.

"In the region of Chaulnes we have repulsed a strong counter attack delivered by the enemy, and have won some ground

"On the centre there is nothing to report.

"On our right wing, in Alsace, to the west of Colmar, our advance posts are on the line between Bonhomme, Pairis and Sulzern. More to the south we still occupy Thann."

Canadians Surprised Town.

Avonmouth, Eng., Oct. 19.— Via London, 10.50 a.m.—A well-known Atlantic liner arrived here today, bringing a large number of Canadian troops to augment those already encamped in England. The first news the towns-people had of their arrival was the sound of the fife and the drum in the streets. The men entrained immediately for a destination not announced.

Few Germans Near Coast

London, Oct. 19.—According to official news received here, says a despatch to The Telegraph, from Havre, the Germans are not occupying the Belgian coast. It is stated that there are only a few Uhlans in Ostend.

Allies in Contact With Navy.

London, Oct. 19.—By reaching their tentacles out to the seaboard the allied forces have established close contact with the British navy which now holds the extreme left of the line, and seems—from the London view —or the moment to block effectually a further German effort to turn this wing.

If, as the allies claim, their left cannot now be turned, the only alternative left the Germans is to hack a way through the trio of armies confronting them and Gen. Von Kluck and Gen. Von Arnim or whoever is in command of the German right, seems in no way loath to make the attempt.

Germans Try Forward Move.

That they have made a foraward move is evident not only from the newspaper despatches but from a confirmation of these despatches in Saturday's official communication from Paris which stated that the Belgians had repulsed several attempts of the Germans to cross the River Yser, which is ten miles nearer the coast than is the Thourout, Roulers and Menin line, which they occupied on the previous day.

As an offset to this the British official information bureau in one of its rare communications say that the allies of the northern area have driven the Germans back more than thirty miles. The precise locality of this advance and retreat is not indicated, but it can have been only at some point on this western wing where the Germans are trying to resume their interrupted dash on Paris, by way of the coast towns.

Germans to Be Back In Dear Fatherland Before Fall

These, however, are only two points on the human barriers which are facing one another for hundreds of miles and continuing to sway forwards and backwards without as yet being able to effect the titanic climax which will bring to an end the immediate phase of the great campaign. Observers here think that this climax cannot be far off and the London papers are quoting approvingly though not in the sense intended, the words attributed to Emperor William, who, in addressing his troops, somewhere in France on October 3rd, is reported to have said:

That is quite possible that the Emperor never gave expression to this opinion, does not detract from its value in the British construction.

Situation Very Satisfactory.

London, Oct. 19.—From the point of view of the Allied armies, so far as could be learned from despatches reaching London today, the situation in West Flanders and in France as far south as Lille, seemed on this, the seventy-seventh day of the war, perhaps more hopeful than at any time since the German advance on Paris was checked.

Though the news reaching England is meagre and to an extent delayed as always, all indications seem to indicate the German advance on the coast towns gas been blocked temporarily at least while further south, in the region that was a week ago the extreme German right, the invaders have been again compelled to give ground before the allies' wedge force which has been concentrating on Lille.

Whereabouts ? Asks London.

Several reports contend that the Germans have withdrawn from this town but this is not confirmed, nor is the report that they evacuated Courtrai, nearly thirty miles northwest. It seems plain, however, that the menace here grew marked and that the German army operating along the coast of Flanders found itself in peril of being cut off from the main body.

What position they met along the sea is only guess work, for it has never been disclosed in Great Britain what forces the allies have or at what point they touch the coast.

All reports seem to agree that the city of Ostend is practically clear of Germans who apparently are reforming to the south with reinforcements and the siege guns used to batter the Belgian forts and that they now propose to hammer on toward Dunkirk and Calais.

What Happened to the Cats?

Not long ago the U. S. Gov't made some experiments to determine the poisoning qualities of caffeine (the drug in tea and coffee).

Twenty-seven healthy cats were given an average dose of 5¾ grains of caffeine—about as much of the drug as is contained in 2 or 3 cups of tea or coffee.

What do you suppose happened?

The Cats all Died!

Of course they were only cats.

But there are enough people who dose themselves with enough caffeine every day to kill a cat and CRIPPLE A MAN, not at one blow, but by little blows repeated daily.

Of course some systems are strong enough to stand all kinds of abuse, but most systems are not. And when a man or woman observes a growing nervousness or sleeplessness, heart trouble, stomach bowel or eye disturbance, it is time to quit both tea and coffee and turn to a real food-drink, free from the drug, "caffeine."

It is easy to shift from tea or coffee to

HUMAN NESTS STIRRED UP

Text: As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead him.—Deut. 32:11-12.

Mythology says that the swan lives to a great age. Just before death it sings a wonderful song, and dies. So Moses, living to the ripeness of a hundred and twenty years, sees his end approaching, and before he climbs to the mountain's summit he sings this, his swan song, which we may read now, three thousand years afterwards, in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy. The man who, on Horeb, had complained of his slow and clumsy tongue, becomes most eloquent on Nebo; so magnificently eloquent that this, his farewell address, deserves a place among the masterpieces of oratory.

His song is all about God. The old statesman has passed beyond the petty things of time and place, and sees only the eternal glories of the Infinite. Somebody writes interestingly about a night spent at Hawarden during the last years of Mr. Gladstone's life. When family prayers were announced, the aged host himself sat down to the piano to lead the singing of a hymn. The visitor was curious to see what kind of hymn the great statesman would select. Soon the whole household was following the leader in singing.

"From all that dwell below the skies,
Let the Creator's praise arise;
Let the Redeemer's name be sung
Through every land, by every tongue."

So the theme of the aged statesman of Israel was God:

"Give ear, O ye Heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass. Because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the rock, His work is perfect, for all His ways are judgment: a God of Truth and without iniquity, just and right is He."

Then he speaks so gratefully of God's dealings with Israel, tells of God's providence all the way from the Nile to the Jordan, how God found Israel in a desert land and in the waste, howling wilderness, how He led him about, instructed him, kept him as the apple of His eye. And, having mentioned the miracles, the chastenings, the blessings, yea, even the reproofs, he cries:

"As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead Israel."

THE PROPER CARE OF A HORSE'S FEET

Defects Can be Remedied by Proper Shoeing—Some Ailments and How to Cure Them

In buying a horse for any purpose it is important to know that the animal's feet are sound. The horse is a native of the grassy plains of the world, and the things we have been doing with him under conditions of civilization have resulted in some strange diseases and weakness of the feet. Hard roads, continual shoeings, etc., have combined to produce cracked hoof walls, side bones, ring bones, coffin joints, contracted heels, lameness and other common and uncommon troubles in the hoof of the modern horse.

Shoeing is almost as necessary for the modern work horse as his daily ration, but a great many of the foot defects so discouragingly common may be traced back through the generations of shoeing. Careless and ignorant shoers continue to ruin the feet of horses.

The foot of a horse is not all a block of horn. On the upper side is a different kind of horn from that of the bottom side, with a spongy triangle called a frog. Inside this box of horn is a bone of a shape much like that of the foot in which the bones of the lower part of the leg terminate. The back side or rear end of this triangular bone terminates in the point or ring.

Now when a shoe is too wide at the heel it presses the shell of the foot in against these wings, and when the shoe is allowed to remain on too long and the shell of the foot grows over the shoe, or the shoe bears on the sole of the foot, it brings direct pressure in the parts over the ends or wings of the coffin bone. So in either case it is the shoe which, being improperly adjusted, pressing unduly upon the wing of this bone that produces an injury. Sometimes it will

In memory of Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," a monument has been erected at Hannibal, Mo. The monument is so situated that it overlooks the spot on the Mississippi river made famous by the humorous activities of "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer."

CANADIAN DOCTOR WON MANY HONORS

Sir Thomas Roddick Secured Legislation Creating Dominion-wide Standard For Medical Men

Among the medical men who have won fame and honor in Canada is Sir Thomas George Roddick of Montreal, who rendered such eminent service to his profession by initiating the law which now qualifies its members for practice in any Province of the Dominion. Sir Thomas is a native of Newfoundland, was educated in Truro, Nova Scotia, and was a distinguished graduate of McGill University, Montreal, where he rapidly became famous as a surgeon and general practitioner. He was from 1901 to 1908 Dean of the Medical Faculty of his University.

His father left Dumfriesshire to become for many years principal of the Government School at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. During the rebellion in the Northwest in 1885 Sir Thomas organized the hospital and medical service for the expeditionary force, holding the rank of Deputy Surgeon-General. He is lieutenant-colonel (retired) of the Prince of Wales' Rifles of Montreal. He also saw active service during the Fenian raids in 1870. In 1896 he entered the Dominion House of Commons as M.P. for Montreal West, principally with the object—successfully accomplished—of securing legislation by which a medical man qualified in any one Province of the Dominion could practice in all.

SIR THOMAS RODDICK, M.D.

Sir Thomas was president of the British Medical Association at the time that body in 1896 held its first annual meeting outside the British Isles, in Montreal, and was prominent in entertaining the numerous delegates and visitors. The degrees and honors conferred upon Dr. Roddick by other universities and institutions are too numerous to mention. It is sufficient to state that he received the LL.D. of Edinburgh University in 1898 and that of Oxford in 1904, and he is F.R.C.S. of London. As consulting surgeon to the Royal Victoria Hospital, to the Victorian Order of Nurses, and other charitable organizations and institutions, he has rendered invaluable service.

Sir Thomas married, in 1880, Miss Marion McKinnon, of Pointe Claire, Quebec, who died in 1890. In 1906 he married Miss Amy Redpath, the oldest daughter of the late Mr. J. J. Redpath, of the Manor House, Chislehurst, a member of an old Montreal family.

HOPE TO FIND COAL

Fuel Supply in Canada's Northland Would be Great Boon

There is under way a prospecting expedition to Hudson Bay, the main object of which is to investigate coal deposits in that area which can be utilized in connection with the operation of the Hudson Bay Railway. A supply will also be required for the steamers. At present all the coal that is required in connection with steamer traffic to the Bay has to be conveyed there by Newfoundland sealing steamers that are used for freighting purposes in the summer months. They are the only vessels available that can withstand the wear and tear of navigation in these northern ice-laden waters.

Coal for the needs of the railway construction forces is conveyed by train from Winnipeg and Le Pas as the railroad progresses. When the line is opened to Port Nelson and terminals constructed there provision for a large storage for coal will be made. Its cost, however, in view of the lengthy transportation from Cape Breton by water and from Western Canada by rail will be a considerable item. Hence the present efforts to locate coal deposits near Port Nelson.

Protect Young Timber

Mr. Clyde Leavitt, chief fire inspector of the Railway Commission, stated, in an interview, that the railways were doing everything in their power to prevent bush fires near the railway tracks from spreading. "It seems to me," said Mr. Leavitt, "that there is too little attention paid to the fires in the cut over areas, and too much protection concentrated on the merchantable timber limits. If more effort were devoted to protecting the young timber it would give it a chance and prevent the fire from spreading to the limits where the trees are large enough for merchantable use."

Wellington Campaign Plans

The map found on a captured Uhlan marked with the prearranged marches of the German troops reminds one that Wellington distrusted fixed plans of campaign. Asked on one occasion how he managed to capture Napoleon's marshals one after the other, he replied: "They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well, it answers very well, until it gets broken and then you're done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong, I tied a knot and went on."

Fire Insurance in Canada

There are only twenty-one Canadian fire companies reporting to the Dominion Government which are Canadian in the true sense that they are owned by Canadian shareholders. There are twenty-four British companies and thirty-one American and foreign companies.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

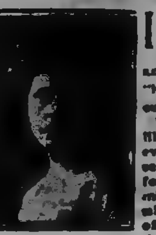
By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 119.

Dad's Money Gone.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

"I WISH you wouldn't whistle when you're angry," said Mary. "It makes me furious."

"When I whistle like that," I said evenly, "it's extreme self-restraint. Don't forget that for a minute. Just this minute I could shoot off a pair of six-shooters, and roar a little, but I won't. Go on—tell me what else you did with the money I gave you to save for the first payment of Dad's note."

"I—I told you of the holly and—and the little things like that," faltered Mary.

"Tell me some more," I added. "There's $5 to account for. It was in an envelope, you remember, and I told you to keep it very carefully——"

Mary's Tree.

"Then," said Mary, "I—I had to buy a Christmas tree—and—all the things that go on it. Last year we spent Christmas home, and this is the first year we've been by ourselves. And—and I've always had a Christmas tree. It wouldn't be Christmas without it."

What a waste of good things the childless Christmas tree is! I said so.

"I don't like the idea anyway," I said morosely. "Why should we have a tree when there isn't a youngster to dance and crow around it. It's a profanation of the Christmas tree to buy it just for a whim."

"Why, Peter," said Mary, "mother even has a Christmas tree for Colonel!"

Colonel! Colonel, if you please, is a big, lazy brute of a dog who's always making you get up and open doors for him, or howling when his vanity's wounded. I despise him. He's built like Mrs. Penfield.

"That's disgusting!" I retorted. "Your mother makes me tired about that dog, anyway. She's an absolute bore with her anecdotes of his smartness, and he's spoiled. She's turned him into a pampered fool, just through a sentimental devotion to his needs."

Which was quite true. And Mrs. Penfield isn't the only woman who wastes a lot of exuberant sentimentality on a dog. Women talk baby talk to dogs—they humor them—they relate uninteresting tales of their exploits, just as the new father with the very new baby, and without his excuse; but a dog Christmas tree—it was too much! I thought to annoy Mary with my biting criticism, but she merely smiled very sweetly.

Sweetness vs. Temper.

"Peter," she said, "I'm not going to quarrel with you. It's Christmas eve, and I shan't let you harbor any ill feeling. If I did spend the money you were going to pay on your father's note, it was merely because I thought he could wait just this once, and, besides, it was in a good cause. I couldn't do without a tree—and the house wouldn't be Christmasy without holly and wreaths. You're tired and cranky—that's all's the matter with you, Peter. Go lie down for a while and you'll feel better."

That cloying sweetness in a woman's voice is harder to endure than her fretful spasms of temper. There's so much behind it—a delicate sense of superiority—a sense of martyrdom, a sweet determination to bear with this brute of a man at any cost, forgive his coarseness and coax him into the semblance of a human being.

I did retire to a couch and lie down, but not because I was tired. I was utterly disgusted. And while I lay there, Mary, humming, proceeded to dress up the house in Christmas wreaths and holly. And presently she began to trim the tree.

Try as I might I could not banish the thought that all of these gew-gaws had been bought with money that really belonged to Dad.

"Before I'll fall down on that note," I said to myself, "I'll borrow money from my chief."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

A boy friend of mine took me to a party the other night. I danced the first dance with him, but then a boy came up to me and took me in to supper and kept me by his side all evening.

The boy I came up with was very angry that I did not go in to supper with him, and will hardly speak to me, and then only very coldly. What should I do? I am 16 years of age. Should I invite a boy into the house when he takes me home from any sort of affair? GEORGINA D.

WELL, Georgina, I don't blame the boy who took you to the party at all. If I were he I would never take you or any girl like you to a party again.

Why should he ask you to go with him, and then have you insult him openly before every one at the party? That's what you did, you know—you were very rude and very ill-bred and very unkind and very thoughtless. If you want to be friends with that boy you'll have to apologize to him—that's all—and then, maybe, he won't care to make up with you.

No, I wouldn't invite a boy into the house when you've come home from evening affairs. Nice girls do not spend much time alone with a boy when every one else in the house is asleep.

Now be a nice, sweet girl, and the next time you go to a party with a boy remember that you owe him at least ordinary courtesy. And don't let any other boy take you away from him, no matter how fascinating or how determined the other boy may be.

ASKING THE MIRROR :: :: By Michelson

FACE to face, with nothing between them—just herself and the mirror to have it out. Really a solemn moment, maybe, for the question may be very important. What is she asking? Ah! that's a secret. Only she knows—and the mirror. It wouldn't be surprising if she really SAID it, though perhaps in a whisper. Perhaps she's asking whether he loves her, as if the mirror could answer THAT. Perhaps she's asking whether she loves HIM, which is another poser for the mirror. Even a hardened mirror might shy at that.

Perhaps—and this would be tremendously important—she's asking whether she shall say YES.

Really, you see, she is asking herself. But, looking straight into these other eyes in the mirror, which are a PERFECT likeness of the eyes HE looks into when he gets a chance, she somehow feels that the question is brought squarely home. Which is ABSOLUTELY true.

What Marrying for Money Means

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Dear, Madam:

If a man is a cad who is ashamed of a girl who is not his equal socially, and a man is a cad who talks about a woman, what is a woman who does the same thing? Don't the rule work both ways?

If a man who marries for money is a cad, what is a woman who marries for money and position?

Please give your opinion.

JUSTICE.

Winifred Black

THE woman who marries for money and position—what is she?

This is a family newspaper, my good correspondent, and I'm afraid it would not do to say just exactly what I think a woman is who does such a thing as that.

For one thing—she's a fool. She may get her money, and her position—but she pays a price for them that it stops the heart to think of. A price no woman of honor, no woman of decent self-respect, will ever pay for anything in this world, so long as true women are true women.

Many women of good reputation do marry for money? Quite so—more's the shame and the pity of it. So do many men of good reputation lie and steal—and some day they go to the penitentiary for it, too.

There is no public penitentiary for the woman who marries for money, but, oh, her soul sits ever behind the bars—and if you look closely at her you can see the shadow of the very gallows tree itself in her miserable eyes.

"It Isn't Done."

The man who marries for money is worse than the woman who marries for money, for the same reason that the man who lets a woman carry his suitcase is, somehow, on a lower scale than the woman who loads down her too willing escort with bundles, and makes no effort to help him up the station steps.

There are some things which can't be explained in so many words.

The English have a fine way of getting out of such affairs as that.

"Why don't you wear a bowler hat to a funeral?" said I to an Englishman upon occasion. "There's nothing really farcical about the hat itself, is there?" And the Englishman stared at me, after the fashion of his kind, with round eyes full of cool amazement.

"It isn't done," he said—and that settled the affair.

And, strangely enough, it really did settle it, for when a thing "isn't done" it isn't—by people who know the rules of the great game we call, for want of a better name, the game of life.

Women do—at present—but every one who knows the women who do marry for money despises them. And some day we will say of the woman who thinks of such a thing "it isn't done"—and it won't be.

In Europe it is done—the man marries for money—and so does the woman—and they are both perfectly happy and not in the least ashamed of it. Why should they be? It is done, over there, and that's all there is to it.

There's no pretence, no hypocrisy, no cruel deceit, no shallow wearing of a foolish mask; it is all a perfectly good matter of perfectly legitimate business.

A young Frenchman arrives at a certain age—he comes into a certain amount of money and a certain position. It is time for him to marry. His parents and friends look about them for a "suitable" wife for him.

To be suitable the girl the young Frenchman marries must belong to a family of a certain position, and must bring to her husband a certain amount of money. When the girl is found the marriage is arranged, the two little fortunes are made into one and the new home is started on quite a sensible, practical and perfectly honest foundation.

The Frenchman and the French girl are not marrying each other just for their own sakes—they are founding a family—and their own particular preferences and wishes, in a merely personal way, are not supposed to have much to do with the case.

The European Dowry.

I wish I could believe that the French, and the Germans, and the Italians, and all the rest of them, who marry to keep the family together, were entirely in the wrong—and that we are entirely in the right. I used to think so—like most Americans.

But somehow I do not see that the American marriage turns out much better, for the individual, than does the French marriage—and it certainly does turn out very, very often much worse for the family.

The most profligate Frenchman in the world will save money for his daughter's dowry. The most careless Frenchwoman who ever wore rice powder and made up her eyes before breakfast every morning will deny herself even of rouge to set her son up in business. She will half starve to find for him the right sort of girl, with the right sort of dowry, who will, when the time comes, sacrifice herself in turn for the grandson of the woman who gave up her rouge for the sake of the family.

Now with us—it is all different. John marries Mary because he's crazy about her. Mary marries John because she can't live without him.

They may have money, they may have none. John may be a swell, and Mary may be a girl who works for her living. "Love will make it all right," we think, we Americans, and we all look sentimentally on, shed a sympathetic tear, and are pleased with ourselves for being so pleased with what we like to think is "romance."

John loses his job, and Mary has to go back to work. John finds out that Mary is a better business man than he is, and he doesn't like her for it.

And so he makes love to one of his sister's friends who's sorry for him for marrying "beneath him," and Mary gets a divorce and John marries sister's friend.

Is Our System Best?

The children? Oh, grandmother takes care of them—or Aunt Susan, or old Uncle Joshua, or anybody who has nothing else to do.

Or else John gets rich and goes to the Senate, and Mary can't get over wanting to wash her own dishes and sweep her own front steps. And John hates to do it, but he gets rid of Mary—how can he help it, and ever be Governor of his state?

And the children go home to grandma—or to boarding school, or somewhere. Anywhere where they won't bother John—and the family.

Oh, there isn't any family—there never was. There was just John and Mary, and John was crazy about Mary and Mary "couldn't live without John"—and so they married.

And so—

Sometimes I'm not so sure that our American system is just exactly the very finest system that has ever been evolved after all.

What do you think about it, "Justice"?

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How Wounds Are Healed Without Leaving Scars

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE secret wound long lives within the breast, but the open wound in these days of disinfection, sterilized bandages, harmless antiseptics and lockjaw antitoxin is not worth snucks. If—and here is the crux of the matter—you do not treat it with home remedies.

Whenever you have a friend in whom blood poisoning developed from a wound, inquiry is apt to disclose the fact that his grandmother, aunt or kind friend advised the application of "a certain sure cure."

Mr. Willie Preston ran a nail in his foot. His mother did not know what to do. A neighbor, who had "raised eleven children," said: "Put some bacon fat on it." Ten days later Willie Preston died of lockjaw. Yet that same neighbor still advises bacon fat for wounds and has, to my knowledge, caused half a dozen other infections.

A scar nobly got was considered, until lately, a livery of honor. But no more. Wounds heal so beautifully nowadays that, like Katashaw's white shoulder, some persons go miles and miles to see them.

Scars Out of Fashion.

Indeed, it is an established rule among the student guilds and fraternities of Germany, in their duels with swords, to keep the wounds from healing by pulling the edges apart every day.

Wounds of the heart, when not of the amatory sort, are now stitched together by most surgeons with triumphant results. Surgeons, since Dr. Alexis Carrel's discoveries, think nothing at all of cutting into the chest cavity and bringing the wound into a strong, normal condition.

The battling days when men were gashed with honorable scars are past. Today, Mameluke and the Hessians emerge from the emergency hospitals in the pink of condition. The wounds show either a bare hairline, or, by means of skin grafts, nothing.

Even gunshot wounds and rusty nail punctures, which formerly yielded a large return to the grim tyrant of lockjaw, have no terrors any longer—if domestic panaceas are not brought into requisition.

"Blood poisoning" is merely the extension and spread of bacterial matter in an infected wound, throughout the arm, leg and body from the point invaded.

Blood-Poison a Germ.

In other words, blood poisoning is an infection just the same as typhoid or pneumonia. Wounds treated by amateurs or carelessly left alone, "because the blood is in good condition," are the ones which lead to the invasion into the tissues of what is known as "blood poisoning."

A fallacy, widely prevalent among weepers and workers, and horny-handed sons of toil, is to the effect that "the blood is fine," and "heals all scratches and sores." While it is correct to expect the healthful flesh to prevent germs developing at times in wounds, it is frequently the false sense of security which many persons foolishly have that starts the scratch of a pin into a malicious, human conflagration.

A pin prick, a splinter, a tiny tear in the skin should each receive as vigorous an antiseptic as a large, jagged wound. Peroxide of hydrogen—clean and strong, not the dirty and weak mixture usually found—boracic acid, chlorate of potash, hot carbolated vaseline and other disinfectants should be used at once. Even upon the merest skin abrasion.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

IF you want the best piecrust it should be made the day before you wish to use it and put into a cold pantry. Then the crust will be flaky and crisp. If you wish to retain the crispness after baking, let the pies cool thoroughly before putting away.

A very convenient article to have in a house is a smooth, strong stick, about 40 inches long, with a deep notch in one end. With this, pictures may be lifted by the wires from their hooks, cleaned and replaced, thus saving the climbing up and down on a stepladder.

Before using a new saucepan fill it with water with a lump of soda and some potato peelings, and let it boil for some hours. Then wash out thoroughly, and all danger from poisoning from the tinned lining will be gone.

Take a small crisp and slightly salted cracker and heap on it in a little mound a mixture of the stiffly beaten froth of eggs, whites only, to which has been added pulverized sugar and minced orange peel and finely chopped peanuts. Then place in a hot oven and brown as you would meringue.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Birds Are Hunted on Horseback

By TEMPLE MANNING

ON the ice-bound plains of Roumania I once took part in a unique form of sport—hunting birds on horseback. Until I spent a few days in that interesting land of recent wars I had never known that birds were ever hunted with a horse, for the chasing of ostriches on horseback we used to read about in our school books is but the result of the over active imaginations of their authors. In Roumania it is the bustard, or wild turkey, that is hunted.

I was very lucky to be in the interior one night when a heavy thaw had melted the snows and a biting frost the next morning had set the ice again. For it is only at that time that the bustards, lying out in the open, get their wings wet with melting ice, and, when it freezes again, their feathers freeze and they cannot fly. We started in the early morning before the sun could thaw those swift wings again.

Stretched in a long line, with my host and myself in the middle, we went thundering over the frozen snow, driving a flock of nearly 50 wild turkeys before us. The men were armed with whips or with long sticks, and as one would come within striking distance of a bird he would strike out. Sometimes he would hit his bird and jump to the ground to secure it before it could get up and away. But often both driver and pony would fall with the bird, and the bird would be off again before the rider could get to his feet.

It reminded me of nothing so much as polo. Imagine that great game played with living balls.

Crack! Crack! The whips rang out like pistol shots on the frosty air. The birds dodged in and out, until I realized the skill demanded. Every one had a couple of birds each before I got one. At last I stunned a bird. Scrambling down from my pony I sat upon it before it could rise. I was met by claws and a beak that drove me off for an instant, but, at last, I killed my bird.

By this time all the birds had been collected along the route, and, tied by the legs, suspended before the peasants on their ponies' shoulders, and we worked back to my hosts' mansion, tired but happy.

Running the Bustard Down.

More than one of the men showed evidences of fights with the birds, but they treated these scratches, that were often long and deep, as mere nothings. They were looking forward to the feast and celebration that would round out a memorable day.

GERMAN BANNER MUST FLY OVER THE CITY HALL

Montreal, Oct. 17.—Being Mayor of Maisonneuve, is a dangerous and nerve-wracking task, according to the way things have been going since the inauguration of the new Martin regime last April. Threats to put the chief magistrate out of this vale of tears are of regular occurrence. Indeed Mederic Martin is quite alarmed if a week goes by without anyone passing him an anonymous threatening epistle. When they come he hands a copy to the press and goes on his merry way.

So far, however, no one has died as the result of the threats. The latest recipient of the black hand documents is the acting mayor, Ald. Georges Vandelac. He has been warned that he is to depart this life if he does not put a German banner on the roof of the city hall, where the banners of almost all Europe float now. When the war was declared the civic fathers ran up on the towers of the civic pile the flags of the allies. As fast as a new nation comes to the help of the members of the balance the banner goes aloft. Then one day the Irish struck a fine blow for Great Britain so Mederic added the green ensign to the collection. Now the nameless scribe threatens to send the mayor "on a long, long trip" if he does not put up the flag of the kaiser there too.

There is no German flag there yet; and no one has been slain either.

Canadian Grain Crops

A bulletin issued by the Census and Statistics Office at Ottawa gives provisional estimates of the yield and quality of the principal Canadian grain crops, and also the condition of root and fodder crops, as compiled from reports of correspondents made on September 30.

In general the reports confirm the statement issued last month, the average yields per acre being about the same as then estimated for wheat, but being somewhat less for oats, barley and flax.

The total yields for Canada of the principal grain crops in bushels are as follows: Wheat 158,223,000, oats 311,426,000, barley 34,491,000, rye 2,258,000, peas 3,537,100, beans 823,400, buckwheat 9,159,000, flaxseed 7,533,000, mixed grains 16,458,000 and corn for husking 14,732,000.

The average quality of the grain crops at harvest time, measured upon a percentage basis,—100 representing grain well headed, well filled, well saved and unaffected to any appreciable extent by frost, rust, smut, etc., is for the whole of Canada as follows: Wheat 78, oats 79, barley 76, rye 82, peas 75, beans 83, buckwheat 81, mixed grains 90, flax 64 and corn for husking 80. For wheat, barley and oats the figures are considerably below the excellent record of last year, the averages this year being reduced by the prolonged drought in the Northwest provinces. In these provinces the points for the quality of wheat, oats and barley range from 48 for barley in Saskatchewan to 78 for spring wheat in Alberta.

In the Maritime provinces both the yield and quality of the grain crops are excellent.

The condition of root crops at September 30 is for all Canada about equal to last year, being 75 p.c. of a standard on full crop for potatoes, 78 p.c. for turnips, 80 p.c. for mangolds, carrots, etc., 80 p.c. for sugar beets, 90 p.c. for fodder corn and 76 p.c. for alfalfa. In Manitoba and Saskatchewan the condition of the root crops is low owing to the drought. In Northern Alberta where the season was of more normal character, these crops make a fair showing.

During September conditions have been generally favourable for harvesting and threshing, and in the Northwest provinces a great deal of threshing was completed by October 1. There are indications that the amount of fall ploughing this year will be greater than usual.

Canada at War

The safe arrival in England of the Canadian expeditionary force will quicken the absorption of Canadians in the world-struggle now raging in Europe, says the Montreal Mail. We have now the satisfaction of knowing that a body of soldiers from the New World has gone to take part in a European war granting to the forces allied against Germany a concrete illustration of the desire of Western democracies to take part in the fight for civilization as well as giving proof of this country's British spirit.

It is altogether likely that considerable time will elapse before Canada's contingent is sent to the front. Lord Kitchener and his colleagues may be depended upon not to permit these men, as yet rather unprepared for active service, to take the field against the practised legions of Germany. Of their spirit there is no question; but the modern soldier must undergo much training before he is prepared to take part in such battles as have taken place in this war. It is satisfactory to know, however, that Canada's force is within striking distance of the arena of war and that it remains in the judgment of the Empire's leaders to call upon them should they be required at any time. Canada is officially represented in the heart of the Empire, where the defence of the Empire may be best carried on. And let us not forget that the defence of the Empire in Europe is also the defence of Canada, for a German victory in Europe would surely anticipate a raid upon this country, known in Germany as one of Great Britain's possessions.

The presence of her troops in the fight will surely awaken Canada to a keener realization that, with the rest of the Empire, she is at war. The people will await with confidence the time when Canadians will meet the test on the field of battle.

Promotion From The Ranks

All the armies now warring in Europe report heavy mortalities among officers, says a New Orleans exchange, but this loss is felt less by the French than any others, for the simple reason that they promote from the sergeants and corporals when all the commissioned officers are gone, while in the other armies the tradition is against promotion from the ranks.

But there was a similar tradition in the French armies before the days of the French revolution and Napoleon Bonaparte. Then no one except a member of the nobility was considered good enough to serve as an officer in the army or navy, but after the revolution there were very few members of the nobility about to serve as officers; promotions from the ranks was rapid and a number of the generals most distinguished in the Napoleonic wars entered the French army as privates.

Since the present republic in France was established, the policy has been never to commission in times of peace any but men possessing a good military education, but in times of war to promote unhesitatingly non-commissioned officers who do good work. This custom was followed during the French campaigns in Algeria and Madagascar during the last twenty years, and no doubt is being followed now.

In the German army the line between the officer and the enlisted man is almost impassable. Those who note the names of German officers cannot help being struck by the fact that every officer's name has the prefix "von," the evidence of nobility. The German officers are splendidly educated, but when they fall younger officers must be sent for from the rear. In the Russian and Austrian armies this rule is followed even more rigidly than in the German armies. But all three nations are aristocratic in everything that pertains to military organization and promotion from the ranks is strongly discouraged.

In the British army there is considerable less rigidity than in the German, Austrian and Russian organizations, and in the South African war a number of men were promoted from the ranks. The English are not, however, as liberal in this matter as the French, because the English army has always been managed upon aristocratic principles and the promotion of enlisted men is viewed with much jealousy. Great Britain, however, is said to have lost 1100 officers, killed, wounded or missing in the French campaign, and, it is practically certain that this gap has been filled by some promotions from the enlisted men.

Chest Colds and Hoarseness Quickly Rubbed Away

"Nerviline" Gives Speedy Relief and Cures Over Night.

Got a cold?

Is your voice raspy—is your chest congested or sore?

If so, you are the very person that Nerviline will cure in a jiffy.

Nerviline is strong and penetrating. It sinks right into the tissues, takes out inflammation and soreness, destroys colds in a truly wonderful way. Rub Nerviline over the chest rub on lots of it, and watch that tightness disappear. Nerviline won't blister, it sinks in too fast—doesn't simply stay on the surface like a thick, oily liniment would. If the throat is raspy and sore, rub it well outside with Nerviline, and use Nerviline as a gargle diluted with warm water. Just one or two treatments like this and your voice and throat will be quick normal again.

Just think of it—for forty years the largest used family medicine in this country—Nerviline must be good, must quickly relieve and cure a hundred ills that befall every family. Try it for earache, toothache, coughs, colds, sore chest, hoarseness and muscular pains in every part of the body. Large family size bottle 50c; trial size 25c, at all dealers.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

JAAANESE CRUISER SUNK BY MINE IN KIAO-CHOW

Was on Patrol Duty When Disaster Occured—Was a Light and Old Boat of 3000 Tons Burden—345 Sailors Lost Out of a Crew of 355

Tokio, Oct. 19.—It is officially announced that the Japanese cruiser Takachiho was sunk by a mine in Kiao-Chow Bay on the night of October 17th. One officer and nine members of the crew are known to have been saved.

The Japanese cruiser Takachiho was built in 1885 and refitted in 1911. She was a vessel of 3,000 tons and was 300 feet long. Her main battery consisted of eight-inch guns and her speed was about eighteen knots.

Takachiho carried a crew of 355 men, only 10 of whom, according to the official report, are known to have been saved.

The Takachiho was on patrol duty outside Tsing-tau when he fouled the mine. Japanese destroyers heard the explosion and saw the flames that resulted. They hurried to the assistance of the cruiser, which, however, disappeared, and in the darkness it was possible to rescue only twelve men. Twenty-eight officers, 54 non-commissioned officers and 189 seamen perished.

USES FOR MILKWEED

Science, with practical optimism, tries to find "good in everything," and now points out that we are wasting opportunities by not utilizing our neglected wealth in milkweed. The best fibres of the plant, well known to the birds as nest-weaving materials and to Indians as thread, may readily be separated, however, and when bleached yield a white, silky, textile material, much like flax and even stronger. The woody material of which four-fifths of the plant consists has excellent qualities for paper-making, if treated with a soda solution under pressure. From the seeds may be obtained a large percentage of a drying oil, while the long silky down of the seeds is known to be useful as an upholstering material. It would seem as though it would be well worth while to raise the milkweed as a crop, since it can be grown on land otherwise of little value.

A Valuable Pearl

The most valuable pearl ever found on the American continent was discovered by Dr. Jesse Carr, on the banks of the Fox River. It weighed sixty-two grains and was a perfect specimen. The finder named it "Queen of America" and presented it to his wife. On his first opportunity he took it to Chicago to have it appraised, and was astonished when he was told that it was worth over $10,000.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

CATTLE VERSUS SHEEP

Profitable Raising Depends More on the Man Than Animal

There is always more or less discussion as to which is the more profitable the cow or the sheep. This, like all other live stock and agricultural comparisons, depends more on the handler than on the stock.

All kinds of farm animals will succeed and become profitable when properly handled. This we see on all sides; it has been proven. The question nowadays is, will the owner or handler of live stock make a success out of the business of handling stock? The business itself is a success, but the handler often does not know anything about the business of handling stock, and therefore fails in obtaining the best results or even moderate results.

The sheep is a profitable animal on the farm and has made a very profitable animal on the range when systematically handled. The cow is a profitable animal on the farm when used as a dairy feature, and the farmer who has an aptitude for dairy management and dairy work will make a success with the cow in this line of industry.

The relative cost of keeping the cow and the sheep cannot be figured accurately, owing to the variation in the size and feeding capacity of these animals. The experiences of those who have thought they observed tests closely are widely different in their estimates, ranging all the way from five to ten sheep, as an equivalent to a cow in matter of feed consumed and expense of keeping. All sheep and all cows are not on an equal basis in consumption of feed. It is fair, however, to presume that on an average of six sheep can be kept on the feed required for a 1,000-pound cow.

The keeping of a few sheep on the farm where there are pastures fenced to hold them is a safe proportion of any farmer. Even the dairy farmer may find it profitable to keep a few sheep, as they are good weed destroyers, and in wool and mutton will return a good profit for feed consumed. They are not injurious to cow pastures, as many believe, especially where but few are kept. The keeping of cattle and sheep on the same pastures at the same time is not recommended; yet all over the eastern sheep-raising districts the cow pastures were usually the run of a few sheep of extra quality, those being given a little extra care for show or breeding purposes. The keeping of a few sheep is the best way to solve the question of profit, also of the matter of whether you would like to engage in sheep-raising as a business. —The Maritime Farmer.

CAUSE OF TIDES

Many people regard the rise and fall of the ocean as a profound and baffling mystery. The mystery is not very hard to understand. As all know, the surface of the ocean rises and falls twice in every lunar day, this rise appearing along a coast to be a horizontal motion—always ebbing or flowing.

Now the lunar day consists of about twenty-five hours. Thus, of course, the "time" of the tides varies each day. The tides, moreover, do not always rise to the same height. Every fortnight, with the new and full moon, they rise very much higher than at other times.

These high tides are called "spring" tides, the alternating low tides being termed "neap." When the moon is nearest the earth, the rise and fall of the ocean is markedly increased. Thus the spring tides are greatest at the equinoxes—that is, at the end of March and the end of September.

Yes, you say, but what has the moon to do with it at all? Surely it is the sun which attracts the earth.

That is so. But, although the sun's attraction on the earth is far greater than the moon's, the moon is so very much nearer to the earth that the difference between its attraction at the centre and on the surface is three times as great as the sun's. And it is this difference which causes the

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon, and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

VALUE OF NEW CANADIANS

What Immigration Gives Us Besides New Citizens

Occasionally we in Canada groan over foreign immigration and the heavy task we have assumed in trying to assimilate the newcomers and make them good citizens. We give an imitation of the weary Titan. But after all, is not all this change of population good for us asks the Toronto world.

In an old town, where the same families have lived for many years and where everybody knows everybody else, there is danger of narrowness. People are apt to discuss each other's affairs instead of public affairs. On the other hand, in a new growing town there is an exhilaration not only in the rapid progress, but in the contact of new personalities, the hurling of mind against mind and character against character.

Then there is a good deal to be learned from foreigners. What is the use of foreign travel except to meet new people, observe new customs, and acquire new points of view? The inexperienced traveler is apt to go along certain beaten paths and see the things that his predecessors have seen. He does not see the people in their homes; and especially he does not see the poor. He sees the evidences of European culture and power; but he does not see the results of European neglect and oppression. A careful and sympathetic study of the foreign immigrant is as stimulating and instructive as a trip to Europe.

A LAKE OF SOAP

Wonderful Body of Water in Washington State

One of nature's marvels is to be seen in the northeast corner of the State of Washington. It is a lake which bears the name of Soap Lake, and is three miles in length by one mile in breadth. The water in the lake tastes like a mixture of soap and salt, and its peculiar properties are such that when the water is heated no soap is required for a bath, for as soon as the water comes into contact with the natural oil of the skin and is gently rubbed it forms a beautiful lather.

The only drawback is that when applied to the head one's hair is apt to turn from its natural color to a dusty red, if not washed with fresh water. In other words, it bleaches, the soda in the water no doubt being the cause of this.

Cheapest on Record

In Japan recently there was completed a railroad bridge nearly seven miles long, built by native materials at a cost of $375,000.

IDEAS FOR BUILDERS

Keep a Note Book in Which to Enter Practical Suggestions

If you are going to build a new house or remodel an old one, any one who has been through the mill will advise you to be sure that you have twice as much money as you think you will need. This is good but annoying advice.

A more hopeful word comes from a recent builder who for a year before his new house was built kept a scrap book of suggestions. Two scrap books, in fact, one of notes and one of pictures. The book of notes was divided into so many pages for each room. For instance, there was the heading "Kitchen," and underneath was noted any practical or attractive ideas pertaining to kitchens that the owner had observed.

Then came "Pantry," with this suggestion:

"Back opening to refrigerator so it may be filled from the porch."

"Window slides into the kitchen."

Room was given space for notes on decoration and ideas.

In the other scrap book were kept illustrations and photographs of windows, doorways, staircases—anything that might prove helpful for use in the designing and building of the new house.

The result was that when the house finally came to be built the owner knew exactly when a cupboard was to be built, what kind he wanted, when the kitchen was designed he knew in every detail what made for convenience, and throughout the house there was not a room to which attention had not been given.

CANADAS WATER POWERS

Canada possesses a larger amount of potential water power than any country, twice that of United States. In its industrial future Canada will rank as one of the greatest manufacturing countries of the world.

Canada's estimated 16,000,000 horse-power is equal to annual production of 367,000,000 tons of coal.

Canada has developed 1,016,521 horse-power from water power (per compilation of conservation estimate).

The proposed power scheme, of St. Lawrence River, between Cornwall and Montreal, would develop 1,000,000 horse-power.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Clean pots and pans with
GOLD DUST

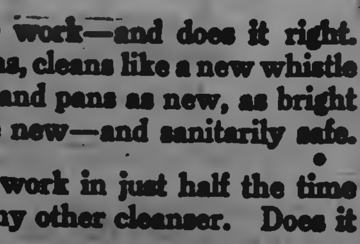
Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.



"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SIKHS AND HINDUS

Some Facts About the Brown Men of British India

Sikhism was founded in 1539 A.D. by Nanak, a Hindu, one of the soldier caste and a dweller in a village. Nanak was looked upon "as an incorporeal Spirit, who had come to save the world and, having enjoyed personal communion with the Lord, was styled "Guru," and moreover, being exalted himself was invested with the power of exalting others." Nanak's doctrine was benevolence and his life was pure. He was thus a religious teacher of a very high order.

In order to bring peace and amity into his world Nanak endeavored to reconcile the Hindus and the Mohammedans by teaching a religion which should retain the best of the teachings of both religions and casting away that which had become debased and impure. He failed, however, to reconcile two such bitter antagonists, and, by the purity of his doctrines, and the non-recognition of caste, himself antagonized the Brahmins. It was not until many years after, when the Sikhs became an undesired power, the Mohammedans murdered one of their Gurus, when the Sikhs attempted to avenge the murder, , that actual warfare broke out between the latter and themselves.

It will be seen that the Sikhs were originally a religious sect, pure and simple, and could not be described as a race, although certainly the far greater number of them were of the Jat tribe, situated in the northern part of the Punjaub.

Their Bible, known as the "Adi Granth," was compiled by a grandson of Nanak. In it they describe God as: "One soul, self-existing, the meaning and cause of all, who has seen numberless creeds and names come and go." They are therein alike to both the Jews and Mohammedans, Monotheists, in that they worship One Supreme Being, who is above all, in all, and through all, a personal God. Amongst other things they also "recognize the brotherhood of man, do not recognize caste, and inculcate pure and simple ethics." In this they are also as the Free Masons, and indeed many of them belong to that order.

The word "sikh" means "disciple," and at first they were seekers after a divine way of truth. Their sacred writings and our gospels are similar in their teachings and very many passages are almost identical. The Sikhs differ from all Hindus in that they are "not born but made," and when they enter the brotherhood are initiated by baptism. They also have a Communion. The Sikhs are not idolaters and welcome all castes in the community. As regards ourselves they differ from us only in so far that they have not yet learned to know Christ as the Son of God.

In 1721 A.D. the last Guru, Goviad, established political independence. Guruship was abolished, and only military leaders were elected. Thus was fulfilled a prophecy that the Sikhs should have only ten Gurus.

As has been said, the Sikhs are not a distinct race though chiefly Jats. They are a well disciplined, religious and military brotherhood, in this respect somewhat similar to the Knights Templars of old. And indeed the Sikhs, together with the Gurkhas and the Pathans, make the finest soldiers (sepoys) we have in India, and this they have proven on many a hard-fought battlefield, showing a bravery and trustworthiness second to none. In number they are about ten million, and eleven-twelfths of these are in the Punjaub.—Church Life.

STRENGTH OF TEETH

Little Instrument Shows Extent of Pressure in Chewing

Scientific inventions have enabled us to determine accurately the amount of force exercised by many of our bodily functions. The strength of the heart's beats is recorded with a precision that the stethoscope can never attain; the physical culturist can measure our breathing powers, and from the penny automatic machine we learn, as accurately as we can expect for the fee, the extent of our gripping, punching, and kicking forces.

A small instrument, with a big name, the Phago-dynamometer, has now been at work testing the strength of our teeth, and some interesting results are shown in the records published by an eminent dentist.

A white man, who is the fortunate possessor of a good set of natural teeth, can exert a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch. But this is a mere fleabite to the 400 pounds which his colored brother can easily accomplish.

The Phago-dynamometer has upset a good many of our notions with regard to the mastication of food. Beefsteak, is not such a tough subject as jokers and humorous artists make it out to be. Under its worst conditions it can be conquered by a pressure of 80 pounds, while normally its juicy fastness yields to half that force. But our real foe has been unmasked in the so-called "soft" bottom crust of the loaf. Unsoaked, it hides under an innocent smooth surface a resistance of 250 pounds to the square inch. Woe to him whose grinders are few and feeble that attacks it unware. When the momentary shock has passed he will use discretion and keep to the crumb, which is more suited to his dental powers, ranging from [illegible] pounds to 30 pounds pressure.

[illegible] know that the apple, munched at the end of a meal, is the most efficacious of tooth brushes. The acid of the fruit helps to arrest decay, and as a cleansing agent the pressure used in munching is far greater than would be obtained by the use of the brush.

NATURAL BASIN NEAR CALGARY

Immense Water Supply is Only Thirty-five Miles Away

That the citizens of Calgary have a natural basin with an estimated storage capacity of 500,000,000 gallons of water, enough to supply the city for an entire winter, only 35 miles up the Elbow river, was an interesting report made by Mr. A. W. Ellison Fawkes.

For some months Mr. Fawkes had a crew of surveyors and assistant engineers working out the data on a pipe line scheme and also a proposed filtration and pumping scheme as an alternative.

On a trip up the Elbow Mr. Fawkes inspected three feasible sites for the location of an impounding dam. The nearest of these for a pipe line is about 35 miles distant, and here the Elbow widens into a big basin with the immense storage capacity mentioned. It would be necessary to have a dam at this point 400 feet long. Five miles farther up the river and again three miles above this point there are other suitable sites. But, of course, the closer site, 35 miles up, has the advantage, when the cost of constructing a pipe line is considered. The upper sites would on the other hand be narrower and would not require as long a dam.

ADVERTISING A NATION

How Canada is Made Known Across the Waters

In the course of a lecture made by J. Obed Smith, immigration commissioner of Canada he said: "Because there is very little red tape in this department a great deal of responsibility rests upon the officials. While Ottawa controls the policy, the details, including expenditures, are worked out in London. Outside the British Isles we have agencies at work in Paris, Belgium and in the Scandinavian countries. There is a good deal of work required in advising and planning discipline for 4,000 booking agents who can be made into good advertising agents for Canada.

"In advertising Canada, the department of the Interior offers no apology, particularly in the old land, where there are fewer opportunities for farm laborers.

"Correspondence also plays a big part in the propaganda, for while it indicates publicity work, it is becoming most productive. So much information has been diffused about Canada that those writing are not content with one or two questions, but set out voluminous inquiries. This indicates that the enquirers have been reached by advertising, and they in their turn have led others to also seek information. Our department, while primarily concerned with advertising Canada alone, is also obliged to set out the advantages of each province. The policy of the department is set along such lines as to make advertising pay a government as well as a business firm.

"Our work is largely carried on by bringing before the public the advantage of farming in Canada. Our agents attend every show or fair, and distribute literature and also give advice to those requiring it. These results are most satisfactory, but perhaps our most effective work consists of carrying information to every town and village by means of motor and horse wagons. These are in charge of experienced Canadian officials, who stop outside schools, and having obtained permission from the teachers, address the children on Canada, although nothing is said about immigration. Later on we get good results from this campaign.

"Another important phase in advertising is that of giving illustrated lectures. Hundreds are given each season, principally in the winter, and afford us the means of getting into closer touch with the intending emigrant. The most valuable adjunct is the after meeting, when the people gather round and ask questions. We also endeavor to supply news items to the reading public.

"There are good and bad advertisements. The latter consist of derogatory letters and complaints from those who have not succeeded. However, Canada does not want the immigrant to fail, but, on the other hand likes to point to the successful settler as illustration of what can be done out here."

The Whirligig of Time

In place of the hitching post and the carriage stepping stone has come the gasoline filling station. In place of the livery stable has come the modern garage, and the old-fashioned roadside smithy has been turned into a modern automobile repair shop.

The motor car has brought many changes, but with the changes has come prosperity. The foundry that once turned out ornamental hitching posts with a horse's head, or a little iron negro jockey patiently waiting to hold old Dobbin's reins, is manufacturing automobile parts.

The gasoline motor has played its part in making the automobile the popular method of transportation, but without the pneumatic tire the motor car would be limited to improved city streets and boulevards.

Many Centenarians

According to official statistics compiled in Germany, the number of centenarians in Europe is far greater than is generally imagined. Spain possesses 410; France, [illegible]; Italy, 197; Great Britain, 92; Russia, 89; Germany, 76; Norway, 23; Sweden, 10; Belgium, 5 and Denmark 2. Switzerland has none. The Balkan States hold the record. In Bulgaria alone there are no fewer than 3,883 centenarians, and there are another 1,074 in Roumania and 573 in Servia.

Coconuts in Ceylon

The natives of Ceylon eat one and a half million coconuts a day. There are sixty million coconut trees on this island, and the surplus production of nuts is chiefly used to make copra, the dried "meat" of the nut, which is a valuable source of vegetable oils. It is estimated that there are produced yearly 600,000 to 700,000 tons of copra, valued at sixty-five million dollars. One-quarter of the world's production comes from the Philippine Islands.

WAR WITH INSECTS

Campaign is Carried on in a Number of Countries

The greatest war that is going on at the present time is not a war in which both sides are men. It is not a war in which rifles or cannon play a part. The biggest battles of to-day are with a much smaller foe than man. They are battles with insects.

Although unknown to many people, these battles in which men and insects are the combatants are adding a new chapter to the history of the world.

South Africa is one of the greatest of these battlegrounds. There hostilities are being carried on relentlessly. Locusts are one of the enemies in South Africa. As soon as there is a swarm of locusts, news is flashed to the Department of Agriculture at Pretoria. As a result a battle ensues with sprays of arsenic instead of rifles. The locusts, due to these battles, are being rapidly exterminated.

On the west coast of Africa a great campaign is taking place against a close relative of one of our own foes the mosquito. In Africa it has been definitely established that the mosquito is the transmitter of three most terrible diseases—malaria, elephantiasis and yellow fever. If a man is bitten only once by a mosquito there may develop any one of these horrible diseases. The same methods are being used against the African mosquito as they are using in the United States in a civil war against the mosquito. Hundred of ponds are being drained and other bodies of water are being covered by a thick oil.

A little fish known as the "million" is the weapon used in the great battle against the mosquito in West India and the Hawaiian Islands. This little fish is a natural enemy of the mosquito. The beneficial work of the "million" was first noticed at Barbados, whose lakes and streams were full of this small fish. Barbados did not suffer from the scourges brought by mosquitoes, but the adjacent islands, where the "million" did not live, suffered greatly. This suffering is diminishing since the introduction of the "million" into all ponds and streams that cannot be drained or covered with oil.

In the Panama Canal Zone the conflict between man and insect has been remarkable. Man has won all of the battle. Yellow fever in all of its horrors, a direct result of germs carried by the mosquito, has been driven away from Panama by a successful war on the pest.

Another pest on which a great onslaught is being made is the tsetse fly. The record of this insect is but little less terrible than that of the mosquito, for among the diseases it carries is the sleeping sickness, for which there is no cure and which has swept away whole communities. The tsetse has killed more than 200,000 in the Uganda protectorate alone. The tsetse fly is being fought by burning bushes around the margins of rivers and ponds and around cities and encampments. The men of Africa are wearing a sort of a sticky flypaper on their backs in the lands where the tsetse fly swarms, and millions are being attracted and killed by this method.

The United States and Canada have already made great progress against the fly and the mosquito, whose dangers have just been recently realized.

The war against these terrible tiny foes will not only make civilized countries more healthful, but will vastly improve life and conditions and open up to civilization part of the tropical and semi-tropical countries.

THE OWL TO FLOURISH

Bounty on Big Horned Species Removed in West

No more bounties will be paid by the British Columbia Government for the destruction of the big horned owl. This owl is supposed to be very destructive of game birds, and this may have been the case in the past, but the rabbits have now come back and the big horned owl finds himself once more in a land of plenty. As he is said to even prefer rabbit to grouse, there is no longer any particular object in having him destroyed.

The bounty, which was two dollars per owl, proved unexpectedly expensive, $18,000 being paid out in a few months. Some enterprising hunters are said to have made as much as a hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars a month from this source. Moreover, the government is convinced that a certain amount of fraud was practised and that the harmless little horned owl has frequently been made to do duty for his big horned cousin at two dollars per head.

Rare Collection of Miniatures

C. R. Hosmer has one of the most valuable collections of antiques in Canada. His miniatures especially are a remarkable and almost priceless collection.

Poor Stock

No dairyman should be satisfied with cows that produce much less than 300 pounds of butter fat per year. Use the Babcock test and dispose of the poor stock.

Saving Labor

In these days of high-priced farm labor or no labor at all, a little gasoline engine that costs around $100 will do more work than three hired men.

A mixture of slaked lime, linseed oil and cotton fibre is used in some portions of Turkey as a substitute for cement.

ANTISEPTICS IN AUSTRALIAN BLUE GUM PROVE A CURE FOR BRONCHIAL CATARRH

Medicated Air A Marvel

Catarrhozone is far superior to any internal medicine.

Its relief is almost instantaneous—just takes long enough to breathe its healing vapor into the lungs to give wonderful soothing relief.

Catarrhozone goes right to the tiniest cells in the lungs, carrying healing, soothing balsams to the places that are tainted with Catarrhal inflammation. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes—a sore throat is healed and restored in an hour or two—chronic bronchitis is soothed away and quickly disappears—catarrh of long standing is invariably cured because Catarrhozone kills the germs that cause the trouble.

As a cure for Asthma and a preventative of Grippe every doctor is delighted with Catarrhozone. One eminent throat specialist says if Catarrhozone is used two or three times each day you will never suffer from any disease of the head, throat, nose or lungs. This is good news to many of our readers who must require a safe, sure and permanent cure for their colds and winter ills. Every good druggist sells Catarrhozone, large outfit $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver and bowells.

Every mother realises, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS

Clara: I made my faded "stringy" hair take on its natural color again and become soft, fluffy and brilliant by champooing with canthrox, a teaspoonful of which I dissolved in a cup hot water. It gently, yet thoroughly, dissolved dust, dirt and excess oil and when I rinsed it out left the scalp healthy and pliant. Since my first trial I have used nothing but this.

Iphigenia: Yes, you can be sure of hair beauty if you give it proper care. Rid your head of itching dandruff by use of this economical home-made tonic, which will make your scalp so healthy that hair naturally grows long and heavy. Get an ounce of quinzoin at your druggist's, dissolve it in one half pint of alcohol, add one half pint cold water and rub into hair roots daily.

Antionette: Instead of making over your gowns because you have outgrown them, why not try this harmless flesh-reducer? Get four ounces of parnotis from your druggist. Dissolve it in one and one-half pints hot water. Take a teaspoonful before each meal and you will see a gradual decrease in weight without loss of strength or sagging skin. It is simple, harmless and effective. Requires no dieting or exercise.

Miss O.: The "face cream without grease" which you will ask about is easily prepared at home by this recipe. Get from your druggist one ounce almozoin; dissolve it in one half pint cold water. Add two teaspoonfuls glycerine, stir well and let stand over night. Apply it frequently, and prevents wrinkles and all skin-flabbiness. It is cleansing, soothing and healing and there is nothing better to relieve enlarged pores, muddiness and all roughness or redness of skin.

Christine: For your sallow, pimply skin, which indicates a liver upset you should make up and use the old-time kardene blood, kidney and liver tonic. This prepared one ounce kardene into one half pint alcohol (do not use whisky) and then adding one half cupful sugar and hot water to make a quart. Take a teaspoonful before meals and your skin will be clear and beautiful. The kardene tonic is good for most bodily pains and aches, because it eliminates from the system the poisons causing them, and its timely use frequently prevents serious sickness.

Celia: You say "I am a slave to my powder rag." Why not try this fine liquid beautifier? It is lasting in effect and economical, besides being fine to whiten and tone the skin and rid it of sallowness or blemishes. Get 4 ounces of spurmax, add two teaspoonfuls glycerine and one half pint hot water or witch hazel. This makes a big quantity and is far better than the ordinary face powders. It will be very becoming and will seem like a part of your skin.

Millicent: Don't be frightened into buying eye glasses before you really need them. It is better to strengthen the eyes than to aid their weakness. For some years I have used this simple home-made tonic which has both beautified and strengthened mine. Dissolve an ounce of crystos in one half pint of water. Two drops daily, or several times daily, will give relief to tired or aching eyes and soon make them clear and sparkling.

AGED COUPLE DEAD MURDER AND SUICIDE

Fredonia, Oct. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mantz of No. 390 Chestnut street, Fredonia, are dead as a result of what the police believe to be a murder and suicide.

Details of the tragedy are unknown. Summoned by a shot, Michael Mantz, son of the couple, hurried home to find his father lying in the orchard, a shotgun wound through his body, and his mother's body lying in the house, two revolver shots through the breast.

There was no motive, as far as the police have been able to ascertain, for the murder and suicide. The two wounds in Mrs. Mantz's body were inflicted with a 32-calibre revolver, which the police have been unable to find.

Mantz apparently ended his own life with a 12-gauge shotgun. When found, the gun was lying under the body, in which a gaping wound had been torn by the discharge. The police in their investigation have shown that Mantz, placing the butt of the gun against the tree near which his body was found, would have been able to reach the gun's trigger and discharge the piece. The shotgun was double-barreled but only one barrel had been fired.

The police after their investigation declared Mrs. Mantz must have been shot about 6:45 o'clock this evening. Michael Mantz, who found his father lying wounded in the orchard and his mother dead in the house, declares that he heard a shot about seven o'clock.

The officials have formulated the theory that Mantz shot his wife twice with the revolver, walked from the house, threw the revolver away, went into the orchard, placed the shotgun against a tree and pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Mantz was sixty-five years old; Mantz was seventy. No reason can be given by their son why they should have decided to end their lives.

"Ye Olde Firme"

Player-Piano

The building of the Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano is an interesting piece of Piano history. Makers of the world's best Piano, we could not afford to put a Player-piano on the market bearing our name until we had brought the work of construction in the Player-Piano up to the same point of acknowledged and unrivalled excellence as is accorded the Heintzman & Co. Piano.

So we worked diligently through the years on this Player Piano until we could say that it was the best. And in our new model for 1914 we have further improved on the excellencies of 1913.

The Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano cannot be considered along with any other Player-Piano. It is a new and distinct creation, built along lines that are common to no other instrument.

The most outstanding feature of this Player-Piano is the aluminum action. By this means this instrument will withstand different climatic changes in a way that is not possible with the ordinary wood action. The swelling and shrinking of wood which takes place with climatic changes opens up minute passages, through which the air escapes, and if leakage of air takes place then the action immediately deteriorates.

Not only is the primary valve casing cast in one solid piece of aluminum, which ensures its being absolutely air-tight, but the secondary valve casing and chamber which conducts the air stream from the power pneumatic is also cast in one piece of aluminum.

Let it be known that the controlling of the air is the great consideration in all pneumatic Player-Pianos.

There are altogether some twenty interesting and distinctive features about this Player-Piano—all combining to make it the perfect instrument it is.

We place our unqualified warranty upon this Player-Piano, for we know it is more than a sweet-sounding instrument. It is good all through.

Empire Expects Peterboro Citizens To Do Their Duty

"Judas Maccabaeus," the war oratorio which won such unstinted commendation here last fall, will be again presented at the Grand Opera House to-night, in aid of the Patriotic Relief Fund. This musical offering is a stirring martial composition, peculiarly appropriative to the cause in which it is voluntarily given. Mr. R. J. Diney will be the conductor and Peterborough's Choral Society will repeat their brilliant chorus performance of last spring. Miss Olive Casey of Toronto, will again be heard in soprano leads, with Miss Dorothy Allan of this city also soprano. The tenor solos will be taken by Mr. Geo. Chandler of this city, and the bass solos by Mr. Geo. Kenyon, organist and choir master of Knox Presbyterian Church. The services of all interest in this splendid oratorio and the Opera House, are freely given in the support of the Patriotic Relief Fund, without charge; and it is incumbent upon our citizens in general to obey the world-famed signal of Admiral Nelson—"England expects every man to do his duty"—and assure a capacity house tonight in an Empire defensive cause. The prices are 25c reserved seats, gallery 10c—well within the reach of all. This occasion will be graced with the presence of Mr. Burnham, M.P., Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., his Worship, Mayor Buller, and all leading civic and military officials.

Every member of the big chorus will wear a miniature Union Jack, a free will offering from Messrs. Coleman Bros., Peterborough's popular caterers.

French Eastern Forces Are Advancing Toward The Rhine--Hoped That Gen. Pau, the One Armed Hero, Will Clear Alsace-Lorraine of the Enemy

Twelve Hundred Registered At Civic Employment Bureau

Toronto, Oct. 20.—Approximately twelve hundred men, as nearly as could be estimated, were registered in the first day's business of the Civic Employment Bureau which opened today. The office closed at four o'clock, but there was work enough on hand at that time to keep the clerks engaged for several hours.

In addition several hundred, who could not be handled today, were given cards to fill in with name, address age, whether single or married, number of dependants, how long unemployed, and the kind of work preferred. These will be presented tomorrow.

When cards are presented, registration is made and tickets are given the men, giving their number according to precedence.

At two o'clock this afternoon seven hundred had been registered and a waiting line of nearly five hundred remained. These, however, were rapidly disposed of.

Single Men "Independent"

It was a strange feature of the day that while many married men professed willingness to take work of any kind, in or out of the city, none of the single men were willing to take jobs out of Toronto.

A number of farmers have notified the bureau of openings or single men or families, and several large employers of labor in Toronto dropped into the office today to make arrangements for extra help they expect to need within a week or so on account of the large number of heavy war orders that are beginning to come from Great Britain.

The Toronto-Hamilton road is the brightest hope for the men. They are all thinking of it and though Mr. Dickie has no official statement that eau, it is expected that this will be this work will come through the bur- the case.

DEPARTMENT OF SOLDIERS OFF DUTY TOMMY ATKINS ALWAYS CHEERFUL

French Are Also Gay and Full of Song, Belgians Rather Gloomy--East Indian Troops Are Courteous, But Full of Demonstrative Joy When Going Into Battle--Scenes Behind Battle Lines

On the Battle Front, (via Paris,) Oct. 20, 12.06 a.m.—On the eastern wing, along the Meuse, heavy fighting is incessant and in this the French artillery is playing a most important part. The concentrated fire of several French batteries at St. Mihiel Monday destroyed a complete battery of heavy German artillery which has been causing great annoyance.

It was due to the clever work of a French artilleryman that this was accomplished. Carrying a portable field telephone he hid himself for two days near the German position and informed his comrades in his rear of the position of the German guns and the direction in which they should fire. The information rendered the German position untenable and when his work was done the brave gunner returned safely to the French lines.

The scenes behind the battle lines denote the characteristics of the various nations engaged.

The French soldiers are very gay, singing when they return from the trenches and always seeking to learn the news from any new arrival from the rear. They gather branches from bushes to make fires on which they boil their soup and caffee.

The Belgians are somewhat the same in character, but the recent damage to so many cities of Belgium has rendered them rather gloomy, though they are still full of fight and sure of eventual victory.

The British appear to be ready to seize the slightest opportunity to play some game when off actual duty. They are always cleanly shaven and love to plunge in a creek or river. Behind their trenches are many kneading troughs captured from the German commissariat and now turned into tubs

The Indian troops maintain a calm silence except when in action. They utter wild cries in their eastern languages as they enter the fight. rican habits. They apparently are al-

Another Torpedo Boat Destroyed By The Japs

Tokio, Oct. 20.—It was announced officially in Tokio today that the German torpedo boat "S-90" which escaped from Tsing-tau under cover of darkness, has been found aground, and destroyed by the Japanese at a point sixty miles south of Kioa-Chow Bay.

Says Torpedo Boat Did It.

Peking, Oct. 20.—A despatch received here from Tsing-tau, the German fortified position in Kiao-Chow, says the Japanese cruiser Takachiho was sunk in Kiao-Chow harbor the night of Oct. 17 by the German torpedo boat "S-90."

Japanese Navy Active.

Tokio, Oct. 20.—The Japanese navy department announced today that islands in the Ladrones and Caroline groups have been occupied for military purposes.

Jaluit in the Marshall group, was occupied October 14 by a division of the Japanese fleet. Jaluit, it is explained, was the base of the enemy's maritime operations in the Marianne, Marshall and eastern and western Caroline Archipelagos. The Japanese found two German vessels there. One sent herself to the bottom and the other was captured with her crew. No damage was suffered by the Japanese fleet. The German ships at Jaluit were survey vessels.

French Invasion of Alsace-Lorraine Taking Actual Shape--Are Threatening Advance in Force to the Rhine--Belgian Forces a Match For All German Opposition--Germans Vainly Endeavoring to Check Allied Offensive

Paris, Oct. 20.—The proposed invasion of Alsace-Lorraine with Metz as the objective, is gaining actual form. It is known that the German attempts to bring up their heavy guns to batter down the Verdun-Toul line of forts, has utterly failed. They have also been forced to weaken their left to cope with the situation in Northern France, and this has given ehe French a decided advantage,

While confirmation is lacking, it is reported that General Pau has again been sent to the east to assume the command, and if this is so it is certain that actual operations towards the Rhine are about to begin, as the one armed veteran has been promised that the tatk of clearing Alsace-Lorraine of the enemy will be entrusted to him.

London, Oct. 20.—That material progress is being made by the allies at various points in the long battle line was officially announced today. The three o'clock official communique telegraphed from Bordeaux summed up the result with that statement.

The Belgian forces who are heading the line from the vicinity of Nieuport to Dixmude and along the front the River Yser, are declared to be maintaining their positions in the face of the German opposition. The Germans still hold their strongly entrenched advanced positions in the vicinity of Lille, but, generally speaking, there is but little change reported from that section. The Germans have vainly endeavoured to check the strong French offensive from the west bank of the Meuse especially from the positions in the neighborhood of Camp de Romains. As a whole the entire situation is described as entirely satisfactory.

London, Oct. 20.—Although several of the morning newspapers have reports that Ostend had been re-occupied by the Belgians, at the Belgian legation and the British press bureau it was stated that they were without any information on the subject.

TWO NEW MINISTERS ARE SWORN IN

Hon. Mr. Casgrain and Hon. Mr. Blondin Replace Former Officials Deputy Speaker Honored

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—Hon. T. Chase Casgrain of Montreal and Mr. P. E. Blondin, M.P., for Champlain and Deputy Speaker of the mouse of Commons, were sworn in as members of the Cabinet at one o'clock yesterday, by the Duke of Connaught.

Mr. Casgrain take the portfolio of Postmaster-General in the place of Hon. L.P. Pelletier, who has resigned on account of ill-health. Mr. Blondin becomes Minister of Inland Revenue in place of Hon. Bruno Nantel.

There was a short preliminary Cabinet meeting when the necessary orders-in-council were passed. The Cabinet then adjourned to the office of the Aovernor-General, where the new Ministers were first sworn in as Privy Councillors by the Duke and then as Ministers of the Crown by Mr. Rodolphe Boudreau, clerk of the Privy Council.

The ceremony was witnessed by Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Foster, Hon. J. D. Reid, Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Hon. Louis Coderre, Hon. C. J. Doherty and Hon Martin Burrell

The appointment of Mr. Casgrain, has been anticipated by Ottawa, but the appointment of Mr. Blondin came as somewhat of a surprise. Mr. Blondin was first elected to the House in 1908 and was re-elected in 1911 when he was appointed Deputy Speaker.

Hon. W. B. Nantel was appointed a member of the Dominion Railway Commission in succession to Mr. M. E. Bernier.

The new Deputy Speaker has not been chosen nor the date of the bye-elections decided today.

30,000 WOUNDED ARE SENT BACK TO BRUGES

London, Oct. 20.—"Burning houses indicate the line of fighting in Northwestern Belgium," telegraphs the Flushing correspondent of the Evening News, under the date o, Monday, "On Sunday 17 trains of forty cars each brought German wounded back to Bruges," the correspondent continues. "The northern columns of the Germans have been increased with reinforcements brought at oight by train from Bruges, where there are but few Germans left. "Ostend was quiet on Monday morning."

The Germans advancing along the coast from Ostend met hostile forces at the Yser River, near Nieuport, where fighting has been going on ever since last Sunday.

Yesterday the attacks of the enemy west of Lille were repulsed, the enemy suffering heavy losses.

In the eastern theatre of the war there has been no material change.

RUSSIANS BURIED 18,000 OF THE GERMAN DEAD

Enemy Still Presist in Crossing Vistula River Despite Heavy Losses But Are Repulsed—Austrians Are Repelled at Sea

Petrograd, Octl 20. Official statements declare that the Germans are continuing their efforts to cross the Vistula River at several points despite very heavy losses. At no point, says the statement, have they succeeded.

According to a statement published in the Army Gazette, some 18,000 German dead, left on the field by the retreating Germans, were buried by the Russians

The War Office states that the German right wing, which is extended into Galicia, has been making determined attacks in co-operation with the Austrians, but it is claimed that at no point have the enemy succeeded in gaining any distinct advantage.

The Austrians have attempted to cross the San River, only to be repulsed with heavy losses, while fifteen Austrian officers and 1,000 soldiers have been taken prisoners.

JUDAS MACCABAEUS BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Free-Will Offering in Aid of Peterborough Patriotic Relief Fund—A Big Audience, and a Big Work Charmingly Rendered

The repeat rendition of the oratorio "Judas Maccabaeus," given in the Grand Opera House last night, was a gratifying success in every way. The audience was large and thoroughly appreciative of the Peterborough Choral Society's splendid work, together with brilliant offerings by the solo talent. Miss Olive Casey of Toronto, and Miss Dorothy Allan, of this city, were again heard to charming advantage in the different soprano numbers entrusted to their care. Mr. G. Kenyon, organist and choirmaster of Knox church, was demonstratively appreciated in bass solo, as was also Mr. Geo. Chandler, choirmaster of All Saint's church, in tenor parts. Ull the principals, chorus and the Peterborough Conservatory's talented orchestra were encored again and again. Miss Flowers, organist of All Saint's Church, made a very acceptable pianist in an oratorio which requires considerable from the piano. The work of the brilliant chorus was once more beautifully correct and harmonious in volume. The whole offering was given under the masterly conductorship of Mr. R.J. Devey, organist and choirmaster of St. John's Church, who had the pleasure of leading a musical aggregation composed of members of all our city choirs without regatd to denomination. The occasion was an unsectarian freelwill offeting in aid of Peterborough's Patriotic Relief Fund, and as such desires credit from the whole community. Special gratitude is due Miss Olive Casey, who came down from Toronto to give her services gratuitously for this worthy cause. Many thanks are also due the Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons for the free use of their opera house.

TURKO-RUSS SHIPS FIGHT ?

London, Oct. 20.—A despatch from Copenhagen to the Central News says:

"The Berliner Tageblatt publishes a telegram from Bucharest, saying that eventually a big Russian- Turkish naval battle has taken place in the Black Sea. Exceedingly heavy fighting lasting a considerable time, is reported."

Some Of The Overseas Force Not Yet In Camp

London, Oct. 20.—"I cannot see what any one finds to kich at in this climate," remarked a newly arrived major in one of the brigade messes at Salisbury yesterday. The canvas of the Marquee was drawn aside to admit the bright sunshine. "Wait until you've been here forty-eight hours. You'll perhaps alter your opinion," declared a brother officer better acquainted with the vagaries of the English weather.

All day yesterday the troops were marching up to the Plain, throwing themselves on the grass on arrival and awaiting instructions concerning the locality of their lines, the trains consisting of a number of coaches for men, and vans for their equipment.

Highlanders Start Drill.

The Highlanders as already mentioned were among the earliest arrivals in camp, and had already started drill, by today. A start also was being made to unpack the rifles. The general health of the contingent is remarkably good.

The pipe band from out of the West skirls daily, and gaily. General Alderson has arrived, but the real business of training will not begin till towards the end of the week. Mutual conbratulations are passing among those particularly concerned with the horses over the fact that the losses did not exceed one and a quarter per cent.

Exchanging Their Money.

Some men by the way have experienced difficulty in changing Canadian money at the camp, but this will no doubt soon be remedied. Excellent arrangements have been made whereby the Canadian soldier on presentation of his pay book to any British paymaster, receives the amount standing to his credit. This will obviate any hardship in the event of a section becoming detached from its own headquarters.

Interesting incidents of the voyage still come to hand. Cigarettes were ostensibly all sold out the second day of sail, Some wily speculators, however, had laid in a secret stock and when the longing for smoke became unendurable they did a roaring trade at twenty-five cents for ten. There was also a famine in chocolates and sweets in a couple of days.

THE TIDE OF BATTLE HAS CERTAINLY TURNED AGAINST GERMAN INVADERS

Looks Now as if French and English Wedge May Cut Off German Force in Osfend Battle in Western War Zone Are Also Not Going in Favor of the Foe--Servians Also Check Austrians

London, Oct. 20.—Nothing has been received up to the present from the German intelligence department to counteract the British impression conveyed in the news, both official and unofficial, published here that the tide of battle both in the eastern and the western theatres is not for the moment going in favor of Germany.

The picture, however, continues so blurred that it is impossible, except for the commanders on the spot, accurately ta gauge the effect of the momentary changes on the ultimate result. The Belgian Minister at London has no confirmation of the story that the allies have reoccupied Ostend, but in any case the German hold on that seaport must be somewhat precarious if the allies still retain the positions assigned to them in the latest French official statement.

Should the allies push their wedge beyond Roulers, where its point rested yesterday, Ostend would be in considerable danger of being cut off from the rest of the German army.

The Germans are making great efforts to break through the opponents' lines in the neighborhood of Arras, where, as General Joffre's statement points out, fighting has proceeded for ten days without a respite.

News of the conflict of millions of men along the Vistula River, in Russian Poland, is mostly of a negative character. Each of the vast armies claims that its opponent is on the defensive and neither pretends to have secured anything like a permanent advantage. The Austrians, for the moment, are claiming far more success against the Russians than are the Germans, but even admitting the correctness of their claim, their forces, which are alleged to be driving the Muscovites out of the Carpathian Mountains, still are at least seventy miles south of both Przemysl and Lemberg.

Further to the southward the Servians are utilizing all their available strength in a general assault on Serajevo. They especially are desirous of being in possession of the Bosnian capital before the court has given its decision in the trial of Gavrio Prinzip, whose assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the Austrian heir apparent, was the direct excuse for the war of the nations.

That significance attaches to the announcement that Canada will keep sending batches of volunteer reinforcements, each numbering 10,000 men, so long as the war lasts, is fully appreciated in comments heard both in London and on the Continent.

GIRLISH COMPLEXION NOW EASILY ACQUIRED

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercolized wax in placeof cosmetic massage, steaming and other methods. Many who have tried this marvellous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially made over. One that is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in original one ounce package, is put on at night, just like cold cream, and washed off in the morning.

I have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face-bath which I recommended recently. If any have mislaid the formula, here it is : 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel.—"Natalie" in the Woman Militant.

GERMANY'S TRAINER

Rumored Big Salary Paid to Secure Olympic Supremacy

It is reported that A. G. Kraenzlein has signed a five-year contract to prepare Germany's representatives for coming Olympic meets and it is said he will receive $50,000 for his services.

The $50,000 part of the contract however, is to be doubted, according to Lawson Robertson, trainer of the Irish-American A. C. track and field team. Lawson was offered the German job, with a three-years' contract at about $2,500 a year.

Lawson calls attention to the fact that all the European countries who are engaging trainers pick native sons. While Kraenzlein isn't a German by birth, he is a product of Milwaukee, a little Germany in itself.

Kraenzlein has been a wonderful athlete. He first shone as a hurdler, afterward took to broad jumping, and then to all-round athletics. Some of his records still stand. He was a big, heavy-set chap with a wonderful pair of legs. He never could lay claim to being the most graceful athlete in competition, but he was a wonder at getting over the ground. He is now a successful dentist.

PRODUCERS RATHER THAN MIDDLEMEN

W. H. Cushing of Calgary, Alberta, Speaks of the Need of Settlers on the Land

Mr. W. H. Cushing, in referring to Alberta as the land of opportunity, says:

"There is no country like it for the young man providing he is sensible and does not insist on getting rich quick. Think of it! 100,000,000 acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, and only 2,000,000 acres of it under cultivation! Too many are going to the cities and too few back to the land. We want producers more than middlemen in the West. Industry and patience are all that is necessary to win for the ambitious at least a comfortable competence in Alberta." Mr. Cushing does not see any danger ahead because of exhaustive wheat growing. Optimist that he is, he says that it is questionable whether the sponge-like soil of the prairies could be robbed of its virtue no matter how many crops were taken from it. Certainly it would not deteriorate if given proper care and a rest occasionally. Even admitting that the wheat growers were taxing their land in the effort to grow wealthy quickly, the danger faded away when it was remembered that but little over 2 per cent. of the agricultural land had yet been ploughed. "Alberta," concludes Mr. Cushing, "stands on immense beds of coal, deposits of gas, oil, etc. In the north, there are large tracts of practically pure salt and other valuable minerals abound. All this is in addition to her agriculture. Who can predict what lies in front of such a storehouse of natural wealth? As I said before, I am firmly convinced that, for the young man, Alberta is the land of opportunity."

LIFE AFTER FORTY

The best half of life is in front of the man of 40, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hands of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To aim the commonest things are rare and beautiful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes each year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

VICE-ADMIRAL R. H. S. STOKES who was appointed to succeed Vice-Admiral Sir C. H. Coke as senior officer on the coast of Ireland.

Perpetuating Game

Large game preserves have recently been set aside in Somaliland, Uganda and other British protectorates in Africa, in which the hunting is prohibited of elephants, giraffes, rhinoceroses and other valuable game in danger of extinction. This policy has also proved successful in perpetuating the game supply on certain Dominion Forest Reserves in Western Canada, and as occasion demands the number of these game preserves will be increased.

HANDLING OF HORSES

Every man who handles horses should have the fundamental gift of common sense.

A young, highly-bred, trotting-bred mare was working on a farm for two years with an aged horse of lighter weight. The young mare fretted and fumed, always half a length ahead of the old horse. Then the man handling the team changed to open bridles. At once the young mare fell into her proper place, accommodating herself to the older horse. She could see what was going on, and seemed to realize what was expected of her. The man showed brains and responsiveness.

Be sure to give each horse exercise every day, in harness or yard—except, of course, during storms.

Box stalls are the ideal ones, and every stable should have several, at all events one or two. On stormy days during winter horses can be changed to these boxes and given a chance to move around.

Gait is a matter largely of breeding. Think of this before it is too late.

WASTE FROM DESKS GOES INTO BRUSHES

Remnants From One Factory Used as Raw Material For Another

Waste wood in the manufacture of school desks is used for the backs of cheap brushes. A large manufacturer of school desks in Michigan had a considerable amount of waste material in sizes which were too short to enter into the manufacture of the smallest desks, and could not be utilized further with his machinery or in his line of work. This material was all hard maple in pieces an inch thick, a foot or so long, and about three inches wide; for a long time it had been consigned to the waste pile and sold as firewood. This waste amounted to from 1,000 to 1,500 board feet each day. A nearby manufacturer was using practically this quantity of maple, which he was sawing up into small pieces for making the backs of cheap brushes. Members of the Forest Service, investigating methods of eliminating factory waste, conceived the idea that the blocks used by the brush factory could be readily secured from the waste of the school desk manufacturer, and on this basis an arrangement of mutual benefit was soon concluded. Arrangements were made so that the brush manufacturer now places orders with the other firm for its raw material and what was formerly waste is now a source of profit.

WOUNDED IN BATTLE

Bullets Mostly Strike Heads and Hands in Modern Fighting

Dr. O. Laurent, a surgeon who served as a volunteer during the Balkan War, rendered to the French Academy of Medicine a very interesting and instructive report concerning casualties in battle.

His statistics show that, in modern warfare, 82 to 84 per cent. of the wounds inflicted are caused by bullets, 15 to 17 per cent. by shrapnel, and 1 per cent. by cold steel. The penetrative force of shrapnel bullets is, he declares, very much less than that of rifle bullets—at all events, when the shrapnel bursts at some distance from the soldier; for, whereas shrapnel is often found embedded in clothing, rifle bullets never are. On the other hand, complications arise very much more frequently from shrapnel wounds than from rifle bullet wounds.

Dr. Laurent has observed that nowadays, since the soldier usually fires under cover, lying either prone or in a trench, a large majority of wounds are received in the skull and the hands, especially the left hand.

To combat this, he suggests the use of a light, resistant shield to protect the head, and that another shield should be fixed to the left hand or the rifle itself. A third might be placed in the region of the heart. Indeed, many British soldiers who fought in the Boer War owe their lives to the chance presence of a cigarette case or wad of papers in the left breast pocket.

THE FROZEN SHIP

A Gruesome Legend of Lake Superior

One of the most gruesome legends of Superior relates to the "Frozen Ship," which recalls almost "the schooner Hesperus, that sailed the wintry sea." This trim schooner weighed anchor in Duluth just before a November storm, which made mariners everywhere run for cover. For six long weeks no tidings whatever was heard of the ship. Then, one day, a lonely trapper making his rounds in the wilderness came across her on the shore. Frozen stiff in their bunks were two of the crew, and the fate of the others was surmised with a shudder as the trapper noted the tracks of wild animals on the snow-covered deck. And the annals of the Great Lakes contain the records of fully as many deeds of heroism, in proportion, as do the logs of old ocean, while millions of treasure lie hidden beneath the waters. When the time comes for the "sea to give up her dead," the great multitude which no man can number, will be bravely recruited from the gallant souls whose bones lie at the bottom of Superior and its kindred fresh water seas.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $90,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalised company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes means to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

REVIVAL OF MINING

Renewed Activity Where There Has Been Quiet Since the Sixties

Many of the old mining camps of the United States and Canada, deserted years ago, are being rehabilitated and not a few districts which in the sixties were flourishing, but since have fallen into decay, are now being opened up with new life and energy. British Columbia, which, during the time of the Civil War, and later in 1896-97, was the mecca for miners, is again reviving and taking on new life that will undoubtedly bear much fruit in the course of the very near future. This is particularly true of the Windermere district of British Columbia, long known as a lead-silver mining district. In this section there are large deposits of low grade ore.

The Canadian Pacific Railway took over the old Kootenay Central and is now busy connecting up Golden and Fort Steele. Trains are operating from Golden south as far as Spillimacheen, while steel has been laid much farther, and grading is progressing far ahead of the steel. Work is being urged north from Fort Steele to Golden so that this railway project, which was a dream of the early miners of the district, will be a reality. This will bring the miners of the rich Windermere silver-lead district within a range of 250 miles of the large customs smelters and within but a few miles of Trail, B.C., where most of the silver-lead smelting is done. It is interesting to remember that the silver used in coining the money for the Philippine Islands was smelted at Trail.

About fifteen years ago John Hays Hammond and Randolph Bruce started operations on a series of rich claims known as the Paradise Mine. Some work was done and splendid showings were made. The ore was rich, but the transportation facilities were so poor that all of the profits were eaten up before the silver-lead got to the smelters. Pack trains proved too expensive, so the project was abandoned until time should bring railroad facilities. The Paradise Mine, according to recent advice, will be reopened in the near future. It was in the rich valley of the Columbia, however, that Robert Randolph Bruce did make his fortune. Along with many others, he recognized the possibilities of the district both as to its minerals and as to its agriculture. He has developed both and has wide holdings both in mining claims and in lands. Married recently to Lady Elizabeth Northcote, he plans to make his home at Invermore, where he will devote his attention to the development of his mines and his lands.

TO PREVENT CANCER

Indigestion Frequently its Forerunner, Therefore do Not Neglect Stomach

Indigestion is one of the most common ills, and because it is so common many of us are apt to regard it as an inevitable result of eating for which medicine can do little good. We either suffer in silence or take a few home remedies, and let it go at that.

This is all wrong. Indigestion, however slight, should receive careful medical attention, for it is often the forerunner of gastric ulcer, and this in turn leads to a surprisingly large number of cases of cancer of the stomach.

Out of [illegible] consecutive cases of cancer treated at a leading hospital over 60 per cent. began with indigestion and in nearly all of these this had been followed by chronic ulcer. Figures like these leave no doubt of the importance of giving due attention to even the most trivial derangement of the stomach. Indigestion, dyspepsia and gastric ulcer are the warnings which nature gives us in the order named of the approach of cancer.

Added support of this idea is found in the fact that cancer is more prevalent in the country districts than in the cities. It is in these districts that the most indigestion is found. In the rural districts over-eating, too much fried food and rich pastry ruin more stomachs than the "high living" of the cities which is generally supposed to be so harmful.

The length of time during which indigestion is suffered from before cancer of the stomach appears is, on the [illegible] years. One reason why many persons neglect their stomachs and lay themselves open to the danger of cancer is the common belief that cancer is a hereditary disease which can hardly be escaped if it is "in the family." The most reliable authorities at the present time, however, are agreed that there is no proof that heredity plays any part whatever in causing cancer. This conclusion, is of course, liable to modification, for cancer remains one of the diseases about which we have the least definite knowledge.

A few days previously the same railway company successfully experimented with the transmission by wireless of running orders of a [illegible].

THE WORLD'S BEST

Perfect Satisfaction in Buying a Heintzman & Co.
"Ye Olde Firme"
Player-Piano

The building of the Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano is an interesting piece of Piano history. Makers of the world's best Piano, we could not afford to put a Player-piano on the market bearing our name until we had brought the work of construction in the Player-Piano up to the same point of acknowledged and unrivalled excellence as is accorded the Heintzman & Co. Piano.

So we worked diligently through the years on this Player Piano until we could say that it was the best. And in our new model for 1914 we have further improved on the excellencies of 1913.

The Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano cannot be considered along with any other Player-Piano. It is a new and distinct creation, built along lines that are common to no other instrument.

The most outstanding feature of this Player-Piano is the aluminum action. By this means this instrument will withstand different climatic changes in a way that is not possible with the ordinary wood action. The swelling and shrinking of wood which takes place with climatic changes opens up minute passages, through which the air escapes, and if leakage of air takes place then the action immediately deteriorates.

Not only is the primary valve casing cast in one solid piece of aluminum, which ensures its being absolutely air-tight, but the secondary valve casing and chamber which conducts the air stream from the power pneumatic is also cast in one piece of aluminum.

Let it be known that the controlling of the air is the great consideration in all pneumatic Player-Pianos.

There are altogether some twenty interesting and distinctive features about this Player-Piano—all combining to make it the perfect instrument it is.

We place our unqualified warranty upon this Player-Piano, for we know it is more than a sweet-sounding instrument. It is good all through.

JOURNALIST'S QUICK WIT

A London Editor's Retort to a Cantious Neighbor

The late Archie Bremner, for many years editor of "The London Advertiser," was noted for his ready wit. For a long time his home was in one of the suburbs and next door resided a chronically cantankerous individual never happy except when in a scrap with somebody. One day after dinner Archie sauntered for the office with his old silk hat tilted at the regulation angle. But neighbor "Bone" was lying in wait for him leaning over his front gate.

"Mr. Bremner, are you aware that your line fence is two inches over on my lot?"

"Well, no, to tell the truth, I hadn't noticed that," was the diplomatic answer.

"It is then, and I want to know what you are going to do about it?"

"Well, now," observed the imperturbable Archie, lifting his pipe from his mouth, "if you are going to move the fence just put it full six inches over on my lot and then there'll never be any chance for trouble."

And there never was. Neighbor "Bone's" wrath flattened out more quickly than it had risen and he discovered a sudden engagement back in his own onion patch.

VALUABLE STAMPS

Big Fortunes Tied up in Tiny Pieces of Paper

Huge though the sum of $100,000, which was paid for part of the late Earl of Crawford's collection of stamps, may seem, it is by no means a record. As much as $225,000 has been realised for individual collections, and $122,500 was paid in [illegible] for the late Sir William Avery's stamps. One of the enormous specialised collections brought together by Mr. H. Castle, the doyen of British philatelists, brought nearly $150,000 and its value, if disposed of to-day, would be very much higher. As a matter of fact, the $100,000 paid for part of the Earl of Crawford's collection only represents about half the total value, for the late Earl gathered together a mass of rare and valuable stamps which is unique in the history of philatelic enterprise, and must have cost him at least $200,000.

The most valuable collection in the world, however, is that which belongs to a Frenchman, M. Philip La Renotière, who started collecting stamps in the middle of the 'sixties, and who has probably spent nearly $1,500,000 upon his collection of 130,000 stamps. And as an illustration of how stamps increase in value with time, it might be mentioned that M. Renotière purchased outright the collections of two presidents of the Royal Philatelic Society—Sir Samuel Cooper, Bart., whose collection in 1878 he bought for $15,000, and Judge Philbrick, for whose collection, in 1882, he gave $40,000. To-day those two collections would probably bring $100,000 and $250,000 respectively.

Air For Submarines

The recent exploit of the German submarine U9 off the Hook of Holland not only astonished laymen, but confused those who laughed at the prediction of Admiral Sir Percy Scott that this type of war vessel would supplant the dreadnought. Now comes Thomas Edison, who on a visit to the Brooklyn navy yard, nonchalantly tells Secretary Daniels that he knows of an easy process by which this under-water craft can stay beneath indefinitely.

He says he thought of the process many years ago, but never having had much interest in ship matters did not test his idea. His argument is that by use of a potash battery the oxygen and hydrogen of water can be separated under sea, and thus life prolonged by breathing the one needed gas. It was his reflection upon how a fish breathes under water that suggested the idea.

Thus the traveling radius of a submarine could be lengthened, and by building larger ships the problem of fuel supply could be solved. He related this new theory while he was himself enjoying his first trip on a submarine going toward the bottom of the sea. While he admitted that he never constructed this battery the principle was clear and the apparatus was simple. Quite a number of naval officers have already manifested a decided interest in this novel and simple device.

Lesson From South Africa

The diminutive insurrection in South Africa, headed by Colonel Maritz, offers a lesson on the danger of fostering political policies which have a tendency to minimize the importance of imperialism, and thus leaving exposed opportunity for the machinations of the enemy within our gates to take root and flourish. Speaking in this connection, the Montreal Mail advances the following timely warning:

Reports from South Africa tend to minimize the importance of the insurrection which broke out under Colonel Maritz. The statements given out by Premier Botha show him to be determined to put down whatever uprising there is with an iron hand. That is satisfactory. Were the situation more serious than it evidently is, Botha, the leader of the Government, would hardly make such announcements in this determined and emphatic manner.

There is a lesson for Canada in this outbreak in South Africa. The cause of it may be found in the trend of South African politics in recent years. General Botha's stand has always been for self-respecting loyalty to Great Britain. He has always conceded to British statesmen in London the desire to have South Africa exert her action in an independent manner. On the other hand, there has been a faction of politicians anxious to reap whatever fruit they could obtain from the old feelings of enmity against the British. General Hertzog has been their leader, with this same Maritz. These men have continually kept up an agitation for greater autonomy and insisted that, in every concern, the Union of South Africa should be put before the Empire. In the sentiment created by this political attitude the German agents, whose machinations may yet be exposed with sensational disclosures by Premier Botha, found fertile soil for the seeds they wished to sow.

What is happening in the Union of South Africa appears to be merely the intensification of political quarrels between the two parties in the Union, a quarrel, which may be assumed therefore, that the majority of the people are behind Botha. Canadians may draw from this occurrence a lesson as to the danger inherent in political policies which even suggest a lack of faith in Imperial statesmanship.

Tortures of Rheumatism Yield to This Remedy

GET A TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY.

With reliable old Nerviline you can rub out the pain of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, or Neuralgia—rub it away so completely that you feel like new all over.

It matters not how deeply seated the pain is, or how long you have had it—rubbing with the king of all liniments "Nerviline" will cure you.

Nerviline is highly concentrated—about five times stronger than the ordinary white ammonia liniment—therefore it penetrates quickly—sinks in deeply—and gets right at the core of the pain at once—draws out the lameness, takes away the stiffness—eases the joints that have hurt you so much.

Out comes the pain every time you rub on Nerviline, which contains some of the most valuable pain-subduing remedies known to science. Worth its weight in gold to every family in the land, and sure to cure the emergent and minor ills of a hundred kinds that constantly arise. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; small trial size 25c. Nerviline is sold by every dealer, everywhere.

"CASCARETS" ALWAYS STRAIGHTENS YOU UP

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

No Protests From Holland

That Holland leans toward the German interests has long been suspected. Throughout the whole war so far the Dutch have been the medium for optimistic German Despatches, no matter how extravagant they may be. The success of German submarines, with German exit waters mined by the British, point to Holland as a base for such craft; in fact the other day a submarine was actually caught on Dutch land, and destroyed by a British cruiser, no thanks to Holland. The enemy's submarine was waiting for supplies and using Dutch territory therefor. On Saturday four German destroyers were caught and sunk by a British cruiser and accompanying destroyers, again off the Dutch coast. The coast of any country in nautical phraseology, means with a three miles limit; outside of that the sea is neutral. And it is the duty of any neutral country to protest against use of her land or water limit for war operations by any beligerent power. Hence, as we have heard of no protests from Holland, and have to hand concrete evidence of her waters being used by our enemy's boats, what is the inference to be drawn. There can be no other conclusion than that Holland is pro-German, and should be treated as such—the quicker the better for the British Empire.

That the Dutch are making profit out of Britain's blockade of Germany's ports, by acting as a medium for the shipment of commerce to Germany, has long been suspected. Is any evidence of this wanted? If so, the following Canadian despatch furnishes one missing link between suspicion and fact:

> Brantford, Ont., Canada, Oct. 17.—Ogilvie, Lochead, and Company have been notified that a shipment of German goods has been received here for them, and that it is being held up. The goods were shipped from Berlin on July 31, before the war with Britain broke out. They reached Bremen too late to ship to England for transhipment to Canada. The Germans, therefore, readdressed them to an agent in Holland and shipped them to Canada through Rotterdam. This proves that Germany is using Holland to keep up her commerce.

In the foregoing, it seems to us sufficient evidence is to hand to convict Holland of pro-Germanism. She has been under suspicion ever since the incipiency of the war, and it is high time that Great Britain demanded her open declaration for one side or the other, with no elusive neutral sentiment whatever. "For or against" should be the note of demand from the British war office, and it cannot be issued too soon.

The British rank and file in and around London, England, are aroused in antagonism to German shopkeepers. German espionage and traitorous preparations for strengthening the hands of a dreamed-of Teutonic invasion of England is calling for drastic action on the part of the Government; otherwise anti-German riots will spread throughout the whole length and breadth of the British Isle. Germany's barbarism in waging war calls for the elimination of all "turn the other cheek" sentiment in the case of her people betraying the free-born privileges extended to them by Great Britain.

Burglars Still at Large

There has been no new developments in the burglaries of last Saturday morning, but in all probability it was the work of adults, not boys. They are of the mean, skulking kind who endeavor to eke out a miserable existence by taking advantage of an unprotected door or window. The damages and loss sustained in many cases heretofore when thoroughly investigated by the police proved very trifling. In one instance where a party claimed he had lost $200 worth of goods it was found out that two dollars would cover it.—Lindsay Warder.

MRS. BUFFOM STILL HOPES FOR FREEDOM

Olean, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Cynthia Buffom, convicted of the murder of her husband, Willis Buffom, by the administration of arsenic, still believes that she has a fighting chance of acquittal. Although the appeal of her case will not be argued next Thursday before the court of appeals, having been put over until November 22 at the request of District Attorney A.M. Laidlaw, she appears confident that if the court orders a new trial several features to her advantage will be introduced.

District Attorney Laidlaw finds it necessary to attend county court next week and in consequence is unable to give the Buffom appeal the attention necessary. P. S. Collins, attorney for Mrs. Buffom, has been working on the brief in the case several weeks and has it completed. He does not object to the delay, however, and is confident that the case will be ordered back for trial.

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

WORCESTER HAS $200,000 FIRE IN DAY BUILDING

Tenants of Office and Lodge Room Overcome by Smoke and Several Are Taken to City Hospital

Worchester, Oct. 20.—Four persons were injured, a loss of $150,000 caused and more than 100 persons who were attending a meeting were forced to flee for safety through smoke-filled corridors at a fire which wrecked the five-story Day building, located on a lot bounded by Walnut, Eden, Sudbury and Main streets,

Mayor George M. Wright, who was attending a banquet in a hall nearby was among the first on the scene and gave the firemen valuable assistance in the work of rescue.

The injured are W. Richard Mooney, who was found unconscious on the third floor and carried down a ladder by firemen Mrs. Mary E. Williamson, a dressmaker, who was carried unconscious from the same floor; Frank Dolthian, engineer of the building, who was overcome on the fourth floor and carried to safety; William Menard, fireman in the building, who was injured by falling down stairs. All were taken to the City Hospital

The fire was discovered at about 9.15 on the fourth floor and spread rapidly toward the roof. On the top floor in Pythian Hall, when the fire was discovered, there was in progress a meeting of the Junior order of the United American Mechanics

There were more than 100 in attendance and when the cry of fire was raised there was a wild scramble for the exits on the Main street side of the building. On that side the flames had not yet gained headway and all managed to reach the street in safety, although many lost their coats, hats and other belongings.

The building was occupied largely for studio purposes by piano and vocal teachers, but there was also a number of dressmaking and manicuring establishments. On the lower floors were the warerooms of several piano concerns, the Worchester County Conservatory of Music and the Hultman-McQuade studio.

Many of the occupants were still in the building and escaped with difficulty.

William Menard, the fireman of the building, living on the fourth floor, was just coming out to go to work. When he opened the door an immense volume of smoke in the doorway drove him back but he crawled to the stairs and was overcome. After rolling down two flignts he was found unconscious and was carried to the street.

Mrs. Eva Bergstrom was receiving treatment in the manicuring parlor of Mrs. Theresa Anderson and was almost entirely disrobed. In this condition she was compelled to rush with what raiment she could gather in her arms.

OBITUARY

The funeral of the late Joseph Jefferson, who as noted in yesterday's Times was a member of the fire department, took place yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery, with members of the Hibernians, police force and fire department in attendance. The pall bearers were: Messrs. M.J. Clancy, and J.J. Duffus, firemen; A. Blade and J. McArthur, police officers, and J. Drain and M. Neary, representing the A.O.H. Police Chief Thompson, Fire Chief Howard, and Adjutant McElheney attended. Requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan. Rev. Father McGinty officiated at the grave.

Poet's Corner

Herewith appears an exclusive poem entitled, "Look for the Good," by Miss Christie Campbell of Toronto. This talented poetess wields a facile pen. Her contributions to the Times will no doubt be highly appreciated by our readers.

LOOK FOR THE GOOD

Look for the good 'tis never far away,
But we the bad too anxious are to find;
It blinds our eyes, we cannot see beyond,
And there the good in all its beauty lies.

Look for the good, and good will surely come,
And grow in grace and sweetness day by day;
It is innate in every living soul,
And marks the milestones on the heavenly way.

Look for the good, and good expect to find,
You won't be disappointed, rest assured;
It only wants a tender hand
To draw it forth where it has been imured.

And buried 'neath the crust of unbelief.
Of unbelief in its existence; till
'Tis well nigh lost, and choked with dirt and weeds,
And covered over with our own self-will.

Look for the good, and love the good to see,
Live for the good and be the good thyself
In every thought and action; throw it forth
And draw it out of others by thy love.

—Christie Campbell.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). cf a strikeis made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

THE CHIEF OBJECT OF DEVELOPMENT

Secure the Best Use of Things For the Present and Leave Them in Best Condition For Future

"To often and too much the eyes of public men and the people generally are fixed exclusively upon some local political programme," says J. W. Robertson of the Royal Commission on Technical Education in Canada. "The vocational training of all the people to be contributing earners, good citizens and worthy members of the race is really the world's greatest movement at the present time. All the foremost nations are on the march. The campaign is against ignorance and inability and ill-wills. The hope is emancipation from poverty, disease and vice, and the attainment of new and higher levels of happiness and power by all the people. In the freshness and vigor of its youth Canada turns readily to questions of material growth and development. Canadians feel that they are coming into their own. Yet their attention and imagination are captivated by wealth in things more than their hearts are stirred by the possession of power with knowledge and desire to use it wisely. With all the fine attributes which belong to youth the country has many of its handicaps and dangers. Hence the urgency for educational training which will be adequate not only for material progress, but for the enjoyment of its achievements and for the real advancement of intellectual, social and spiritual interests and outlook.

"The chief object of development is to secure the best use of things for the present and to leave them in the best condition for the future, to attain the best characters in the people and provide the best quality of life and opportunities for their successors. In all the provinces there is evidence of progress. The Provincial Governments are not only responding to the demands on them as far as their revenues permit, but they are leading, encouraging and guiding the local communities.

SHIRKING THE HOME

Evils of the Boarding Houses For Married People

Married persons live in boarding-houses largely because of the prevalent high rents, the excessive cost of living generally, and perpetual troubles with domestic servants. In the long run they probably escape none of these ills, and certainly if any one of them be lessened there is a generous set-off in some greater evil which they will yet be called upon to suffer. There is an even more serious cause of this rush of married people to the boarding-houses. Very many wives, particularly the newly-married, have an antipathy to housework, and shrink before the idea of struggling to build up a home. Behind these feelings, which are unwomanly, is probably defective training in the home of their girlhood. It is difficult to make girls understand that domestic work is noble work. If the income be small it is no shame to the wife to do all the housework; but some sort of artificial stigma appears to attach to toil of the kind, which it seems to be impossible to remove. A consequence is that a new race of women is adding a new terror to life. The woman of this type marries not to make a home, but to dwell in lodgings. The honeymoon is spent in an hotel in the mountains or at the seaside, and the happy young people immediately afterwards rush to permanent quarters in a flat or a boarding house. The wife, instead of making a home for her husband, makes calls in the morning, goes shopping in the afternoon, and attends bridge parties or the theatre at night. All these things may be good, and some of them necessary, but for the young married woman in a boarding house they are practically all life has to offer in the way of occupation. She ought to be making little soft garments in her own home, instead of gadding about and making life a misery to those of her friends who have homes by extolling the advantages of life in lodgings.—Melbourne Argus.

Burns of Children

That more girls than boys are fatally burned is the interesting conclusion of investigations made in England by Dr. Brend. Due reflection upon the ages at which these fatalities are recorded in the reliable statistics which the Journal of the American Medical Association presents in a recent issue discloses the reason.

Age	Boys	Girls
Up to one year.........	214	234
From one to four......	1,663	1,383
From four to five......	368	775
From five to ten.......	389	1,427
From ten to twenty.....	90	630

The Canadian Match

Canada is a fine country, some day it will be a great country. Undoubtedly it will always remain a large country! And like most large countries its drawbacks are on a large scale. Take for instance the Canadian match. It's without exception the largest and most ornate match the world can produce. Wood being cheap and plentiful in Canada, each match is made on the reduced scale of a substantial fence post; the business end of it is adorned with a large and highly colored blob of some sulphurous compound chiefly noted for its inflammable qualities—anywhere but in juxtaposition with the strip of sandpaper pasted on the box, presumably for the purpose of igniting the said match. As a rule the match flatly declines to be lit on its proper place, but after you have scratched it on the box, on the stove, on the floor, on the door lintel, and on the sole of your shoe without any apparent effect, it will suddenly, and without any warning whatever, break in half and burst into flame. Whereupon the lighted end flies off into some inaccessible corner and continues to burn while you frantically endeavor to extinguish it with the extreme end of the broom handle, or the flaming portion thereof lodges upon your hand and holds thereto with a tenacity that is truly remarkable, never consenting to be displaced until it has burned a deep hole through the skin during the process of which the screams or curses of the victim (according to sex) and the mingled odors of sulphur and burning flesh add considerable excitement to the prearranged harmony of the family circle. Also, in order to carry out the general largeness of the idea, these matches are put up in large boxes, and suffer from a tendency to spontaneous combustion if inadvertently placed too near the stove.—Mrs. Donald Shaw.

VALUE OF NEW CANADIANS

What Immigration Gives Us Besides New Citizens

Occasionally we in Canada groan over foreign immigration and the heavy task we have assumed in trying to assimilate the newcomers and make them good citizens. We give an imitation of the weary Titan. But after all, is not all this change of population good for us asks the Toronto world.

In an old town, where the same families have lived for many years and where everybody knows everybody else, there is danger of narrowness. People are apt to discuss each other's affairs instead of public affairs. On the other hand, in a new growing town there is an exhilaration not only in the rapid progress, but in the contact of new personalities, the hurling of mind against mind and character against character.

Then there is a good deal to be learned from foreigners. What is the use of foreign travel except to meet new people, observe new customs, and acquire new points of view? The inexperienced traveler is apt to go along certain beaten paths and see the things that his predecessors have seen. He does not see the people in their homes; and especially he does not see the poor. He sees the evidences of European culture and power; but he does not see the results of European neglect and oppression. A careful and sympathetic study of the foreign immigrant is as stimulating and instructive as a trip to Europe.

Pulp Mills in Canada

In the little country of Denmark there are 300 pulp or paper mills. In Canada, according to the latest available statistics of the Dominion Forestry Branch, there are only 62 pulp mills in active operation. The Canadian mills are, however, many times larger than those in Denmark

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

As light as lager, but better for you

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

MAKING THE WEATHER FOR THE DOMINION

Some Information on "Old Probs'" Methods of Forecasting What is in Store For Us

From the Canadian Observatory and Meteorological Office on Bloor street, Toronto, the weather forecasts for the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland are prepared and distributed. The first stage in the preparation of this daily forecast is the gathering of information as to the prevailing conditions of the weather in all parts of the Dominion, in Newfoundland, and also in the United States. Forty-one stations report daily to the central office. These stations are equipped with suitable instruments for making the various weather observations such as, the pressure of the air, the temperature at time of observation, the maximum and minimum readings of the thermometer during the twenty-four hours, the relative humidity of the atmosphere, the direction and force of the wind, the amount of rainfall or snow, the kind of clouds and where they are moving from, whether the sky is clear, fair or cloudy. These observations are taken at the same time at all stations, which means, however, that owing to difference in longitude while Ontario observations are taken at 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., those in the Maritime provinces are recorded at 9 o'clock morning and evening, on the Pacific Coast at 5 o'clock and the Yukon at 4 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The reports are sent by a code which sums up the complete observation in three or four words. Including volunteer stations observations are sent from 143 points in the Dominion, although for the forecasting service the reports are required only for every 120 miles.

The United States Meteorological service has 175 stations and these interchange reports daily with the Canadian service. Besides this the Observatory receives daily reports covering weather conditions in practically all the countries of the Northern Hemisphere. When these observations have been received two charts are made out, one covering North America and Newfoundland, and another the whole Northern Hemisphere—in the latter, the weather conditions are represented in less detail. These maps give the material from which the forecaster works—from knowing what the conditions are and applying the principles of forecasting the weather man is able to tell with a fair degree of accuracy what the weather will be for the next twenty-four hours, and at times to hazard a reasonable guess at the probabilities for the next two or three days.

JEWISH LONGEVITY

Due to Their Practice of Inspecting Meat, Says Medico

"The Jews have been the only people in the entire world who during the last twenty centuries required that every animal killed for food should undergo a post-mortem examination," says a contributor to a well known medical journal in urging greater liberality among Jews as to permitting autopsies on their dead. These are allowed among the orthodox only when they are "an honor to the dead; when a human life can be saved thereby—for instance, when there is present a sick man who suffers from the same malady from which the deceased died," but never for experimental purposes. Continuing the writer says "Carcasses found on examination to have suffered during life from an incurable disease or injury were considered trepha, or unfit to eat, and those found to be sound were considered kosher, fit to eat. There is no doubt that the longevity of the Jews and their comparative immunity to a number of diseases are due to the fact that for centuries they have not ingested contaminated meat.

"It is quite incomprehensible why the other nations among whom the Jews dwelt, and whose general culture was higher than that of the Jews, have not grasped the hygienic importance of the Jewish method of post-mortem examination of slaughtered animals. It is only a few decades since the civilised world made the discovery of meat inspection and its bearing on the health of the people. And even in our days the custom of meat inspection is practised in a desultory manner."

Lajoie's Tip on Eyesight

Napoleon Lajoie says that young baseball players pay too much attention to developing speed without giving a thought to what he considers the most important asset in an aspiring recruit. Lajoie says a perfect pair of eyes can do more to make a player successful than any adjunct. Plenty of nerve, intelligence and strength enter into it, but the largest item is good eyesight.

Dreams Come True

People derided Jules Verne when he wrote his book telling how he girdled the earth in 80 days and another describing a voyage under the sea. Frank Wright also told of traveling in electric machines over the earth and through the air and people sneered. And yet all these things have been accomplished. Mr. Verne's trip around the world has been beaten by nearly half the time he specified.

CHEAPER FENCE-POSTS

Preservatives Prolong Life of the Poorest Woods

As a result of the many inquiries in regard to the preservative treatment of fence-posts, the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, issued a circular on this subject. The great advantage of these treatments is that they keep even cheap woods free from decay for from ten to fifteen years. Many kinds of wood found in farmers' woodlots will last, when used as posts, only four years or thereabouts; after treatment, such as described, they last twice or three times, even four times as long. Creosote, which costs in Canada, from ten to twenty-five cents a gallon, is the best preservative. When boiling-hot creosote is applied liberally with a brush—a paint brush or whitewash brush, for instance—to the butts of well-seasoned posts from which the bark has been removed, it sinks into the wood for a distance of about a quarter of an inch. This should add at least ten years to the life of a post made from a non-durable wood, such as poplar, balsam, fir or spruce. This is not the best method, but it is the simplest and, on a small scale, probably the cheapest. Other methods require that the posts be kept covered in tanks of hot creosote for a longer or shorter period. Besides lengthening the life of the post, the preservative treatment also tends to reduce the cost of the posts in another way, for, as cheap local woods can be used, the first cost and the cost of transportation are usually much lower than for cedar, oak or tamarack. Moreover, as posts will need to be set less often, the proportionate cost of setting the post will be less. Taking into account all the items that go to make up the cost of the post, and comparing this with the number of years it will last, it will be found, in the majority of cases, to be much less for treated posts.

Some Hog Pointers

A dry pen and a dry bed are essential to thrift in pigs.

Leaves make good bedding, but straw is much better.

Don't keep the breeding sows or the growing pigs on a plank floor all winter.

Give them a yard in which to exercise on the sunny side of the pig house.

Bank the pig house well so there will be no drafts under or on the floors.

Drafts are fatal to hogs, causing rheumatism, pneumonia and other ills.

Hogs often have sore throat, quinsey, etc., from exposure to drafts and cold.

If your pigs squeal they are either cold, hungry or uncomfortable in some way.

Find the cause and remove it, if you wish to prevent loss.

Satisfied profitable pigs will grunt but they do not squeal.

Keep the pigs clean and they will be healthy.

Did you ever study economy in feeding hogs? Good work for the winter season. May be made very profitable, too.

WHAT IS PROGRESS

Every Scientific Invention Has its Human Side

Now and then some prophet looking only at the mechanical side of progress cries out that there is no real benefit int it. But the mechanical cannot be separated from the human side.

Compare the case of the immigrant of to-day with that of his predecessor of fifty or a hundred years ago. In the former the parting with friends in the old country was like death. The Atlantic voyage was a tremendous undertaking. It was followed by a long and toilsome land journey. Few of the exiles could expect to become wealthy enough to return to their native land. Communication by letter was slow. The telegraph and the cable when first introduced were expensive luxuries. To-day the immigrant crosses the Atlantic in less than a week and is whisked off to his destination by fast train in a few days more. He has speedy communication by mail with his friends at home. He can cable if necessary at a moderate expense. He sends money orders home. He receives parcels of plum-pudding at Christmas. A visit to the old land is regarded as no great undertaking.

So every scientific invention has its human side. It lessens farm labor and increases the supply of food. It makes the work of the housewife easier. It makes the house warmer. It enormously increases the output of clothing and other necessaries. If you think these things have no human side, try wearing shabby clothes. Talk to some householder who finds it hard to pay house rent and pay the butcher and buy new shoes to take the place of those that the kids wear out so fast.

Boxing for Olympics

The Amateur Boxing Association of England is trying to have boxing contests listed with the events at the Olympic Games. "Boxing was one of the favorite outdoor sports at the ancient Greek Olympiads," says President John H. Douglas, "and the modern Olympic meets will never be complete until boxing contests are given as important a place on the programme as the Pentathlon and the Marathon race."

PERILOUS WISDOM

It is an interesting fact that the ancients knew the secret of malleable crystal. In the time of Tiberius an artisan invented a malleable glass, and the shop in which he worked was wrecked for fear that his discovery would bring about a reduction in the price of bronze, gold and silverware.

Pliny refers to this legend and years after another author relates the same story with variations. According to him, the artisan, who was also an architect, restored from partial ruin one of the handsomest of Roman porches, and Tiberius, having a notorious jealousy of any man who surpassed himself even in matters entirely outside of his province, took a violent dislike to one who, he said, was trying to undermine the well-established order of things. Tiberius pointed out that, if the ancient porch had not been restored, hundreds of workmen might have been given labor in the construction of a new one. The man was, accordingly banished. Naturally, the architect reasoned that if he could convince the head of the state of the good that might result from the numerous ideas he had evolved, the emperor would modify his opinion and even assist him in the maturing of certain of his plans. So he went back to Rome and obtained an interview with Tiberius.

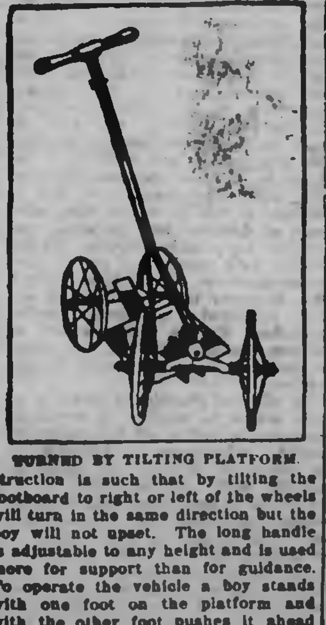
The emperor is described as listening patiently to what he had to say and finally demanding proof. For answer he flung to the floor a crystal goblet, which dented, and bent it back into shape with his own hands. He was thereupon condemned to death.

Still another version is that Tiberius in a rage at the imprudence of one who claimed to do what Cæsar could not, smashed the crystal and sat spellbound when the artisan took a hammer and twisting it as if it were copper, made a vase of it. The emperor then calmly asked him what else he could do in the way of wonders, and being told that this was all, had the man executed.

NEW PLAY APPARATUS

Wheeled Platform Propelled by Pushing One Foot

After watching small boys coasting about on home-made vehicles propelled by one foot, a man with youngsters of his own designed a more elaborate affair on the same principle. A low platform is mounted on four wheels, the two axles of the device being connected by a strong steel band, on which the footboard rests. The construction is such that by tilting the footboard to right or left of the wheels will turn in the same direction but the boy will not upset. The long handle is adjustable to any height and is used more for support than for guidance. To operate the vehicle a boy stands with one foot on the platform and with the other foot pushes it ahead until sufficient momentum is attained to carry it on. He then gets aboard with both feet and guides it by throwing the weight of his body on one side or the other.



TURNED BY TILTING PLATFORM.

FARMING IN MANITOBA

The Industry in the Province is Yet in its Infancy

Although the Province of Manitoba is the oldest settled of the prairie provinces, it is well within the truth to state that farming is as yet in its infancy. The area now under cultivation is an amazingly small percentage of the total area available for the production of crops.

The following summary of yields per acre of principal grain crops in Manitoba, shows the situation in a nutshell and will convince the most skeptical that this province is one of the richest districts on the American continent.

Wheat, average for 27 years, 13.90 bushels per acre.

Barley, average for 27 years, 20.87 bushels per acre.

Expected a Deluge

An extraordinary case of religious mania was found in Panama. An individual who had proclaimed himself the Messiah predicted the destruction of the world by a deluge in a short time, and some of his eighty adherents engaged in building an ark, while others collected in pairs animals of all species found in their region.

The Poor Can't Eat!

Port Hope Guide: The Port Hope Candy Works opened their place of business yesterday and served lunches to their customers. About 9.30 the police ordered them to close. When interviewed this morning, the proprietor informed the Guide that he thought he was quite within his rights to feed hungry ones on the Sabbath and was willing to test the bylaw.

Chance for Hope.

The Emperor of Russia has issued an edict that after this date his country will neither make nor sell vodka or other spirituous liquors. Let us hope that the Russian roads hereafter will not be paved with empty bottles as are most of the roads from Peterboro to surrounding local option villages!

Why Is This?

Recently this journal drew attention to what appears to be an unwarrantable raise in price of bread. In fact, in the ordinary vernacular of the day the increase to 13c a loaf is boldly claimed to be a shameful hold-up of the helpless. And now, in this connection we are informed on reliable authority that bread made in Peterborough is sold in Tweed for 10c a large loaf. This calls for explanation and such explanation cannot come too soon.

Each Assessed $2.

No police court was held yesterday. At 10.15, on arrival of Magistrate Dumble, he was presented with two informations charging a number of local men with having poured out too many libations on the altar of the God of Wine, Baccus. These men were arrested on Monday night, but, after getting them sobered up, the police let them go. On their respective informations they each pleaded guilty, and were assessed $2 apiece.

Twice Bereaved.

W. L. Taylor, piano and real estate agent, Water street, father of the young man formerly on the Review Reportial Staff, who has gone to the war has been informed of a serious accident which befell his brother, Frederick Taylor, of Corning, Cal., and caused the death of his wife. From the information received it appears that at the time of the accident Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were riding in their automobile.

Interesting to Local Farmers

A man of wide experience in sheep-raising has offered the following simple scheme to prevent loss through dogs chasing the flock. If a man has, say forty sheep, he should buy about two dozen small bells, similar to a cow-bell, but smaller, and tie these to the sheep. It is a peculiar thing that a dog will not bother a sheep if it has a bell on its neck, and this is the real solution of this. This man followed the above scheme and kept sheep for twelve years and did not lose one. His neighbors would not follow the advice and three sheep were killed in one night on the next farm.

Fired on an Iceberg.

Yesterday local friends of Mr. Bertie Bayly, of Stauffer, Alta., heard from that former resident of this city. Mr. Bayly has just returned from a trip to England. He came back in the S. S. Manitoba. In his letter he said, in part, "Our ship was equipped with cannons. Daily drill was held and the cannons were aimed at different targets fired at and both hit and destroyed was an iceberg in Mid-Atlantic. Mr. Bayly also said that in London all street lights are out owing to a fear of German Zeppelins. He concluded by saying that "England is going to win and teach the Kaiser that, in this age of civilization that Militarism must be subdued.

Motor Boat Afire.

Belleville Ontario: A sensational motor boat blaze on the Bay of Quinte was the experience which Mr. Robert Sills and Mr. T.W. Dobbie had near Snake Island about three and a half miles down from the city. The left the harbor in the Lafala, a boat belonging to Mr. Sills. When they were in the mid-channel about five o'clock the engine "backfired" and the boat took fire in the vicinity of the engine. Fortunately the fire did not spread rapidly. Messrs. J. Shea, B. J. Black and H. McCaskey were on the bay at the time in a motor boat and assisted in the rescue. Mr. Sills and Mr. Dobbie were taken out of the boat and as there seemed no danger of gas explosion they turned and put out the fire with some buckets of water, but not before g large part of the side near the engine had been burned.

RESTORED TO DEAF

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence" thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread notice throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to produce a stimulous necessary to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

FALLING HAIR MEANS
DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, it strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which is not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Y.M.C.A. Notes

Sunday afternoon the boys' department held their annual Bible study rally, when a large and appreciative audience of boys listened to Mr. H. B. Cowan speak on the Value of Bible Study. Mr. Cowan's talk to the boys will be one that will be long remembered by them and the advice and instruction they received from the address will be a great help to them in the making of the all round man, physically, mentally, and spiritually. There are Bible study groups for the Collegiate, intermediate, business boys and school boys all taught by competent teachers.

This week the boys of the city will have the privilege of seeing the work done by the association for the boys of the city. The rooms will be open from 4 to 6 in the afternoon and 7.30 to 9.00 p.m. in the evening to visitors; all boys of the city will be made welcome and shown through the building by the staff.

The membership campaign is in full swing now and the boys are working for to increase their membership by one hundred by the 1st of November.

ANOTHER MAN ACCUSED IN DIVORCE CASE

New Orleans, Oct. 20.— Sensational charges are made by Jos. B. Castagnos in answer to the divorce suit of Mrs. Laura Richard Castagnos.

The alleged "other man" is named as Wm. Harrell, once in business with Castagnos in Donaldsonville, La., and boarder at the Castagnos home.

Mrs. Castagnos' suit was filed Sept. 26, 1914. She and Castagnos were married at Smoke Bend, La., on May 23, 1893.

Castagnos relates that his wife's friendship for Harrell, beginning five years ago, soon became the gossip of Donaldsonville.

To escape the talk the Castagnos and their four children moved to New Orleans, residing at 4237 Magazine. Castagnos returned to Donaldsonville to look after his business interests.

Castagnos found, he declared, six months later that his wife had again taken Harrell in as a boarder and lodger.

In February, 1914, Castagnos sold out his business in Donaldsonville, moved to New Orleans and here secured employment.

She then abandoned him and rented a house at 2831 Valence, representing to the agent that her husband was dead, removed all of the furniture from the Magazine street residence including Harrell's trunk and clothes, to the new residence, it is charged. The husband adds that he paid the first month's rent for the Valence St. house and the servants on promises of his wife that she would never again have anything to do with Harrel. She violated the promise and he revoked the lease and gave his wife notice to vacate, it is charged.

Another reconcilliation took place, Castagnos returned to Donaldsonville, reopened his business and awaited his wife. Instead she sold their furniture to a secondhand dealer and filed the suit for separation it is charged.

Germans Suffer Severely From Naval Guns And Artillery--Caught in a Trap Were Forced to Retreat In Confusion--Circle of the Allies' Steel Narrows

GERMANS EFFORT TO BREAK THROUGH AT SIX POINTS FAILED

Desperate Attempt to Drive French From Their Alsace-Lorraine Operations--General Situation of Allies Declared to Be Nothing Short of Excellent

"On Tuesday the Germans made another great effort to burst the narrowing circle of steel that is hemming them in. They tried vainly at no fewer than six points to discover a weak spot on the allied front, and the main effort being made at Bassee."

Despite the severe fighting in progress in the north, there is a growing feeling that the real German objective is not the line from Dunkirk east. It is considered certain that the attempt to take Dunkirk will be pushed, and it is admitted at military headquarters that German reinforcements are coming up, but it is also insisted that the German general staff must realize by now that Von Kluck and Von Boehm cannot break thru' the strong allied line. In consequence attention is being paid to the operations of the Germans on their left-centre, against Verdun and the country near St. Menehould.

Another offensive is developing there although the Germans claim that they actually have reduced some of the Verdun forts are emphatically denied by General Gallieni in Paris today. It is believed that this movement is a desperate attempt of the Germans to drive the French from their Alsace Lorraine operations, but if so it can hardly succeed, as plans to meet such a movement have been perfected.

Reports received from the north today say that fierce fighting marked last night in the lightly wooded section of Becelaer, Hooge, and Gheluvelt east of Ypres. The Germans also made an attack in force on the allied line extending from Armentierres to Bailleul and then northwest to Poperinghe, but were repulsed with loss. The main German objective in the north is developing now from Lille, while at the same time attempts are being made to keep the allies holding the lines further south engaged by heavy artillery fire.

The general situation was declared to be excellent.

Germany Was Not Looking For Fight With Britain

New York, Oct. 21.—A London cable to the Tribune says:

British men of science and professors in all branches of learning at the universities have combined to frame a reply to the German professors who recently denounced Great Britain as the instigator of war. This reply sets out painstakingly the evidence of official documents to prove Great Britain's desire for peace. Among the more striking passages are the following.

"One point we freely admit. Germany very likely would have preferred not to fight Great Britain at this moment. She would have preferred to weaken and humiliate Russia, to make Servia a dependent of Austria to render France innocuous, and Belgium subservient, and then, having established an overwhelming advantag? to settle accounts with Great Britain. Her grievance against us is that we did not allow her to do this.

Same Action as in 1870.

"Great Britain, together with France, Russia, Prussia, and Austria, had solemnly guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium. In the preservation of this neutrality our deepest sentiments and our most vital interests are alike involved. Its violation would not only shatter the independence of Belgium itself, but it would undermine the whole basis which renders possible the neutrality of any State, and the very existence of such States, as are much weaker than their neighbors. We acted in 1914 just as we acted in 1670. We sought from both France and Germany assurance that they would respect Belgium neutrali-

Germans Fence Themselves In With Barbed Wire Obstructions

Frantic Effort of the Foe All Along the Line Are Vigorously Repulsed--Gen. Gallieni Denys the Verdun Fort Story--Furious Battle in Belgium and Northern France Thought to Have Now Reached Their Height

Paris, Oct. 21.—The French official communication given out this afternoon says that the attacks yesterday of the enemy on Nieuport, Dixmude, and La Bassee were all repulsed by the allies. The text follows:

"During the day of yesterday the attacks of the enemy were particularly violent at Nieuport, Dixmude, and La Bassee. They all were repulsed by the allied armies with great energy.

"At all other points the situation is without any notable change."

NEW PLAN FOR TAKING LILLE.

The outcome of the battle in the north, according to the judgment of the observers in Paris, still remained undecided this morning.

The furious contest in this part of Belgium and France is regarded here as now having reached its height. The Germans who at first apparently yielded to the offensive of the allies, are now forcing to the maximum the lines of the French and the English. In this they have been assisted by troops from Antwerp and all the other German forces available in Belgium.

The attacks of the allies, which have been accompanied by progress of various points, have been followed always by spirited counter-attacks on the part of the Germans who, in the opinion of the French, are fighting to the limit of their energy. Around Lille and in the thickly populated districts where the lighting has been from house to house, the operations are difficult and progress has been slow, especially in the face of the barbed wire defences put up by the Germans.

The allies, however, apparently are fighting with the greatest ardor and determination to take the important city of Lille, in spite of the extraordinary resistance of the enemy. The barbed wire obstructions have proved a serious obstacle to the allied advance, and numerous means of surmounting them have been considered. It is realized here that it may be necessary to make sacrifices to this end, and it hat been suggested that the men selected for the task be armed, among other things with bucklers such as were used successfully in attacking the notorious automobile bandits of Paris in their refuge in the suburbs of the city.

DR. J. L. GORDON AT ST: PAUL'S

The "Plain Talks" given by Dr. J. L. Gordon, in St. Paul's Church every evening this week, commencing at 7.45, are certainly worth while. They bring home to every one within reach of his magnetic voice and common sense utterances what each one's individual citizenship should in reality consist of. Dr. Gordon's famous oratorical powers are being worthily applied to the betterment of Christian Citizenship, without the sense of denominational revivalism being felt or intended. The distinguished orator is engaged in a sublimely unselfish work in the interests of communities and Canada as a whole, a work which tends to foster the growth of great God-fearing nations in the advancement of intellectual weight and influence in world-wide affairs. Hear Dr. Gordon once, and you want to hear him again, and one cannot listen to his acceptably expressed convictions too often. This is evidenced by the immense audiences which crowd St. Paul's every night. Dr. Gordon may be heard in St. Paul's Church each evening the remainder of this week, and in George street Methodist Church next week; it is a privilege to have him with us and should be taken advantage of by all. Whatever offering is taken up is of a free-will nature.

Dr. Gordon is accompanied by Edward Hesselberg, the eminent Russian pianist, and Albert E. Greenlaw, a vocalist of world-fame talent. Their numbers each night are admirably rendered.

These services each night are under the auspices of the Laymen's Christian Citizenship Campaign, endorsed and managed by a large local Business Men's Committee, who are to be congratulated for the broad and consistent character of their labor for the weal of Peterborough citizenship.

The subject of Dr. Gordon's address tonight will be "Wrecked Homes." Mr. Edouard Hesselberg, the Russian pianist, will play his great Hungarian march for which he has won unstinted praise the world over.

NO ELECTION FOR TWO YEARS

Agitators Give Up Their Plan and Hon. Robt. Rogers is Going West

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—There will be no Federal election this year, and probably not until 1916. Talk of an early appeal to the electorate has ceased and the Government has decided to proceed with its administration until a more favorable opportunity than the present for an appeal. The decision not to hold an election came at a time when it had been almost decided to do so, and it is believed here that strong pressure brought to bear by prominent railroad magnates, business men, and financial interests constituted the casting vote against such a course.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, who was the prime mover in the agitation for an election, left for Toronto last night, and will proceed thence to Winnipeg, where he will busy himself in connection with the establishment of headquarters for the British War Office in connection with its purchasing department. Mr. Rogers would not go away if an election were contemplated.

BISHOP OF KINGSTON AT ST. JOHN'S

Commencing last Tuesday evening, and continuing until Sunday evening next, the Lord Bishop of Kingston, is conducting a series of Mission Services in St. John's Church. On Tuesday evening a large congregation was carried away with his Lordship's simple heart-to-heart talk in which he clearly set forth the claims of spiritual life, which one is apt to lose sight of in the hustle and bustle of material calls. The Bishop of Kingston is a churchman of broad minded principles, whose benign personality is simply irresistible. His kindly visit to Peterborough on this occasion is not only very welcome to Anglicans, but is hailed with pleasure by a large section of the community in general. His second service last night was heartily enjoyed by an appreciative congregation. His Lordship's work amongst us promises to prove gratifyingly effective, and he will always be a welcome sojourner amongst the Anglican community of this city.

NAVAL GUNS BATTERED GERMAN HEAVY GUNS

Paris, Oct. 21.—That important events are developing in the immediate theatre of war was indicated by a sudden tightening of the censorship today.

Reports are current here, and generally credited, that the German attempt to mount their heavy artillery along the coast for offensive operations against the British gunboats which are supporting the extreme left of the allied line, has utterly failed. The guns have been dismounted by wonderfully accurate shooting from the fleet and from the guns of the naval brigade, now in action along the coast.

GREAT EXECUTION BY BRITISH NAVY

London, Oct. 21.—A newspaper correspondent at Dover has sent to London some details of the recent operations of British warships off the coast of Belgium. He says that last Saturday night the ships watched a force of Germans digging trenches along the coast under a flare of light. The enabled the English boats to get the exact range, and at daylight they shelled the enemy's positions heavily. A Taube aeroplane was brought down, and later a Zeppelin, and it is declared that the guns of the British vessels accounted for 1,600 Germans in killed and wounded; in addition to putting six batteries of artillery out of action. In the meantime German submarines tried in vain to sink the British ships.

GERMANS MET BIGGEST SURPRISE OF THE WAR IN THE NORTH OF FRANCE

Caught Between the Fire of Naval Guns and Land Artillery Their Lines Were Mowed Down--One German General Suicides--Germans Thought to be Retreating in Great Confusion

London, Oct. 21.—The correspondents of the London newspapers in the field have succeeded today in getting through some details of the fighting, along the channel coast in Belgium. The reports agree that the enemy have met with a reverse and it is said that the Germans are retreating.

The Belgian correspondent of The Telegraph in his account of the fighting, reports that British warships bombarded villages which the Germans had occupied and also the country to the south of these places.

"Then the order was given for the infantry to advance," he says, "and the rattle of machine guns supplemented the noise of the naval guns. The Germans were caught between two fires and their line began to waver and slowly gave way before the pressure of the infantry.

"The strength of the attack was then increased and soon the whole German line resting on the coast was in full retreat."

In a despatch from Flushing, sent at one o'clock this morning, the correspondent of the Daily Mail declares that the Germans appear to have been driven back in an engagement at Middelkerke, six miles southwest of Ostend. He says that cannon has now been placed near Ostend and adds that most of the German wounded had been removed from Bruges.

The Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent under date of Tuesday night, says that according to a German message, a fierce battle is still raging between Furnes and Dunkirk. He continues:

"On the march on Dunkirk the Germans met a large and unexpected body of troops which attacked them: horse, foot, and artillery, while the British warships co-operated with the land forces. The Germans are reported as falling back in confusion on Ostend and troops from all over the rest of Belgium have been hurried to Nieuport.

"The Germans have received the greatest surprise of the war. A despatch from Ghent says that the result of this fighting has caused anxiety among the German officers, one of whom, a German general, committed suicide. Festivities announced to celebrate German successes were suddenly cancelled yesterday."

City's Board Of Works In Regular Weekly Session

The City's Board of Works met in business session last night, Chairman Ald. Duncan presiding. There were also present Mayor Buller, Aldermen Walter Green, Johnston, McIntyre, and Saunders.

A petition from Dr. Parks and residents on Aylmer Street north for a sewer was referred to the city engineer for report on practicability of the work. An engineering problem seems to dominate the scene.

A petition from George Edmison for sewer connection with his proposed new buildings fronting Rubidge Street between Brock and Murray, also went to the engineer.

The sidewalk in front of Dr. Greer's property on Aylmer St. will be repaired. The walk has been heaved up by the trees.

One motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre other spots in the city where portions of the sidewalk are is of unequal height will be attended.

Street Commissioner Evans was granted two weeks holidays in November.

W. Fitzgerald was granted a crossing opposite his house on Smith St.

I. Honcorn's application for the foremanship of Park Street sewer went to the engineer and chairman.

On advice from legal consultation, it appears that the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. has to erect poles where necessary for conveying feed wires for street car purposes, under the terms of their franchise.

His Worship explained that the system now being used in our street paving—, the laying of a coating of tarred pebbles on top of the concrete before top-dressing — offers improved binding qualities for the asphalt surface over the work done last year. This additional coating is being laid at the contractors' expense.

War Reveals Waste of Food

Apprehensive over food shortage, the London press is advising the English people to save and utilize every article of food value, including the bran coating of grain.

WHY? The outer coat of grain holds the precious mineral elements which mean so much in vital building and up-keep of body, brain and nerves. And yet the modern miller throws out about four-fifths of these priceless food elements just to make the flour look white and pretty!

Isn't it astounding that it took war to wake people up to such a fearful waste!

Nearly twenty years ago the crying need of a food which would fill the lack caused by demineralized white flour products led to the making of —a wonderfully nourishing and appetising food, containing all the nutriment of wheat and barley, including the vital mineral elements, just as nature designed them for our use.

Grape-Nuts

Discovery in Potatoes

Three French scientists, Dr. Sartory, M. M. Gradist, and M. Thiebert, announced successful results of their experiments to restore the constitution of the potato. They discovered that edible tubers can be obtained from potato seeds with the aid of a certain microscopic ground mushroom, which fastens to the roots and causes tuberization desired.

Experiments produced potatoes free from disease, and savants assert the regeneration of the potato is now assured. Important economic results are expected.

How Musicians Are Produced

Great composers and muscians have always sprung from people who had a folk music. In Germany, in Italy, in France, in Hungary, it has been so. Long ago, when the common people of England were instinctively musical, England produced the greatest songs and the greatest composers. When England began to get its musicians, and to take her musical standards from the Continent, the popular music was shamed out of existence, and the race of English musicians died the death.

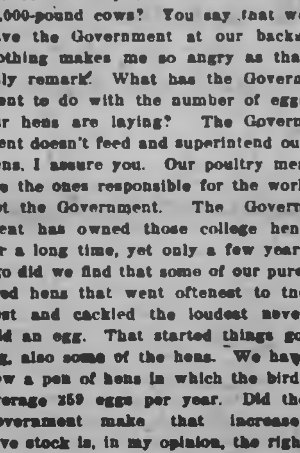
COMMON SENSE TALK ABOUT AGRICULTURE

Dr. Creelman Said That Rural Schools Were Not Close Enough to Farm Interests

Dr. Creelman, President of the Agricultural College, Guelph, in the course of an address on the attitude of agriculture to the rural school said in part:

"Our educational system is a good one. Is it too good? Is it so perfect that they are afraid to break in anywhere with changes that our times and conditions demand?" The speaker went on to describe his own public school days, how he had attended school for years without securing any knowledge of vital import. "I spent seven years," he said, "learning about the battle of Hastings in 1066, and a lot of other trash. I was taught a little sing-song about the relative pronoun, which I know yet, word for word. What good is it to me? Listen"—closing his eyes, with the easy nonchalance of a boy "hacking his book," the President recited at express speed the old ditty about the rivers of Europe as we all learned it. Through the full gamut he ran it, from Petchora back to Ural, taking in everything but the minor tributaries. "There—I know it still," he exclaimed. "I can't get rid of it. All that trash is taking up space in my brain that should be filled with something of value to me. And that's the stuff I was taught. I was not taught a thing that was of much use to me till I went to college. Make every girl going out to teach a rural school possess a training in the principles of agriculture. Send her to the Agricultural College? Yes. Why not? What else? She has no right to teach a rural school without the training she would secure at such a college."

"Does every farmer in this hall weigh and test the milk yields of his cows?" he asked. "If not, how do you know whether you are making or losing money? The time has gone by when an ordinary careful farmer can go ahead without testing. The farmer who goes by guess is a guess-farmer, and should not be allowed to keep good cows. Go to work! It is possible for us farmers to get a start now such as we never got before in the history of the Province. The average cow—the average, mind you—in Ontario gives less than 4,000 pounds of milk per year. What about the poor cows; where do they stand? Compare that with one of our cows at the O.A.C. which gives over 20,000 pounds of milk each year. Let us quit talking about the high cost of living and look to the performance of our cows. Why are there not more 20,000-pound cows? You say that we have the Government at our backs. Nothing makes me so angry as that silly remark. What has the Government to do with the number of eggs our hens are laying? The Government doesn't feed and superintend our hens, I assure you. Our poultry men are the ones responsible for the work not the Government. The Government has owned those college hens for a long time, yet only a few years ago did we find that some of our pure-bred hens that went oftenest to the nest and cackled the loudest never laid an egg. That started things going, also some of the hens. We have now a pen of hens in which the birds average 259 eggs per year. Did the Government make that increase? Live stock is, in my opinion, the right arm of agriculture, and live stock is coming into its own."



REV. DR. JUDSON

Dr. Edward Judson who has spent most of his life on Oriental mission fields, has found a new way to interest the heathen in religion. He is going to tell the story of the gospel on the screen. Some pictures will be used to instruct the pagan and others will inform civilized nations how the pagan lives at home.

Sheep as Warming-pans

The high temperature of birds enables them to resist cold more effectually than they could otherwise do. Whereas blood-heat in man is 98 degrees Fahr., it is 107 degrees in the domestic fowl, and more in some other birds. Nevertheless, they feel the cold very much, and display a remarkable amount of ingenuity in finding means to warm themselves. A farmer in the uplands of Lanarkshire one winter observed a number of chaffinches entering an outhouse where bullocks were stalled. He went in and found them nestling in the straw against the flanks of the reposing beasts. Birds are fond of using sheep as warming-pans, regardless of the risk attendant.

THE PINCH HITTER MUST WATCH BALL

Ham Hyatt, One of the Most Famous Exponents, Never Hits at First Ball

"It's just a case of hit or miss. To-day you do. To-morrow you don't."

Ham Hyatt thus sizes up the art of pinch hitting. Nearly always he makes good; sometimes he fails. Occasionally he strikes out—but not often. By some baseball followers Ham is hailed as the greatest pinch hitter in the world. The Pittsburg club carried the great norther-westerner for his pinch hitting alone. With muscles like steel and nerve as cool as an iceberg, together with the eye and the knack of hitting, Ham was a big asset to the club.

Time and again the big fellow delivered the punch that won for the Pirates. A few times he failed, but not even Hyatt can always hit the ball out of the lot.

Meet Ball Squarely

"It is all in meeting a ball squarely," said Ham when asked to discuss the art of batting. "You may hit a ball ever so hard, but if you have taken your eye off it and not hit it fairly it matters not how hard you swing. It will not travel."

Ham was asked why he invariably lets the first ball go by in a pinch without offering at it.

"Well, now, do you think that is a fair question?" laughed Ham. "If I answer that don't you think I will be tipping my hand to the pitchers?" After a little urging he undertook to explain the point. "I pass up the first one," he said, "and so do most hitters, to see what the pitcher has. By that I mean that I try to judge his speed if it is a fast ball and to see his curve if it is a curve. As I only get to bat in pinches I can't tell just what the pitcher has. I can't judge a pitcher's speed from the bench, nor can folks in the grand stand. You must be at the plate to look 'em over to get a line on them.

Learning His Lesson

"When I was with Kansas City I was hitting well above the .300, and they told me that if I would quit hitting at the first ball I would be even better. The manager remarked once that I was better with a strike or two against me than by cracking at the first one, which often resulted in my popping out or grounding out. I followed his advice and learned from him that it was a lot better to look one or two over so that I could judge the speed and the break of the pitcher's curve and time my swing better. It improved my hitting." Asked about his first appearance as a pinch hitter, Ham replied:

"Oh, it was over in Cincinnati one day in 1909, if I remember correctly, I had never been in a big league game, nor had I acted as a pinch hitter in the minors, where they played me regularly. I forget who I batted for that day, but I think it was one of the pitchers. I got a three-base hit and we won the game. From that time on "Cap" Clarke gave me lots of chances."

FORESTRY FACTS

Many engineers, well acquainted with the use of steel and concrete, have little knowledge of the advantages possessed by wood for certain kinds of structural work. This lack of knowledge is due to the lack of reliable tables showing the mechanical properties of various Canadian woods. To remedy this want, the Forest Products Laboratories at McGill University, will conduct a series of elaborate tests which will establish the strength of these woods, and make available for structural purposes many tree species whose value for this work is at present doubtful.

Quarrymen in France split enormous blocks of stone by inserting wooden pins in small holes along the proposed line of cleavage and then soaking the pins with water.

The word "forest" was originally derived from the old High German word "Voorst," and, in the middle ages, meant a large tract of land, not necessarily wooded, on which the right to hunt was reserved to the king.

Recent forest surveys conducted by the Dominion Forestry Branch in the wooded region lying to the north of Edmonton in Alberta indicate that very large areas of valuable timber have been destroyed by forest fire within the last twenty-five years. Reproduction is good, however, and the possibilities of the rough, sandy region as a timber producer are indicated by the fact that in the few mature stands remaining white spruce attains a diameter of thirty-six inches, lodgepole pine twenty inches, aspen poplar fifteen inches and paper birch twelve inches.

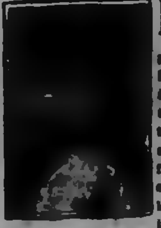
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 106.

Mary's "Jewel" Memory.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

I TELEPHONED the police, and that night's papers reported the loss in full. Incidentally, it warned the women of the town again to demand credentials from alluring strangers, particularly men purporting to come from water, gas and telephone companies. No matter how frequently this warning goes forth, however, there are always some foolish, little women who fall for a good-looking scoundrel with an engaging line of talk.

Why is it that a woman seems to retain her trustfulness so much longer than a man? No matter what terrific jolts she may have she rises from the ashes full of serene confidence again in mankind. Only the woman whose life has badly burned gives up that charitable confidence that seems to be the very essence of a woman's nature. And I don't know which I like better, the woman whose trustfulness traps her into impulsive mistakes occasionally, or the utterly sophisticated creature armored against every trivial mishap by a calloused cynicism.

To be sure, with some women that delightful air of trustfulness is a cloak veiling utter sophistication, and with others an air of complete sophistication merely disguises a childish trustfulness of which they are ashamed, but taking it all in all, women do retain their trust longer than men, and in the face of innumerable things likely to destroy it.

"If I can't have my things duplicated exactly," said Mary, when we were talking the situation over, "then I don't want them at all."

"It will be pretty difficult to duplicate them exactly," I hinted. "Besides, neither of us is likely to remember——"

"Oh, yes," said Mary positively, "I can remember even to the tiniest twist in a scroll."

And she did remember.

We quarrelled some with the insurance people, and pored over jewelry pictures until I began to dream I was a jeweller's apprentice, but in the end Mary came through with bells on and the jewelry was duplicated exactly.

"What a memory you have," I said to her in a sudden spasm of envy. "I couldn't possibly remember the exact pattern of a brooch or how many pearls were in it."

"That's queer," said Mary, "for I really haven't such a wonderful memory. Look how I used to forget to order matches. I can just seem to remember things to wear."

It's true. Have you ever noticed what marvellous memories women do have for dress details? They can look casually at another woman and absorb enough details to dazzle a memory expert—the kind of lace, how it was arranged, material, cut, buttons, every tiny twist of style will be indelibly stamped on the memory by a glance.

What a pity that such a moment of complete concentration can't be repeated in a worthier cause. Mary could remember the most intricate twists of jewelry patterns, yet she can't remember anything she reads. Sometimes when I ask her the news of a paper she has just laid aside she gives me such a catalogue of inaccuracies that I straightway consult the news sheet myself, appalled at the peculiar things that have been happening. I find she's always wrong. She has an impressionistic faculty with headlines and can distort them at a single glance.

"This," I said to Mary, in the presence of one of the insurance men, "this is a tremendous sermon to you, little lady, not to let a good-looking scoundrel get into the flat again unless he presents proper credentials."

"This," said the burglar insurance man with an eye to business, "is a tremendous argument, Mr. Hunt, for burglar insurance."

Beauty Found in Comfort

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

LUCREZIA BORI

SUMMER beauty depends largely upon physical comfort and mental calm. If you are clad in unsuitably warm clothing with tight stays and heavy, dragging skirts, and if your stomach is overcrowded with rich and indigestible foods, you need not expect to have good looks. It is only a waste of time to pursue beauty until you have captured comfort.

The bath is the first element of hot weather comfort. Every one should take two baths a day, and an extra cooling sponge will do no harm if there is time and opportunity for it. The morning bath should be either a tub, shower or sponge in cool water, to which has been added some sea salt or borax or bicarbonate of soda. This will allay the irritation of the skin which frequently comes with excessive heat. Also after the bath, if the body is sponged with diluted alcohol or lavender water or cologne it will add to one's comfort. The night bath may be taken immediately before retiring, or before dinner after the day's work is over. This will be the time when it will give greatest benefit.

If there is a tendency to insomnia or headache caused by the heat, a cloth wrung from ice water and laid on the back of the neck will often quiet the nerves and bring sleep.

Bathing the back of the neck and back of the ears with hot water when the work of the day is over will rest one as much as a nap.

Clean clothing is another summer necessity. All undergarments should be put on fresh and clean each day. If you feel that you cannot afford laundry expenses then wear simple undergarments which you can wash yourself. Plain cleanliness is to be chosen in preference to mussy stylishness. Knitted undervests and crepe combinations are as easily washed as a handkerchief and require no ironing.

For a sponge bath, try a lotion made of an ounce of tincture of camphor and half an ounce of tincture of benzoin mixed with two ounces of cologne. Add just enough to the basin of water to make it fragrant and milky.

Mme. Bernhardt and other celebrated beauties have used a simple rubdown lotion for years with great satisfaction. To make it, put a pint of alcohol into a quart bottle and dissolve an ounce of camphor gum and two tablespoonfuls of salt in it and fill the bottle with water. Shake well, and it is ready for use. Just before retiring it will cool and soothe the body and make sleep possible and pleasant.

Rid your mind of worry. Don't smile superciliously and say: "That is easy to say, but how about doing it?" If you mean do I worry, I can answer with emphasis: "I do not, never did and never will!" Worry never does anything more useful than make wrinkles. It's a lot harder to do than work. It has nothing in common with beauty, either of face or of mind.

Eat simple foods, fruits, salads and vegetables, meat not more than once a day, and heavy rich gravies and pastries not at all. Forget to nibble candy.

Keep your excretory organs active. I will give you the rule for making fig paste which is harmless, palatable and efficient.

Half a pound each of raisins and figs chopped fine with an ounce of senna leaves. Put in a stew pan with half a pound of sugar and half a pint of water and simmer slowly for half an hour. Pour into a pan and when cool cut into inch squares. Take one at bedtime.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am 17 years of age. I have a young gentleman friend I love very much, and I know he loves me. Yet when he promises me he will come and spend an evening with me, very often he disappoints me. He is in the habit of getting intoxicated when he is with other boys and forgets me. It's the only fault he has. He never goes with any other girl, and has promised me to quit drinking. Should I depend on him or not? T. F. R.

THE promise of a beggar and the word of a drunkard—they are of the same piece of goods.

How romantic it seems to you to be in love with a young man who is "dissipated," and how stupid and sordid and commonplace all his "dissipation" really is! There's nothing romantic about getting drunk. Any one can do that, and any one who does do it is the last person in the world to trust or to lean upon.

Marry a thief, put your trust in a gambler, tear your heart out of your breast and give it to a careless child for a plaything, but do not fall in love with a drunkard, or let a drunkard make you believe that he is in love with you. He isn't in love with anyone but himself and his own self-indulgence.

Get a sweetheart who can stay sober, little girl, and let the man who drinks go by on the other side.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

HOW to "CHECK UP" on PERSONALITY

Rene Detling.
New Prima Donna of "Sari."

Did You Ever Seriously Try Renovating Your Habits?

By ELEANOR AMES

WHEN cleaning house and looking over last year's wardrobe, did it ever occur to you to renovate your personality? To sit down without any undue partiality in your judgment and look yourself squarely in the face? To take inventory of what characteristics are splendid and fine and worth while, to examine what are pretty shabby and out-of-date and unpresentable, and what are utterly hopeless and not worth keeping? Did you ever start such a renovation?

No? Well—a good many of us have, in a sort of desultory way, but also a good many of us have found it extremely difficult to keep that detached judgment. We have failed in impartiality, and tried to patch up old worn-out habits, and the result has not been satisfactory. Still, maybe the time spent in taking inventory was not wholly wasted.

Rene Detling, who is one of those rare individuals, the American-trained-and-proud-of-it prima donna—and, still rarer, an American prima donna who has never had to hunt for a job—says it is the surest way to progress. Also she says progress is the best word a woman can put in her daily lexicon. Unless you think progress, work toward progress, and are determined to progress (change the pronounciation to suit the occasion) you will never get anywhere. Which I contend is perfectly good logic.

Miss Detling is so on tip-toe to get ahead in the world, to make the most of every ounce of talent in her make-up, to learn everything she can about her art, and all other useful arts, that she seems to be charged with electricity and to have solved the problem of perpetual motion as applied to endeavor.

"System," she explains, when you marvel at all her daily accomplishments. "Simple system. I have my days mapped out before they start and then I work straight ahead.

"I fight shy of side-tracks and switch-backs, unless they mean more progress in the future. Of course, there are times when one sees that 'the longest way 'round is the shortest way home,' but, generally, 'as the crow flies' is the best path.

"Don't fritter away your time. Did you ever stand talking with a friend until you had lost a train, or missed an appointment? Then when you were left, did you ever stop and think what there was worth while in that talk that repaid you for the loss? Did you ever think that when you let a person waste your time you are letting, aiding and abetting him in wasting his own time as well?

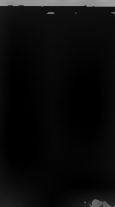
"But we were talking about renovations. There are a whole lot of little characteristics and habits in the personalities of most of us that we could very well spare. We don't, if we are wise, keep a lot of old clothes about us as incubators for moths. We know the moths will spread and eat up our good clothes. We don't save useless articles of any kind. We clear them out and make room for worth while objects. Yet we go on year after year carting around a lot of foolish ideas, stupid habits, grouches and memories that are no good to us and are crowding the good things out of our natures.

"That's what I mean by personality renovation. I have had several such cleaning times. And I expect to have several more. Each time I find there is less trash to get rid of. Perhaps, by and by, there will be so little I shall feel jubilant. But I shall never fear there will be no need for the cleaning. When a personality gets beyond the need of renovation it is beyond this earth.

"The first bit of renovation to do is to chase out the gloom. Let in the sunlight of happiness. Germs don't like sunshine. Gloom germs have too firm a grip in too many natures. Light your personality with good-will and kindness. That's a good place to start the renovation, and go on with the story."

Flounces Are the Summer Mode

By MADGE MARVEL



IT is perfectly permissible to call the average young woman of the moment a "flouncing miss," quite in the wording of the stories of some 50 years ago.

The term applies to her dress more than her manner, although when one is literally flounced from head to toe, with a flounced sunshade fluttering overhead, she takes upon herself something of the flouncing manner of walk.

The flounce motif is strong in the summer modes and growing stronger. In most cases it has skilfully avoided finishing the skirt and thus distorting the chic narrowness of hem which so pleasingly accentuates the flounciness of the tunic above.

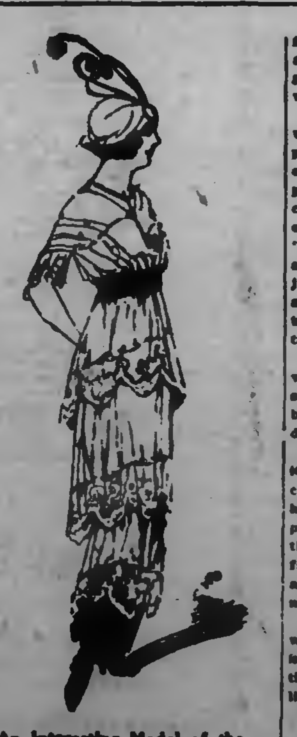
They may be arranged about the knees of the frock in a group of three, giving the exact fulness at the exact point where it is needed to make the latest silhouette. And one of the desirable elements of the flounce is that one may be very exact about it. It may be just the least bit full or very full. It may be any depth one chooses. It may even be so deep it forms the entire tunic, or so narrow that it becomes a ruffle and is repeated to cover the desired space.

The flounce belongs essentially to the flimsy fabrics of which summertime clothes are made. It may be developed in any of them, or in embroidery or silk or chiffon or net or lace.



An Interesting Model of the Flounced Frock.

As for lace, it was never so much used and there were never so bewilderingly many laces displayed. Even the lace authorities are puzzled to classify them adequately, but they lose nothing in charm because they defy cataloguing.

The skirt formed of deep triple flounces is one of the popular models of the summer and lends itself to any soft fabric, and is becoming to almost any age. Likewise it is suitable for the gown for morning, afternoon or evening wear.

Consider the frock shown. The model was introduced months ago by an importer who claims that the term "exclusive" applies to every one of his importations. This flounced frock has been copied far and wide. One meets it at every turn in the day. It is surely not "exclusive." But—the significant fact about it is that the original importer is just as stanch in his friendship for it as on that day when he first showed it to women who pooh-poohed the idea of the flounced skirt gaining any headway.

I have seen it developed for morning wear in bordered linens, each flounce showing the border, and the underskirt being of plain linen or of the border, draped close about the feet.

For the afternoon gown I have seen it in dozens of voiles, printed cotton chiffons, taffetas. For evening wear I have noticed it in lace with the under portion black charmeuse or dark blue or the new golden browns which are so fashionable just now. And it was never anything but attractive, and I have never tired of it.

For evening wear in the summer time white lace made in this style is charming and practical. For afternoon wear the embroideries and embroidered muslins and nets are fascinating.

It is literally a style for everybody.

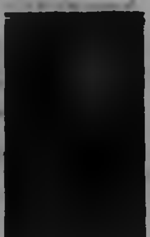
To hark back to the reference to brown, it will grow in importance as the season advances. It appears in the most desirable creations in linen, voile, chiffon, taffeta, satin crepe and in a variety of shades. There is a brown to suit almost every type of wearer. In using lace with brown, unless it is very fine, it is wiser to choose that which has the cream or ivory tint than the dead white.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Exercise Is Needed to Aid Proper Digestion

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

EXERCISE comes from a Latin root, which means "to drive out of the ark, to work." Possibly this comes down to us from the days of the flood.

No doubt Noah, as soon as the waters settled, drove his lazy creatures, pent up in those close quarters for forty days and nights, out into the moist world to work and bring forth fruit.

To choke up your days with barbarous ignorance and deny your life the rich advantage of good exercise is to stale the flesh and muss up the digestion; to devenovate the muscles and rust the cerebral edge. To be strong of thought and firm of body, to eat like a lion and digest like an ostrich, well disciplined exercises, which teach to dare and to do, are eternally necessary.

Patience may be a makeshift for exercise for ascetics and saints. There may be other ways to acquire fortitude. Yet good digestion waits more on muscular dexterity than on appetite. Forsooth, the last, a falsely worshipped idol, depends upon physical agility.

What Exercise Does.

The stomach, as well as the other engaged links of the alimentary canal, not to forget the liver, are influenced by every little mechanical movement of your musculature.

Even singing is a form of "strong pull, long pull, and a muscular pull altogether," which sends the lackadaisical debris of your diet sizzling through the gastric sieve.

Piano practice, the exercise of discretion, and the practice of prayer are really what the word signifies, to wit, the use of muscle spasms, even though they be less manifest, or, in a fashion suppressed.

When your liver becomes clogged with victualary clinkers, when the oven of your bread portfolio is saturated with rations, then it behooves you to be up and doing, to bestir your internal mechanism to the utmost.

Your stomach as well as its beginnings and its end is more or less like an inner tire with bulgings here and there, twists and turns, kinks and gyrations. In lieu, however, of rubber, this inner human hose is made of muscle fabric. Thus it is as elastic and decidedly more mechanical in adaptability than garden hose.

To exercise moderately your anatomy at tennis as the wind tries strong trees; to pose and bend, to assume first this posture and then that; to maintain, even when unduly fatigued, the rigid position of a martinet, is to bounce the most mephitic, noxious, uncongenial fodder along the muscled oesophagus and intestines.

The Prophet's Word.

Moses foreknew all this with prophetic sagacity. And also in the New Testament you are told: "Strong meat belongeth to them that are of age,—especially those who, by reason of exertion, have their senses exercised."

Note what Bobby Burns wrote in his "Grace Before Meat":

Some hae meat and canna eat, and some would eat that want it:
But we hae meat, and we can eat, sae let the Lord be thankit.

He shows a poet's insight, and speaks for all to see the divine afflatus which teaches more physiological knowledge than most medical schools.

Here it is correctly set down that unlike toil and hard work, sedentary occupations—which includes all who merely walk and run up and downstairs—preclude your breadbasket's proper powers and capacity to completely digest what you eat.

If you do not labor by the sweat of your brow, even though you eat less, you must exercise more.

Three Minute Journeys

WHERE WICKER ALLIGATORS ARE ORACLES

By Temple Manning

IN the interior of Papua, designated in any [illegible] made before 1906 as British New Guinea, I came upon the strangest temple I have ever visited.

To comprehend the weird religion of Papua it must be borne in mind that its essentials are witchcraft and cannibalism, and that the alligator is the titular deity. The alligator idea predominates so much in the art and religion of the land that I saw [illegible] that the great temple raising [illegible] to 60 feet, through successive [illegible] was built to convey the idea of an alligator with huge open jaws, crouching [illegible] the river bank. Words are impossible with which to describe the shape; there is nothing in all architecture, or "Dubu" as it is called, with which to liken it. In length it is quite 200 feet, but the great height of the front tapers off rapidly.

From the muddy bank we crossed a single log to the rickety platform before the "Dubu." The natives, dark and sullen, clothed in beast-faced masks and paint, gave way grudgingly. We entered into a murky darkness, and, when my eyes grew accustomed, I found myself in one of the four great rooms of the "Dubu."

Each one of these rooms contained precisely the same objects, great carved war shields, pig jaws strung together, alligator skulls, with grinning teeth, and human skulls, old and new. But the treasures grew richer as we advanced into the interior. The effect seemed to be to lead up to some great treasure in the centre. And, as we advanced, the natives began to leave us. They seemed to grow afraid. One only remained, an intelligent fellow, who was the priest. He followed us to the final treasure house.

Five monstrous figures made of wicker work stood before us. More than anything else they looked like alligators, nine feet long, with gaping open mouths and red staring eyes. They had legs of wicker work, the two front ones longer than the back two. The priest grinned, and told us that these figures are used as oracles, being consulted as to what luck may be expected on hunting expeditions.

They are supposed to reply by tilting themselves about on their wooden feet. If a pig is caught it is presented to the idols before it is disjointed. Exactly what the idol does then I cannot say. Our guide, the priest, suddenly refused to talk. But I noticed that there is plenty of room inside the idols for the body of a man.

ORIGIN of COMMON THINGS

Several theories are offered to account for the origin of the dollar mark. One declares that it comes from the letters U. S., which were placed on the federal currency, and in the hurry of writing were run together, the S being placed over the U. A more probable explanation is that it is a modification of the figure 8, and denoted a piece of 8 reals, or $1.

The original blue stocking was a man named Stillingfleet. In 1781 there arose a fashion in London of literary assemblies of ladies who met to hear a lecture from a literary character and afterwards participated in general conversation. Stillingfleet, a leading lecturer, wore blue stockings, and so gave a designation to the assemblies.

The word humbug is of Irish origin, and means soft copper, or worthless money. It was originally applied to the money issued by James II. at the Dublin mint. It was made of lead, copper, brass, pewter or any other metal he found available, and soon became known among the people as uimbog, or humbug.

The first forgery of a Bank of England note was executed by a man who was anxious to make a good impression on his sweetheart. He forged 20 of the notes and placed them in her hands as proof of his wealth. No attempt was made to pass them, but the forgery was discovered and he was hanged. His name was Vaughn, and his execution took place in 1758.

The condition of root crops at September 30 is for all Canada about equal to last year, being 75 p.c. of a standard on full crop for potatoes, 75 p.c. for turnips, 80 p.c. [illegible] below the excellent record of last year, the averages this year being reduced by the prolonged [illegible] in the Northwest provinces. In these provinces the points by the quality of wheat, oats and barley range from 48 for barley in Saskatchewan to 78 for spring wheat in Alberta.

In the Maritime provinces both the yield and quality of the grain crops etc., is for the whole of Canada as follows: Wheat 72, oats 79, barley 78, rye 82, peas 75, beans 80, buckwheat 82, mixed grains 80, flax 84 and corn for husking 80. For wheat, barley and oats the figures per cent [illegible]

The total yields for Canada of the principal grain crops in bushels are as follows: Wheat 158,223,000, oats 311,426,000, barley 34,401,000, rye 2,256,000, peas 3,587,100, beans 822,400, buckwheat 9,150,000, flaxseed 7,522,000, mixed grains 16,456,000 and corn for husking 14,[illegible],000.

The average quality of the grain crops at harvest time, measured upon a percentage basis—100 representing grain well headed, well filled, well saved and unaffected to any appreciable extent by frost, rust, smut, average yields per acre being about the same as then estimated for wheat, but being somewhat less for oats, barley and flax.

A bulletin issued by the Census and Statistics Office at Ottawa gives provisional estimates of the yield and quality of the principal Canadian grain crops, and also the condition of root and fodder crops, as compiled from reports of correspondents made on September 30.

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—A session of Parliament, to be summoned early in November is the expectation today in political circles, although there is no official confirmation and Cabinet Ministers say the question is undecided.

It is the general belief, though, that the House will be called to meet as early as possible next month. The Government will ask for endorsement of the advanced war policy announced by Sir Robert Borden and for the funds necessary to equip, train and mobilize some thirty thousand men. Fifty million dollars were voted at the emergency session of Parliament, but more will likely be needed to carry the war proposals of the Government through to the end of the fiscal year.

A man of wide experience in sheep-raising has offered the following simple scheme to prevent loss through dogs chasing the flock. If a man has, say forty sheep, he should buy about two dozen small bells, similar to a cow-bell, but smaller, and tie them to the sheep. It is a peculiar thing that a dog will not bother a sheep if it has a bell on its neck, and this is the real solution of this.

Germans in South Africa

In an interview with the press, Lord Gladstone places but insignificant importance upon Germany's attempt to raise a revolt in South Africa against the British Empire. The revolt started, he says, in that British Dominion by Colonel Maritz, in co-operation with Germans from adjoining German colonies. His views are particularly important since they add further color to the widely-held opinion that Germany's preparation for the war included a world-wide plot involving the British Empire in every part.

Lord Gladstone states that, early in the present year, the Germans began importing large quantities of war material into their African possessions. Already, there were railways leading into the Union territory. At the outbreak of war, therefore, the Germans in Africa were ready for it, and at once invaded British territory. Lord Gladstone believes that they counted upon Dutch co-operation, but ridicules the possibility of this, since the Dutch are overwhelmingly loyal. Even at the worst, if they were not, he says, the experiences they have had with German rule have left them with a distinct aversion to it as compared with British rule—which, being autonomous Government, is simply their own rule called by another name.

American People Turn to England

Dr. Chas. W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, enjoying the compliment of being the first (unofficial) citizen of the United States, in an address at Boston last week said :—

> "The American people will be true to its debt to England and France, and although we hope that the time will never come when they will turn to the United States, yet we must not forget the debt we owe them."

Men like Dr. Eliot voice the sentiment of the people, and his sympathies, in this big war are unquestionably with the Allies in their stupendous struggle against the "mailed fist," and all which that implies.

Apart from any debt to England and France recognised by the United States, there remains a moral obligation assumed by all nations who accept Christian principles as the foundation upon which advanced civilization and humane conduct, both individually and nationally, shall rest. The United States made war against Spain, in protest against oppression of the weak by the strong; she proclaims her Monroe Doctrine to assure the independence in the Americas of existing States. And now she must decide if she can consistently remain a passive observer of the deliberate violation of international treaties, and barbaric and savage treatment of an inoffending Christian nation.

In this connection the Montreal Mail says:

"The United States occupies a position of "splendid isolation" in world politics by reason of the Monroe Doctrine. In so far, therefore, as this particular "scrap of paper" is of value, the United States is able to abstain from European quarrels and keep European nations from taking possessions of territory in the New World. It follows that Germany's deliberate and cynical violation of the neutrality of Belgium served notice on the United States that the Monroe Doctrine was but a "scrap of paper." Again and again, Theodore Roosevelt, while refusing to give an opinion as to the merits of the case in this war, has virtually sided against Germany by pointing to her violation of Belgium's neutrality as an indication of Germany's adoption of the policy that might be right. Roosevelt speaks in time, because of late years, the dominant political policy in the United States has been one of small armament increases, and no serious difference on this question, as has existed between the two parties in this country and in Great Britain, has arisen in the United States. That international honor was high enough to grant respect for the Monroe Doctrine has been the dominant opinion in the country. Thus large navy and army increases have been relegated to the background. This war has changed all that, but the disillusionment will be more alarming if Germany should be victorious. The time for the "scrapping" of the Monroe Doctrine would be brought nearer. Apart, therefore, from her natural sympathy with democracies fighting a bureaucracy and a reactionary monarchy, the United States has a vital national concern in the result of the war. The extreme view taken by Dr. Eliot suggests a changing of popular sentiment which, in certain eventualities, might mean American participation for the help of Germany's enemies.

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment

Mothers Will Find Nothing So Speedily and Reliable as Old-Time "Nerviline"

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by internal dosing, when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WON'T fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have warded off perhaps a cold, or grippe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for preventing colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—you simply can't beat it. Try it for earache, toothache, neuralgia sciatica, lame back, rheumatism, or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles, Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers anywhere sell Nerviline.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking.

BERLIN PAPER BLAMES HOLLWEG FOR THE WAR

Is Backing Down From its Extreme Aggressive Policy Against British Empire Overseas Troops Worry the Journal

Copenhagen, Oct. 21.— The military correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt hints that ther is a certain amount of anxiety about the situation manifesting itself in Germany. He explains, though, that a decision is likely to come "like a thief in the night" and that it will more probably be on the east front rather than in the west.

"While fresh masses of troops can be brought without hindrance overseas," he says, "they constitute an awkward adversary. Although the unity of their handling if they invaded Germany—is to be doubted, Germany has still a somewhat hard task which must be not forgotten in waiting for the decision."

Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg, the "scrap of paper" man, is, according to the Tageblatt, being attacked in fluential circles as responsible for the war.

NEW ACQUISITION TO CITY COUNCIL

The election of Mr. Archibald Weir by East City residents as their representative on the aldermanic board in place of Alderman Anderson, resigned, by a mayority of ten votes over his opponent, Mr. G.L. Hay, brings to the City Council twelve years' municipal experience on the township council of Otonabee. Mr. Weir is a member of the coal and wood firm, Weir and McCarthy, and will bring to his civic responsibilities vigorous business ability.

ty. In 1870 both powers assured us of their good intentions and both kept their promises. In 1914 France gave immediately—on July 31— the required assurance. Germany refused to answer.

"When after this sinister silence Germany proceeded to break under our eyes the treaty which we and she had both signed, evidently expecting Great Britain to be her timid accomplice, then even to the most peace-loving Englishmen hesitation became impossible. Belgium had appealed to Great Britain to keep her word and she kept it.

"The German professors appear to think that Germany has in this matter some considerable body of sympathisers in the universities of Great Britain. They are gravely mistaken. Never within our lifetime has this country been so united on any great political issue. We ourselves have real and deep admiration for German scholarship and science. We have many ties with Germany, ties of comradeship, of respect and of affection.

"We grieve profoundly that under the baleful influence of a military system and its lawless dreams of conquest, she whom we once honored, now stands revealed as the common enemy of Europe and of all peoples which respect the laws of nations. We must carry on the war on which we have entered for us as well as for Belgium. It is a war of defense, waged for liberty and peace."

The manifesto has about 130 signatures, including those of the most famous men of learning in England."

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

PRESERVING TOOLS

Hints That Every Farmer and Mechanic Should Know

Some general directions for the care and preservation of tools will not be out of place, as even the best tools become useless if they are not cared for. The following hints will no doubt be appreciated by every mechanic who desires to make his tools last as long as possible, and who always wishes to have them in good condition.

The wooden parts of tools, such as stocks of planes and handles of chisels, are often made to have a nice appearance by polishing, but this adds nothing to their durability. A much better plan is to let them soak in linseed oil for a week and then rub them with a cloth for a few minutes each day for a week or two. This produces a beautiful surface and exerts a solidifying and preservation action on the wood.

Coutchouc oil has proved very efficient in preventing rust on iron; this has been used by the German army. It only requires to be spread with a piece of flannel in a very thin layer over the metallic surface and allowed to dry. To remove it, the article has simply to be treated with caoutchouc oil again and washed after 12 or 24 hours. A solution of benzine has been used for years as a coating for steel, iron and lead, and has been found a simple means of keeping them from oxidising.

All steel articles can be perfectly preserved from rust by putting a lump of freshly-burned lime in the drawer or case in which they are kept. If the things are to be moved, as a gun in its case, put the lime in a muslin bag.

To keep tools from rusting, take one-half ounce of camphor, dissolve in one pound melted lard; take off the scum and mix in as much fine black lead (graphite) as will give it an iron color. Clean tools and smear with this mixture. After 24 hours rub clean with a soft linen cloth.

To remove dust cover the metal with sweet oil, well rubbed in, and allow to stand for 48 hours; smear with oil applied with a piece of cotton wool after rubbing the steel. Then rub with unslaked lime reduced to a fine powder.

Immerse the article to be cleaned for a few minutes, until all the dirt and rust are taken off, in a strong solution of potassium cyanide, say about one-half ounce in a wineglass of water; take it out and clean with a tooth brush with a paste compound of potassium cyanide, castile soap, whiting and water.

THE QUESTION OF SLANG

Always Changing, as Youth Must Have Its Own Variety

However much slang we may use ourselves, we all dislike and despise slang that is not our own. Old men, who have tender memories of the slang of their own youth, see nothing but pertness and vulgarity in the slang of their grandsons, and for all of us there comes a time when we no longer feel contemporary with the slang of the present, when we have no part in making or using it, and have to ask what it means when we first hear it used. Then the new slang words seem to us presumptuous upstarts expressive of the general brainless presumption of youth, and indeed they are expressive of that free masonry of youth which we no longer share. Slang, in its first meaning, seems to have been the language of thieves, and it still keeps something of this first meaning in that it is the language of youth keeping its own secrets from middle age, and a token by which the young recognise all who are of their fellowship.

TRAINING ARMY HORSES

Severe Schooling Required Before They Are Ready For War

For Army purposes, in addition to learning certain things, a horse must also be accustomed gradually to carry heavy weights and to sustain considerable fatigue. When young horses are suddenly plunged into the work of actual warfare, without previous careful training, they are sure to die in great numbers. This was the case in South Africa.

The young Army horse will probably begin his training in the riding school, two of his first lessons being obedience to the reins and proper balance. He is put on to long reins and sent round in a circle from right to left, with his trainer in the middle. Afterwards he is made to go in the opposite direction, from left to right. With regard to balance, it is necessary to teach him to hold his head up, and to keep his limbs well under control, instead of sprawling carelessly about in the way natural to young animals.

Another lesson the young horse has to learn is that of pulling himself up briskly in answer to a light signal from the reins. The instructor walks behind his pupil with a rein in each hand, and at a light pressure on his mouth the horse learns to come to a halt. Jumping is the next step in his education, and he is taught this still on the long reins, sometimes with the help of an old charger, who will give him a lead over the obstacles. By this time the youngster should be obedient to the long reins, and so the time comes for him to be mounted for the first time by his instructor. A man is placed at either side of his head, and the instructor, standing at the horse's left side, jumps up so that he is lying, face downwards, across the saddle. This is probably done several times before the man actually mounts, so as to accustom the animal to the unwonted weight on his back. Then at last the trainer actually mounts, being particularly careful not to touch the young animal with his toe, as this would scare him and make him nervous. Amongst the many lessons yet remaining to be learned by the young horse is that of lying down with a man on his back. The rider throws his left stirrup across the withers. He gathers the reins and a handful of mane into his left hand drawing his horse's head to the right. Meanwhile, the man puts his weight on the horse's left side, grasping the back of the saddle with his right hand. As the horse sinks down the rider opens his legs and steps from his mount as the animal reaches the ground.

In actual battle it may be of the utmost importance that a horse shall remain where he is left, with the reins thrown over his head. To the end of the reins a sack is tied, and the horse is then left. If he moves forward, he treads on the sack, with the result that he gets a good hard jab in the mouth, which he does not forget, and in future, when left with the reins in that position, he is content to stand still until his rider's return.

WOOD AND INDUSTRY

Twelve Thousand Ontario Manufacturers Require Wood

Leaving out of consideration the numerous industries engaged in the production of shingles, lath, ties bridge-timber and rough lumber, there still remain at least thirty-eight different industries in Ontario more or less dependent on wood for their operations, and it is significant that even the makers of wood substitutes require wood in the process of manufacturing such. The exhaustion of Ontario's wood supplies, the depletion of which is already evident from the fact that over one-quarter of the total expenditure of $19,161,284 is paid for imported wood stock, would seriously cripple every Ontario industry.

Thirty-four different kinds of wood were used by these industries in the manufacture of everything in wooden produce from toys to threshing machines. Only eight of these woods had to be entirely obtained from outside sources, but, on the other hand, only six were entirely home grown. However, almost 90 per cent. of the three principal species, namely, pine, spruce and maple, which represented over one-half the total quantity used, were purchased in Ontario.

The sash and door industry easily takes first place among the wood-using industries, using 31.2 per cent. of the 807,456,000 feet, board measure, of rough lumber annually worked up by the one thousand two hundred Ontario manufacturers reporting to the Forestry Branch. The importance of this one industry will better be understood by comparison with the pulp industry, which although using 119,496,000 feet, board measure, of raw material, nevertheless was responsible for only 14.8 per cent. of the total consumption.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

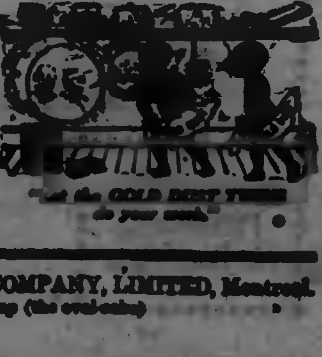
Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.



"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say some people of strong constitution have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4630 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

A SOLDIER'S MEMORIES

Veteran of Two Big Campaigns Has Interesting Stories

In a small cottage at Atherley, Ontario, there lives a veteran of the British army named Neill, who fought in the Crimean war and the Indian mutiny. He is always ready to recount his adventures. He is slightly deaf, a defect which he dates from the battle of Balaklava, when he lay under the heavy guns and witnessed the charge of the Light Brigade.

Neill was invalided home, he has now a silver plate in his skull as a result of a wound, and was stationed at Windsor. He tells an interesting story of the late Queen Victoria. While he was on sentry duty one morning the queen came out to walk down to the river. Neill presented arms, but the next sentry, a new recruit, made no move.

"Good morning, soldier," said the queen.

"Good morning, miss," replied the sentry. "I hope you are very well."

He afterwards confessed that he mistook her for one of the maids. The mistake, however, turned out to his advantage, for the queen asked him his history, and, on hearing that he was supporting an old mother in Ireland, who rented a small cottage, she bought the farm and presented it to the old woman.

On another occasion, Neill relates that the Prince Consort asked him for his rifle to show to the Emperor Napoleon III., who was driving with him. Neill, being on sentry duty, of course refused, and heard Queen Victoria, who was also in the carriage, reprove the Prince for doing what might get the soldier into trouble.

When the mutiny broke out Neill was sent to India and entered Delhi by the Cashmere gate on the day it was stormed. The first street, he says, was lined with cases of brandy, left by the mutineers to attract the soldiers. The sergeants, however, kept the soldiers from the spirits until the city was taken by telling them that the brandy was poisoned.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Immigration Commissioner Thinks It May Aid in Naturalization

In an interview with Mr. J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration at Winnipeg, the conversation turned on the assimilation of the large foreign immigration.

"For the assimilation of varied nationalities nothing can equal," said Mr. Walker, "the use of a common language. But the English language has to them a strange pronunciation and a freakish method of spelling, so they seek to retain their respective mother tongues. My experience among foreigners has brought this conviction that in the Canadian west, into which natives of Europe are pouring in annually increasing numbers, the need of some rational simplified form of spelling is a necessity."

"What objections do you find to the reform of spelling?"

"Well, the matter is not generally considered. The teacher struggles through the labyrinth of difficulty in teaching the foreign youngster because he is allowed or knows no easier method. I am in hopes that the propaganda of the Simplified Spelling Society will permeate the educationists of our west and awaken them to the need of some reasonable principle of spelling."

Thought It Was a Wild Cat

A real live porcupine visited the town of Truro, N.S., and promenaded along Victoria Square. He met one of the natives of the town who not being on familiar terms with the porcupine species mistook the animal for a wild cat and when the "fretful" Porcy began to cause his bristles to stand up, took it as a challenge to battle and began to rain stones on his antagonist with the result that he knocked it out for a time and during that time slipped a cord about its hind leg and waited developments. When the porcupine revived its captor led it out onto the square and proudly exhibited it declaring that he had captured a wild cat.

Canada's Insurance Departments

There are five provincial insurance departments in Canada, one each in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. These departments are administered by a superintendent, inspector or commissioner, who has under his care all insurance matters arising in the province, while every insurance company doing business there must report to him regarding their movements and business in the province. Alberta, which passed an insurance act very similar to that of Manitoba, was the latest to inaugurate such a department.

Speedy Start for Canada

Thirty seconds was the time occupied by the Birmingham magistrates in hearing a case. A man was charged with being drunk, but it was explained that he had taken his passage to Canada, and had only ten minutes in which to catch his train for Liverpool. In a shade less than half a minute the prisoner had been fined, had paid the money, and had left the court room at a run.

NEW PAPER MATERIAL

Elephant Grass May Prove a Substitute For Wood Pulp

Almost every month of every year brings a report of the discovery in some distant part of the world of a new paper making material, which is expected to take the place of wood pulp. One of these discoveries was made in Uganda, Africa, and the Imperial Institute of London described in a report on the subject a series of experiments made with this new material, which is known as elephant grass. The marshlands of tropical Africa are thickly covered with this grass, which grows to a height of from six to ten feet and has proved a source of trouble and expense to agriculturists, as it grows rapidly after the shoots above ground have been burned or cut down. A sample of dried mature elephant grass was sent recently from Uganda to the Imperial Institute with the object of ascertaining its suitability for the manufacture of paper. The consignment, which weighed 177 pounds after being air dried, yielded a pulp of good color, composed of ultimate fibre rather longer than those of esparto grass and about the same length as those of bamboo pulp. It furnished a fairly good paper, which the British experts expect to be able to improve so as to make this material a suitable and profitable substitute for wood pulp.

GUARDING THE FORESTS

Dominion Government Tells Campers How to Build Fires

The regulations relating to the preservation of Dominion forest reserves are very stringent but probably necessary to prevent a big annual fire loss. In regard to the lighting of fires, it is provided that every person who makes or starts a fire in the open air for cooking or camping purposes shall: (a) Select a bare rock whereon to kindle such a fire wherever possible, and if there be no bare rock in the neighborhood, then a site on which there is the smallest quantity of vegetable matter, dead trees, branches, brushwood, dry leaves or resinous trees. (b) Clear the place in which he is about to light the fire by removing all vegetable matter, etc., from the soil within a radius of ten feet from the fire. (c) Exercise and observe every possible precaution to prevent such fire from spreading, and carefully extinguish the same before quitting the place. Severe penalties are provided for neglect of proper observation of these regulations.

OVER NINETY YEARS

But Canada's First Missionary Still Hale and Hearty

At a meeting of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Society, at Charlottetown, P.E.I., Rev. Dr. Scott Whittier of Melbourne, Australia, brought greetings from that distant city from Mrs. John Geddie, wife of Canada's first missionary, who was sent from Prince Edward Island to the New Hebrides. Mr. Whittier was surprised to learn that several Presbyterians in Eastern Canada had died through monotony. Considering Mrs Geddie's experience and the fact that she is now over ninety years of age her mental faculties are still wonderfully alert.

The Elephant's Bath

The elephant enjoys a bath in the streams and pools of his native habitat, but his lordly brother in captivity finds no such comfort in the bath that from time to time is given him. A trainer thus describes the expensive operation:

It takes a week to carry out the process in every detail. It requires the services of three men and costs $300. This treatment is necessary for a show elephant and, if the animal is a valuable one, the proprietor of the show does not consider the money wasted.

The first step consists of going over the immense body with the best soap procurable; 150 pounds of soap is used, and the elephant's ears are especially attended to. When the soaping and drying are completed, the elephant is well sandpapered, and after that rubbed all over with the purest Indian oil until the mouse-gray skin is supple and glistening.

This last finishing touch is the most expensive part of the whole bath, as it means the application of about $150 worth of olive oil.

This Woman Saw Life

Mrs. Henry Vaughan, wife of a farmer living near Fort Coulonge, had never ridden on a train, had not seen a city for 40 years, and had never seen an electric car till she made a visit to Ottawa recently. On her way to the Capital she rode for the first time on a railway train, and upon arriving at her destination had her first trolley ride. Later in the day a friend took her for a spin in an automobile, and —wonder of wonders—before her return home she saw an airship flight.

FAMILIAR PHRASES AND THEIR ORIGIN

"Eating humble pie" is a phrase which really arose from the corruption of the word "umbles" or "numbles," the coarser parts of a deer killed in hunting, which when made into a pie were formerly reserved for the lower hunt servants, while "cooking his goose" is a phrase which originated when the King of Sweden, on approaching a hostile town, excited the contempt of the inhabitants by the smallness of his army. To express this they hung out a goose for him to shoot at, whereupon the King set fire to the town to "cook their goose."

Long ago unscrupulous people used to take a cat in a bag to market, where they tried to sell it for a pig. If, however, a purchaser opened the bag before buying, the cat, of course, jumped out, displaying the fraud. Hence the term "Letting the cat out of the bag."

"Going to the dogs" comes from the East, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression, "Tell it to the marines," used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and someone who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled.

It is a curious fact that the phrase "Bald as a badger," owes its origin to authors of the past who had no exact knowledge of natural history, and who, because the forehead of a badger is covered with smooth, white hairs, came to the conclusion that it was bald.

Years ago a theatrical manager of the bogus type had in his company an actor whose strong point was the ghost in "Hamlet." If his salary was not forthcoming on Saturday, this actor would exclaim, "Then the ghost won't walk to-night," a phrase which is still used by actors on payday, and which provides a striking illustration of how a casual remark becomes a common saying.

RISING COST OF LIVING

Canada Leads the World According to British Figures

A report of the inquiry instituted by the British Government into the cost of living of the working classes, in addition to dealing with conditions at home, contained some comparisons of prices in foreign countries and the Overseas Dominions.

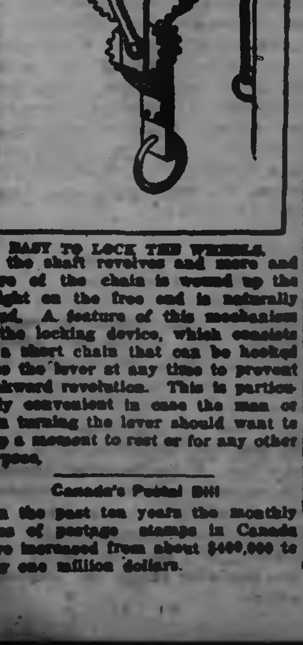
The compilers of the report admitted that they had difficulty in bringing together diverse figures and values from all parts of the Empire into a general comparison. Their conclusions, however, if not absolutely reliable, are none the less interesting.

The chief feature of the report was the evidence that the rise in prices is world wide. The rise has been greater in foreign countries, with the exception of France, than in Great Britain. The greatest rise has been in Canada, Austria-Hungary, the United States and Japan. Since 1900 the rise in Austria-Hungary has been 35 per cent.; Belgium, 32 per cent.; Germany, 30 per cent.; Italy, 20 per cent. In the same period the British and French rise has been only 15 per cent. Canada easily topped the list with a rise of 51 per cent. Australia and New Zealand showed comparatively modest rises of 16 per cent.

HOISTING APPARATUS

Multiple Gear Revolves the Shaft Which Wraps up Chain

For the hoisting of heavy weights by hand, so to speak, the mechanism pictured here seems to be effective. An iron frame has a multiple gearing set inside it, the gear operated by means of a lever. The revolution of the wheels turns a horizontal shaft over which the lifting chain is wound.



EASY TO LOCK THE WHEELS.

As the shaft revolves and more and more of the chain is wound up the weight on the free end is naturally lifted. A feature of this mechanism is the locking device, which consists of a short chain that can be hooked onto the lever at any time to prevent backward revolution. This is particularly convenient in case the man or men turning the lever should want to stop a moment to rest or for any other purpose.

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

CRUSTS IN THE NOSE, FREQUENT SNEEZING, YOU HAVE CATARRH--A DISGUSTING DISEASE

RELIEF IN FIVE MINUTES--CERTAIN CURE FOLLOWS IF "CATARRHOZONE" IS USED.

Don't stay stuffed up with a sore nose, eyes running and breath bad.

Use Catarrhozone!

Take one breath through the inhaler—just one single breath and see how it clears out the nose, how it makes you breathe free and easy.

Relief from Catarrhozone is quick and effective—you don't have to wait all day to get it either.

No other treatment is like Catarrhozone or is able to drive catarrh so completely out of the system.

You don't take anything internally in using Catarrhozone—you don't run the chance of spoiling digestion or lessening appetite with a bad tasting medicine. Just breathe in that soothing piney vapor, so rich in healing, so full of power to cure every type of throat trouble, hoarseness, pain over the eyes, bronchitis and Catarrh.

Germs that may be lurking in the mouth, nose or throat, Catarrhozone will destroy them. In this way it prevents many an ill.

"I am never without Catarrhozone Inhaler," writes E. J. Jameson, of Huntington. "Use it for a minute and it stops a cold at its beginning. If the cold has a start, or if catarrh or a bad throat, you can easily cure it with Catarrhozone."

If suffering from throat droppings, running eyes, active nasal discharge, choked condition in the nostrils—remember Catarrhozone will quickly cure you. Get the large $1.00 outfit. It does the trick cure. Small size 50c; a sample size 25c. at all dealers everywhere.

Belleville Ontario: What appears to have been a case of infanticide has been discovered at Frankford. On Sunday the body of a fully developed infant was found in the Trent river at Frankford. Every indication points to infanticide. Who was connected with the case is not known. The case is evidently one of drowning. Dr. H. A. Yeomans, coroner, of this city is conducting an investigation.

His Daughter's Honor.

Yesterday an elderly man who lives in the township of Douro, and who recently had two sons put on the blacklist, was on the war path after a local man whom he alleges has violated his daughter's virtue. The young man in question was recently locked up on a charge of, say, having improper relations with a girl in Toronto. Up to the time of going to press the Douro man's drag net had not enmeshed the young man.

Sold Watered Milk.

At yesterday's police court, Joseph B. Ryedocv was charged with supplying watered milk to a Belmont Cheese factory. Joseph said that he sent deteriorated milk, with water in it. He claimed that the water leaked in by accident through a hole in the can. A man from Madoc, official prosecutor for the Dairymen's Association gave evidence. Defendant acknowledged he knew water was in the milk when it was sent to the factory. Defendant was found guilty and fined $25, costs $2.10

Attempted Suicide.

At yesterday's police court, a woman who was on Monday given four months in Castle Nesbitt for sundry offenses, was on trial for alleged attempted suicide. The charge was based on the woman attempting to take carbolic acid in which effort she was frustrated by a woman occupying the same cell. She elected to be tried by a Jury at the December Assizes. The magistrate regretted the occurrence and allowed her to change her mind and take summary trial. She pleaded guilty and was let off on this particular charge on suspended sentence.

Drunken Gypsy Fined.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock a gypsy by the name of James Hodges, who is one of the gang that are camped near the House of Refuge, was arrested by Chief of Police Short and Constable George Foster for driving down Kent street at furious rate, under the influence of liquor and endangering the lives of the citizens on the street. He came up before the Magistrate and was fined, including costs, $14.50.—Lindsay Post.

A Hunting Trip.

The hunting season is now at hand marsh and rice beds, and partridge the wild duck may be found feeding in and other game abound in the woods. Sportsmen are planning their hunting trip and many will visit the game lands of Ontario. No better hunting territory is found in the Province than the woods and streams reached by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Local Cheese Board.

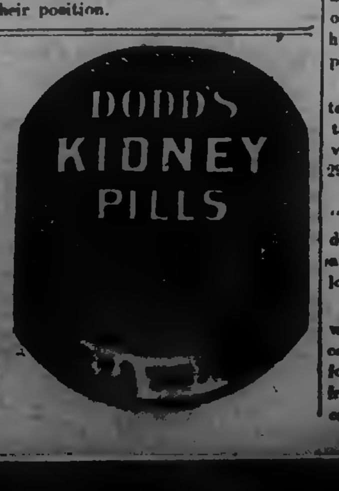
The second last meeting of the local cheese board, held yesterday morning registered 1,649 cheese, which sold at 15 3-16c and 15 ¼c. Mr. Johnston representing Flavelle's Limited, secured first selection at 15 3-16c and bought the following: Keene, Warminster, Myrtle, East Emily, Fleetwood, Shearer. Mr. Morton offered 15¼c for further selection and Mr. Gillespie, at 15¼c. for the balance of the board bought the bulk of the offering and cleaned up the board. An adjournment was called for three weeks. Steps toward collecting the donations from the factories to the Patriotic Fund were begun. Mr. Ed. Hawthorne reported he had received the following cheques: Myrtle, $40,00; Stoney Lake, $23.75; Warsaw, $97.68.

Bread Will Come Down.

It would seem that the Times is the only local paper that is against the present unwarrantable "hold up," against both poor and rich by the local bakers. In yesterday's issue we showed how Peterboro bakers, who charge local customers 13 cents a large loaf for bread, pay the freight and sell the same sized loaf at Tweed for 10 cents. This would seem to be the limit of hoggishness. There is approximately 60 per cent. profit on bread. There has been a raise of say 15 per cent in the price of flour. Now that money is scarce and hundreds out of work, our patriotic bakers boost the price of the "staff of life" 20 per cent. It is understood that correspondence is now on to induce Toronto bakers to ship bread here that will be sold at reasonable prices. Any class of the business community that will try to fatten itself on the misfortunes of its neighbors should not be surprised if out-of-town competition is introduced.

The foregoing is published advisedly and the columns of the Times are open for a statement from the bakers of their position.



Local Branch Store Robbed

Another burglary was successfully carried out last night in about the same old way, and presumably by the same gang who have been operating for several years past. The victims of last night's escapade were the Green Music Co's. store on Kent street; the tonsorial parlor of Mr. James Appleby, on the north side of Kent street., and the Greek shoe-shining parlor. The Warder called at the Green Music Store, and was met by the manager, Mr. Wesley Mason, who was looking over the ruins caused by the previous night's visit of the unwelcome visitors. On the floor lay the cash drawer, all smashed up, with papers and other articles usually found in a till.

A blood stained envelope gave some clue, as finger marks were to be found on the floor, where the burglar had been groping around in the dark looking possibly for something which he had dropped.—Lindsay Warder.

SEE IF THE CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

Mother! Don't hesitate! If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you will have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

You Can Distinguish a Piano Made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, by Its Pure, Vibrant Singing Tone

The reasons for this are well known to those who are familiar with the structure of the instrument and with the strict methods of the Heintzman & Co. factory.

The Materials

Every piece of metal with the slightest flaw, every piece of wood imperfect in its grain or not thoroughly seasoned, is rejected—it is not tried out to see if it will do—it is not even given the benefit of a doubt.

The Workmen

Each workman, too, brings to his task skill of the highest order—and that skill is still further developed and kept to the highest possible standard by the rigid discipline for which the Heintzman & Co. Factory is well known.

Its durability and continued increase in the beauty of its tone as it ages have caused all world-great artists on their visit to Canada to use this piano exclusively. . . .

AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE

The United Feature Film Co. will present for three nights only, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with matinee daily at 2.30 p.m., the greatest photo plays ever made, opening on Thursday night with the celebrated English Military Drama—"Lieut. Derring," the strongest drama ever written. And in addition to this big feature as an added attraction they will present, "Balaoo," or "The Man Monkey." This picture was shown in one of the theatres in Toronto recently and received the largest attendance of any picture ever shown there.

Extra—Saturday only a feature showing the evil devices of the great White Way, "Expiation," a story of a woman's temptation, indiscretion and repentance. She followed the trail of a weak, wilful desire until it lead to the shadows beyond. It is endorsed by press and clergy. You owe it to yourself to see this great drama.

If you miss seeing these feature photo plays, you miss the best. Our prices will remain only 10 cents to all.

Germans In the East Are in Full Flight--German Army Corps Literally Cut to Pieces--Enormous Casualties Suffered by Foe in Flight Before Russians

BRITISH WARSHIPS ARE SHELLING THE GERMANS IN OSTEND TOWN

Although Evacuation is Unconfirmed--German Head-Quarters Becoming Untenable Under Guns of British Monitors Severe, Humber and Mersey. This is Admitted by Berlin

Tokio, Oct. 22.—A Japanese squadron, it is officially announced, is seeking the German fleet in the neighborhood of Hawaii.

In Retreat Toward Bruges.

London, Oct. 22.—Reports that the Germans have evacuated Ostend and were retreating toward Bruges, and that their West Flanders army from the vicinity of the coast south of Courtrai, was being hammered into a zigzag line by the combined efforts of the British navy and the British, French and Belgian troops, seemed to coincide at so many points today that in the absence of claims of any advances from Berlin, the unbiased opinion was that the fighting among the canals at North Belgian, which followed the German rush from Antwerp, had been generally against the invaders.

Germans Disorganized.

At any rate, the Germans at one point been driven back as far as Thourout, and some despatches say that their communications in the middle of West Flanders have been so disorganized that troops from Ghent are marching direct to Courtrai rather than join their comrades to the north, who are in danger of being cut off.

British Shelled Ostend.

The evacuation of Ostend was not confirmed this morning, but from Berlin came a report that British ships were shelling that town, while another despatch said that the guns of the war vessels had destroyed the village of Slype, on the canal between Ostend and Bruges, where it is said the Germans have their headquarters. At Sluis, only a few miles northeast of Slype, in 1348, a British fleet achieved a victory over the French.

Also Landed Marines and Guns.

It is clear now that snipe have been playing an important part in the warfare along the coast. The admiralty officially announces that the monitors Severn, Humber and Mersey not only bombarded the German position south of Ostend, but landed detachments of Marines with machine guns. It is reported from other sources that eleven war vessels in all are taking part in the operations but what they are is not announced.

German Submarines There.

Curiously enough the monitors retain that title from "Lincoln's cheese box" of civil war fame, and so far apparently they have been able to dodge submarine attacks. How the German submarines got to Ostend is unknown, but presumably they crept down the Dutch coast submerging whenever sighted by a British patrol and then picked their way carefully through the British mine fields.

Big japanese Cruiser Awaits German Gunboat In Honolulu

Honolulu, Oct. 22.—Standing just outside the three mile limit, her searchlights constantly illuminating the entrance to Honolulu harbour, the Japanese cruiser Hizen kept patrol all last night, while anchored in the roads the German gunboat Geier awaited the verdict of the port officials as to how long she may remain in the harbor for repairs. The Hizen has chased the Geier for hundreds of miles and her capture or interment is certain.

London, Oct. 22.—The British Foreign Office today sent a note to all the foreign powers formally notifying them of the government's intention to remove from the Suez Canal all German and Austrian ships which have taken refuge there, and which have not already been detained on account of hostile acts.

The war Lord of Europe Is Protected By Wire and Troops

London, Oct. 21.—Frederick Rennet, the Daily News correspondent at Petrograd, telegraphs:

"Statements from several sources concur in the arrival of the Kaiser at Czenstochow. The grounds of the club where he and his suite are staying are enclosed with a high barbed wire fence and roofed with wire. Uhlans and aeroplane squadron are quartered outside.

"The most notable feature of the battle now raging all along the Russian front is the continued pouring forward of Austrian regiments southward of Przemysl to meet the unbroken succession of defeats. Yesterday an entire battalion with officers and machine guns surrendered intact.

"This hopeless procedure is a scheme evidently intended to outflank Russia's extreme left is having a paralyzing effect on the German movements in central Poland, where the fighting continues between separate forces at three points, about 60 miles apart westward, and considerably to the south of Warsaw."

MAY BE IN BRUSSELS IN TWO WEEKS

This is the Expectations of the Allies Everything Points to a Successful Re-Occupation of the Belgian Capital—"What We Have, We'll Hold" is Allies' Motto

London, Oct. 22.—One of those who make up the allied armies in the fighting zone in the neighborhood of the Belgian border is quoted as having said yesterday:

"We shall most certainly be in Brussels under a month. I myself expect it in a fortnight."

This probably represents the impression obtaining here even though in the mass of vague assertions regarding the progress of the fighting on the vast line from the North Sea to the Rhine, there is to be found little of a positive character or demonstratable proof of any specific success so decisive in its consequences as to constitute a real victory or defeat.

Clear Miles of Coast Line.

Meanwhile the anticipation of a German evacuation of the Belgian coast under pressure is still unrealized, though if the British fleet is able for a little time longer to maintain undisturbed its present point of vantage, it can assuredly render the few miles immediately abutting the sea untenable.

Whether the network of canals in this part of Belgium will enable the monitors to carry their successes further inland has not yet transpired. The fighting from all accounts is as stubborn as in any stage of the war thus far. Every foot of the battle ground in West Flanders is contested. Every village is taken and retaken. The rush tactics which characterized the first part of the campaign are being repeated, and both sides claim that they regularly repulse these onslaughts.

Acquired "Holding" Habit.

Judging from the French official communication, the allies have acquired a "holding habit," which was lacking in the earlier stages of the war, when they were admittedly in a state of unpreparedness. The reticence of the German intelligence department however, largely baffles the attempts of unbiased observers to gauge the actual situation which when Berlin is heard from, may assume an entirely different aspect.

A rumor comes from Ostend by way of Holland that the allies have succeeded in blowing up the railway between Bruges and Ghent. It is quite possible, it is stated here, that cavalry scouts already are in that vicinity. Stories differ as to the fate of Prince Maximilian of Hesse, whose body is reported to have been found in Northern France by French troops. A later report from Berlin says that the Prince was wounded.

Germans Centre Right Flank Is Pierced By The Allied Forces

Only a Question af a Short Time When the Foe's Headquarters Will Become Untenable. Germans Have Left 10,000 Dead and Wounded Around Lille. Literally Cut to Pieces By French Three Inch Guns and Rapid Firers

London, Oct. 22.—The allies are rolling back the German line

They have pulsed a wedgand for the first time since the thirteen miles north of Lille, e through the invading forces series of battles in the north commenced they have pushed their forces east of Lille. The advantage gained is slight— two miles— but it is declared at the military headquarters here that it is extremely important. The allies are now in a position to envelop the German right wing and it is confidently expected here that they will be able to do so within the nexs week or ten days.

Officials at General Gallieni's headquarters, who are in touch with the situation, declare that the Germans have lost the chief move in strategical manoeuvring by their failure to maintain a perpendicular line extending from Lille to the coast, near Ostend. They declare the centre of the German right flank has been pierced, and that it is only a question of a short time when the German headquarters at Lille must move eastward or be lost. Every attempt of the Germans to break through this line has beenrepulsed, with severe loss, and it is declared that the Germans have left 10,000 dead and wounded on the field here.

Beginning at Yser and extending nine and a half miles south east of Menin there is a second battle line. The Germans were forced back nearly three miles along this front last night, following a night attack in force, which was defeated. The Germans have mounted searchlights to command the territory and after shelling the allied position with great vigor they essayed an assault in force. The Germans advanced in their usual massed formation, singing as they came, but were literally cut to pieces by the fire of the French three-inch guns and rapid-firers, which commanded the flat and marshy ground over which they were compelled to advance.

RUSSIANS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE COMPLETELY OUTGENERALLED GERMANS

Siberians Fall Upon German Flank in the North-West--The High and Mighty Prussian Emperor Said to Have Commanded the Defeated Troops at Warsaw--The Foe The Eoe Erapped But Put Up a Desperate Fight to No Avail

Petrograd, Oct. 22.—It was officially announced today that the Germans are in full retreat all along the battle line lying 30 miles west of Warsaw, pursued by a fresh Siberian army corps which has been pushed westward from Warsaw.

The German 21st army corps has lost nearly two thirds of its effective strength in its efforts to cover the retreat of the main German army. Emperor William is reported to have been personally in command of the operations against Warsaw, coming to the front when his troops had reached within seven miles of the outer Warsaw defences.

The Russians are declared to have completely out-generaled the Germans. They retired along the German front by arrangement. At the same time a strong Russian force was sent north west from Warsaw, and apparently the Germans had no knowledge of their presence. When the selected battlefield was reached, the Russians made a determined stand and attacked the enemy both from the front and flank.

The Germans fought desperately but were trapped, and lost an enormous number of men in extricating themselves, and are losing thousands daily in the retirement.

Police Will Search Aliens Throngh The Dominion

Ottawa, Oct. 22. A stricter surveillance of Austrian and German citizens living in Canada is being undertaken as a result of the bomb outrage in Montreal, and the orders in England to arrest all alien enemies. Shortly after the war broke out an order was passed ordering all alien enemies to surrender their firearms by September 15th.

This order has not been very rigorously enforced, but the Dominion Police in the east and the Royal Northwest Mounted police in the West will begin today strictly to enforce this order, and in places where there are settlements of Rustrians and Germans not naturalized Canadians, the search will likely be made.

Canada Has 600 Prisoners.

There are now slightly over six hundred prisoners of war in Canada. The largest number are confined at Fort Henry, Kingston; others are at Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Lethbridge, Victoria and several other points. In addition some two thousand prisoners have been let out on parole, and have to report to the authorities at stated intervals.

NEW MINISTERS MAY GET SEATS BY ACCLAMATION

Speaker Sproule in Ottawa To-day and Writs May be Issued—Liberals it is Stated Thought of OpposingHon. Mr. Blondin

Ottawa, Oct. 22.— Speaker Sproule arrived in Ottawa today and the writs for the bye-election in Champlain and Quebec County where the new Ministers, Hon. P. Blondin and Hon T. Chase Casgrain, will run will be issued today. November 8 and November 16 for elections is suggested as possible dates. Both Ministers have gone to their ridings to prepare for the elections.

There was some talk in Liberal circles of opposition to Mr. Blondin in Champlain. However, the Liberals if the Liberals oppose Blondin, they have thought better of such actions Government would dissolve Parliament and go to the country for a real test of public sentiment.

In addition to these bye-elections there are three other vacancies, viz., Terrebonne made vacant through the resignation of Hon. Bruno Nantel and Jacques Carter and Westmoreland. It is possible that all three seats will be allowed to return members unopposed of the same political complexion as the late representatives. In that case Conservatives would be elected in Jacques Carter and Terrebonne and a Liberal in Westmoreland succeeding Hon. H.R. Emmerson.

Recruits for the local Over Seas contingent are crowding to the local Armouries.

PLAIN TALK ON WRECKED HOMES

Dr. Gordon again addressed an overflowing congregation at St. Paul's church last night, when he devoted his attention to the subject "Wrecked Homes," which he handled in a masterly and convincing manner. His earnest elocution held the vast audience spellbound, while his whole discourse was permeated with wholesome truths which he drove irresistibly home. Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., secretary of the Laymen's Christian Citizenship Campaign, in fitting terms explained the object of the present campaign and the obligation of every citizen to support the same.

Mr. Greenlaw, the noted singer, has certainly touched the hearts of the people. He sang four selections during the meeting at the close of which the audience seemed to sit with the expectation of having him render another number.

The selections rendered by Mr. Hesselberg, the Russian Master Pianist, were masterpieces. As these gatherings consist chiefly of the "people" and not "musicians" Mr. Hesselberg has wisely decided to offer music of a popular character; things that even the uneducated in music can easily understand. So much has been said of this eminent artist's mastery of the key board, that criticism would be impossible and praise unnecessary. Everyone in that vast audience which filled St. Paul from door to put hung breathlessly on each note sounded and congratulated themselves upon the opportunity of hearing within their very own city, such an artist. His main solo last night was Liszt's great "Hungarian Battle March."

Dr. Gordon's talk tonight will be "Tools of Modern Society," and unquestionably will be keenly interesting and instructive.

WASTED $250,000

Rich Man Reduced to Singing For Coppers and Asking For Crusts

A man who had been left several fortunes, and after spending all came to be charged with begging, found himself in the dock at Northwich, England.

He was John Marsh, aged sixty-nine, of St. Helens. He declared that he had been left by various relatives sums totalling $250,000, which had all been spent in drinking, gambling, and helping others. He had inherited his fathers's spendthrift nature and his mother's generosity.

He was formerly in a grocery and confectionery business at St. Helens, but now worked for farmers solely for his food, varying the monotony by singing in publichouses songs of his own composition, and dancing.

Reduced to hunger, he pleaded, he simply begged a crust. His one desire was to tide over another year to qualify for an old age pension, as he had an aversion to becoming a pauper. The magistrate gave him money to help him on his way, and dismissed the case.

THE FIRST MOVIE

Don Roderick Saw Moving Pictures in a Vision

The first suggestion of the cinematograph, or moving pictures of to-day, may be found in the ancient legend of Don Roderick, the last of the Gothic kings of Spain. The king and a gay cavalcade had, against all warnings, entered through magic doors into a vast subterranean chamber. On a table lay a golden casket which the king had been admonished not to open. But curiosity urged him on despite all warnings. He opened the casket. It contained nothing but a piece of linen cloth interposed between two plates of copper. Upon this cloth were painted diminutive figures of men and horses. As Don Roderick gazed these figures became enlarged andd animated. A panoramic vision of a battle displayed itself in which Christians and Moslems were struggling in deadly conflict, while the cries of the combatants, the clash of arms and the roar of battle were distinctly heard. The Christians were seen to retreat, broken and beaten, before the Moslems, and among the figures Don Roderick saw his war steed galloping riderless over the unlucky field, following which the panic-stricken king and his companions fled from the enchanted chamber. And such was the vision of Don Roderick.

DURABILITY OF TIES

The Supply of Cedar is Becoming Exhausted

The average life of untreated ties as reported by the steam roads is as follows: Cedar, 9 years; tamarack, 8 years; hemlock, 7 years; Douglas fir, 7 years; jack pine, 6 years; spruce, 6 years. As statistics bear evidence, cedar is the species principally used, because of its durability, but the supply of cedar is rapidly becoming exhausted. Unless preservative treatment of ties is introduced, the short-lived species will have to be used untreated, which, on account of the necessary frequent renewal, will increase the cost of mileage maintenance. If treated ties were used, which would cost 30 cents extra per tie for creosoting and equipping with tie-plates, the inferior species, which are very plentiful and cheap in Canada, could be used with economy. With such a treatment, these woods would last at least fifteen years, and if protected from wear would probably last much longer, and would affect a very considerable saving.

Lens For Railway Lights

For railroad signals and locomotive and car marking lamps a lens has been invented that spreads the light over an angle of 90 degrees, making it visible in any position it is likely to be needed.

What Australian Province is Doing Towards Reforestration

According to a report of the Forestry Department of New South Wales, good conduct convicts at the state prison, instead of breaking stone, are engaged in the more useful and healthful work of replanting with trees the waste lands of the state. At one prison alone 25,000 trees, mostly American ash and pines were planted in one year.

Perhaps the only city forest in Canada is that at Guelph, Ont., where a small area has been planted surrounding the springs which furnish the city's water supply. In many of the counties of eastern Canada, however, are large areas of waste land, originally forested, and capable only of producing forests. Ontario has a Counties reforestation Act making possible the acquisition of such waste land for reforestation purposes by municipal councils, but up to the present time only one county has availed itself of this opportunity. Quebec and the Dominion government have also passed legislation to encourage tree planting, and the Dominion Forestry Branch in the last fiscal year distributed nearly 4,000,000 trees from the nurseries at Indian Head for woodlot planting in western Canada.

The growing of forest trees on waste land can in most cases be made a profitable undertaking, besides providing labor to a considerable number of men, yet no extensive reforestation has as yet been done in eastern Canada.

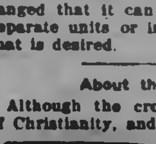
BIG PACIFIC DRY DOCK

Biggest Vessels to be Handled at Prince Rupert When Work Done

Good progress is being made with the construction of the big Grand Trunk Pacific Dry Dock at Prince Rupert. This dock, costing $2,000,000, will have an important national value, as it will be able to handle the largest vessels, either naval or mercantile, afloat on the Pacific Ocean.

The dock will have in all twelve pontoons and the first of these to be put in position is 130 feet long and exclusive of other fittings has 300 000 feet of timber in its construction. The capacity displacement of the series of pontoons will be 2,000,000 tons and each pontoon will have two powerful centrifugal pumps, so that, when the ship is in place the water can be rapidly pumped out and repair work begun. The dock is so arranged that it can be used in three separate units or in any combination that is desired.

About the Cross



Although the cross is the symbol of Christianity, and it was used as a religious emblem long before the Christian era, it was not always an object of veneration, nor the insignia of religion.

The ancients used the cross as an instrument of capital punishment and centuries before Calvary death on the cross was considered so ignominious that only the lowest malefactors were crucified. The Egyptian obelisks bear impressions of the cross, and the Babylonians and the Assyrians used the cross. The coins of the early Phoenicians were stamped with the cross.

Gas Used in Soap Making

In several European countries the hydrogen gas which is a by-product of the manufacture of oxygen is utilized for hardening oils in the soap industry.

A CLEVER ANIMAL IS THE BEAVER

Country Once Swarmed With Millions of These Busy and Intelligent Little Workers

The beaver is the smartest of all wild animals. He has a mental process which corresponds to the reasoning power in man. Also he is a genuine historical celebrity. No other animal has cut such a figure in the development of the North American continent.

Before the white-man came beavers were distributed over North America perhaps more widely than any other animal. The beaver population was probably densest to the south-west of Hudson Bay and about the headwaters of the Missouri and Columbia Rivers. Along the thousands of smaller streams throughout North America there was colony after colony, dam after dam, in close succession, sometimes as many as 300 beaver ponds to the mile.

The beaver population at the beginning of the seventeenth century must have been upward of 100,000,000, distributed over an area of approximately 6,000,000 square miles.

The majority of dams are made of slender green poles, which are placed lengthwise with the flow for the bottom, and set braced with the end upstream a foot or so higher than the downstream end. With these there are occasionally used small limby trees. The large end of the tree is placed upstream and the small bushy end downstream.

If in a current these sometimes are weighted down with mud and stones. Short, stout sticks and long, slender poles are deftly mingled in the dam as it rises.

Beaver houses that are built in a pond usually stand in three or four feet of water. The foundation is laid on the bottom of the pond, of the size intended for the house, and built up a solid mass to a few inches above water level. This island-like foundation is covered with a dome-shaped house, the central portion of the foundation forming the floor of the low-vaulted room which is enclosed by the thick house walls. In building the house the beaver provides a temporary support for the combined roof and walls by piling in the centre of the floor a two-foot mound of mud. Over this is placed a somewhat flattened tepee or cone-shaped frame of sticks and small poles. These stand on the outer part of the foundation and lean inward, with upper ends meeting against and above the temporary support. The beaver then cover this framework with two or three feet of mud, brush and turf, and thus make the walls and the roof of the house. When the outer part of the house is completed they dig an inclined passageway from the bottom of the pond up through the foundation, into the irregular space left between the supporting pile of mud and the walls. And of this space they shape a room by clawing out the temporary support and gnawing off the intruding sticks. This represents the most highly developed type of beaver house.

The room is from one to three feet high and from three to twenty feet across. The room is a kind of burrow and this is without either door or window. Half buried sticks make a comparatively dry floor, despite the fact that it is only a few inches above water level.

In many localities the canals or ditches dug and used by the beaver form their most necessary and extensive works. These canals require enormous labor and much skill. In transporting trees for food supply, water transportation is so much easier and safer than land that wherever the immediate surroundings of the pond are comparatively level the beaver endeavors to lead water out to the tree groves by digging a canal from the edge of the pond to these groves. The felled trees are by this means easily floated into the pond.

FORESTS AND NAVIGATION

Equality of Water Flow Dependent on Forest Cover

It has been urged that in the interests of navigation the Dominion Government should purchase such denuded forest land in the Eastern Provinces as might be necessary to reforest in order to prevent floods and the filling up of streams with sediment. In this connection the report on the Trent Watershed Survey, published by the Commission of Conservation, is of considerable interest. In this region of Ontario, as a result of fires, 150 000 acres are practically a desert and the report urges a policy of forest conservation under Dominion, provincial or municipal control, in order to preserve the usefulness of the Trent Valley canal, in which over $10,000,000 is invested. There are many such barren areas in the eastern provinces, which with the assistance of the Dominion Government might be made to produce valuable forest crops.

In Canada disastrous floods and low-water stages have been largely prevented by the timely action of the Dominion Government in setting aside as forest reserves the wooded slopes where the great rivers of the interior of the Dominion have their origin. On the east slope of the Rocky Mountains over 20,896 square miles of non agricultural land have been thus reserved, for the double purpose of regulating the run-off and of providing a perpetual supply of timber to meet the ever-increasing needs of the prairie settlers. In the Railway Belt in British Columbia smaller reserves have also been set aside, chiefly for the purpose of maintaining a steady flow in the streams on which the fruit-growing industry is absolutely dependent.

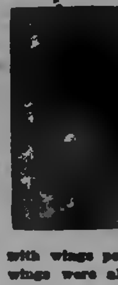
Black and White Scheme Dominates Summer Gowns

By MADGE MARVEL



THE magpie has superseded the rainbow in furnishing inspiration for feminine clothes. There is a rage of black and white in varying combination.

A group of women at a recent lawn fete reminded me of a flock of birds with wings pointed skyward. And the wings were all either black or white. Some came from the bodies of birds evidently manufactured instead of hatched, for where could one find a bird no larger than a canary with wings a crow might envy? As nature fakers, milliners reign supreme. Their ornithological collection is unique and defies classification.

White satin sailors have crowded the more picturesque Leghorn hats out of popular reckoning with women who seek novelties. They are trimmed with black birds, or black velvet bands and white birds. Sometimes the bird, black with long, slender wings, is poised for flight almost in the centre of the crown.

Such a hat was worn at a recent wedding by a stately matron whose costume of white charmeuse with postilion coat of black chiffon velvet created much comment and admiration, for she was exactly the type that could wear so unusual a costume and have it attractive.

The underskirt was close fitting, and the long tunic, also of the white charmeuse, was box-pleated and reached within four inches of the hem. The coat of black velvet was fitted to the figure, fastened with a slightly double-breasted effect, had a standing collar, ended in front at the waist line, in the style of an Eton, and had long postilion tails reaching nearly to the knees.

With the wearer was a younger woman, whose gown of white organdie had a tunic gathered full and flaring, edged with corded silk, the same silk forming the vestee and flare collar. The girdle was of black and was drawn close to the waist, making the flare of the tunic and the snugness of the bodice all the more striking. The hat was of white satin with two white birds, like bleached canaries, peeping at each other from opposite sides of the crown. The one directly in front faced his mate, which was perched in the centre back of the crown as if just crawling over the edge from the brim. A circular cape of black satin, lined with white and having a wide, white satin collar, completed the costume and was held by heavy black cords ending in tassels.

The fancy for black and white has extended to beach and bathing attire. The most exclusive and smartest bathing suits are very conservative affairs of black satin or silk, with three-quarter or full length sleeves, and with fairly high necks finished by a rolling collar. Some are entirely in black, made with tunics plain or scalloped at the edges, or with triple flounces or panniers. Others have white satin collars and vestees and cuffs.

One model, which will be worn at Bar Harbor, has a white satin collar edged with a fine frilling of satin extending each side of the fronts, where the suit buttons with white buttons, and finishing the turned-back cuffs of the full length sleeves. The capes to wear with these suits are either black with white bows or white with black bows.

Stockings and boots show the same combination. All color seems studiously avoided. One woman gave me the keynote for this severity when she said: "All the public beaches are made the parade ground for such atrocious suits in such outrageous color combinations that it is time there was a revolt from such bad taste."

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

What I Overheard.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

THE theft of Mary's jewelry gave me an insight into the cattishness of women in rather an amusing way.

One morning, soon after the enterprising gas man had walked away with Mary's rings and pins, I had occasion to go to the farther end of town in a trolley. There were two women just back of me whom I didn't know, and who, certainly, from the nature of their conversation, didn't know me.

"Did you see about Mary Hunt letting the gas man in?" said the first woman, "and he stole all her jewelry?"

"Yes," said the second, "wasn't it funny?"

The first woman laughed unpleasantly. "Did you read the list of things she lost?"

"Yes, that was what I meant. Wasn't it amusing?"

"Honestly," said the first woman, "I sometimes suspect people of faking robberies merely to boost their social caste a little. There are some people, you know, who regard a robbery as a distinction, for it presupposes something to steal. How very easy, too, to give out a long list of fictitious jewelry worth twice as much as it really was, and then every one who reads is dazzled and they think, 'My, what a lot of valuable stuff she had, didn't she?' Immediately there's a new respect in the community for the owner of so much wealth."

"Don't you think she had all that jewelry?"

"Certainly not. How could she?"

"Her people are well off, aren't they?"

"Her father's the leading lawyer here; but they live up to every cent of their means, and a little ahead. Mary and her husband, however, live very simply—in a flat I'm told."

"Do you know the husband?"

"No, I merely met Mary at a club meeting. She's a pretty little thing—the soft, clinging type, very young. I disapprove of girls marrying as young as she is—or was. I don't believe she's more than 18 or so now, and I understand they've been married a year and a half."

"How badly she must have felt at losing all that jewelry—wedding stuff likely that her husband and her people gave her——"

"If she lost it!"

"You mean if there really was any gas man."

"Oh, no, there probably was a burglary, and no doubt he got some simple, sweet, pretty, little things, but as for a genuine emerald ring and a pearl crescent and a diamond brooch and all the rest of the expensive things the paper mentioned last night I simply do not believe it. I've read these things before. It all looks very well indeed in print."

"I remember that a friend of mine once had a robbery. They really had nothing to speak of in the house, and the paper gave out the most astonishing list of things that had been stolen. It helped the man's credit some—it really did—my husband said so."

There was silence for an interval, then:

"You had a ruby brooch stolen once, didn't you?"

"Oh, my yes, dreadful shock it was, too. Why, do you know that brooch was the most marvellous thing you ever saw; just a thing of blood and fire, and it had 18 small rubies in it—think of it! It was a sunburst, an antique, too, worth a small fortune, and I've never found it."

There was an excellent opportunity there for something cattish, but the other woman didn't take it.

I smiled, but as I went out I contrived to drop my card very near them. I hope they got it.

Word Origins

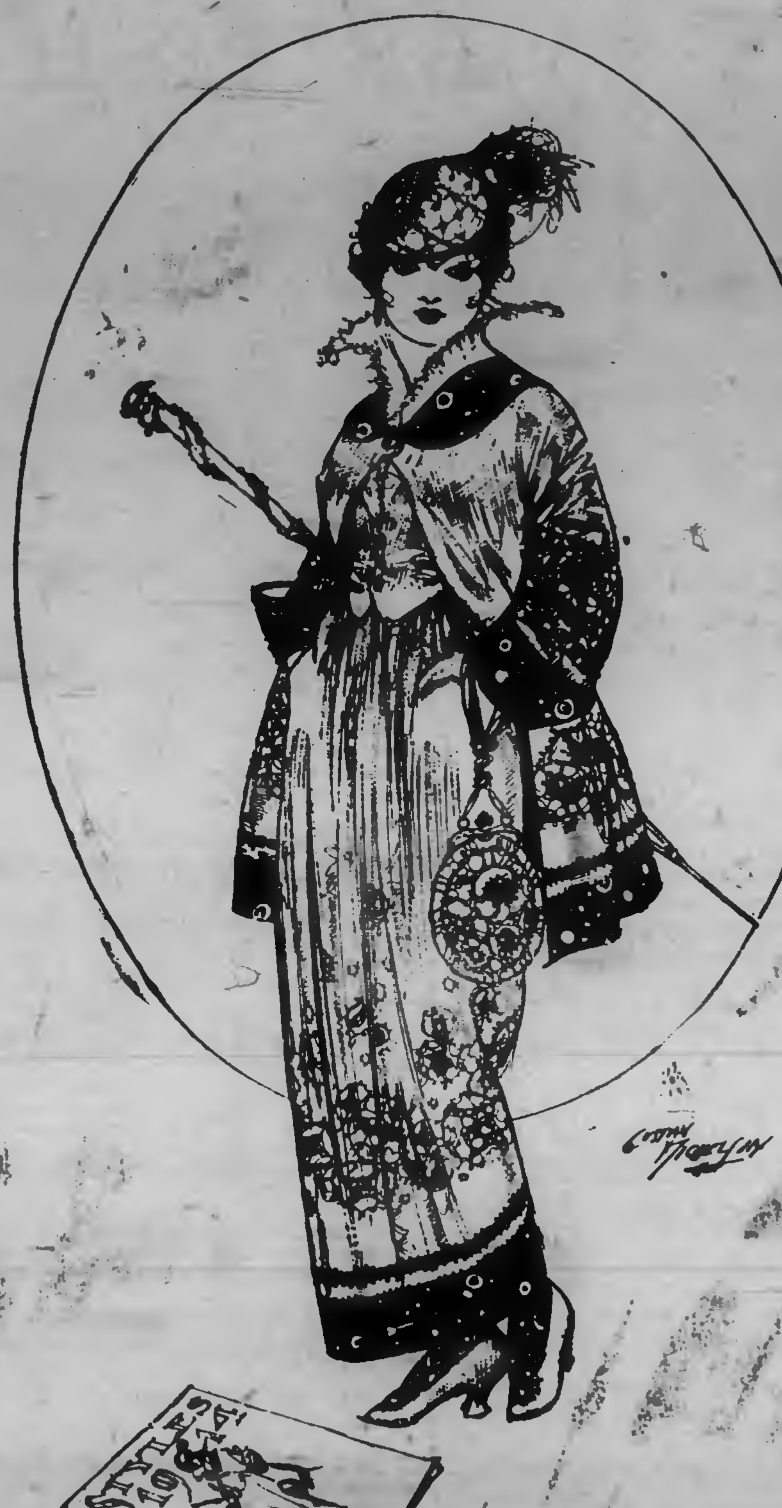
"Take no thought for the morrow" is now understood in an entirely different manner from that in which it was intended when the King James version was prepared. Then the expression "to take thought" was universal as a synonym for anxious solicitude.

Tabby, the name of a well known species of cat, was formerly atabi, which was a term used to designate a peculiar pattern in the silks manufactured in Persia. The markings in the fur of the cat resemble the pattern in the silk, hence the double application of the name.

Jovial once meant the type of character supposed to belong to all persons who were born when the planet Jupiter, or Jove, was in the ascendant. They were supposed to possess more of the cheerful elements of character than others, and hence to partake of the benign qualities attributed to the Father of the Gods.

WHAT WILL SHE DO WITH THEM?

By Michelson



OF course she isn't sure that she really wants them, and she hasn't the slightest notion of what she is to do with them, but they have come just the same.

As for the men, after ridiculing her helplessness without pockets, they will be profoundly amused at her new endowment and will say things that will be supposed to be exquisitely funny.

Naturally no one knows why pockets came or where they came from. But there is one thing that has no uncertainty about it at all. This is the manner in which she will GET AWAY with the pocket idea. She will find a method and form a habit of making them charming. She will be able to do this because she won't take them seriously. She will use them simply as part of her ART. And when the time comes you will hate to see them GO again.

Motor Cars and Our Crowded City Streets

By Winifred Black

DEATH the chauffeur is on the rampage again. There were 18 automobile accidents in the city and county where I live in just one day this week.

That day, to be sure, was Sunday, but think of it, 17 accidents, 37 people injured seriously and 5 killed outright. There's nothing queer or peculiar about this city and county at all.

What in the world has become of our common sense and our common humanity, to say nothing of our common manners?

What would you think of a man who grabbed his hat off and started down the middle of the street of any town in any county in this or any other country, yelling at the top of his voice: "Get out of my way, get out of my way—I'm in a hurry."

How many feet do you suppose that man would get in his wild rush before he was arrested, and how long do you think it would take to get him locked up in the insane asylum?

What's the difference between being crazy on foot and being crazy in an automobile? I can't see any, can you?

The Psychology of Speed.

What is there about an automobile that turns the head of every man in three who tries to drive one? I'm not talking about the joy idiots. I mean the plain, every day, sensible man who lives next to you or opposite to me.

Give him an automobile and he turns into a rude, ill-bred, overbearing, disagreeable, unreasonable, dangerous enemy to society.

What on earth is the matter with him?

Have you ever been to a police court on a good, busy morning, say Monday, when the automobile people came in to answer to the charges against them? You ought to go some morning; you'd get a brand new side light on human nature.

I went the other morning and spent two hours listening to several rather intelligent looking men and two more than usually intelligent looking women. They had all run over people in the public streets, and they were all very cross with the people for being run over.

One man had run down and killed an inoffensive old gentleman who was on his way home from church. The man who did the killing admitted that he was running rather fast—he wanted to get somewhere in the country in time for Sunday dinner, he said.

Yes, he saw the old gentleman when he started across the street; no, he was not confused or excited—he saw him quite plainly. He sounded the horn, sounded it not once, but three times. The old gentleman did not get out of the way—and—what could he expect? What was an automobile horn for, anyhow?

It turned out that the old gentleman was deaf. The man who killed him smiled triumphantly when that fact came out in the testimony.

An Unfortunate Accident.

He turned in his seat and smiled at the judge, as much as to say, "There, now, what did I tell you." And the judge, being a man of sense, from the point of view of a chauffeur, said that it was all a most unfortunate accident, so instructed the jury, and the man who had killed the old gentleman went home just a bit cross over the time he had wasted in such a trivial affair.

There was another serious case on the docket that same morning: a little boy had been run over and had both his legs cut off.

The machine which ran him down was driven by a woman, a rather pretty woman at that. She was not in the least disturbed over what she had done.

Oh, yes, she was sorry for the little boy; she had sent some one to inquire after him—once; no, she didn't take him into her machine when she saw she had hurt him—he was bleeding a good deal, and it always made her faint to see blood—and besides, she didn't know who he was, hadn't the faintest idea where he lived.

He was playing ball or something and ran across the street. No, she couldn't remember whether she sounded the horn or not; but she was quite sure he didn't even look around to see whether he had any right to cross the street or not.

What was she going to do, stay at home and never go out at all just because some mother didn't watch her own children and keep them in the house all the time where there was nothing to hurt them?

The other cases were more trivial—one elderly woman had been knocked down and hurt severely, but she was still alive. One little girl had had her arm broken and her face scarred—for life. The other people were simply hurt enough to keep them in the hospital some weeks and give them at least a fighting chance for life.

And not one of the people who had done a single one of these things seemed to have the least feeling of shame or remorse or disgrace.

I wonder why?

If you should take a pistol and shoot it off in a crowded street, nobody would listen to you if you said you just did it for fun and didn't mean to hurt any one.

What's your hurry, Mr. Chauffeur? Look, there's an old lady trying to cross the street—why should she wait for you?

Zip—crash—zim—around the corner, down the street as if the very fiends were after you. What's your hurry, where are you going in such desperate haste?

The Right of Way.

We own the streets, we run them anyway—we in the motor cars—and this is not France, where the laws protect the carriage people and make a man pay a fine for daring to be run over, but America, where the man in the car makes his own law.

But pshaw, what difference do a few little things like laws make anyway when you're running an automobile?

It's Sunday morning, the sun is shining, the wild flowers are in bloom, and all the birds of all the earth are singing. Hurrah! Let's all be joy idiots and go out and kill some one, or make a few cripples for life—just to show that we can do it.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

What Your Appendix Is; How Germs Infest It

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

APPENDICITIS is a disease which the general public has come to look upon as an invention in the doctor's thoughts—but, in truth, it is a very real and serious disorder.

Three factors have combined to increase its apparent occurrence. In the first place, medicine has made great advances in exactness in the last 20 years, and many disorders formerly described vaguely as colic and bowel trouble are now placed under the head of appendicitis. In the second, there is reason to believe that the disease is actually more prevalent than it used to be, and that the spread of influenza is in some way to blame for this.

In the third place, the widespread interest in appendicitis has caused a great many persons to produce its symptoms, or simulations of its symptoms, in themselves by efforts of the imagination. Some of the persons, who thus fancy they have the malady without really having it, are actually inspired by nothing more than a desire to be in the fashion.

A Germ Disease.

As every one knows, appendicitis is an inflammation of the queer little sac called the vermiform appendix. This sac, which is about the size and shape of a gloved finger, has no apparent use, and most anatomists agree that it is nothing but a surviving stump or root of some forgotten part that man at some early period of his development found useful. It makes off from a part of the intestines and lies on the right side.

So long as it remains empty and healthy it is unobtrusive and harmless. But so soon as it fills up with poisons, germs, grape seeds and other things of that sort, and begins to swell and fester, it becomes a source of danger and a possible cause of death.

Appendicitis is a germ disease. But, unlike diphtheria, typhoid fever and measles, it has no specific germ of its own. Almost any malignant microbe, in fact, may cause it. When a man has rheumatic fever, for example, some of the stray germs of that disease may wander into his appendix, set up an inflammation and kill him. Again, the same thing may be done by the germs of typhoid fever, common boils or influenza. The last named disease has been shown to be a precursor of appendicitis, and there is good reason to believe, as has been stated, that the recent epidemics of influenza have caused the parallel epidemics of trouble in the veriform appendix.

Often the disturbance these invading germs cause is very slight. Even when the number of germs in the appendix is enormous, and the resultant inflammation and suppuration have gone very far, the germ killing leucocytes of the blood keep up a terrific battle with the invaders. In an otherwise healthy man this battle is apt to be successful, but there is always the chance that the leucocytes may lose, and that the germs will spread from the appendix to the abdominal cavity in general, and, thereby, cause death by peritonitis.

Therefore, it is the custom of physicians, as soon as they are sure that a patient has appendicitis, to hand him over to a surgeon to have the germ-ridden appendix cut out. When it is cut out the germs in it go with it, and if the wound heals properly, as it does in the vast majority of cases, the patient recovers. This fact explains the general tendency to operate in appendicitis.

It is always possible that the patient will recover without an operation, but if the latter is performed in time his chances are innumerably increased. If we put his risk of dying from the disease itself at 100 we may put his chance of dying from the operation at five. It is thus plain that, in the long run, it is wisest to operate.

The Ordinary Symptoms.

The symptoms of appendicitis are pretty well known to every one. The disease usually makes itself manifest quite suddenly, and the first sign is commonly a severe and sharp pain in the abdomen, somewhere to the right of the centre line. A moderate fever accompanies this and other slight symptoms, such as a coated tongue, loss of appetite and vomiting follow. The muscles of the abdomen are drawn taut, and the pressure of the appendix causes excruciating pain. This is the general picture. In addition there are a hundred and one other indications, apparent only to a physician.

Therefore, if you are seized by a sudden and violent pain in the right side, somewhere in the vicinity of the belt, and this is followed by a slight fever, the customary symptoms of a sick stomach, it is best to send for a doctor at once. And if he advises you to go to a hospital for an operation do so without senseless protest or delay. In appendicitis the surgeon is often called too late, but never too soon. Five minutes delay may decide the issue between life and death.

Medical treatment of appendicitis at best is inexact and hazardous. No known drug is capable of going to a patient's diseased appendix and killing the germs therein, and no known course of treatment is capable of insuring him absolutely against attacks in future.

Those who oppose surgical interference base their own chief argument upon the fact that appendicitis is a self-limiting and self-curing disease. The leucocytes of the blood, as we have seen, engaged in a battle with the germs in the appendix as soon as they appear, and under proper condition this battle is likely to be successful.

Removal Only Sure Cure.

But it is plain that a man who has once had appendicitis has proved that his appendix is liable to the disease, and that, in consequence, his chances of having it again are above the average. The only man who is certainly protected against it is he who has lost his appendix. When the leucocytes are defeated in their battle, and there is no surgical interference, the diseased appendix becomes more and more inflamed, and the number of germs in it increases innumerably. Finally they break through its walls, and are scattered broadcast through the abdominal cavity. Here they find immediate lodgment in the peritoneum, the thin membrane which encloses, like a bag, the whole contents of the cavity. These poisons then disable the heart and brain, and the patient dies.

The death rate from appendicitis is slight. In the United States each year about 140 persons in every million die of it. In certain large cities the percentage is higher, and in other districts it is lower. In Germany, Austria and England it is decidedly less prevalent.

A few years ago it was the universal opinion, among the laity, that appendicitis was always caused by grape seeds or similar substances. Recent research scarcely bears out this notion. True enough, it is common to find foreign bodies in diseased appendices, but whether these things have actually caused the preliminary irritation, or have merely had their entry into the appendix facilitated by conditions already existing, is a matter for debate.

It is known, however, that severe blows over the appendix occasionally cause appendicitis. The resultant injury affords stray germs a lodgement, such as a scratch on the face affords a chance for germs to settle down and produce a boil, and after a while a general inflammation is in progress, and the surgeon has another task.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

For about three months I have been going quite regularly with a young girl.

I have been to her home and have met her parents, and have had her to my home to meet my parents.

I know she does not go with other young men, nor do I go with any other girl. In fact, she is the first girl I have ever been interested in.

Now, Miss Laurie, I want to find out, if possible, whether she cares anything for me. I want to marry her, but she has never given me the least encouragement.

I tried to kiss her a couple of times and she always goes to the other end of the room or as far away from me as possible. She says that she does not approve of kissing. It pains me very much when she repulses me. I feel that if she cared at all for me she would not treat me so coldly.

Please give me your advice as to the best way to win her love, for she means a great deal to me.

PERPLEXED.

WELL, Perplexed, what is it that perplexes you? I can't see. What do you want the girl to do—throw herself into your arms and say, oh, please, sir, marry me or I shall die?

Do you expect her to let you kiss her and make love to her as if she were some silly, headless creature who didn't care whether you really respected her at all or not? Of course she isn't going to let you kiss her—unless she's sure you really love her.

Has she brothers? From what you say of her I believe she has, and she's heard those brothers talk about the kissing girl, and her cunning little ways, and she's determined that no man on earth will ever have a chance to talk like that about her.

If you want her to marry you, ask her. What if she does refuse you? You will be hurt, of course, but some girls have to say "no" half a dozen times before they learn how to say "yes." But, when they do say yes they mean it.

Brace up, Perplexed; tell the girl you love her, and ask her if she could ever love you well enough to marry you. It isn't fair to keep her in the dark as to your real intentions. I think she'll say yes, myself. And then won't you be happy!

BISHOP OF KINGSTON AT ST. JOHN'S

Commencing last Tuesday evening and continuing until Sunday evening next, the Lord Bishop of Kingston, is conducting a series of Mission Services in St. John's Church. On Tuesday evening a large congregation was carried away with his Lordship's simple heart-to-heart talk in which he clearly set forth the claims of spiritual life, which one is apt to lose sight of in the hustle and bustle of material calls. The Bishop of Kingston is a churchman of broad minded principles, whose benign personality is simply irresistible. His kindly visit to Peterborough on this occasion is not only very welcome to Anglicans, but is hailed with pleasure by a large section of the community in general. His second service last night was heartily enjoyed by an appreciative congregation. His Lordship's work amongst us promises to prove gratifyingly effective, and he will always be a welcome sojourner amongst the Anglican community of this city.

GREAT EXECUTION BY BRITISH NAVY

London, Oct. 21.—A newspaper correspondent at Dover has sent to London some details of the recent operations of British warships off the coast of Belgium. He says that last Saturday night the ships watched a force of Germans digging trenches along the coast under a flare of light. The enabled the English boats to get the exact range, and at daylight they shelled the enemy's positions heavily. A Taube aeroplane was brought down, and later a Zeppelin, and it is declared that the guns of the British vessels accounted for 1,600 Germans in killed and wounded, in addition to putting six batteries of artillery out of action. In the meantime German submarines tried in vain to sink the British ships.

NO ELECTION FOR TWO YEARS

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—There will be no Federal election this year, and probably not until 1916. Talk of an early appeal to the electorate has ceased and the Government has decided to proceed with its administration until a more favorable opportunity than the present for an appeal. The decision not to hold an election came at a time when it had been almost decided to do so, and it is believed here that strong pressure brought to bear by prominent railroad magnates, business men, and financial interests constituted the casting vote against such a course.

The German Creed

Here are two quotations from the writings of Nietzche, the philosopher who inspired its political creed now current in Germany:

(1) "The dream is dispelled which made the state begin with a contract. What has he to do with contracts who can command, who is master by nature, who comes on the scene with violence in deed and demeanour?"

(2) "The essential thing in a good healthy aristocracy is that it should feel itself to be not a function but the end and justification, be it of royalty or of commonwealth—that it should therefore, with a good conscience, suffer the sacrifice of a countless number of men, who, for its sake, must be humbled and reduced to imperfect beings, to slaves, to instruments."

Such views have an interesting sound on this continent.

The Saucy Arethusa

The Arethusa, the ship which played so important a part in the fight off Heligoland, bears a famous name. In the great French war there was a famous frigate, "the Saucy Arethusa," which fought an action with a French vessel which was immortalised in one of Dibdin's most celebrated sea-songs. The Admiralty have ordered the following verses from that song to be engraved upon a brass plate and fixed in a conspicuous place in the H.M.S. Arethusa of to-day:—

Come, all ye sailors bold,
Whose hearts are cast in honour's mould,
While English glory I unfold,
  Huzza for the Arethusa;
  Her men are staunch
  To their fav'rite launch,
And when the foe shall meet our fire,
Sooner than strike we'll all expire
  On board of the Arethusa.

And, now we've driven the foe ashore
Never to fight with Britons more,
  Let each fill his glass
  To his fav'rite lass;
A health to our captain and officers true,
And all that belong to the jewel crew
  On board of the Arethusa.

All the ships which took part in the action off Heligoland, are to have the words "Heligoland, August 28th, 1914." painted in gold lettering in some convenient place.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain But Never Burns

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskawin, Alberta. "In this faraway section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck, you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache, or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

That German Invasion of England

Should Germany have any intention of invading England by sea, the invitation to attempt it is freely offered by Britain's navy, which is built up and maintained against just such an emergency as invasion. From what is known of the temper of British sea dogs no more welcome alarm could be sounded than that of invasion. Such an attempt would mean the exit of the German fleet from their home base, thus affording the opportunity for naval engagement on a decisive scale, which it is safe to say every man in Britain's home fleet is anxious for. Again, the world can rest assured that Britain's fleet would rather strip to inferior odds and "have it out" with her present skulking enemy than resort to wearisome (to the British) blockading tactics. So much ridiculous speculation is rife as to Germany using channel ports against England that one would imagine that Britain's channel fleet was in a stupid state of insomnia. We may rest assured, however, that our watch dogs of the English channel never sleep, and when occasion arises are ready and waiting for just such an occassion. One thing is quite evident, and that is, the use of mines and submarines are equally as well known to the British as to the Germans, and it is only a reasonable supposition to assume that were the channel ports controlled by Germany, whatever craft the enemy might get into such ports, overland or otherwise, would be subject to the same conditions which keep Germany's boasted second world-power fleet bottled up within the Kiel canal. In this hour of trial the British Empire has to be reckoned with on sea, and her enemies will do well not to underestimate her power.

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking.
Write for it.

INTER PROVINCIAL NEWS DESPATCHES

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 22.--One of the most widely known and hitherto most deeply respected citizens of the Soo, in the person of J. C. Richardson, has disappeared completely, and informations have been laid with a view to causing his arrest. His liabilities are said to run into several thousands of dollars, much of which is the money of small owners of cottage lots and such like. He was also secretary of the school board but the funds there appear to be intact. He was one of the pinnacles of the Methodist church and was the leader of the Local Option and Temperance Association.

London, Oct. 22.--There is hardly a provincial city or town of any importance but which has several thousand soldiers billeted in its homes. The citizens however appear glad to be of service to the government, and opinion generally is that the payment made by the military authority is consistent with the service rendered. The meals supplied have to come up to government directions in the minimum though the householder can give as much more as she pleases. The following is the government scale. For lodging in same house where meals are furnished, 18c; breakfast, six ounces of bread, one pint of tea with milk and sugar and four ounces of bacon, 15c; dinner (hot) one pound of meat, previous to being dressed, eight ounces of bread, eight ounces of potatoes or other vegetables and one pint of beer, 39 cents. The soldier if he pleases can order mineral water instead of the beer, though beer must be furnished if asked for. Supper which consists of six ounces of bread, one pint of tea with milk and sugar and two ounces of cheese, the sum of nine cents is paid. The order provides that you must furnish Tommy with food, but you need not cook it for him. Needless to say the British women are only too pleased to give the soldiers the benefit of their culinary experience.

London, Oct. 22.--"We will never sheathe the sword until Belgium has got back her freedom; until every inch of her soil is clear; until a treaty is made, not on a scrap of paper, but on a foundation behind which stand the millions of the British race." Amid tumultous cheering, the above resolution was carried by a vast audience of Irish Nationalists who crowded the Central Hall. The resolution was put by T. P. O'Connor, and the meeting was called for the purpose of expressing confidence in the leadership of John Redmond, and having done this it developed into a patriotic meeting at which Prussian militarism was strongly denounced.

Cobalt, Oct. 22. The provincial coffers have been enriched to the extent of about $2,600, before the deduction of expenses, following the hearing of the charges of illicit liquor selling which were preferred against 50 persons throughout the gold and silver district, while one defendant was sentenced to four months imprisonment in default of payment of his fine of $100. It would appear that the provincial authorities are confronted with a problem, a solution to which cannot be found in the legislation under which this district now lives. Raids, fines and imprisonment have been useless to stem the activities of the blind pigger, and in fact their numbers appear to swell in the same ratio as the demand for such refreshment as they sell increases. It was only as recently as the latter part of July that a big raid which involved 51 persons was made. Stiff penalties were imposed yet just three months later another 50 premises were raided, and the probabilities are that there were other resorts in existence that were not discovered. Though the fines imposed are heavy, the expense involved in running down these resorts, which is heavy and continuous is a serious burden on the general public at large throughout Ontario.

Toronto, Oct. 22.--"For this, thanks to God and Colonel Sam Hughes," is an expression used in the current issue of the Christian Guardian, the organ of the Methodist Church in Canada, in which is a description of Valcartier Camp. It is for the fact that the camp is "dry" that the Minister of Militia and the Almighty are to be thanked. The expression has caused not a little comment among readers of the publication. It is thought to savor largely of "Me und Gott."

Toronto, Oct. 22.--A new dailypaper, The Courier, has made its appearance on the streets of Toronto, and bids fair to become a favorite with the public. It is an illustrated paper and resembles very closely the Daily Mirror published in London. Each of its pictures are timely and well produced. It is under the managing editorship of Mr. Britton Cooke, one of Canada's ablest journalists. His association with the Courier should spell success for it.

"Keep the Shop Busy --Telephone."

The factory superintendent was about to lay off ten men.

The manager called several customers by long distance telephone, referred to the last-order, inquired if it had been satisfactory, and with this as an opening asked for more business. The plan was so successful that he called in his best salesmen, carefully drilled them, and put them to work at the telephone. By means of this systematic telephone canvass he not only got enough business to keep all his men busy, but had to work overtime.

If your business is not as brisk as you would like, why not turn to your telephone and "keep the shop busy?"

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor!

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

GREATEST BACKSTOP NOW PAINTS CHINA

Legless and With Broken Fingers Charlie Bennett Once Handled Delivery of Fast Pitchers

Just a breath of sadness will strike the old time fan when he reads the name of Charlie Bennett, that brilliant catcher, cut down in his prime by a railway train that took off both of his legs, and removed from baseball one of the chosen.

It was "Our Charlie" in Detroit, when he took the delivery of the mighty pitchers of the '80's. To-day Bennett lives in Detroit, following the art of the china decorator as a means of livelihood. Think of the hands that took the swiftest ball and the most puzzling curves of the game's best pitchers, daintily tracing a delicate flower upon china as fragile as an egg shell!

CHARLIE BENNETT

The name of Charles W. Bennett recalls Charlie Ganzel when this pair were catching Getzein, "Lady" Baldwin and Conway, the trio that pitched Detroit into a world's championship in 1887. Charlie Bennett, who is nearly 60 now, was born at New Castle, Pa. He first played with his home team. In 1877, the days of Spalding, White and Murnane, he joined the Worcester team. In 1881 he went to Detroit and became a part of that terrific hitting aggregation, remaining until 1888 when he joined the Boston club, where he was playing when injured.

Some idea of Bennett's wonderful catching—he was the only rival Buck Ewing had—is obtained from the printed records of his achievements. He led all catchers in fielding in 1882, '83, '85, '86, '87, '88, '89, and '90 and in his last year, 1893. His best year was 1890, when he fielded .940.

As a hitter, Bennett ranked high. He batted .300 for four years and was never far from that figure. His best year with the bat was in 1887 when the star catcher hit .363.

There were too many great players and pitchers for him to name the greatest, he says. The veteran raises an interesting point. He says: "I think the clubs carry too many pitchers to get the best results. Pitchers would be more effective if worked oftener. A pitcher does not get the chance he should with so many on the club. If worked oftener they would be more valuable to themselves

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon, and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

WHITE LEGHORNS ON FARM

Upon close analysis it will be found that Leghorns are better adapted to artificial conditions of poultry keeping than are most other breeds, says M. A. Jull in Weekly Witness. They are a small, active, breed with a nervous disposition, and they will stand crowding more than will general purpose or meat breeds. Under average conditions they will give better success when artificial conditions of hatching and rearing are employed than with heavier breeds. The chicks are easy to raise. For two years in succession we have raised far more White Leghorn chicks in proportion to the eggs set than can be said of our utility classes of poultry, so that, all things concerned, the White Leghorn will probably stand a little rougher use and more careless treatment than other breeds, although this is not to be considered as a distinct advantage. On the other hand, it is doubtful if the Leghorns will stand our winter weather quite as well as our Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or White Wyandottes. I think they should be given warmer houses, and then they will do practically as well. We have had some White Leghorn cockerels with some Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels in a colony house 8x12 feet, and it dropped to 20 below zero in the house during our cold snap. The Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels had their combs frozen, while the Leghorn cockerels had their combs frozen off almost entirely.

The chief value of the White Leghorn lies in its ability to produce broilers quickly, and more especially to produce a large number of eggs rather cheaply. Leghorn, of course, is not a good table bird except as a broiler, and the broiler business must be considered as a side line in poultry keeping. No attempts should be made to fatten Leghorns for roasting purposes, as such attempt usually results in loss of time and money. The great asset of the White Leghorn is its egg laying ability, and this is the factor which should be considered chiefly in keeping of White Leghorns on the farm or on commercial poultry plants. Then, above all, more important than breed is the strain, and by all means great care should be taken to select and breed as good a strain of Single Comb White Leghorns as is possible to obtain.

HORSES THAT SHIRK

Lack of Stoutness of Heart an Hereditary Taint

Nothing is more remarkable in modern racing than the number of young horses who will not try. That there are infinitely more rogues in training than at any former period is indisputable, says a prominent English racing writer. Once these rogues seemed to have become so, to have conceived a natural dislike of racing after taking part in hard finishes, sometimes, unhappily, ridden by jockeys who either had not the wit to know that they were beaten or the humanity to abstain from driving their unfortunate mount when he had done his best and could do no more. Nowadays, however, young ones shirk in their first season—a considerable number of them—and "born so" is the only explanation. I have a black mark against several of the young sires whose offsprings show a marked disinclination to run their races out; but this is a delicate subject, and I am not going to quote examples. A striking feature is that some of these sires who are apparently lacking in a chief essential, that of imparting gameness to their sons and daughters, were themselves—at least so far as is generally known—irreproachable when in training. A horse may have speed, stamina, soundness, and all sorts of other excellent qualities, but they are no use if he will not display them—if he curls up at the critical moment.

The Homing Instinct

The story of an Airedale terrier that tramped back home 125 miles is only one of many such instances. It did the journey in twenty days. Another dog was taken a hundred miles by train, and arrived back home in three weeks. A fox terrier was taken a distance of 180 miles, but within a few days it found its way to its old home.

A farmer took a horse from an island to the mainland three miles by boat, worked it all day, and let it loose. The next morning he was surprised to find the horse grazing near his stable, though still very wet.

A tame pigeon used to accompany a boy to school, a distance of one and a half miles, remain during lessons, and return with the boy.

A grey cat was taken by train over sixty miles, and yet returned home in a few days; one walked a distance less than 383½ miles in four weeks.

Wireless Waves and Birds

Observations made in sections of world where there are many wireless stations indicate that birds are disturbed in a singular way by the wireless waves. It is stated that gulls are particularly the principal sufferers, but that also large numbers of doves are in some way prevented from finding their way home when there are wireless stations in the line of flight. This strange phenomenon is attributed to some effect of the ether waves not yet understood.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of sound worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WEATHER PROPHETS VERY UNRELIABLE

That is, the Unscientific Forecasters Who Base Their Guesses on Mere Superstition

There is no other subject around which such a mass of signs and superstitions has arisen than the weather. In spite of the repeated assertions of the most careful scientists, people will probably go on to the end of time talking of "wet" moons and "dry" moons and looking for weather changes with the varying phases of the moon. Most meteorologists are inclined to say that the moon can have no effect whatever in the making of weather changes, while some will suggest that the only possible influence it can have upon the atmosphere is similar to the tidal effect upon the ocean waters, but that even this must be so slight as to be insignificant.

Another favorite superstition is that of the equinoctial gales. Careful calculations made by the observatory officials at Toronto, based on tables of gales in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces covering a period of forty years, lead them to the conclusion that there is no marked increase in storm energy about the time of the equinox, and that a term of any other six days in any other part of the months of March or September would give quite as many gales occurring, whether moderate or heavy, as is shown to have taken place between the 19th and 24th.

There are millions of persons who cling faithfully to the belief that if rain falls on St. Swithin's Day—July 15—it will rain for forty consecutive days thereafter, and that in spite of the incontrovertible scientific fact recorded by the Greenwich Observatory for twenty years that not once did it rain for forty days.

On a par with these superstitions is our belief that a certain cold day is the "coldest ever"; and that when it gets really warm, "it never was so hot," and also that "the weather of the country is changing." It is of interest to note the information on this point in an article on "Meteorology in Canada" as reprinted from the Journal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada:

"In order to gather information as to whether any attention was paid to Meteorology and Climatology in the early days of Canadian history, the 'Relations of the Jesuits' have been carefully gone over, and all references to climate phenomena have been copied and arranged under various headings, such as winter, summer, drought and other phenomena; and from these notes it has been possible to draw conclusions as to the general character of the seasons in Canada during the 17th and 18th centuries . . . and a study of the notes leads to the conclusion that the only valuable information to be gathered from this source is that this climate then was just about the same as it is now."

LORE OF THE SEA

Drastic Rules Which Portuguese Sailors Once Observed

Some remarkable advice to seafarers is given in an old Portuguese book, published for the guidance of mariners. Amongst other things it deals with the rights of captains to assault sailors, and the methods in which the attacks are to be legally met.

The sailor is advised to bear calmly any verbal abuse that an irate skipper may hurl at him, but if words passed to blows he was to run away into the bows and firmly take his stand beside the anchor chain.

Should an infuriated master, armed with a belaying pin or other lethal weapon, chase him to his stronghold, the mariner was to slip around to the farther side of the chain. Should he still be pursued, he was to call his messmates to witness that the master had broken the rules by circumventing the chain.

Then, at last, he was to defend himself! Other little matters of discipline are set out, and they show a noble effort to make the punishment fit the crime.

The ship's clerk, a privileged person who acted as bookkeeper, purser, and cargo-master, was liable to be branded in the forehead, to lose his right hand, and to forfeit all his property if he made a wrong entry in the ship's book, or connived at such an entry.

A seaman who fell asleep on his watch was only put on a diet of bread and water, unless the offence was committed in hostile waters. In that case he must be stripped naked, flogged by his messmates, and ducked thrice in the sea.

If he were an officer, however, he would only lose all food except his bread, and have a pail of water flung over him from the head downwards.

SOME SIMPLE FACTS ABOUT THE MOON

A Lesson in Astronomy About Our Nearest Neighbor in the Realms of Space

Did you ever stop to consider that every bit of light the moon furnishes us, is stolen?

The moon is simply a distributing agent for the sun. And the habit of stealing light has become so firmly fixed with the moon that part of the time when it can't get all it wants from the sun it actually steals a little from the earth!

When the earth was a mass of gas and lava-like liquid whirling through space at a terrific rate, a big drop of the material of which it was made formed on one side and was thrown off into space, according to the best theories. The drop that fell off kept whirling, too, as it went off into the air. It followed the general path of the earth, only revolving a bit slower. As the earth cooled, the big drop cooled, too. And that drop became the moon we know now. It is the nearest thing in the heavens to the earth—being only 238,800 miles away.

A person can learn more about the moon by observing it through a simple pair of opera glasses than can be learned about any other heavenly body, studied in any way. A survey shows that it is completely covered with big bumps and hollows. These are great mountains and valleys. In the early days of astronomy it was believed that there were seas and lakes on the moon. This has since been disproved by closer investigation.

Of course, then, there being no water on the moon, there is no life there. That is the reason there are no changes in the surface, astronomers say, although it was believed for a long time that there were changes.

The mountains, some of which are very high, one at least reaching an altitude of 20,000 feet, are most interesting to study. More than 500 of them have been mapped by astronomers and half of these have been actually named.

The Earth, as it Would Look to an Observer on the Moon.

Besides these mountains there are immense plains. These are mostly given the names of seas and the names are far more poetic than those of the waters of the earth. Thus we find the Sea of Tranquility, the Sea of Showers, the Sea of Serenity, and the Bay of Rainbows.

We see only half of the moon. The other half has never been seen by man. And the reason for this is that the moon moves around the earth in exactly the same time that it takes it to spin once on its axis—27 days, 7 hours, 43 minutes and 11½ seconds. As the earth turns the same way there is always just one side of the moon turned toward us.

The moon gets its light from the sun. In other words, it simply throws a reflection of the sun's light. But few persons are aware, however, that it also reflects light from the earth. There are certain times when it does, however.

You see, the entire surface of the moon is not always where the sun's light will be reflected to the earth. This is what gives it the different shapes we see. Suppose, for instance, we observe the moon in what we call the "new moon" shape. The sun is just shining on one edge of the great moon-ball. But if we look closer we see a rather dark shape that continues the spherical outline of the whole moon. This is sometimes called the "old moon in the arms of the new moon."

But that darker reflection, scientists declare, is really the reflection of the earth's light on the moon. Or rather a reflection of the sun's light reflected from the earth. This is of course, not so bright as the direct reflection of the sun on the moon itself.

The most important influence of the moon on the earth is in the action of the tides. This is caused by gravitation and is the force or pull exerted by the rotation of the moon on the water on the surface of the earth. Both the sun and the moon pull the water up as they near the earth. And the fact that the two are pulling, sometimes together and sometimes in opposite directions, is what makes the higher tides—the spring tides—and the less high tides—the neap tides.

The largest and heaviest apple ever grown in the world, says an English paper, was raised last summer in England. It was a Gloria Mundi, and was produced by the same grower who a few seasons ago raised the famous giant apple of the same variety, which measured 26 inches in circumference and weighed 27 ounces. Sent for sale in Covent Garden on October 19, 1909, it realised the astonishing price of $70 by public auction, breaking all previous records. The new record-breaker weighed no less than 32½ ounces. This wonderful apple was grown in an 11-inch flower pot, the tree producing six mammoth fruits at the same time. It was this very tree which bore the giant of 1909.

ORIGIN OF CHECKS

It is claimed that the business world owes the idea of the bank cheque to nothing else than London's fogs.

These fogs are sometimes of such a density that the pedestrian can see but a few feet ahead of him. Something over a hundred years ago the attacks of thieves and highwaymen in the streets of London upon bank messengers and tradesmen going to settle their bills became so frequent in times of heavy fog as seriously to interfere with the conduct of London's business.

It was easy for the thief to ambush his victim, club him into insensibility, rob him, and then disappear into the murky atmosphere, with little likelihood of apprehension or identification, or that passers-by would witness the commission of the crime or be of any assistance in the chase.

In these circumstances bankers, tradesmen, and others set their wits to work, with the result that the bank cheque was devised for the payment of debts. Soon the highwaymen found that a few pieces of paper were all the booty they were likely to get from a "hold-up" of even a wealthy tradesman. Accordingly the activities of daylight robbers soon came to an end, but the convenience of the bank cheque proved so great that it survived not only in London, but was adopted throughout the civilised world.

USES FOR RUBBER

Vast Field For the Use of the Article if Cheap Enough

Improved and cheapened methods of manufacture are likely to bring about an enormously increased demand for rubber. Such a cheapening in the art of manufacturing rubber goods will doubtless ultimately result in everybody possessing a waterproof coat and durable galoshes and it is more than probable that rubber soles will ultimately be turned out to last as long as leather ones and be equally agreeable in use. Furthermore, the rubber sponge, which can be made in every size, shape and degree of hardness, is likely to prove a successful competitor of the ordinary bath sponge, it having one great advantage over the latter, the fact that it can be thoroughly sterilized. A reduction in price is also sure to bring about a greater demand for tennis balls, golf balls and footballs, as under such circumstances, our athletes will no longer content themselves with using old balls for practice, as is now generally the case. It will probably also not be long before rubber mosaic floors will be generally used in houses, as they are now on board the latest ships; more especially is the flooring admirably adapted for the requirements of bathrooms, where it is vastly preferable to the cold cement and wood now generally in use. Furthermore, both the hoofs of our horses and our own ears would be greatly spared if the streets of our great towns were paved with rubber, and there is no reason why we should not also live to see this. The whole question is merely a matter of price and organization.

SPREADING THE GOSPEL

Touching Incident of Canada's Far North Related by Pioneer Bishop

Writing in Church Life the Bishop of Athabasca described a trip through the Peace River district and a visit to the Indian Mission of St. Peter, far up toward the Arctic Circle. Concerning the latter place the Bishop said:

"One of the most interesting and sincere Christian Indians is a poor old man of remarkable intelligence, but unfortunately totally blind. I was much impressed to see a young boy, named Arthur, who, but a year ago, was brought to our school, knowing not even the simplest rudiments of Christianity, but whom I shortly afterwards baptized, leading by the hand, through the steadily falling rain, the poor blind man, to Church; to worship and to be present at the Confirmation. The child so recently brought to Jesus that he might bestow His blessing, and the aged follower of Jesus, hand in hand, through the sodden grass to Church, the child leading. Was it not a vision of the triumph of the Christian faith?"

The Reward of Kindness

"It requires a lot of courage and charity to be philanthropic," said Sir Thomas Lipton. "I remember when I was just starting in business. I was very poor, and making every sacrifice to enlarge my little shop. My only assistant was a boy of fourteen, faithful, willing and honest. One day I heard him complaining, and with justice, that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to go to any place of worship on Sunday. 'There's no chance of my getting a new suit this year,' he told me. 'Dad's out of work, and it takes all my wages to pay the rent.'

"I thought the matter over, and then took a sovereign from my carefully-hoarded savings and bought the boy a stout, warm suit of blue cloth. He was so grateful that I felt repaid for my sacrifice. But the next day he didn't come to work. I met his mother in the street and asked her the reason. 'Why, Mr. Lipton,' she said, curtsying, 'Jimmie looks so respectable, thanks to you, sir, that I thought I would send him round town to-day to see if he couldn't get a better job.'"

GLAD NEWS TO ALL WITH BAD COLDS INSTANT RELIEF. FEW HOURS FOR CURE

Nothing Known to Science is so Invariably Sure to Cure as "Catarrhozone"

Just Breathe Catarrhozone!

The Ozonated Air Cure, better known as "Catarrhozone" is death to colds.

Its health-laden fumes contain the leading balsams of the pine woods.

Soothing and antiseptic, it gives instant relief—stops gagging, hawking and sneezing.

Mucous and phlegm are cleared away, breathing made easy, and Catarrh symptoms entirely disappear. Delightful and pleasant is Catarrhozone, simple to use because you breathe it—sure to cure colds and catarrh because it destroys the cause. Doctors say nothing is more scientific, nothing possesses such might of merit in winter ills.

"To clear a cold out of your nostrils and to be able in a minute or two to breathe freely again, I can't conceive of anything being better than Catarrhozone," writes J. H. Galvin, of Port Limon, C.R. For any sort of Catarrh, throat trouble or Bronchitis, Catarrhozone is a specific. I know scores of people who use Catarrhozone and all speak wonders of its merits."

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Within ten minutes after an application of Dandesine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first —yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded and scraggy just moisten a cloth with Danderine, and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing - your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25c bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as soft and pretty as any — that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all — you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Judgment Reserved.

At yesterday's police court a young man named Revoy was charged with stealing a sum of money and a gold watch. The first witness, a local foundry man, recognized the prisoner. On the night of Oct. 12th he had about $65 on his person. He "knocked round the bars" a good deal during that night and possibly spent $6 or $7 on drink. He identified a gold watch produced in court as his property. He did not remember seeing Revoy that night. He missed his watch and money next morning. On Thursday, following the date first noted, Monday, he saw Revoy who, with Curtin, had taken witness home on Monday night and asked the prisoner where his money was? Revoy at first denied taking the money but afterwards admitted taking it. When asked "At what time did you meet Curtain in the hotel?" witness replied, "You'll have to ask Curtin, he was sober and I was drunk." Mr. W. Curtin, next witness said prisoner offered to help first witness home. Mr. Widdifield spoke strongly for his client the prisoner. Judgment reserved for one week. The magistrate clearly intimated that he considered Revoy guilty.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

IT IS NOT THE ENGLISH CUSTOM TO DESCEND TO REPRISALS

Interesting Stories of Military Customs and Happenings Told by Field Marshall Sir Evelyn Wood--Humane Principles of British Forces are Proverbial--First Duty of a Citizen is to Train for Defence of His Country

Field Marshall Sir Evelyn Wood told some interesting stories at a meeting which he addressed in London recently. Referring to the charges of brutality made against the Germans, he said:

"We need not fear that the British soldier will ever descend to making reprisals. Thirty-five years ago I was commanding 13,000 men, who fought against 23,000 brave Zulus for five hours and a half. They attacked with the undaunted courage of savages who did not realize the effect of modern rifles, and the following morning we buried, besides a vast number elsewhere, 884 close up to one face of the laagered wagons behind which our men had stood. When the fight was over I desired a few friendly Zulus who were attached to the companies under my command to collect men of every regiment promising for each uninjured man a 'stick' of tobacco. Next morning there was a group outside my tent of magnificent specimens of humanity. When I got all the information I required I said: "Two months ago when after a skirmish our doctors were caring for your wounded, and a few days later you overwhelmed our camp, killing 1,500 of our men; you did not spare those who had been attending on your brothers. Will one of you say why I should not kill you?" Said a young giant, 'May I speak, O Master? You answered because it is not the English custom.' ask why you should not kill us; I

First Duty of a Citizen.

"This is the character our race bears in the North, South, East and West Africa, and I hope it may ever continue, for reprisals are not only useless but would sensibly lessen the grand fighting value of our soldiers. The troops at the assault of Delhi in 1857, when embittered by horrible stories, many exaggerated and at Juensi in 1858, were seen deliberately lifting women and little children out of the line of fire. Such conduct is a part of our national inheritance."

Sir Evelyn said this war would test Britons and deepen the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion to duty. Our people are realizing now that the first duty of a citizen was to fit himself to defend his country. That we had yet time to repair our refusal to admit the accuracy of this truism was due to the unceasing watch of our seamen in mine strewn waters.

Story of the Kaiser.

"In June, 1889, when the German Emperor saw the Aldershot Division carrying out tactical operations, pointing to some cavalry in the distance he asked me, 'How many squadrons have you got in the field to-day?' I replied, 'Sixteen, your majesty,' when he said, 'If you will came and see my manouevres in September I will show you 64 squadrons.'

"We admit the Germans are brave, but so far they have not ridden over our regiments. Their horses are all trained for two years before they are passed into the ranks, and while it is impossible for one man to fight three or four with a certainty of success, I have always believed that individually our cavalry are far better horsemen, and will certainly attack without hesitation twice their number of Germans.'

Sir Evelyn told a good story of Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien "In 1882 I was left 12 miles outside Alexandsia with six battalions to cover a frontage of over 5 miles, which in the previous week had been penetrated by the enemy. I sent an order into Alexandria for a smart subaltern, who to go to the Khedive's stables and all the saddler's shops and produce in one day some mounted infantry. Smith-Dorrien received the order at 1.30 p.m., and at 6.30, with 81 horses, 3 mules and a donkey, carrying Derbyshire men, the Sherwood Foresters, few of them had ridden before, he passed me at Razlag, went out into the desert, engaged an Egyptian outpost killed its commander, and never let them inside our line again."

French "Always Reading."

A story of Sir John French followed: "When I inspected his regiment he being a major, many years ago, I asked the Colonel, pointing to him. 'Of what value?' He seplied, 'For ever reading military books.' He has been reading ever since. In 1885 when we were retiring across the Bayuda desert, after the failure to save Gordon, I saw Major French coming back the last man of the last section of the rearguard."

MR. GREENLAW QUITE CAPTIVATES HIS AUDIENCE

Mr. A. E. Greenlaw, the Renowned Basso-contante, who sings every night at Dr. Gordon's "Plain Talks" in St. Paul's church, is captivating all who hear him. It is seldom one has the privilege of hearing so deep and rich a voice in this city. The nearity of his varied numbers is enhanced by a phenomenal clearness of enunciation. The following press notices speak for themselves:

"One of the musical treats of the summer months was the engagement of Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, the noted Sarnia, Ont., singer, who sang in this city on Sunday last and on the Sunday preceding. Owing to the large crowds which have been drawn by his presence the services of the First Baptist Church were held in the Opera House on Sunday, but even that place was not large enough to accommodate those seeking admission, as several hundreds were turned away. Mr. Greenlaw completely captivated the audience with his magnificent voice of wide range, fine quality and perfect control. His three numbers in the evening were executed with that rare ability which has made this singer famous throughout the country. Mr. Greenlaw left for his home in Sarnia, Ont., on Monday, but returns to the First Baptist Church, Regina, on October 1st where he has an engagement for one year to take charge of the choir."— B.C. Saturday Sunset, Vancouver.

"The element of complete surprise entered into the programme of the concert of Mrs. James and the choir of the Nassau Street Baptist Church, given to a crowded house on Monday evening in aid of the Church Organ Fund. Albert Greenlaw rendered four solos. The depth and richness of tone and pure quality of his well-trained bass voice, together with the happy choice of songs so enraptured the large audience that he was compelled time after time to respond to encores. His rendition of the 'Crucifixion Song' and Tosti's 'Good-bye' were especially fine"—Winnipeg Free Press.

"Mr. Greenlaw, the basso, was particularly good, and is undoubtedly one of the best that has ever been heard in similar work in Milwaukee" —Milwaukee Sentinel

"How well the singing of Mr. Albert Greenlaw was appreciated at Massey Hall, Sunday, Feb. 21st, 1904, was shown in the fact that hardly a person left the hall when the announcement was made that he would sing an extra selection just before the closing."—Toronto Globe.

GERMANS FIGHT LIKE A FOX.

Paris, Oct. 21.—Col. Rousset, the military critic, declares this morning that the German system of fortifications is excellent and furnishes a protecting curtain for heavy artillery and the insiduous machine gun. "It is not chivalrous warfare" he writes, "but it is practical. Our enemy fights not after the fashion of the lion, but like the fox, and we should make use of some of these ideas."

Petrograd Announces That German Losses Total 200,000--Defeat Of Foe Is a Disastrous Rout Germans Reinforced in West, But Allies Hold Firm

GERMANS PLAN TO CAPTURE WARSAW UTTERLY FUSTRATED BY RUSSIANS

The Foe Was Ambitious of Wintering in the Polish Capital --Russian Cavalry Win in Brilliant and Daring Ride. King of Saxony's Equerry is Taken Prisoner. Austrians Defeated

London, Oct. 23.—The German advance in Poland has been transformed into a hasty, and in some parts, a disorderly retreat," says the Petrograd correspondent of The Daily Mail. This retreat was primarily caused by a Russian cavalry force from Novo Georgiewsk, which crossed the Vistula and turned the enemy's left flank.

The retreat of the German's left wing will force their army operating around Korienica and Ivangarod to retreat also, as well as the army in the vicinity of Sandomar and to the southward. Thus the ambitious plan to capture Warsaw and possess both banks of the Vistula during the winter campaign has been completely wrecked."

Have Not Counted Prisoners

The Petrograd correspondent of The Post, in telegraphing a review of the situation on the Russian front says:

"Only time is now required to reduce the Germanic forces in their entirety from a fighting army to a

The proof came to these people when they tried the easy test of quitting both tea and coffee for a while and used

Defeat of the Germans In Poland Grows More Serious Every Day

Official Russian Bulletins Confirm Disaster to German Arms Beyond the Vistula, At Many Points Retreat Has Assumed the Proportions of a Complete Rout--Killed, Wound and Prisoners Already Numbers 200,000

PETROGRAD, OCT. 23.—THE GENERAL STAFF IN AN OFFICIAL BULLETIN MADE PUBLIC TODAY, SAYS THAT THE GERMAN FORCES ARE IN FULL RETREAT FROM THE VICINITY OF WARSAW AT SEVERAL POINTS IT IS STATED THE RETREAT HAS TAKEN ON THE PROPORTIONS OF A COMPLETE ROUT.

MANY OF THE GERMAN HEAVY GUNS HAVE BEEN MIRED, AND CAPTURED BY THE PURSUING RUSSIANS. SO PRECIPITATE HAS BEEN THE GERMAN RETREAT THAT THEY HAVE BEEN FORCED TO ABANDON THEIR WOUNDED AND ALSO LARGE QUANTITIES OF HOSPITAL STORES. THE CRACK GERMAN CORPS HAVE BEEN TERRIBLY DECIMATED BY THE RUSSIANS, WHO ATTACKED FROM BOTH THE FRONT AND THE FLANK. THE RUSSIAN CAVALRY ARE HARRASSING THE RETREATING ARMY AND TAKING NUMEROUS PRISONERS.

PETROGRAD, OCT. 23.—REPORTS REACHING THE MILITARY HEADQUARTERS FROM THE FRONT SAY THAT THE TOTAL LOSSES OF THE GERMANS, KILLED, WOUNDED AND PRISONERS, IN THEIR OPERATIONS IN POLAND TO DATE, NUMBER 200,000. FIGHTING IS STILL IN PROGRESS ALL ALONG THE LINE OF THE VISTULA, AND IS CONSTANTLY INCREASING IN MAGNITUDE.

"DUTCH WILL NEVER FORGET THE EXAMPLE OF BRITISH HONOUR"

THE HAGUE, OCT. 22.—A PROMINENT DUTCH POLITICIAN REFERRING TO THE FALL OF ANTWERP, AND EXPRESSING THE GENERAL FEELING HERE TOWARDS GREAT BRITAIN, SAID—

"HAD ENGLAND SENT TROOPS TO ANTWERP THROUGH THE SCHELDT, MATTERS ASSUREDLY WOULD HAVE TAKEN A DIFFERENT COURSE, FOR ANTWERP WOULD HAVE BEEN ABSOLUTELY IMPREGNABLE.

"TO DO THIS, HOWEVER, GREAT BRITAIN WOULD HAVE HAD TO VIOLATE THE NEUTRALITY OF HOLLAND, AND HOLLAND WILL NEVER FORGET THAT GREAT BRITAIN, AT THE COST OF HEAVY DISADVANTAGE, RESPECTED THE 'SCRAP OF PAPER' AND KEPT CLEAR OF THE SCHELDT. THIS GREAT EXAMPLE OF BRITISH HONOR IS ONE WHICH HISTORY WILL REGARD WITH ADMIRATION AND THE DUTCH WITH EVERLASTING GRATITUDE.'

FOE BRINGS UP FRESH TROOPS AND THROWS THEM AT THE ALLIES' LINES

In Desperate Attempt to Break Through at All Costs-French Line Holding Firm--Heavy Losses--Gaps in Allies' North Western Lines Being Thoroughly Closed Up --No Fear That Foe Will Ever Reach Dunkirk or Invade England

London, Eng., Oct. 23.—Paris despatches late this afternoon state that Germany has evidently thrown into the firing line at several points in France strong reinforcements with the evident object of breaking through at any cost. They are apparently absolutely fresh troops. So far the French line is holding firm with heavy losses.

Paris, Oct. 23, 4 p.m.—The Germans are making desperate attempts to break through the allied lines in the vicinity of Arras, and especially along the Channel. This was admitted by the War Office here today when it was stated that the fighting was of so severe a character that at various points it had been found advisable to cede territory and at others ground has been gained. It was plain from the tone of the despatches that the battle in the neighborhood of the Channel is still some distance from a decisive result. Despite the severeity of the fighting the entire situation is described by the war office experts, as encouraging. There is no reason to fear that the Germans will get to Dunkirk, they declare, and therefore little chance of a military invasion of Great Britain.

Paris, Oct. 23.— 4 p.m.—The German declaration in the official communique telegraphed from Bordeaux this afternoon was that the gaps between the allied position in the north were being closed up. The German attack, it was announced, continues to be of the most violent character. As a result the fighting is more or less pendulum in character. Various gains are offset by various losses of territory, it was stated, it being found advisable to make slight recessions where the German assaults are the most severe.

On the whole, however, the lines are maintained without any very great change, despite the severe nature of the fighting. The enemy continues his great activity in the vicinity of Arras

RETIRED FROM U. S. MEDICAL CORPS RATHER THAN REMAIN SILENT

Major Seaman Preferred Liberty of Speech to Military Service, Especially When Silence as to German Atrocites Would be a Crime Against Humanity--Vivid Pen Picture of Places Where Thousands Are Suffering

Major Louis Livingston Seaman is not only a military man, and a medical man, but a traveller and journalist of international repute. His work in the Balkans and elsewhere in connection with the Red Cross movement has made his name familiar all over the United States. He went to the front some weeks ago as special correspondent of the "Independent," New York, one of the liveliest weekly journals in that great city. In view of the statements written by him concerning German atrocities in Belgium, the publication of which the pro-Germans in the United States considered as a virtual breach of neutrality, Major Seaman was requested by the authorities to explain his action, as it is contrary to regulations for an officer of a neutral country to express himself definitely as a partisan in favor of either combatant.

"On the day of the Zeppelin massacre at Antwerp, Major Seaman sent the following letter to President Wilson :—

> "My Dear Mr. President :—
> Preferring liberty of speech to military or other service where it is denied, especially when silence would be a crime against humanity, I herewith tender my resignation as a member of the Medical Reserve Corps of the United States Army."

(The following correspondence, within the limits imposed by the censorship, hints at the pitiful sufferings of which Major Seaman has been a witness, and which impelled him to take this action.—Editor.)

"I am writin from the Hotel de la Paix in Ghent, the city whose people for two thousand years have done so much to wring from their rulers the concessions upon which constitutional government is founded. In feudal days it was one of the firsy of the Free Cities of Europe, and its historic monuments bear witness to the part it played during the Reformation. I believe no city on earth has contributed more to the development of civilization than Ghent. Here, the 24th of December next, it was the purpose of representatives of Great Britain and the United States to celebrate in the old Convent des Chartreux the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Tready of Peace between England and America. Two months ago in the Royal Casino and Palais de Fete the international exhibition of flowers was held. France sent many roses of rarest hue and variety many of which still adorn the extensive exhibition grounds, and in the Palais de Danse, the French Opera Company made gay music.

"But what a change, the Palais de Fete is now a Palais de Misere, transformed almost in a night. Fourteen thousand desolate peasant women and little children, refugees from the country near Louvain, Malines, and Termonde, whose husbands or fathers or brothers had been butchered or driven to parts unknown, their homes pillaged and burnt, their crop destroyed, their only possessions the clothing on their backs, have been, or are now, being sheltered here. Could the reader but here for himself the tales of suffering and horror that comes from every mouth, or see the ghastly wounds of many, even among the little children, that testimony to the agonies they have undergone, his indignation would know no bounds.

"I have participated as an officer or observer, in eight campaigns, in almost every country in the World. But in none have I ever witnessed such exhibitions of atrocious barbarism as this war is furnishing.

"Thank heaven there is another side to this dark picture. In that Palais de Fete, now the Palais de Misera, the Red Cross is doing a notable work of rescue and mercy. Refugees are carefully treated, clothed and housed. Many had not tasted food for two days preceding their arrival here. M. De Bruyne, who so ably represented the Burggmaster at the meetings of the International Peace Celebration in a systematic way, sending them some fourteen thousand in number, to suburban villages where houses are open to them, shipping them to England and so distributing them that they may eventually be rapatriated. I was informed at Ostend that children under fifteen would not be received in England as refugees, but I have since learned that the Government is welcoming them all.

"The work of the Red Cross is

HEALTHY, WRINKLE-FREE SKIN EDSY TO HAVE

A dull, drab, muddy complexion, or an over-red, blotchy, pimply or freckled skin, can by a quite simple, harmless and inexpensive method, be changed to one of flower-like radiance and purity. One ounce of common mercolizedwax, sold by druggists generally, will remove the most unsightly complexion in from one to two weeks. By its remarkable absorptive power, the withered, faded or discolored layer of thin filmskin which hides the healthier skin underneath, is gradually flecked off in tiny, almost invisible particles. This is done so gently there is no inconvenience, and no trace is left on the skin except that of enhanced beauty. The wax is smeared on like cold cream before retiring, and removed in the morning with warm water.

If the skin be wrinkled or saggy, a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel, will be found most effective. Combining both astringent and tonic properties, this tightens the skin and braces up its supporting muscles.

THE FOOLS OF MODERN SOCIETY

St. Paul's Church was again crowded to the doors last night, when Dr. Gordon gave his hearers a masterly oratorial effort on the subject "Fools of Modern Society." The reverend gentleman handled his self-appointed task without gloves and drove home the truth that a big proportion of every community is discarding the bone for the shadow in their race for social precedence in wordly frivolities the whole of his exceedingly clever and unsubstantial pleasures. During discourse he held the undivided attention of his vast audience, with whom he unquestionably left considerable food for reflection as to their responsibilities to God their community and their neighbors.

Mr. Hesseberg in piano solos and Mr. Greenlaw in song were at their best, and delighted the audience with entrancing vocal and instrumental melody.

That these meetings will prove a power for good in the whole community is not to be doubted. The great truths of life and their practical application in the thousand and are brought home in a plain and forceful way that make a very deep impression. There is something helpful for everyone who heard. Though the meetings are not evangelistic in form, the evangelistic note is the prominent note and the dominant message is a powerful call to the Christ-life. All hearts are stirred too by the gospel messages in one experiences of every day existence those grand old songs which are sung night after night by Mr. Greenlaw.

A consecrated life of such ability and earnestness as Dr. Gordon possesses, engaged in a work of magnificent conception, should mean something for Canadian Citizenship throughout the length and breadth of Canada.

Tomorrow afternoon a meeting will be held in the Grand Opera House at 4 o'clock when Dr. Gordon will give a heart-to-heart talk to men. At eight-thirty a second service will be conducted, when Mr Gordon will deal with his "Question Drawer," an interesting subject at all times. Mr Greenlaw will sing on both occasions. Go and hear him.

Two Germans Threaten To Blow Up Canadian Train

Montreal, Oct. 23. The already tense feeling here against Austrians and Germans was heightened today by the detention of two German naval reservists, who are accused of causing a disturbance on a Quebec train last night.

The men held, who gave their names as Frederick Fisher and Severus Youssen, got on the train at Quebec.

Two Russians were sitting immediately behind the pair and according to them Fisher and Youssen drank to the health of Germany and the downfall of her enemies. Then the men threatened to blow up the train that a few of the enemies of the Fatherland might be put out of the way according to the Russians, each of whom understood German slightly.

The conductor was informed by the Russians that the two men were dangerous, so he telegraphed from St. Martin Junction to Montreal, informing the police that two dangerous Germans were on the train.

Itinerant Medicine Vendor

At Glasgow Vincent Butt-Sergeant, a well dressed elderly man, was fined $25 for having sold patent medicine without having a license to sell medicine subject to duty. The packets were accompanied by a pamphlet which guaranteed them to cure a number of diseases.

Two Costly Paupers

There died in the Mid-Lothian Asylum an old woman, aged eighty-one, who was chargeable to the Parish of Rathe for fifty-two and a half years. In that time she has cost the parish about $6,560. Another old woman, who died recently, had been an inmate of the same establishment for about forty years, and had used up no less than $4,965 of the parish rates.

SWEAT SHOP FACTS

A Woman Gets Eighteen Cents For Making Twelve Shirts

The Duchess of Marlborough gave a most remarkable object lesson regarding the English sweat shop system, at her home, Sunderland House, when a dozen representative sweated workers told their stories to a large audience.

The first woman said she had been a chain maker for fifty-two years. Holding up a heavy chain, she simply said, "This used to be 87 cents a hundred; now it is $1.25." Next she showed thirty-one links attached to a ring which were made for two cents—"a good lot," as she described it. She gave place to the match-box maker, who said she was now paid six cents a gross instead of the four cents, which was previously given. "It takes one and a half hours to make a gross, not losing a minute." Shirt-making was represented by a woman from the West End of London. Unfolding a coarse shirt, she remarked, "A dozen of these right out before earning 18 cents! Last week me and my husband sat from 5.30 in the morning until 11 at night and made fourteen dozen shirts, which came to $2.62, out of which we had to pay 37 cents for the machine, and 45 cents for cotton."

Another woman had quite a cheerful countenance. Holding high above her head the uppers of two shoes, she remarked, with a laugh, "These are what are commonly called 'pumps,' but what we call in our factories 'patent dress shoes.' I got 20 cents for twelve pairs, and it takes me an hour to make two pairs." The most I can earn is $1.50 or $1.75 a week, working very hard from morning till night, and finding my own machine and cotton.

COLORS IN PICTURES

A Violet Line Gives an Impression of Shading or Projection

In looking at a picture the eye cannot assess each color which makes up the pattern at its exact value. This is chiefly due to the irremediable restlessness of the eye, and to its memory, which is always impressed with an after-image of any color at which the eye's lens is directed. Add to this that the eye focuses differently for different colors, and that all portions of the retina are not equally susceptible to color—and it will be realized that hardly any color in a picture, or a landscape, leaves the same impression that it would have if detached from all surroundings. These are some of the obvious truths of which painters make empirical use on their canvases.

A physiological explanation is attempted regarding the violet line which the post-impressionists use to outline objects in order to give the impression, without shading, of rotundity, or of projection. The effect of such a line is best shown in one of those numerous "still-life" studies where a vase stands among fruit. If the picture is viewed at such a distance that the line just disappears the vase will not only stand forward from its background, but also will appear to be shaded at its edges. The effect is most marked if the vase is painted in a yellow, or in some color well removed from blue, or, which will answer as well, in some washed-out color approaching a grey.

There are actually several factors producing the illusion. One is that when, for example, the prevailing hue of the colorfield of the picture is yellowish, the rays reflected from the yellow are mixed with those reflected from the blue, and the retina of the eye, which is the palette where they are mixed, receives an impression of grey. It is thus deceived into believing that some space exists between the object and its surroundings.

Hot Air as a Polisher

Hot air is utilized nowadays in polishing processes. The articles to be treated are placed in a basket in a centrifugal machine driven at a very high speed, and heated air is blown from a pipe through the basket. A high polish is thus produced very rapidly. Nickel-plated articles that have become tarnished are made bright in a few minutes. Wet metal, fresh from the bath, needs no preliminary drying, for the current of air dries and polishes it at the same moment.

THE PRICE OF BEEF

The price of Canadian beef for home consumption is determined by the price obtainable for the beef that is exported. For all practical purposes the price of Canadian beef cattle is determined in the Chicago market, and the price of beef in Chicago is determined by competition in the markets of Europe. The United States, Canada, and Argentina produce, or can produce, far more than their own people are able to consume, and the surplus must find consumers on the other side of the Atlantic, especially in Great Britain.

If the price of beef falls low in Europe the farmers of America will curtail production until the prices goes up again; if it rises high the farmers will increase their output until it begins to fall. In other words, the amount of beef produced in Canada depends on the relation between demand and supply in Europe.—Toronto Globe.

One tablespoonful of ordinary honey will go as far as six of sugar.

MODERN METHODS OF SAVING TIME

Machinery Replaces Human Brains and Hands—Office Work Reduced to Minimum

Novelties in the line of devices to save time and trouble in offices have come out in great numbers recently.

A new adding machine has an adding capacity of 10,000,000 and a weight of 13½ pounds. It adds, subtracts, and multiplies. It has seven keys, and an error-correcting device.

Another adding machine has a "Mezzanine" attachment, a keyboard on runways above the regular keyboard, which is said to make easy the solution of involved arithmetical operations.

An electric calculating machine, automatic after the necessary key has been depressed, multiplies, divides, and subtracts with astonishing speed.

Another calculating machine computes pay rolls, total time, and total pay, based on wages per week, per day, or per year.

An addressing machine about the size and weight of a typewriter prepares an address on a metal plate almost as quickly as it could be written on paper with a typewriter.

A special paper for the stencil addressing machines can be placed in any typewriter and written on in the usual way. The striking of the type makes the necessary perforations in the paper, which can then be placed in an ordinary stencil addressing machine and invoices, wrappers, cards, and other matter can be addressed by the thousand in exact facsimile of typewriting.

Presses for baling waste paper effect great savings in offices and large buildings, as every scrap of waste paper is utilized and sold.

A new carbon paper has an uncarbonized strip five-eighths of an inch wide, running lengthwise on the surface edge. This obviates soiling the hands and the paper.

A check machine writes a word at a stroke, impressing the same in indelible characters in the body of the check. It is impossible to remove the letters to raise the amount.

A coin counter will count hundreds of coins in a few minutes and deposit them in tubular containers.

A coin-banding machine will deliver a given amount of change in any variety desired, from one cent to $200.

There are several new envelope-sealing machines with capacities for sealing from 1,000 to 10,000 per hour sealing from 1,000 to 10,000 per hour.

A compact machine has been devised which will sign five checks simultaneously in exact facsimile of the original.

A new stencil machine will cut the name and address of a customer, name of shipper, routing, and special marks in a material much like cardboard. It cuts from five-eighths to one inch high.

FOR EVERY DRIVER

A Few Sensible Suggestions Generally Approved by Horse Owners

See that the harness fits the horse properly.

See that the horse is properly put to wagon.

See that mane is pulled out from under collar and fore-top from under brow-band.

See that tail is pulled out from under breeching.

See that breeching straps are tight enough to back the wagon instead of by saddle or crupper.

See that the turn buckle is adjusted properly, and thus avoid pole being carried by horses.

See that the blinders are properly adjusted and do not rub the eyes. (The use of blinders should be discouraged.)

When putting a team in harness see that reins are buckled together first, and pass same on to driver's seat, then fasten breast straps—next fasten the holdbacks and then hook the traces.

When unhitching a team—see that traces are unfastened first—then the holdbacks—next the breast straps then unbuckle the reins when ready to unhitch—this precaution will prevent many accidents.

Walk horses when leaving stable for a few blocks, also after watering, and thus avoid serious illness.

When horses go lame—first examine foot, and remove shoe if necessary.

Never drive with a slack rein.

Never jerk your horse with reins

Never strike your horse over the head.

Never allow anyone to tease or tickle your horse—the horse only feels the torture and does not understand the joke.

Never beat or permit anyone else to beat your horse, as nothing so soon makes him permanently vicious.

Never stand your horse in a draft.

Never start your horse with the whip.

Never back your wagon with the brake on.

Never drive your horse with a shoe off; if too far to drive to stable, go to the nearest horseshoeing shop and have it attended to.

When starting a load, always have a tight rein on your horses.

Always water horses before eating.

BLANCHE BATES spoke her mind about the sex drama in New York the other day. And when Blanche Bates speaks her mind, the town sits up and listens attentively. Which is a good thing—for the town.

Blanche Bates is not only a genius and a beauty, but she's a woman—a real woman, who can think with her heart as well as her head, and do both kinds of thinking at the same time.

"I must express my utmost disdain for the play of today," said Blanche Bates. "The lecture room and not the theatre is the place for the topics they discuss. You may ask why the managers produce such plays.

"The answer is that as long as the public seeks them they will be produced. It is unfortunate, but it is your fault as part of the public, and I take great pleasure in telling you so."

Hands across the continent, Blanche Bates! I wish I had seen your face when you told the smug listeners that it was all their fault and that you were tickled to death to tell them so.

Every woman of any experience in the world feels just as you do about the sex play. I'm getting so that I'm afraid to go to the theatre at all—unless I take a pair of ear muffs and some automobile goggles along. And goodness knows I am no frail, shrinking blossom that must be protected from the harsh winds of the plain truth.

The trouble with the sex drama and with the sex book and with the sex lecture is that none of them tell the plain, everyday truth at all.

To listen to them you would think there wasn't a thing in the world but sex. No hot weather to bear, no struggle for the price to pay for steak for dinner, no ambitions, no good books, no handclasp of true friends—nothing, anywhere in all the wide and spaceless universe, but the rustle of scant petticoats and the tramp of a trousered leg. Are we all going crazy—or what is the matter?

What the "Sweet Thing" Thought.

I met a sweet thing in faded blue the other day. She wore a bit of liberty silk for a skirt—it wouldn't have made enough for a sensible doll's dress if you took it to pieces—and her waist was a wisp of lace. There was more weight to her ear-rings and her beads than there was to all her clothes.

Her eyes were blue as violets and her cheeks were pink with the dawn of life, and she wasn't a day over 18. She was "enthralled with life." I know she was—because she told me. "It is so deep," she said, "and so terrible, and so beautiful." She had found out all about it from Hat Pin Liz at the foot of the hill in the Dreadful Street. She didn't call the woman Hat Pin Liz. She spoke of her as one of the Unhappy Sisters. But I knew who it was she meant, when she told me about the look of woe in the eyes of the Unhappy Sister.

Hat Pin Liz always did have wonderful eyes. They are really rather overpowering—when she has been without her morphine just so long, poor soul. I used to be about the police station a good bit at one time—the police matron is a friend of mine. That's how I knew Hat Pin Liz and many others of her kind.

The Sweet Thing told me all about her—and how "wonderful" she was, and how sad, and how she was going to try to help her lead the "Higher Life." She asked me what was my stand on the double standard of morality—she went into details about it. And I gasped and looked all around—for we were standing in the street, and some of these details were really rather—er—a—but she didn't seem to mind in the least. I must say nobody else did—any more than they minded her wisp of a waist or her very low neck and interesting ankle.

All the girls were so interested in "the Higher Life idea," the Sweet Thing said. They were getting up classes about it and next week she was going to have a tea and have some one talk on the various aspects of the sex problem. She said she was going to ask the young men of her acquaintance to come. She felt that they needed instruction.

I asked her if I might wear my veil at the tea, and she stared and said: "Why, yes, of course; it isn't fancy dress."

When she had gone I went down and got my friend the police matron and we sent for Hat Pin Liz and had a talk about it. I was a little inclined to laugh, but the police matron was very serious and Hat Pin Liz was positively tragic.

What "Liz" Thought.

"Lord!" said Hat Pin Liz, "hain't none of 'em got no mothers? Why, I felt like taking that kid over my knee and giving her a good, motherly spanking; I felt she'd be the better for it. Why, she, and them others that was with her, was brazener than any of the ones we know down in my part of town.

"Whatever is the matter with 'em—little young chits like them setting out to tell me how much happier I'd be if I'd be good, and wanting to ask me how it comes I ain't. What's the world coming to?"

The police matron said she didn't know—she said she had wondered and wondered.

"They come down here in droves," said the police matron, "asking and pitying and 'uplifting.' Why, there isn't a girl in the district that can't give an imitation of one of their talks from start to finish. I never saw anything like it. Where are their mothers; do they know about it; why don't they lock them up in the garret—or something?"

I could have told the police matron—good, honest, kindly, downright soul that she is—just exactly where the mothers were. They were at the theatre, seeing sex plays, or at "afternoons," discussing sex problems, or curled up on sofas somewhere reading erotic novels.

What on earth are the women all coming to? Actually the men seem to be the only decent-minded creatures alive today. You can get a man to talk with you for five minutes without his saying something that makes you look around for your ear muffs. It is the women who buy the erotic novels and the women who jam the theatres to see the sex plays.

We may be able to pull through somehow with this generation, but—dear me!—what kind of creatures are the boys and girls of the next generation going to be with their weird mothers?

Once, in a dreadful London slum, I saw a beautiful little girl baby—not yet two years old—drunk and reeling.

Somehow, whenever I think of my little friend, the Sweet Thing, who is trying to drink so deep of the bitter draughts of life, I think of that poor, pretty baby—drunk and helpless—and then I cannot laugh any more about it.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN in doubt serve ice cream is a safe dessert rule for warm weather. Ice cream is always welcome, and requires so little culinary skill to make that the freezer should be part of every household's kitchen equipment.

For freezing ice creams and sherbets use three portions of ice to one of salt.

In making frappes use twice as much ice as salt, and for moulding or for freezing mousses or parfaits make the mixture half and half ice and salt.

After pouring the cream mixture into the can let it stand for five minutes, slowly turn for 10 minutes, and turn rapidly till the cream is frozen. Then take out the dasher, scrape all the cream away from the sides of the can and pack solidly in the centre, cover and pack in ice and salt until ready to serve.

If you wish to mould it, fill the mould as full as possible and pack the cream hard. When freezing cream extreme care should be used to see that no ice gets in the freezing can or mould.

Tie the cover securely on the mould, and if you are doubtful about its snugness brush it over with parafine. Then bury in the ice and salt and leave from one to four hours.

Mousses and parfaits are never stirred while freezing. They are put in the mould and left standing in the ice.

Water ices include the sherbets and frappes, and are all stirred while freezing. Mousses will require leaving in the pack for at least five hours.

There are two foundation ice creams, the French and the Philadelphia.

The former contains eggs and is cooked. The latter is made without eggs and is never cooked.

SUNLIGHT BEST COMPLEXION TONIC

Tessa Kosta

This Prima Donna Finds Loveliness in City Parks

By ELEANOR AMES

PATRONIZE the same beauty shop Venus did—the one over which Mother Nature presides.

To clear the complexion, walk two miles in the early morning, between 6 and 7 o'clock. Walk in the open country. Bathe your face in the dew that lingers on the grass in some shady nook. Bathe your lungs with fresh air taken in allopathic doses of 30 deep breaths at the end of each quarter-mile.

To make your figure slender, walk at a quick pace and roll on the grass after the last mile is finished. Roll with the joy and abandon of a young colt, over and over and over. Dance in the sunbeams, with your tootips just touching the ground and your finger-tips trying to touch the clouds.

Back home, take a warm tub, followed by a cold shower, a brisk rub down with toilet cologne or diluted alcohol, and eat a light breakfast of fruit, toast, an egg or two—and no coffee. Then, begin the work of the day.

That is how to be beautiful, as Tessa Kosta explained it to me the other morning while we swung along the winding paths of the park in the early morning sunlight with the birds singing in the leafy branches overhead and the squirrels scampering across our shadows. And, if Miss Kosta owes her own superhealth and radiant good looks to following the rules they are to be commended to all womankind.

Miss Kosta believes that being a prima donna involves more than the possession of a voice and knowing how to use it. She believes a singer should be as attractive to look at as she is charming to listen to. She holds the theory that good looks are no gift from the gods, to be carelessly received and paid no more attention to. She thinks they must be nourished and trained and petted quite the same as the voice.

How to take exercise in the open country in the crowded city might prove a puzzle to some persons. Not to Tessa Kosta.

"What are the parks for," she argues, "if not to give the country to city folks? We don't half appreciate our parks. I always ask where the parks are the first time I visit a city. Then I pick out the biggest and most secluded one and make it my exercise ground while I am in the town.

"I'd rather paint my cheeks with good, fresh, pure blood flowing through my veins than with all the rouge that can be made. I'd rather put the sparkle of health in my eyes than drop in some brightening drops with a glass dropper.

"I am for Nature as a beauty doctor, first, last and all the time. She was the only one the goddesses knew. She will massage one's cheeks and brighten one's face and lighten the heart and clear the head at the same time, and all the fee she asks is ambition enough to get out where she can treat you.

"The early morning is the best time to visit Dame Nature for your beauty treatment. Then she is fresh and smiling and enthusiastic, and has fewest disturbing elements about her.

"As for exercises, don't try to follow any that have been diagramed for humanity in a book. If you are in sympathy with your surroundings when you are out in the open sunlight with velvety grass under your feet, the cloud-flecked sky above you, and the birds twittering in the trees, you will find the best exercises for your needs suggesting themselves as you skip about over the ground.

"My theory of exercise is this: If you don't feel happy in the exercises that you take, you are just as well off without them.

"Don't pay for artificial sunlight as a complexion tonic when the real article is so accessible.

"Don't go searching after a beauty shop where they give oxygen treatments.

"Get out in the air and take it first hand."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 106.

Beauty and Burglary.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"PETER," came the message over the telephone, "come home at once!"

"Great Scott!" I exclaimed, "what's the trouble?"

"I—I'm in hysterics," said Mary, proving it by a wail, "and—and I—I can't tell you. We've been robbed!"

"Robbed!"

But Mary had hung up, and I seized my hat and departed for home. Mary has a habit of greatly exaggerating her mental states, but she rarely telephones me to come home unless she is in the last stages of agitation.

Our apartment, fortunately, is not very far from the office. Mary was standing at the window and waved wildly as I bolted up the stairs.

She had been crying, and she was a great deal more nervous than I had expected.

"What in the world has been stolen?" I asked.

"Oh, Peter!" exclaimed Mary, and let it go at that.

Now there are times when a man must possess his soul in patience or forfeit all his rights to the title of self-respecting husband. One is when his wife merely reiterates his name in tragic accents and refuses to divulge the details of her agitation.

"We've been robbed," reiterated Mary hysterically.

"Yes, you've said that before."

"By a man——"

"Presumably," I agreed, merely to encourage her. It annoyed her, however, and she stamped her foot.

"Don't try to be funny, Peter," she said, "when I'm so excited and nervous I could scream. Of course it was a man, and it's no time to try to be funny."

"What's he taken?" I tried again.

"Everything!" said Mary.

I sighed impatiently, and Mary began to cry.

"Tell me," I said, "in your own way, how it happened."

"He said," began Mary, "that he was a gas man come to inspect the fixtures."

"Oh, Mary, Mary," I groaned, "how often have the newspapers warned every housekeeper to ask for a man's credentials, no matter what he says—telephone, gas, or whatever he claims?"

"He—he was so different, Peter! He was terribly good-looking and so pleasant. Honestly you'd never dream that he wanted to get in just to steal. And he went about so softly and gentlemanly from room to room, talking about the dangers of asphyxiation and praising my housekeeping and everything—such a nice, clean, wholesome fellow."

"Yes?" I encouraged.

"That after a while I didn't bother to follow him about from room to room, for he seemed to know his business."

"Of course," said I grimly.

"And I was busy. And I did forget to ask him for his badge, he talked so much."

"That, of course, was his game. What's gone?"

"All my jewelry," said Mary, with a heartbroken sob, "everything you've given me, and all the things mother gave me when I was married. To think how brazenly he marched out through the kitchen and said good-by in the pleasantest way with all my things in his pockets."

I whistled, for Mary had some very lovely trinkets, things that were very valuable both from a worldly and a sentimental viewpoint.

I went into her room and looked around. Everything was in faultless order, but the jewel case was empty—quite empty.

"All because he was good-looking!" I commented bitterly. "Oh, Mary, Mary, when will women learn not to let their sentimental viewpoints run away with their common sense?"

Boo, the exclamation used to frighten children, is a corruption of Boh, the name of a famous Gothic general. It has been used as a terror word for many centuries.

The word bumper, signifying a drink or pledge, was originally a toast to the Pope in Roman Catholic countries, drunk in a full glass just after dinner au Bon Pere.

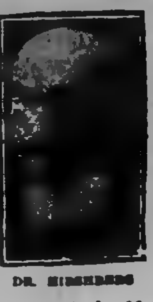
The administration of the oath to witnesses is a practice of very high antiquity. It is mentioned as of common use among the Jews at the time of the exodus from Egypt.

"Secrets of Health and Happiness"

What Growing Pains Are; Why They Demand Care

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins



DR. HIRSHBERG

"DOCTOR," says Mrs. Grundy, "Johnny has been having growing pains for some months. I cannot make him go to school."

"What ails you, my boy?" inquires the kindly doctor.

"My knees hurt awful," replies the harassed boy.

Thereupon the brute of a doctor becomes non persona grata with Mrs. Grundy, for he firmly says:

"There are no such things as growing pains, Mrs. Grundy. You have done your child a serious injustice. He should have been brought to this hospital clinic six months ago."

Growing pains are among that swarm of destructive phrases handed down from the days when men glibly gave a name to everything—whether they understood it or not. Then, by sheer repetition, just as unfounded opinions are spread as gospel truth, these domestic terms come to be accepted without further investigation.

Growing pains are as impossible and unthinkable among human beings as they are in growing flowers or weeds.

The child that has a pain of much duration has a lurking, perhaps hidden, dangerous cause. Only too often it proves to be tuberculosis of the hip bone, the spinal column or the other bony parts.

Next to the insidious assault of this grand marshal of the Demons of Death come a whole host of bone, muscle, nerve and joint ailments, which have been encouraged to extend in the little one's anatomy, because his relatives were pleased to say he had "growing pains." Infantile paralysis, muscular wasting or "atrophy," sugar disease, gall, acute arthritic fever, yes, even pneumonia, scarlet fever and appendicitis have been thus allowed to do their cruel work.

The lack of logic in elementary education may be at the bottom of this. The very women and men who are so quick to say "growing pains" see the hair grow, the nails grow, the face become round, and the whole body increase in bulk, in length and in breadth. They never feel pain themselves in these extensions of the flesh. Indeed, they never hear any one speak of soreness or tenderness even of the bones and the hinges of the human frame. Yet they believe, when a child complains, that it has "growing pains."

It is a sad commentary upon modern education that most people are so prone to argue from one blackbird that spring is here, that one clear Fourth of July means all clear ones. It is this antiquated point of view that makes quacks and domestic Galens think that camomile tea given to a hundred recovered victims of typhoid fever really cured the typhoid fever.

Of course, because a thousand fever sufferers improve under a given treatment is no evidence at all that this particular treatment exorcised the poisons. Not a bit of it! It is often necessary to collect the true state of affairs from a hundred thousand instances of a given malady under a thousand different conditions. Even then you only discover that what various "authorities" employed did no good and no harm.

It was in this way that diphtheria antitoxin was found to cure and to prevent that old human enemy. It was in this way that lockjaw and typhoid antitoxin, camomile tea, cancer salves, consumption cures, ice baths, liver pads, belts and other "believed in" remedies were discovered to be absolutely useless.

If your child complains of mysterious pains don't be like Mrs. Grundy and say: "Growing pains." Take your child to a doctor. You may save your loved one years of suffering.

The Good Night Story

The Disobedient Princess — By Vernon Merry

ONCE upon a time there were six beautiful princesses who were very disobedient to their father, the King. He told them never to dance except at the royal ball, and, yet, every morning they had to have new slippers because the old ones were all worn out. Every night they were locked in their rooms, but somehow they managed to get out. It became so great a mystery that the King offered the hand of one of the princesses to any one who could solve it.

Many men tried, but all failed and lost their heads. And then there came an old soldier into the kingdom and a kind old fairy met him and told him about the disobedient princesses. To help him the good fairy presented him with a cloak that made him invisible.

Soldier Frank saw the King. Readily the King granted him permission to try to solve the mystery. Soldier Frank met the princesses and found them all beautiful, and before they said good night the eldest princess offered him a drink of wine. Now, the good fairy had told Soldier Frank to be very careful, and so he asked permission to drink the wine in his own room.

But Soldier Frank did not drink the drugged wine, he poured it out of the window and lay down on the bed. Soon he heard a slight noise, but he did not move. From under his lashes he saw the princesses standing all around him. The littlest one was frightened to dance that night, but the eldest calmed her. She said: "See, he is asleep and cannot follow." So they left the room, and Soldier Frank got out of bed, put on the cloak that made him invisible, and followed them.

Unseen by them he beheld one of the princesses touch a hidden spring in the wall, and there opened at her feet a stairway that led down into the earth. One by one they stepped down, the youngest last, and Soldier Frank followed. Down the steps they went and along a passageway until they came out upon a wonderful forest where the leaves of the trees were of silver.

Soldier Frank broke off a leaf as evidence to prove his story, and the crack made the youngest princess very fearful, but the eldest calmed her fears. Into a wonderful orchard, where the fruit was all of gold, and beyond, through a lovely garden, where the roses were rubies, they went. Soldier Frank followed and broke off tiny branches that his story might be believed. Now the youngest always became afraid at the noise of breaking branches, but the eldest always reassured her.

At last they came to a wonderful castle, and there the princesses danced all night with the handsome princes. Then when their slippers were all worn out they went back the way they had come. Soldier Frank slipped ahead of them, and when they came in they saw him apparently asleep on the bed. They thought he had been there all the time.

Next morning Soldier Frank went to the King, and, laying out his silver leaf, the golden apple and the ruby rose, he told his story and solved the great mystery. Then the King gave him great lands and riches for reward, and asked which one of the princesses he would marry.

"I am old," said Soldier Frank, "so I choose the eldest princess." So they were married and lived happily ever after, and the other princesses were severely punished for their disobedience.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have been going with a young man for nearly six years. He is good to me, and does all he can to please me, and he never bothers with any other girls. But sometimes when he comes to see me he seems awfully distant and quiet. I wonder if he wants to visit me. But when I say that to him he gets hurt. KATY.

HE'S all right, but you don't understand him, is that it? Well, put yourself in his place a little while and see if you can't solve the mystery.

Perhaps he's so much in love with you that he's afraid of himself, and that makes him seem strange and ill at ease. Such things have been known to happen.

Perhaps he is just tired when he acts peculiar, and maybe he is simply a quiet fellow who doesn't talk and doesn't know how to talk. In that case you'll have to make up your mind to do the talking for the family.

Why do you say anything to him about it? If he didn't like you he wouldn't come to see you. If he is a nice chap who seems to want to please you, and you want to be pleased by him, don't make a mystery out of what is doubtless a very simple matter. Take him as he is—for what he is—and don't bother. That's my advice.

Annie Laurie

INTER PROVINCIAL NEWS DESPATCHES

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 22.—One of the most widely known and hitherto most deeply respected citizens of the Soo, in the person of J. C. Richardson, has disappeared completely, and informations have been laid with a view to causing his arrest. His liabilities are said to run into several thousands of dollars, much of which is the money of small owners of cottage lots and such like. He was also secretary of the school board but the funds there appear to be intact. He was one of the pinnacles of the Methodist church and was the leader of the Local Option and Temperance Association.

London, Oct. 22.—There is hardly a provincial city or town of any importance, but which has several thousand soldiers billeted in its homes. The citizens however appear glad to be of service to the government, and opinion generally is that the payment made by the military authority is consistent with the service rendered. The meals supplied have to come up to government directions in the minimum though the householder can give as much more as she pleases. The following is the government scale. For lodging in same house where meals are furnished, 18c; breakfast, six ounces of bread, one pint of tea with milk and sugar and four ounces of bacon, 15c; dinner (hot) one pound of meat, previous to being dressed, eight ounces of bread, eight ounces of potatoes or other vegetables and one pint of beer, 30 cents. The soldier if he pleases can order mineral water instead of the beer, though beer must be furnished if asked for. Supper which consists of six ounces of bread, one pint of tea with milk and sugar and two ounces of cheese, the sum of nine cents is paid. The order provides that you must furnish Tommy with food, but you need not cook it for him. Needless to say the British women are only too pleased to give the soldiers the benefit of their culinary experience.

London, Oct. 22.—"We will never sheathe the sword until Belgium has got back her freedom; until every inch of her soil is clear; until a treaty is made, not on a scrap of paper, but on a foundation behind which stand the millions of the British race." Amid tumultuous cheering, the above resolution was carried by a vast audience of Irish Nationalists who crowded the Central Hall. The resolution was put by T. P. O'Connor, and the meeting was called for the purpose of expressing confidence in the leadership of John Redmond, and having done this it developed into a patriotic meeting at which Prussian militarism was strongly denounced.

The Germans seem to have met with disaster on the Vistula. Possibly they now think that River begins with "F" and thus notice of rear attack.

Votes For Women

Interest in the suffrage movement grows apace, especially in the United States. While in the opinion of many friends of the cause the attempt to obtain an amendment of the federal constitution, by one of the organizations of women, is at this time inexpedient and waste effort, the bringing of new states into the suffrage line is practical, promising work. Seven states will vote on the question on November 3, these being the two Dakotas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Ohio and Nevada. In most if not all of these success is believed to be assured.

In New York "votes for women" is not a direct issue this fall, but next year undoubtedly it will be, and the suffrage leaders will unremittingly strive for the cultivation of favorable opinion. They have labored many years in the cause, long battling with adverse conditions until within comparatively recent time a public awakening to the justice of the demand of the sex for equal political privileges occurred, and tangible headway has been made.

Intelligent assertiveness without sacrifice of the dignity and graces of womanhood has won substantial results in a number of the states, and generally has created a desirable impression. The first of a series of mass meetings planned by the New York state campaign committee is to be held in Buffalo on November 2, the night before the election. Prominent women from several of the suffrage states will be speakers. The assembly is expected to be one of the largest of its kind the city has known, and an inspiration for all advocates of equal suffrage to exert themselves for bringing to the women of the Empire state the ballot in the near future.

Valcartier's Wonderful Rifle Range

Valcartier is undoubtedly a marvelous place for a large military encampment, says the Canadian Military Gazette. With a splendid level plain of large extent, for drill and exercises, with a beautiful little river for bathing, with natural scenery unsurpassed in Canada, with plenty of hill, dale and broken ground for manoeuvre, it possesses qualities unsurpassable, to which must be added a light soil which quickly absorbs a rainfall. Eden itself had at least one drawback, and the dust at Valcartier is somewhat trying after all. this is a small demerit in comparison with its many advantages.

What nature so lavishly granted, the hand of man has already greatly improved. Railway sidings, electric lights, a water system, sidewalks, roads; all these have been added, but the great marvel of all is the rifle range.

Just fancy a range three and a half miles long, equipped with fourteen hundred and twenty-seven targets, all of them of the simple windmill type, with a splendid dry safe trench for the markers and a thousand yards of distance available at some points.

We think we are correct in saying that this is the largest and best range in the world. Thousands of men have used it in a single day, without confusion, without accident, and to the satisfaction of all.

Lord Kitchener is reported to have said of his new levies, "Never mind whether they know the right foot from the left, but teach them to shoot straight." Colonel Hughes, whether he agrees with the first injunction or not, has certainly wholeheartedly adopted the latter, and the Expeditionary Force has had a wonderful opportunity for rifle practice, considering its large numbes, and the shortness of the time to be utilized. Up to September 20th, more than two million rounds had been fired, a good proof of the activity displayed. Of all the good work done in connection with Valcartier, and its sum total is enormous, nothing ranks higher than the performance in musketry.

Even given so wonderful a range, this marvel in rifle practice could not have been accomplished without excellent work on the part of those officers in charge, and it is only fair to acknowledge that the work of Lt.-Col. Helmer, Director of Musketry, ably assisted as he has been by Major Butcher and others, is worthy of the very highest praise. Colonel Helmer is one of the quiet type of soldier dear to the heart of organizers like Kitchener, the man who says little, but, without fuss and feathers, does things.

Good-Bye, Old Backache
Nerviline Will Fix You

Stiffness is Rubbed Right Out; Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Gee whiz—think of it!

No more stomach dosing necessary to cure your lame back.

Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago or sciatica you would go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain-destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have an ache or a pain anywhere, if you have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully—it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can, from any dealer, also get the 25c. small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

Ghent cannot be too highly praised It has many hospitals (ambulances as they are called here) under its direction and is working most efficiently and in perfect harmony with the military authorities. The most severely wounded are sent to the military hospital while others are distributed to the hotels, schools, convents, private houses and private clinics which have been thrown open to them. At present comparatively few of the severely wounded remain, the majority having been transferred to other cities in anticipation of the coming of the enemy. Thousands of empty beds, with attendants and nurses from the most aristocratic and highly cultured families in the land, are awaiting the arrival of more, ready to care for them with gentleness and skill, German and Belgian alike, in surrounding of elegance such as the majority of them never dreamed of.

"Many of the shrapnel wounds are terrible, shattering bony structure, and causing extensive laceration of tissue. A very large proportion of the bullet wounds are found in the legs and feet, showing that the Germans who shoot for the hip, are firing low. The Belgian shoots from the shoulder. Dr. Dulet in Anvers has a dum-dum ball which he extracted from a wounded Belgian. Many of the invalided suffer from extreme exhaustion, after their three days' incessant fighting, but they soon rally and beg to return to the colors.

"The three characteristics of the Belgian people that have most deeply impressed me during the past month are their patriotism, their bravery and their gentleness. In the military, or forty of which I have visited, the civic and Red Cross hospitals of Bruges, Ostend, Ghent, and Antwerp every wounded German soldier has always received as careful surgical, medical and nursing care as the Belgian whom he came to murder, for this most unjust war was deliberately planned for conquest and extermination.

"Whatever may be the outcome of this monstrous holocaust the justice and honors and the humanities belong to Belgium. When the victorious allies make their triumphant entry into Berlin (and I believe they will) the Belgian should have the line, and royal restitution should be made for his sacrifice, in memory of Liege, Malines and Louvain. All honor to little Belgium."

SICK SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" and in five minutes you'll wonder what became of misery in stomach.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

GERMANS PLAN TO CAPTURE WARSAW

beaten mob. The Russian cavalry is pressing hard upon their retreat which is over abominable sloughs of roads, fringed by bog land and marshy forests. Prisoners and other trophies of success are being taken all the time, but no attempt has yet been made to estimate their numbers.

Artillery Duel a Draw.

"Wounded men, in their accounts of the fighting around the village of Kozienica, state that while the artillery duel was proceeding for several days and nights the troops were unable to move. Finally the artillery fire became equal on both sides and orders came to make a bayonet attack. The soldiers still and miserable from their long confinement in the flooded trenches were only too delighted at the order and dashed upon the German line with irresistible vigor. The Germans, for the second time during the war on this side, met them with the bayonet and a terrible fight ensued. Neither side could gain the advantage and the slaughter was fearful

Germans Were Frightened.

"Finally a Russian hurrah came down on the wind from the flank, followed by brisk firing. The Germans mistook this for a successful outflanking movement and they broke and fled, abandoning everything in their run for safety. The Russians pursued them for twenty miles and the plain was strewn with the German dead."

Aerial Warfare a Joke.

A Petrograd despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says' "The comparative ineffectiveness of aerial warfare was proved at Warsaw, where bombs thrown by German aviators missed by railroad, telegraph and telephone stations, and troops on the march. They only struck and destroyed the upper stories of some private houses, while many fell quite harmlessly.

Only one bomb dropping was attended with any success. It fell on some infantry baggage and wounded several soldiers and civilians who were standing nearby.

"It was popularly reported in Warsaw that Emperor William had said that if the town could not be taken by land it must be taken from the air."

Capture a High Official.

News received from the Russian front in Poland says a statement issued by the Petrograd news bureau, relates that the Russians have captured the Grand Equerry of the King of Saxony. He was riding in the Royal automobile when taken.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

CREED FOR A FARMER

I believe in a permanent agriculture, a soil that shall grow richer rather than poorer from year to year.

I believe in 100-bushel corn and 50-bushel wheat, and I shall not be satisfied with anything else.

I believe that the only good weed is a dead weed, and that a clean farm is as important as a clean conscience.

I believe in the farm boy and in the farm girl, the farmer's best crops and the future's best hope.

I believe in the farm woman, and will do all in my power to make her life easier and happier.

I believe in a country school that prepares for country life, and a country church that teaches its people to love deeply and live honorably.

I believe in community spirit, a pride in home and neighbors, and I will do my part to make my community the best i the province.

I believe in the farmer, I believe in farm life, I believe in the inspiration of the open country.

I am proud to be a farmer, and I will try earnestly to be worthy of the name.—Frank I. Mann.

Remarkable Headgear

This lady has trimmed her bonnet with the costliest trimming in the world—trimmed with her baby!

Strictly speaking, however, the contrivance on her head is not a bonnet. It's the baby's basket.

This custom of carrying baby, basket and all on the head, is a custom of the Baralong tribe in South Africa. The basket is made of reeds, bound around with goat's skin. The inside, however, is thickly laid with downy feathers, so that baby has a beautifully soft nest.

Strong New Metal

That he has invented a malleable aluminum alloy with steel's strength, but with only one-third the weight of brass, is the claim of an English chemist.

Safeguards Workmen

For handling heavy carboys of acids a framework has been invented to tip them over against a set of rockers, so curved as to return them to an upright position should a user's hand slip.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon, and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

INVENTOR OF REVOLVER

Birmingham Artisan Was First to Perfect Deadly Small Firearm

One of the most interesting figures in the industrial life of Birmingham passed away recently in the person of Mr. Henry Jones, who had attained the remarkable age of 102, and had almost all his life been connected with the gun trade. Indeed, he was described as "the father of the Birmingham gun trade," and for many years he was regarded among the most skilful craftsmen in the city.

When his school days were over Mr. Henry Jones was put to the gun trade, and for 85 years worked at the bench. He produced a number of epoch-making improvements in the construction of firearms and in 1835 invented the first self-acting revolver. His father conceived the happy idea of bringing the invention before the naval and military authorities of the day, and he arranged to give a lecture on "Some Recent Improvements in Gun Mechanism" at the Polytechnic, in London. That was in 1835. The room was filled with representative officers from both arms of the the service, and at the close of the lecture the revolver itself was handed round, and so great was the interest created that orders for $3,500 worth of pistols were booked in the room.

Formerly the nearest approach to this weapon was the "four-shot" pistol, made chiefly in West Bromwich—a crude contrivance in which the barrel containing the four shots had to be rotated by hand. In 1858 Mr. Jones laid the gun trade under a lasting obligation by his improvements in the mechanism of the breech-loader—improvements on the introduction of which the breech-loader became the simple, safe, and reliable type of weapon we now know it to be. That the inventor himself made little out of the idea is due to a rather singular mischance; he entered into an arrangement with a firm of gunmakers who undertook to patent the invention and share the profits. They applied for and obtained protection, but unfortunately omitted to complete the patent, with the result that after a few months the improvement became public property. Hence the inventor remained comparatively poor and lost almost in obscurity.

PIANO EVOLUTION

It Took Centuries to Produce the Instruments We Know To-day

A step forward in the evolution of the stringed instrument was made in the Middle Ages when strings were placed across a box, thus producing the idea of a sounding board. This invention, called the psaltery, was followed by the dulcimer, which was somewhat larger. The keyboard was invented in the eleventh century. The first stringed instrument to use the keyboard was the keyed cithara, a box with a cover, having catgut strings arranged in the form of a triangle. A quill plectrum attached in a crude way to the end of each key marked the progress the piano of today had made in the thirteenth century.

Next came the clavichord. In shape it much resembled a small square piano without frame or legs. The strings were of brass, struck by a wedge made of the same metal which was called a tangent. The virginal, spinet and harpsichord followed the clavichord in rapid succession. They had strings of brass with quill plectra attached to pieces of wood. The virginal and spinet were almost identical, but the harpsichord was larger, and was, at times, built with two keyboards. There are several explanations as to why the virginal was so called, but the generally accepted one is that it was in honor of Elizabeth of England, the Virgin Queen.

In Shakespeare's time it was customary to have a virginal in all the barber shops for the entertainment of the customers. The spinet received its name from its Venetian inventor, Sebastian Spinetti. The harpsichord was very much like our present grand piano, only much smaller.

It seems almost incredible that the manufacturers of Queen Elizabeth's time did not discover the hammer action. This great invention was left to the Italian, Angelo Christofori, who, in 1709, brought out a piano which forever did away with the scratching sound of the quill, thorn, brass or ivory plectra.

The piano did not receive a hearty welcome at first. It was looked on as a novelty. A playbill of Covent Garden Theatre, London, as late as 1767 announced: "Miss Anna Anna Brickler will sing a song from 'Judith,' accompanied by Charles Dibdin on a new instrument called the pianoforte."

LENGTH OF SCHOOL HOURS

New Rule Adopted in Montreal Does Away With Home Work

What should be the "hours of labor" of the school pupil? A lively discussion of this question started among Montreal teachers and parents by a new rule inaugurated by the Catholic School Board. Formerly the pupils of the Catholic Schools of Montreal attended classes from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., and were given a certain amount of work to prepare at home for the following day. The new schedule brings the pupils to their desks at 8.30 a.m. and keeps them at work until 5 p.m. with an hour for luncheon and two brief intervals for relaxation. These hours are for the pupils of the third and higher grades. The idea is that the pupils shall have no home work, but shall devote the extra hour in the afternoon to preparation of the next day's lessons. This sounds like a good arrangement, in theory, but in practice it is found to have several faults. The teachers declare that in the higher grades one hour is not sufficient for the pupils to prepare their work for the next day's lessons, and, of course, under the new arrangement the pupils are not compelled to do any work at home. Therefore one hour's preparation is all they get. The parents complain that the new regulation increases the difficulty of looking after their children. Under the old-time schedule when the children were dismissed from school they were generally allowed the remainder of the afternoon for recreation. After supper they settled down to prepare their lessons. Now there are no lessons to be done after supper, and parents say that it is much harder to keep the youngsters off the streets at night.

Copper Jumps

"In The Land of Poco Tiempo"

THE SIGNIFICANCE of this is that people are coming to realize that "The Land of Afterwhile" is full of opportunity and that now—having been asleep for 300 years—it is awakening to the fact that somebody is going to make enormous sums of money down there, right away!

How About YOU?

So long as copper was simply a by-product of a few mines—a plaything for the Indians—nobody took New Mexico Copper Mining very seriously—but

Those days are past. As a Copper State New Mexico is coming into its own on the jump!

The big, quick fortunes in the copper business are made by the men who get in first.

Here is Your Chance--

The Republic Mines Company offers you an interest — as much as you care to acquire — in its enormous tonnage of excellent Copper, Gold and Silver Ore ready to take out and sell, at a price to return you handsome profits upon your investment.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Clean pots and pans, with
GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large package. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One cure nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

RACETRACK ROGUES IN THE OLD COUNTRY

[illegible] Who Happily Have Few Counterparts in the Dominion

The [illegible] is notoriously a happy hunting-ground for thousands of scheming rogues, who visit the principal race meetings with the sole intention of relieving the unsophisticated sportsman of his money by fair means or unfair—mostly unfair, says a writer in the Glasgow Herald. Some of the schemes are undoubtedly clever, but others again are as old as the hills, and it is really surprising to find a public gullible enough to swallow them.

A common piece of thick tape, about two feet long and half an inch wide, is doubled up and folded round like a catherine-wheel. The operator then places it upon a table, and bets the eager onlookers odds of three to one that they cannot insert a pointed skewer in one of the loops so as to retain the garter when he pulls it. As there are about thirty similar loops visible, it is small wonder that the proprietor very rarely has to pay up.

This swindle is usually well watched by pick-pockets, as they have a splendid chance of plying their trade amongst the players.

The Race-table Swindle

The numerous race-tables scattered all over most racing grounds have an irresistible attraction for many would-be sports. Painted upon these tables are presumed likenesses of the various horses engaged in the big race for the day, and in the centre of the table is a revolving spindle.

The gentleman in charge of the gaming apparatus bets odds against the spindle stopping at any particular one of the various colored racers. His confederates stand around, and, by their remarkable luck in backing long-priced winners time after time, induce outsiders to bet heavily.

The backers never win, as the cunning race-game swindler has more than one artifice by which he can slow down the pointer to any horse he chooses.

"Welshers," or bogus-bookmakers, swarm at probably every racetrack course in the United Kingdom and they always work with half-a-dozen or more confederates who pretend to place bets with them.

Innocent Victims

When the welsher realizes that it is about time for him to disappear, a common practice is to offer his high stool to a spectator, "the better to see the race run," as he suavely puts it. Many a simpleton has had to run for dear life after availing himself of such an offer.

During the Derby won by Diamond Jubilee a welsher, about to depart for pastures new, offered his stool to a countryman standing near, who instantly jumped at the offer. He also obligingly held the bookmaker's satchel, which it is needless to say, was innocent of money. Then the welsher bolted, and the backers of Diamond Jubilee nearly killed the guileless yokel ere he was rescued by a body of police, his clothes being torn to shreds.

The Racecourse Sharper

For real cleverness, mug-lumberers, or "tale-tellers" as they are termed in the picturesque vernacular of the turf, are undoubtedly entitled to the blue ribbon of racing swindles.

A sharper of this type is an unerring judge of character, and it does not take him long to pick out a "mug," as the youth with more money than brains is known.

When thoroughly in his victim's confidence, the sharper, as a huge favor, tells him there is a great system of backing horses in existence, of which he—the sharper—is the sole inventor, and if Mr. Simple has any spare cash to invest he has a chance of making a small fortune. At first the poor victim is allowed to win a little; but gradually all the money of which he is possessed finds its way into his affable friend's pocket.

KING OF UMPIRES

Gaffney Brought Arbitrator's Work up to Modern Pitch

While John H. Gaffney, who died at his home in Worcester recently, was known as the king of umpires, he was not the first arbitrator to be honored by that title, writes Old Sport Hough in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Honest John Kelly was the original king of umpires, although it always was a question whether he was really the best of the umpires of his time. But there was one honor no one could take from him. When he was operating, he was the boss of the field, and that was long before the umpires were clothed with the almost autocratic power they are to-day. And then, think of the mobs he had to face in those days. Compared with them the most turbulent of present-day crowds are mild and orderly. But, no matter how tough the going was, nothing seemed to bother Kelly, who, on one occasion, hopped the fence in order to get at his tormentors in the right field bleachers. Gaffney, though, was the originator of modern umpiring. He was the first man to go behind the pitcher when there was a runner on, he was always over the play, and was the first umpire the Old Sport can recall who made it a point to be both blind and deaf at times.

Keeping Racing Straight

When an English racing man—owner or trainer—is "warned off the Newmarket Heath," it means that he is not allowed to attend a recognized race meeting in the British isles; that any horse trained by him cannot compete in any recognized race, and that he cannot be even part owner of any horse eligible to compete. Apart from taking the trainer's life from him it is difficult to imagine any more drastic punishment.

SWIMMING RECORDS AND NEW STROKES

There is no doubt that the several new swimming strokes, which have been devised in the last few years, are accountable for the number of swimming records that have been broken. The crawl and its variations have made big inroads into the time for various swims. Record holders have learned to use these strokes while still little more than youngsters in most instances, and they have improved upon them until the time made by the use of the old breast stroke and the overhand stroke had to give way, just as the improvement in automobile engines and motorcycle engines has accounted for the record-making in these branches of sport.

A glance over the record holders and the title holders of the past two decades disclosed to view two swimmers who stand out head and shoulders above the rest, one in England, and the other in the United States. From 1894 to 1897 J. B. Tyers, the great English swimmer, held every British record and championship from 100 yards to the mile, while in the States C. M. Daniels maintained the same high standard as peer of all swimmers on this side of the Atlantic, being unbeatable from 1904 until his retirement. Although there were swimmers who might have been slightly faster at some one distance than these two men, it can safely be said that for all round speed swimming they were in a class by themselves, all distances looking alike to them, each holding the sprint records and the distance marks.

Tyers' records compared with the times made by the best swimmers of to-day seem slow, but when it is considered that they were made with the trudgeon stroke, which has been generally abandoned for speed swimming the world over by latter-day swimmers, they appear all the more remarkable.

Old Strokes Abandoned

C. M. Daniels in the early part of his racing career used the trudgeon stroke exclusively, and even after he had acquired the then new crawl used the trudgeon for all swimming over the two hundred and twenty yards. It was not, however, until he took to the crawl seriously that he broke down the existing American records and a number of world's records.

The minute mark for the one hundred yards was for many years the zenith of every speed swimmer's ambition. It was not until 1902 that the one hundred yards was swam in less than a minute by V. C. Lane, an Australian. Swimming the Australian crawl he reduced the time to 59 3-5 seconds.

From 1902 up to the present every championship meeting, with few exceptions, has brought forth a new record for this distance. In 1905 Zolton de Holmay, the great Austrian swimmer, further reduced the time to 59 seconds flat. The time for the century was again brought down by Daniels in 1907 to 58 3-5 seconds. In 1908 occurred the most remarkable reduction of this oft-broken record when C. M. Daniels, swimming against the world's best speed swimmers at Manchester, England, established the unthought-of time of 55 2-5 seconds.

Hawaiian and Canadian

This record stood until the Olympic games at Stockholm brought to the public's attention one who is considered the peer of all speed swimmers, past or present, Duke Kahanamouka, the Hawaiian. He set the wonderful time of 1.01 3-5 for the distance of 109.361 yards, and later established a new world's record of 54 3-5 seconds for the 100 yards.

Kieran established a record of 23 minutes 16 4-5 seconds for a mile in a bath, which has never been approached.

The record for the half-mile of 11 minutes 25 seconds, established by Taylor, a great English swimmer, still stands, and the only swimmer who is at all likely to break it is George Hodgson, the wonderful Canadian mile record holder.

It is in the mile event, the classic distance, that the greatest changes have taken place. Starting with Tyers' record of 27 minutes 27 3-5 seconds in 1895, it is found that it was broken eight times concluding with the marvelous swimming of the youngster Hodgson who established the new accepted figures of 23 minutes 34 1-4 seconds, a total reduction of three minutes and forty-seven seconds in sixteen years.

HINTS IN DAIRYING

How You May Increase Profits From the Dairy

Weed out the unprofitable cows.

Feed economically.

Care for the milk produced in the way that it should be cared for.

The question is not "What is the average production of the herd?" but "Is each cow in the herd a profit-maker?"

Study the feeding problem in order to get maximum returns for your outlay.

It is important to know what it costs to feed a cow, but it is also worth while knowing how much is left in your pocket after the feed is paid for.

In caring for milk, cleanliness and cold are the two great essentials.

Milk may become contaminated in many ways, and anything that we do to keep dust and dirt out of the milk-pail means milk of better flavor and better keeping qualities.

Keep the separator and its surroundings clean.

Set the separator to take a cream so rich that one gallon will make from 3 to 3½ pounds of butter.

Cool the cream to a low temperature immediately after separating.

Never add warm cream to the cool.

Stir the cream in the can thoroughly every time fresh cream is added.

Do not add sweet cream to the ripened cream the day you are going to churn.

Choose the temperature that will bring the butter in nice, firm granules in from 20 to 30 minutes.

THE POOR MAN'S BANK

An Institution Which Might Advantageously be Copied in Canada

The Atlanta Loan and Savings Company is the official title of an institution in the Georgia city which everyone calls "The Poor Man's Bank."

It was founded by Mr. W. W. White as a protest against the loan shark and lives up to its name in spirit and act. Its basis of credit is honesty and labor, the only capital a poor man has. To draw money from this bank all the borrower needs do is to get three reputable persons to endorse him as honest and industrious. On this security "the poor man's bank" will advance money for a term of 52 weeks on dollar-a-week payments. Eight per cent. interest is charged. Each borrower, whether his loan be large or small, subscribes for one or more shares of stock, according to the amount of his loan. This stock is hypothecated to secure the loan. At the end of the 52-week term the borrower may surrender his stock and cancel his note or he may re-invest it in bank stock. In its first year it made 1,115 loans for a total of $150,562, and it has practically put the loan shark out of business.

YUKON TIMBER WASTED

Immense Fire Damage Caused by Careless Travellers

Writing from the Yukon a gentleman interested in the conservation of natural resources, said: "I know of no other place in Canada where our limited area of timber should be so zealously guarded as in the Yukon. We have many uses for wood here, whereas it is not so necessary in other parts of Canada. We must depend entirely upon it for fuel, and we cannot import timber for mining purposes as it would be too expensive and we would have to let low grade mines remain undeveloped. Notwithstanding these facts, our timber land is burned over and thousands of cords destroyed every year. Most of this destruction could be avoided. The fires mostly occur along the Yukon valley on account of people making their way into the interior in small boats. They land on the bank of the river to cook their food. After this is done they return to their boats, leaving the fires to go out or to ignite the nearby woods just as may happen. This could be stopped by increasing the Mounted Police patrol, and this should be done as early as possible."

What Is Butter Fat?

Butter fat is composed of several fats varying in degree of hardiness, also in relative amounts. In the summer time when the cow has plenty of green succulent grass the soft fats are present in comparatively large amounts. In the winter time when the cow is on dry hay and grain feed just the reverse is true—the hard fats being relatively high. To overcome this feed the cow on corn silage or root crops to supply the necessary succulence in her food so to keep the proper balance between the hard and the soft fats in her milk.

WANT BELGIAN SETTLERS FOR TERRITOFY OPENED BY GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Transportation experts agree that the European war will result in a rush of settlers to Canada and a special effort is being made to obtain for Central British Columbia a large number of Belgian farmers driven from their homes by events in the war area. These people are known to be good farmers and very thrifty people, and will be a great factor in developing the Agricultural possibilities of this section of the Dominion, recently thrown open to cultivation by the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. It is planned to settle a large tract in the Stuart River district with Belgians and their families. It is expected that after the war is over a large colony will be placed on the land there, as well as in many other valleys along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific in Northern and Central British Columbia.

The Grand Opera House offered one of the best acts last night, that has ever been seen in Berlin. It was a series of Biblical and Military Statuary Art posing and no one could hardly believe the different poses could be made so quickly and artistically. Every pose received good applause and cheers. And this part alone will call for a packed house every night. The Company also offered Gus Coan's Runaways, a rattling good society comedy, which causes laughter from beginning to end. Lillian Montrose, who is proprietoress and manager of the company and her daughter Miss Gladys Montrose is certainly winning favor with the people of Berlin, as is all the other members of the company, each one being an artist in their respective lines. Miss Montrose has added two more people to the cast this week and all who attend the Grand will see a big show at small prices. The 8th Sesies of the Million Dollar Mystery is the feature in the line of movies. A refined and classy show for one and all.

This company comes to the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, for one week, commencing Monday night, Oct. 26th, at 8.15 p.m. Prices, 15c and 25c; gallery, 10c.

Warder: The call to duty—the call for enlistment of Canada's sons to form a second contingent for overseas service — is being responded to without hesitation all over the country. J.J.H. Fee, Major, Officer commanding the 45th Regiment, was to call for 75 volunteers, and already 30 have passed the medical examination, while a large number failed to pass the examination. Major Fee has received official word from the Kingston headquarters to the effect that in swearing in recruits for the second contingent that the following must obtain the consent in writing of the parents before being enlisted. 1— Men under 21 years of age. 2—The only son of parents who are dependent upon him.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $60,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each, 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

IF HEAD ACHES AND YOUR EARS BUZZ YOU SURELY HAVE CATARRH

It doesn't matter how long you have suffered, or how often you have failed to get relief—even though Catarrh may affect every organ in your body, you can be permanently cured by inhaling the soothing vapor of Catarrhozone.

A few breaths through Catarrhozone inhaler clears the phlegm out of the throat and stops your cough. The nostrils are cleaned of offensive mucous discharge, and sneezing and sniffling stop at once. Partial loss of hearing and headache (very common symptoms of catarrh) are quickly cured, and in a short time every trace of catarrh disappears.

Nothing can be simpler or more pleasant than Catarrhozone. It's healing piney vapor sends a warm cleansing sensation through all the air passages in the head and throat—makes you feel better in half a minute.

"My ears buzzed by the hour and I had frightful head noises," writes J. P. Purdy, from Port Huron. "Catarrh fairly filled my whole head and throat. I got relief mighty fast when I tried Catarrhozone; it hit the spot instantly. You bet Catarrhozone has cured me and I simply swear by it."

AN EASY WAY TO STOP HEAD NOISES

Good Advice For Those Who Fear Deafness

Men and women who are growing hard of hearing and who experience a stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing, rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Headnoises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness and most deaf people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these head noises become so distracting and nerve racking, with their never ceasing "hum" they drive the sufferer almost frantic and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently in England it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the head noises, the hearing also greatly improves and very frequently can be restored to normal. This English treatment is known as Parmint and can be easily and safely self administered at home. Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity now have it in stock. Get from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and mix it at home with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and then take one tablespoonful four times a day until the noises disappear and hearing improves. Parmint is used double strength in this way not only to reduce, by tonic action, the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tube and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear and the results it gives are both remarkably quick and effective.

GERMAN ATTACK ON NEWPORT WAS REPULSED WITH AID OF BRITISH FLEET

Admiralty Reports Considerable Damage Inflicted by Naval Fire--Enemies Attacked the "Wildfire" and Myrmidon With Torpedoes and Submarines Without Success--No Loss Sustained by the British Flotilla

London, Oct. 26.—The admiralty today issued the following announcement:

"All of yesterday monitors and other vessels of the British bombarding fleet fired on the German right which they searched thoroughly and effectively in concert with the operations of the Belgian army.

"All German attacps on Nieuport were repulsed.

"Much damage was done to the enemy by naval fire."

"Much damage was done to the enemy by the naval fire which enfilades the German lines and prisoners taken yesterday and the day before, testify suffered from this cause.

"Fire also was opened in the afternoon on the German batteries near Ostend. Admiral Hood now has a fine foltilla of vessels very suitable for this work, but at the same time not of great value.

"During the day our ships were persistently attacked by the enemies' submarines and torpedoes were fired without success at the Wildfire and the destroyer Myrmidon.

"Other British vessels again attacked the submarines. Naval aeroplanes and balloons aided in directing the fire. The weather conditions were fine and favorable. No loss was sustained by the foloilla yesterday."

CANADIAN CONTINGENT ARRIVES

Ships Now Resume Their Montreal Sailing Dates

The White Star-Dominion Line announce the resumption of sailings commencing with the "Megantic" from Liverpool October 24, from Montreal November 7th. S. S. "Canada" from Liverpool October 31st, from Montreal November 14th. The "Laurentic" November 7th from Liverpool, November 21st from Montreal, thus giving a weekly service until the close of navigation on the St. Lawrence.

The announcement of this schedule will be welcome news to intending passengers and shippers, as the "Laurentic" and "Megantic" are the largest steamers from Canada, and the last word in shipbuilding.

The Christmas sailings are also announced from Portland, Maine, and Halifax, Nova Scotia. The S. S. "Arabic" sailing from Portland December 2, Halifax December 3.

This steamer will make a noteworthy addition to the Christmas fleet as she is the largest one class cabin (11) steamer afloat, and has a reputation for "being steady as a rock." She will be followed by the S. S. "Canada" from Portland December 12, from Halifax December 13.

TO MINE PACIFIC END OF THE PANAMA CANAL

The Object of This Action on the Part of the United States is Not Announced—Steamship "Gen. Shofield" Left Saturday

New York, Oct. 26.—As a new method of protecting the Panama Canal the war department plans the laying of a mine field in the Pacific Ocean off the City of Panama.

The United States steamship Gen. Schofield, under the "war right" department, is to leave today to do the mine planting at the western approach of the canal.

The mine, which is of German invention, allows the explosive steel sphere to rise and fall with the tide by an ingenious pulley device. This type of mine went through rigid trials in Great Neck Bay, off Fort Totten, this week.

Whether or not the aggressive action of Japan in seizing German possessions in the direct path of communication between this country and the Philippines has anything to do with the Schofield's mission is not known.

Russian Army Crosses the Vistula Battalions of Germans Captured

Defeated Army Still Being Pursued Leaving Behind Guns, Ammunition, Equipment and Dead and Wounded--Russians Making Another Attempt to Take Offensive Against First Line of German Frontier Defences

PETROGRAD, OCT. 26.—THE WAR OFFICE THIS AFTERNOON DECLARED THAT THE DEFEATED GERMAN ARMIES IN POLAND, ARE STILL BEING DRIVEN BACK BY THE VICTORIOUS RUSSIAN ARMY. THEIR LOSSES ARE INCREASINGLY LARGE. WHOLE BATTALIONS HAVE BEEN TAKEN AND MANY HEAVY CANNON. IT IS STATED THAT THE ENTIRE ROUTE OF THE RETREAT IS LITTERED WITH ABANDONED GUNS, EQUIPMENT, TRANSPORT, AND DEAD AND WOUNDED GERMANS.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE TODAY CROSSED THE VISTULA IN STRONG FORCE AND IT IS BELIEVED HERE THAT THE PRESENT OPERATION MARKS ANOTHER ATTEMPT ON THE PART OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY TO START ITS GENERAL FORWARD MOVEMENT AGAINST THE FIRST LINE OF THE GERMAN FRONTIER DEFENCES. THIS CANNOT BE CARRIED INTO EFFECT UNTIL A FINAL DECISION IS REACHED IN THE BATTLE NOW RAGING IN GALICIA WHERE THE AUSTRIANS, HEAVILY REINFORCED BY GERMAN AND HUNGARIAN TROOPS, ARE ASSAULTING THE RUSSIAN POSITIONS WITH GREAT VIOLENCE.

FALL OF KIAO-CHAU LOOKED FOR

LONDON, OCT. 24.—UNOFFICIAL REPORTS RECEIVED BY THE NEWS AGENCIES HERE FROM TOKIO SAY IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE FALL OF KIAO-CHOU CANNOT LONG BE PREVENTED. SOME OF THE NEWSPAPERS GO SO FAR AS TO CLAIM THAT THE GERMAN CONCESSION HAS ALREADY SURRENDERED TO THE JAPANESE-BRITISH FORCES, BUT THERE IS NO CONFIRMATION OF THIS. THE LATEST OFFICIAL WORD FROM THE SCENE OF ACTION SAID THAT THE JAPANESE HAD MOUNTED BIG GUNS AT POINTS COMMANDING EVERY SECTION OF THE GERMAN POSITIONS AND WERE SHELLING THEM AT LONG RANGE. PART OF THE CITY IS REPORTED AS BEING BURNED, AND GREAT GAPS HAD BEEN MADE IN THE MAIN FORTIFIED LINES.

RUSSIA LOOKS FOR SECOND ATTACK BY DEFEATED GERMANS IN POLAND

Russians Are Cautions, and Do Not Exaggerate Importance of German Defeat in Vicinity of Warsaw--The Struggle South of Pryemysl Increasing in Intensity--German Gen. Vainly Attempting Passage of River San With Austrian Army

Petrograd, Oct. 26.—Petrograd is aglow with official reports of recent successes of the Russian arms—the repulse of the Germans at Warsaw, and in the vicinity of Ivangorod, fresh captures of prisoners and the precipitate flight of the Austrians.

The military authorities, however, instead of resting in a sense of security or magnifying the importance of the German retreat, are now preparing for the anticipated attempt of the Germans to resume the aggressive in the same neighborhood as where they were stopped. Hence Russian reinforcements and ammunition trians are streaming steadily toward Warsaw and Ivangorod. Without minimizing the effect of the German failure, the authorities call the recent repulse not so much a decisive engagement as a necessary German retreat to avoid a Russian outflanking movement. Warsaw and Ivangorod, therefore, are ready for any attempt on the part of the Germans to return. Such a movement is expected shortly.

Despatches from Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field, which usually are conservative now declare that the struggle south of Przemysl is of great intensity and show that the centre of activity has for the moment shifted to the southward. The Austrian corps which fought unsuccessfully at Tomassow, in Russian Poland and in East Galicia, is now endeavoring, under the direction of a German general, to regain its honor by a victory. But its constant efforts to cross the River San have been defeated and the Russians are now reported to have traversed this stream at several points.

THE FIGHT BETWEEN BRITISH AND GERMANS AT BATTLE MONS

Deadly British Rifle Fire Decimated Germans, Who Advanced in Close Formation--British Troops Profit by Lesson Learned From the Boers--German Sacrifice of Life Awful

An account of a fight between British and Germans at the battle of Mons is given by an English sergeant in a letter to his brother; "Well, we know what it is like to be in a battle. It came to us unexpectedly at a time when we had given up hope of seeing Germans. The first inkling we had was just after reveille, when our cavalry pickets fell back and reported the presence of the enemy in strength on our front and left. In a few minutes we were all at our posts, without the slightest confusion, and as we lay down in the trenches our artillery opened on the beggars in fine style. It was a fine sight to see the shells speeding through the air on their way to pay our respects to Kaiser Bill and his men. Soon they returned the compliment, but they were a long time about finding anything approaching the range.

Infantry in Close Formation

After about half-an-hour of this work their infantry came into view along our front. They were in solid square blocks, standing out sharply against the skyline, and you couldn't help hitting them. It was like butting your head against a stone wall. We lay in our trenches with not a sound or sing to tell them of what was before them. They crept nearer and nearer, and then our officers gave the word. A sheet of flames flickered along the line of trenches and a stream of bullets tore through the advancing mass of Germans. They seemed to stagger like a drunken man, suddenly hit between the eyes, after which they made a run for us, shouting some outlandish cry that we couldn't make out. Half way across the open another volley tore through their ranks, and by this time our artillery began dropping shells around them. Then an officer gave an order, and they broke into open formation rushing like mad toward the trenches on our left.

Lesson from the Boers.

"Some of our men continued the volley firing, but a few of the crack shots were told off to indulge in independent firing for the benefit of the Germans. That is a trick taught us by Brother Boer, and our Germans did not like at all. They fell back in confusion, and then lay down wherever cover was available. We gave them no rest, and soon they were on the move again, in flight. Then came more furious shelling of our trenches, and after that another mad rush across the open on our front. This time they were strongly supported by cavalry, who suffered terribly, but came right up to our lines. We received them in the good old way, the front ranks with the bayonet and the rear ranks keeping up an incessant fire on them. After a hard tussle they retired hastily, and just as they thought themselves safe our mounted men swooped down on them, cutting them right and left. This sort of thing went on through the whole day without bringing the Germans any nearer to shifting us. After the last attack we lay down in our clothes to sleep as best we could, but long before sunrise were called out to be told that we had got to abandon our position. Nobody knew why we had to go, but like good soldiers we obeyed without a murmur. The enemy's cavalry, evidently misunderstanding our actions came down on us again in force, but our men behaved very well indeed, and they gave it up as a bad job. Their losses must have been terrible. Little mounds of dead were to be seen all along the line of their advance to the attack, and in the retreat we picked off their cavalry by the score."

SHOULD BE PROUD OF OUR EDUCATIONAL ADMINISTRATION

The Collegiate Institute in our midst is an educational factor of which the community should feel proud. Its conduction under the supervision of the Board of Education, with the generally admired executive administration of Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, a scholar and a gentleman, every inch of him, has made for educational progress amongst our rising generation unexcelled in any Canadian community. These results can only be continued by every one connected with the Institute fitting into his or her place, and such a policy the Board of Education is to be commended for insisting upon. Scholars must be subject to their teachers, teachers to their principal, principal to the Board of Education, each member of which is responsible to the ratepayers. These wheels within wheels must run smoothly within their alloted grooves, otherwise the whole structure falls to the ground. We are pleased to notice that this fact is substantially recognized by our Board of Education, irrespective of sentiment, but in consideration for the weal of the community's educational standing and advancement as a whole.

British Soldier Cives Life To Save Important Position

London, Oct. 15.— A wounded corporal of the Northumberland Fusiliers now in a hospital, has told the following story:

"We occupied an exposed position to the left, on the Aisne, and one night we escaped being wiped out by a mere chance, combined with as great a deed of heroism as I ever heard of. There was a man of the Manchester Regiment who was lying close to the German lines, terribly wounded. He happened to overhear some conversation between German soldiers, and, being familiar with the language, he learned that the intended to attack the position that we held that night.

"In spite of his wounds he decided to set out to warn us of our danger and he started on the weary tramp of over five miles. He was under fire from the moment he got to his feet but he stumbled along in spite of that and soon got out of range. Later, he ran into a patrol of Uhlans, but before they saw him, he dropped to the earth and shammed death.

"They passed without sign and he then resumed his journey. By this time the strain had told on him and his wound began to bleed, marking his path toward our lines with thin red streaks.

"In the early morning, just half an hour before the time fixed for the German attack, he staggered into one of our advance posts and managed to tell his story to the officer in charge before collapsing in a heap. Thanks to the information he gave, we were ready for the Germans when they came and beat them off, but his anxiety to warn us had cost him his life. The doctors said that the strain had been too much for him and the next day he died.

German Cavalry Patrols Wearing Belgian Uniforms

London, Oct. 26.—Evidencing the fact that Germany already considers Belgium part of her territory, the official press bureau in continuing today its series of eye witness stories from the rear, declares that the German cavalry patrols are now wearing Belgian uniforms. The report as re[illegible] that this action on the part of the enemy is "inexcusable."

The reports today cover proceedings up to October seventeen, and are in many respects almost a duplication of the matter already made public along this line. The fact that the troops were again advancing toward the north after their long service in the trenches, fresh forces having relieved them there, has greatly cheered the men. All are declared to be very fit, notwithstanding the severe nature of the fighting and the trying weather that has prevailed. The report declares that the German advance posts are short of food, but pays a high tribute to the bravery and skill of the German troops as a whole.

MAN MUST HAVE MORAL COURAGE

Dr. Gordon's discourse to men in the Opera House Sunday afternoon was of a character calculated to live long in the memory of those present. The big building was crowded to the doors, and the reverend gentleman's address was crowded with concrete truths. His talk was "plain" in the abstract meaning of the word, and void of all Parliamentary qualifications. Perhaps his remarks applied more particularly to young men on the threshold of life, towhom he administered fatherly advice of a nature which appealed to all as embodying the elements necessary for a successful career in life. The following abstracts from the doctor's talk, are worthy of thoughtful acceptance:

President Webb, of Mississippi College, was seated in his office one day when a certain youth entered, and, in an embarrassed manner vouchsafed the information that he would like to "take" a college course. The president inquired "How much do you know?" and the youth replied: "I don't know nothing." Thereupon President Webb arose and extending a glad hand to the applicant for collegiate privileges and honors, exclaimed: "Sir, I am glad to welcome you to the courts and corridors of this noble institution. You are welcome! Thrice welcome! Your prospects are bright! It takes the average young man in this university four years to find out that he don't know nothing."

There is a time in the life of a young man when he knows more than his father knows. At that particular period he is a dictionary of incident and event, a sort of compendium of universal knowledge a kind of walking encyclopaedia, a sort of Encyclopaedia Britannica in twenty-four volumes, "with six additional volumes on American subjects"—the whole thing "bound in calf." You cannot tell him anything and, if you could, it would do him little good—he is not in a receptive mood. He is the mental condition of the young man who proposed marriage to a prepossessing Canadian girl and informed her that if she did not at once accept his proposal he would immediately "blow his brains out." With a reassuring smile she blandly remarked: "Sir you had better have a few brains "blown in' first"

Stability is the best kind of ability. Go On and Hold On, make a great team. To be able to do and to endure are the two seals on the package of life. The man of iron will, shall, if need be, reach up and pluck the shining stars from their bed of heavenly blue and dash them like glittering dust at his feet. All things are possible to the man of purpose. When they told Napoleon that he could not cross the Alps, he exclaimed: "There shall be no Alps!" The enemies of Disraeli affirmed that his first speech in the British House of Commons was a fiasco and a failure, but his closing words were uttered in a determined undertone: "The day will come when you will hear me!" William Lloyd Garrison was prone to close every anti-slavery speech with the words, "I will not excuse, I will not equivocate, I will be heard!" The Hebrew prophet doubtless stretched himself to his full form when he exclaimed: "I have set my face like a flint and I know that I shall not be ashamed.'

When the English admiral called on Paul Jones to "Surrender," the young American naval officer, with Scottish fire coursing through his veins, answered: "Surrender? I haven't begun to fight yet!"

"If thou canst plan a noble deed
And never flag till it succeed,
Though in the strife thy heart should bleed,
Whatever obstacle control, go on true soul
Thou'lt win the prize, thou'lt reach the goal."

No man is a genuine success as a Christian and a citizen who is lacking in moral courage. A skeleton without a backbone is an anatomical failure. A jellyfish will do for the sea but has no place in society. Moral courage is the crystalization of moral character. Many appellations are applied to it— "nerve," "grit," "sand" "cheek," "audacity," "sublime audacity" call it what you please but cultivate it. If you think you are

SILENCED BATTERIES ON THE RUN

Effective Work Of British Warships —Steaming Along the Coast at Full Speed Britain's Sea Dogs Teach the Enemy a Costly Lesson

London, Oct. 21, 5.15 p.m.— A despatch to The Evening News from Dunkirk gives heretofore unpublished details of the bombardment of the Germans on the coast of Belgium by British monitors.

The admiralty had stated previously that the British naval loss was slight, and the correspondent, sustaining this says that only one ship was damaged, but adds that the landing party, which the admiralty statement referred to as going ashore with a machine gun, suffered severely, losing a lieutenant and a number of men who were picked off by German sharpshooters. The gun was of necessity abandoned and only a handful of the Britishers got back to their ships.

The correspondent states that the Germans placed guns in gaps between houses along the shore, adding:

"The British ships steamed down the coast at full speed, giving the Germans their starboard guns. Then they turned and came back, letting go they turned and came back letting go next came the German guns were silent and an ambulance had appeared and was picking up the dead and the wounded."

Don't Believe German Reports Say The French War Office

Paris, Oct. 25.—4.40 p.m. Semi-official comment on the present situation was made this afternoon by the military authorities of Paris as follows:

"It is proper again to call to the public attention that faith should not be placed in the official bulletins of the German general staff. A bulletin given out by this staff alleges that our attacks on the heights to the south of Thiaucourt were repulsed, with very considerable losses to our men

"As a matter of fact our offensive in this direction found it impossible to maintain itself at all the points won in the course of this advance movement; nevertheless, we were successful in retaining the major portion of the territory which our offensive movement succeeded in taking.

"This morning a German officer was sent under a flag of truce to the commander of the French army operating in this region. He requested, speaking for the German authorities, an armistice to bury the dead and remove the wounded. The French commander sent this officer back to his lines and immediately caused the attack on the enemy to be renewed.

"The advance we at once made against the enemy made it possible for us to secure the advantage over them, which they had been endeavoring to obtain over us by an armistice and it showed at the same time the absurdity of the successes claimed by our adversaries for themselves."

TALK ON STORMS

R. F. Stupart Says Temperature is the Disturbing Element

Mr. R. F. Stupart, director of the Meteorological service of Canada, gave an interesting illustrated address before the members of the Canadian Institute, Toronto, on "The Canadian Storm-warning System." By means of charts, the distribution of atmosphere over the globe's surface and the resulting winds were explained. "The great disturbing element is temperature," said the speaker. "There is a difference in temperature between the Equator and the Poles of about 80 degrees, and in winter the difference is much greater. The air near the surface over the equatorial regions is greatly heated, and expands, with the result that over the Equatorial regions any given barometric surface is at a greater height above the earth than it is over regions both north and south, and in consequence of this the upper air flows away both north and south and surface air from north and south flows towards the Equator. The air in the upper regions, as it goes north and south towards converging meridians, accumulates between 25 degrees and 35 degrees, and the effect of this is the high barometer of this sub-tropical zone. Another important agency affecting the movements of air currents is the rotation of the earth, which causes a deflection to the right of the initial movement in the Northern Hemisphere, and to the left in the Southern. And this leads to the surface currents in the tropics being from N.-E. instead of from N., and S.-E. instead of from South. But in addition to the temperature difference between Equator and Pole there are temperature differences between continent and ocean, which are reversed by the season; and with this latter system of variable air circulation impressed on the former more stable system, there is a resultant system of vast complexity; but one in which many of the component factors are closely discernible."

TEETH AND APPLES

The Use of the One as Food Will Preserve the Other

Dr. Sims Wallace, late dental surgeon to the London Hospital, voices the astounding belief that there are some 21,000,000 teeth in Great Britain ruined through eating sweets. He urges the adoption of a diet containing a good quantity of farinaceous food in a form which will stimulate mastication—brown bread, and the eating of fresh fruit with every meal.

The importance of the proper care of teeth during childhood is becoming universally recognized, and the London County Council established a centre for the treatment of dental troubles of schoolchildren with X-rays.

According to investigation it was found that about 39 per cent. of the children of well-to-do parents have bad teeth, as against 27 per cent. from poorer homes. This is probably accounted for by the fact that, as the latter have more coarser food, their teeth have more work to do, and are consequently stronger and cleaner. Their sweets are also fewer, and are mostly of the cheap, boiled sugar variety. These sweets break up cleanly in the mouth, whereas the caramels and chocolates eaten by the children of indulgent parents cling to the teeth and ferment.

Boys and girls should be given fruit in preference to sweets. Nuts and all hard fruits encourage mastication. The best fruit for this purpose is the apple. Eaten at the conclusion of a meal it leaves the teeth and mouth sweet and clean.

TOOTHACHE A BLESSING

To endeavor to console a person suffering from the torments of toothache by assuring him that it is really a blessing in disguise might result in a demonstration of a not particularly amiable character. Nevertheless, scientists assure us that it is so. In many cases the only thing that prevents a general poisoning of the system is the decaying of the teeth sooner or later leaving the nerves exposed. Then the teeth begin to ache, and the pain serves as a timely warning that there is trouble on foot. The dentist is visited in haste, and either the tooth is pulled out or the decay is removed. Thus toothache is a blessing very much in disguise warns us in time to prevent serious illness.

Doctors are continually pointing out that if the teeth are not looked after properly germs collect in them and on the gums, and there are statistics available showing that quite a large percentage of sufferers from blood poisoning and other troubles became ill in the first place through harmful microbes in the mouth.

Not only toothache, however, but any form of pain, serves a highly useful purpose. An aching head is often a signal that we need more rest, recreation, and sleep; a pain in the stomach is Nature's way of calling attention to the fact that we have been eating or drinking unwisely. Most of us, undoubtedly, would have died long before our time were it not for these timely warnings which Nature gives now and then in the shape of little aches and pains in various parts of the body.

The Tabooed Tango

There is nothing new either in the tango or the opposition to it. As long ago as the December of 1637, the Archbishop of Buenos Ayres excommunicated one Senor de la Cueya y Benavides, governor of the city, for dancing the tango in public. Even then the dance was anything but new. An authority in the Argentine states that the tango is named after a province in Indo-China, and that it originated there more than two thousand years ago. It was the gipsies who took the dance to Spain, from whence it reached the Argentine. One definition of the tango—given in a glossary of South American Spanish—is "Gathering of dance of gipsies." The dance has not been improved by being civilized or modernized. As danced by the up-country Argentines and the Spanish gipsies it is exceedingly graceful, which is more than can be said for it as performed in many places in Canada.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

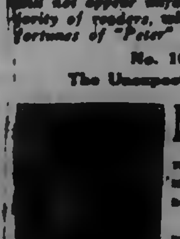
By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 104.

The Unexpected Guest.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

"MARY," I said, slipping out to the kitchen, "I've brought a man home to dinner with me."

"Peter!" said my wife in tones of tragedy only justified by a fire, a flood or an earthquake for whose delivery I had personally contracted.

"What in the world is the trouble?" I demanded.

"Cold meat," said Mary.

"Well, what of it?" I inquired. "Certainly when I bring a man home this way I'm fully prepared and so's he to take whatever's going. He's a nice chap and a business friend, and I'd like to have him feel perfectly at home. Why can't we accept him just—well—just as Smith and his wife accepted me the other night?"

"Just because Madge Smith has absolutely no pride at all," said Mary with dignity, "is no particular reason why I shouldn't. Peter, you'll have to entertain him while I do a lot of things. And then you'll have to entertain him while I slip into another dress. Oh, dear, dear! Why couldn't you have 'phoned? The house is a sight."

"The house," I said, "is spotless. You know it, Mary. And you look as neat and pretty as a rose. What is there for supper, anyway?"

"Cold meat," said Mary again in utterly lifeless tones.

"There's certainly something besides cold meat," I insisted. "What's this?"

"Salad," said Mary.

"And what's in this saucepan?"

"Spinach. And there're potatoes baking in the oven."

"Well, what under the sun more do you want? Caviare and venison? Surely you have a very nice little dinner ready."

"It is not at all the sort of dinner I care to serve a guest who is an absolute stranger," said Mary very primly. "You know it, Peter." And with that she began to bustle around the kitchen with two wild scarlet spots in her cheeks. She began to open a great many cans of things, and I could see she was just about on the verge of tears. Suddenly she set down a can with a vicious bang.

"Peter," she said, "will he stay all night?"

"I'd hoped so," I ventured.

"Then," said Mary, "I've got to dust the guest room this very minute. Yes, before dinner even. I know very well it's a sight. It fronts the street and gets all the dust. Peter, how could you?"

"I'll dust the guest room if it must be done," said I. "For heaven's sake, Mary, don't get hysterical. And let's have for dinner just whatever you had ready—nothing else."

"You mix the salad dressing," said Mary, "and I'll dust the guest room."

And she did, though I went in and looked around and saw perfectly well that it didn't need it. I was for having our guest, a wholly likable, congenial young fellow, out in the kitchen while I was mixing the salad dressing, but Mary held up hands of horror. Therefore I worked guiltily in the kitchen, Mary dusted the guest room, and our guest read his newspaper in the front room.

I hope he wasn't conscious of the furious whispering that went on betimes in the kitchen, or of the general atmosphere of constraint, but I'm sure he must have been. I know I was not at my ease, and Mary's toilet, when at last we sat down to dinner, evidenced a hurried tribute to our guest. Moreover, we had a most elaborate meal (of canned things) and one that no guest would believe had been prepared for a simple family dinner.

My guest hoped sincerely he had not put Mrs. Hunt out.

"Oh, no, no, indeed," said Mary graciously, but her air was not convincing. And I'm sure he guessed.

I shall not forget the fevered energy of hospitality that Mary lavished upon my guest. That is the last time I shall try any experiments in extemporaneous hospitality.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

A young man has been calling on me for two years. He does not seem to have the courage to "pop the question," and I don't know what to do to help him. Can you please give me some hints on how to do it?

I also think 10 o'clock is plenty late enough for him to stay when he comes six or seven nights out of the week, don't you? Is it proper to ask a man in after you return from an entertainment? CECILE.

DON'T be at home the next time your young friend, who is so diffident, calls. Be busy the next time you meet him, and hurry away.

Talk about another man; tell of some good-looking chap you've met. And stop giving any man in the world seven evenings of your week—unless you're engaged to be married to him.

Damaged goods—that's what they'll call you one of these days if you allow such a thing to go on. Don't throw away your life on a man who is so sure of you that he thinks he doesn't even have to ask you whether you want to marry him or not.

Don't let him think he's the only man in the world. Allow him to see that there are others, and that the others know that you are alive.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

The Good Night Story

The Ear of Corn By Vernon Marry

ONCE, in the long ago, two soldiers, who were brothers, came back from the wars, and looked about them for work to earn their bread and butter. Edward, the elder, said he was going to be rich, no matter how he got the money; but Thomas, the younger, wished only for a living, if that was all he could earn by honest work. So they parted, and each went his way.

Years passed and Thomas, who had become a farmer, met his brother one day when he was driving to market. He had to turn his horse and farm wagon into a ditch so that a fine carriage might have the road. Seated in the carriage, dressed in the finest silks and satins, Thomas recognized his brother, Edward. With Edward there were two wealthy and well known men; so Edward, who was very proud, did not care to stop and let them know that the rough farmer was his own brother. He did not even let Thomas know that he saw him, but drove right along as if Thomas had not been there.

After the carriage had disappeared Thomas turned his farm wagon back into the road and slowly drove along to market, thinking how hard his life was in comparison with Edward's easy existence. But when Thomas got home that night and looked at his dear wife and lovely children he forgot to envy his rich brother. And when they told him that they had found a wonderful ear of corn growing in the cornfield he went out with them to look at it, feeling as if all the happiness of the world was his.

Imagine Thomas's surprise when he saw that the ear of corn was 10 times the size of any other ear in the cornfield, and that the stalk was 15 feet high! Thomas was sure it must have grown all at once in the night to that great size. He wondered how big it would be when it stopped growing. So he called his hired man and they put a fence around it to keep the cows away, and did everything they could think of to help it grow.

In the months that followed, Thomas's giant ear of corn became the wonder of the whole country, and men came miles to see it. By the time it stopped growing the stalk was so big that Thomas had to hire 20 men to cut it down. When the ear of corn lay on the ground it was 11 feet long and so big around that a man could hardly touch the top even when he stood on tiptoe. Thomas wondered what he should do with it, until his good wife suggested that he take it to the King as a present.

So they put it on a wagon and hitched six white horses to it, and Thomas drove away to give his giant ear of corn to the King. The King was so pleased with the wonderful gift that he asked Thomas what he wanted most in the world. Thomas told the King that he wished to be as rich as his brother, Edward, and so the King gave him gold and lands enough to gratify that wish.

Now when Edward heard of his brother Thomas's good fortune he was very jealous. He wondered how he could win favor with the King, so he decided to give the King some valuable horses. When the King received them he looked at Edward and smiled, and gave him Thomas's giant ear of corn. "For," said the King, "raising such fine horses as you do, you should have the finest ear of corn in the whole world to feed them."

FISHING :: :: By Michelson

Copyright, 1914, by [illegible]

THERE is no rule against having company when you go a-fishing. There isn't any rule, either, against THINKING hard, or even against talking a little in very low tones. Of course, fish are very sensitive. You must not disturb them, except with the necessary bait. Naturally, you can carry this theory of not disturbing them too far.

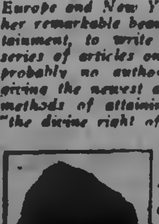
The important thing is to be glad you went a-fishing—to be glad you chose just the RIGHT company—to be GLAD. For this is summer, and all the wonder of summer is yours. All the joy of earth and sky and fragrant air is yours. That OWNERSHIP feeling creeps in. The FISH themselves aren't the whole game.

Walk and Swim for a Good Figure

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."



LUCREZIA BORI

PUT your corsets on in bed; it's the latest and most approved way. It has the indorsement alike of the medical men and the expert corsetieres. It makes the wearer delightfully comfortable and more beautiful, because it allows her to follow the beautiful lines of her figure.

Fastening the garters and lacing the corsets must be done on one's feet, as it were.

To adjust your corsets in bed, first open the lacings to their widest capacity, and even them, so they are the same width from top to bottom. Lie flat on your back, and slip the corsets under your body, then take a deep breath and draw them around and into the place where they feel as if they belonged. Finally hook them, beginning at the top. When they are hooked, stretch the arms over the head and wriggle into the stays. When you are sure they are perfectly adjusted so they do not pull or pinch or bind anywhere, rise and fasten the garters and lace the corsets. This is a particularly good way to adjust the front laced corsets or the elastic slip-ons.

By the way, one of the most successful beauty culturists, who makes over figures instead of faces, tells me that the cult of the corset-less figure is passing. There is a rumor afloat that, with the tighter fitting bodices there will come the fashion of the trimmer waist, and the girls who have reveled in their uncorseted freedom are now gradually rescuing their stays from the limbo to which they had consigned them.

This same woman gave me some hints on exercises, which she promises will have a tendency to reduce the waist, to rid it of any adipose, and give the figure that delightful quality best known as svelteness.

She advocates swimming for the best all-round reducing or developing exercise there is, and says: "Swimming will do for each individual woman's figure exactly what is most needed. If she is too stout it will reduce. If she is too thin it will round her out. Also it will make the waist graceful and supple and trim and strong."

Another exercise for the waist muscles consists of holding the body firm at the hips and using the waist as a pivot, slowly swing the torso from side to side. This is also known as the "liver twister." As it stirs the liver to activity it will have a beneficial effect on the complexion.

Here is how it is done. Sitting erect, take a deep breath, place the tips of the fingers upon the shoulders, and slowly twist the body from the waist up as far as possible to right and left without moving the hips. Then take the same movement with the fingers clasped back of the neck and the elbows on a line with the shoulders.

Walking to bring back beauty lines to your figure is the very best of exercise.

Walk in the early morning and walk with your heart singing and your face smiling, for unless we approach whatever we have to do happily it were better that we did not do it at all.

The newest nerve cure combines walking, bathing and sleeping. Not a drop of medicine, not a bit of inharmony.

Pure air to breathe, simple food to eat, good music at intervals during the day, long walks in the heart of a beautiful country, warm baths, cool needle sprays, and from 11 to 12 hours of sleep. This is the "cure" administered in a famous sanatorium, where overworked brains, racked nerves and overtense minds are straightened out and put back in commission.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Cold Rubs or Hot Tubs; Why You Must Choose

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

PERHAPS the hot bath has its origin far beyond the Japanese practice, for the sun itself sets man a good bathing example, by virtually bathing the earth every day with its own hot rays.

Bread may be the staff of life, but the whole stay of existence is water, within and without. Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep, and more water glides by the mill than the miller wots of, but all of it is good for bathing purposes.

It hardly seems possible today that, until a score of years ago, houses were built without bathrooms or porcelain tubs. Yet the hygienic flush, enamel tub with showers and other sanitary appurtenances were practically unknown a generation ago.

Nowadays it is as heinous a crime to be without a tub and the morning bath as it is to wear detachable cuffs and liver pads. No self-respecting man or woman can do without the former or abide the latter.

Whether you bathe in silver lakes or rippling rivers, amidst plunging seaside breakers or in the slippery tub matters little so long as the bath is obtained every day. The Japanese are so keen about the daily bath that they make certain having one even if they must use a rain barrel in the back yard.

The Cold Rub.

There are some who rail mightily against the morning bath, but when the silent early hour reigns o'er the fields is the time to bathe. True enough, the cold bath is a better tonic to flagging tissues than the luke warm bath, but like all tonics and stimulants, the cold bath can be overdone. It may become a hazardous habit.

To forget that the cold rub is merely for cleanliness or a mild tonic is to jeopardize health. The skin is to the living skeleton what the armor-plated sides of a battleship are to that creation's vital parts. In other words, these protective coverings must be kept all aglow and highly polished.

The same blood that flows through the internal parts also rushes full tilt, in sanguinary streamlets, through the heart, liver, kidneys and other organs. Therefore, any cold or heat applied to the skin is quickly transferred via the blood express to the furthermost recesses of your texture. The brain, the eyes, the ears, as well as the muscles, the stomach and the important structural machinery are quickly affected. The upshot of this is to make you, if you are unaccustomed to cold water, full of goose flesh without and shivers and shakes within.

For those who ail, who are debilitated, who are below par in any sense of the word, it is folly to take the cold, daily morning bath. A cold water rub, a brisk massage with a "roughouse" Turkish towel, should suffice as a sane substitute for the cold bath or shower.

"Bathless" Health Fiction.

The apparent health of many persons who never bathe—or who "wait impatiently for Saturday night" is a fictitious phantasm. It's much the same as the eternally coated tongues, the chronic stomach disorders and the invalidism, which is present throughout the lives of those who never know what they miss. Babies who are wrongly nourished and live later to be three score and ten, more or less inefficient, never hark back to Granny's dietetic errors. Similarly, people who seldom bathe are blissfully ignorant of their physical, mental and bodily deficiencies.

Summer Fabrics Dainty; Blousy Waists Are Passing

By MADGE MARVEL

MIDSUMMER fashions represent a queer intermingling of simplicity and fussiness, but there is good reason to hope that simplicity will continue to remain the stronger element.

When fashion opens the doors to draperies there is always danger of overdoing them, and overdone draping can only result in inartistic messiness, for the entire beauty of drapery lies in the grace and perfection of its lines.

Each day sees the blousiness of the bodice disappearing. The newest gowns have it drawn down so snugly that it is hardly apparent, and the ultra frocks show the tight fitting basque which is beckoning to the well proportioned figure.

The summer fabrics are so dainty and fresh in both coloring and patterns that if one can only avoid the temptation to let the freedom to drape run away with artistic judgment she will look more than ever alluring in her warm weather attire.

The quaint posied voiles and organdies and muslins lend themselves to picturesque styles, and are better without much trimming. Series of puffs sometimes take the place of series of flounces and give a pleasing variation of drapery. Such a frock is illustrated.

Naturally it would be possible only for the slender, willowy figure, but it is one of the Paris fancies, and has met with great favor there. It is so delightfully simple that it is particularly desirable for the young girl. The model shown is developed in Dolly Varden muslin, the groundwork the palest shade of pink, and the flowers showing pink, blue and violet with the shadow of green leaves.

The construction of the skirt makes it necessary to have quite a bit of fulness at the hem. The skirt is caught in wide puffs by shirring on a cord in exactly the old-fashioned manner. If the home dressmaker attempts this frock there is only one warning to give her. She must gauge her shirrings to a nicety, and have them neither too tightly drawn nor left in too much of the balloon effect.

I have seen some frocks of this kind where the shirring cord was of a solid color instead of the material of the dress, but the general impression was not so good, for it took away from the simplicity which is the best excuse for the style.

Some puffed models have the skirt divided by a puff at the knees, the upper portion falling over the restraining cording, and the lower edge being cut so that it accomplishes the narrowing which is favored for the last outline.

When silky gowns are worn with these ruffled fronts they are frequently much fuller than the drawings above, but finished with a wide ruffle of soft lace.

The hat which accompanies this model is rather more extreme than the average woman will favor, and the picturesque Leghorn hat with [illegible] and field flowers will be more becoming. With such a gown the [illegible] smart, but severe sailor should be set aside. Whatever hat is chosen it must have picture qualities or else it will seem an alien in the costume scheme.

The cothurn with broad lacings is the right shoe to wear with this costume. If we are to be dreamy and picturesque let's try to be so with complete consistency.

RETIRED FROM U.S. MEDICAL CORPS

Major Louis Livingston Seaman is not only a military man, and a medical man, but a traveller and journalist of international repute. His work in the Balkans and elsewhere in connection with the Red Cross movement has made his name familiar all over the United States. He went to the front, some weeks ago as special correspondent of the "Independent," New York, one of the liveliest weekly journals in that great city. In view of the statements written by him concerning German atrocities in Belgium, the publication of which the pro-Germans in the United States considered as a virtual breach of neutrality, Major Seaman was requested by the authorities to explain his action, as it is contrary to regulations for an officer of a neutral country to express himself definitely as a partisan in favor of either combatant.

"On the day of the Zeppelin massacre at Antwerp, Major Seaman sent the following letter to President Wilson:—

"My Dear Mr. President:—

Preferring liberty of speech to military or other service where it is denied, especially when silence would be a crime against humanity, I herewith tender my resignation as a member of the Medical Reserve Corps of the United States Army."

(The following correspondence, within the limits imposed by the censorship, hints at the pitiful sufferings of which Major Seaman has been a witness, and which impelled him to take this action.—Editor.)

"I am writing from the Hotel de la Paix in Ghent, the city whose people for two thousand years have done so much to wring from their rulers the concessions upon which constitutional government is founded. In feudal days it was one of the first of the Free Cities of Europe, and its historic monuments bear witness to the part it played during the Reformation. I believe no city on earth has contributed more to the development of civilization than Ghent. Here, the 24th of December next, it was the purpose of representatives of Great Britain and the United States to celebrate in the old Convent des Chartreux the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Peace between England and America. Two months ago in the Royal Casino and Palais de Fete the international exhibition of flowers was held. France sent many roses of rarest hue and variety many of which still adorn the extensive exhibition grounds, and in the Palais de [illegible], the French Opera Company made gay music.

"But what a change, the Palais de Fete is now a Palais de Misere, transformed almost in a night. Fourteen thousand desolate peasant women and little children, refugees from the country near Louvain, Malines, and Termonde, whose husbands or fathers or brothers had been butchered or driven to parts unknown, their homes pillaged and burnt, their crop destroyed, their only possessions the clothing on their backs, have been, or are now, being sheltered here. Could the reader but hear for himself the tales of suffering and horror that comes from every mouth, or see the ghastly wounds of many, even among the little children, that testimony to the agonies they have undergone, his indignation would know no bounds.

An American Socialist's Tribute

An American Socialist, Mr. Charles Edward Russell, has addressed the following letter to Mr. H. M. Hyndman, the Chairman of the Socialist Party in Great Britain. The letter was written at the Hague and dated August 23rd .—

Dear Comrade Hyndman :—I was delighted to have your most kind fraternal letter and to see that your perception of things was not astray about the present situation. I should have known it. Some of the comrades seem to be strangely muddled. The cause of Socialism, as well as the cause of political democracy, good faith, national honour, morality, and everything else that decent men care for, is at stake in this horrible conflict. If the principle should once be established that big nations should have no obligations to respect their solemn guarantees to small nations, there would come such a flood of reaction and of the supremacy of mere brute strength as would overwhelm us for years. Socialism is true, right and moral; it can have no tolerance of international brigandage such as Germany practised on Belgium. If nations may violate faith shall individuals be any better?

I am not fond of the Government of Great Britain, but I confess that I do not see, in the main, how it could have done otherwise. Let any doubter read the correspondence: that seems to me conclusive. I acknowledge also, that in times gone by I have been in error about the British armament. If it were not for the British navy to-day we should be at the mercy of the banditti of Berlin, and civilization would go backward four hundred years, and remain there for the rest of this generation. Great Britain stands between us and a catastrophe beyond description. So long as we have the conditions that produced this war we must remember that a part of these conditions is the necessity of being prepared to repel the assaults of capitalistic savagery. I am glad to read your analysis, and to note your faith in the eventual triumph of righteousness. Here, at times, we are overwhelmed with news that almost makes us doubt. Still, it cannot be that the world is to be overshadowed by a cloud so dark. But these are sadly trying times. I cling to the hope that before we are through with this ordeal men will become so utterly sick of slaughter that they will be willing to consider the source of war and ready to eliminate it for ever.

Dutch Neutrality

The continuance of Holland as an independent nation depends upon her maintenance of neutrality. She holds the waterway of 52 miles from Antwerp to the sea, and she must not do not affect the responsibility of the nations now at war if she cares at all for her own future freedom. The violation of her territory against her will, in breach of international law, would be another matter. That is what has occurred in the case of Belgium and the heroic resistance which Belgium has offered to Germany's attack entitles her to undying honor, and to ample compensation and full reinstatement among the free nations when the war is over. But there seems to be fear that, though Belgium refused her railways for German use, the Netherlands may not refuse the Scheldt.

Antwerp may be of no great value to the Germans without control of the river. The river might be worth as little without the fleet which is bottled up between the Elbe estuary and the Baltic. These are the military and naval considerations that attract the most attention. But they do not affect the responsibility of the Dutch government in the event of Germany's asking permission to use the river. To decline would be the only proper step to take, even though it might involve invasion. And it might not. Germany may care no more for Dutch than for Belgian neutrality, but she may care to avert the addition of an army of some 400,000 to the forces she has to fight in the west.

Holland appeared last year to have a premonition of coming trouble. In June the states-general passed a defence bill authorising an expenditure of $5,000,000. This was for the construction of a new fort near Flushing and the strengthening of fortresses already existing for the maintenance of the neutrality of the Netherlands. As the country really could not afford the money—the succeeding budget showing a deficiency equal to the defence expenditure—it must have been pretty much in earnest about the preservation of its neutrality. If the same spirit prevails the government will now think of surrendering the sovereign rights in the Scheldt even temporarily.

GIRL PAWNS JEWELS

Chicago, Oct. 24.— Frederick Henkel, whose sister Marie fled from home here yesterday with borrowed money, to go to the bedside of her wounded lover in Austria, caught a fast train in pursuit to-day.

"Are you going to bring her back?" he was asked.

"No, I'm going to help her," he replied.

Met in Europe.

Miss Henkel, aged twenty-two, met Count Willie Feodor Hines von Zagred while touring Europe with her mother last summer. A few days ago she received a letter full of endearments and mentioning that the writer had been seriously wounded in an engagement with the Cossacks.

"Send me something to remind me of you," the young count, who is an Austrian officer, concluded his letter.

Pawned Jewelry.

Miss Henkel determined to appear in person as a reply, but her parents would not supply the funds. Yesterday she pawned some jewelry and her girl friends made contributions, and she secured enough money for passage to New York, a steerage ticket direct to Genoa, $25 for passage from Genoa to Trieste, and $5 for meals and incidentals.

Brother Frederick carries with him plenty of money, so his sister will be able to travel first-class.

Magic "Nerviline" Ends Stiff Neck, Lumbago

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain Is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

GET A TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY.

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if you rub on Nerviline. And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the greatest liniment, the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times, just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Grayden, of Caledonia, who writes:—"I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and I appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the children gets a stiff neck, Nerviline cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking. Write for it.

MAN MUST HAVE MORAL COURAGE

right have your say. If you know you are right, have your say. Be downright, upright and outright.

"He is a slave who dare not be
In the right with two or three."

Wherever you find a page of human history which glows with a peculiar splendor there you will find the picture of a stalwart hero standing alone for God. When humanity began its march in the world there was just exactly one man in the procession and whenever humanity begins a fresh march God always selects one man to lead the way. Be a hero and lead the procession! Stand fast. Stand firm. Stand erect. Stand alone. Stand for God. Stand with your back toward the past and with your face toward the unfoldings of God's plan and purpose for humanity. Stand, and having done all—Stand.

Be sure you are right and then—stand. At first you will be denounced then you will be defied. At first you will be rejected, then you will be accepted. First men will swear at you, then if you wear well they will swear by you. First the sneer and then the cheer. First the lash—then the laurel. First the curse then the caress. First the trial—then the triumph. First the cross—then the crown. For every scar upon thy brow thou shalt have a star in thy diadem. Stand somewhere and let humanity know where you stand. Stand for something and let humanity know what you stand for. Be sure you are right and then—STAND.

I would rather stand alone for God
Than creep and crawl with the crowd
I would rather stand alone with God
Than, moping, move with the multitude.

Young man! This is the best day in the world's history. There has never been a moment since Adam left the Garden of Eden when it was ever such a serious thing to live as it is the present moment. I would rather go up to the judgment seat of Jesus Christ from the hidden jungles of distant Africa, without one ray of spiritual light having flashed through my soul than to ascend into the presence of God from the bright scenes of our Christian civilization without having made one determined effort to take this dear old planet and swing it nearer the throne of God than it was when I was born upon it. The young man who can live today, beneath the skies of a new world, in the dawning of the twentieth century, and not have his blood grow warm, his nerves thrill, and his brain catch fire, could have stood beneath the frowning brow of Mount Sinai, with its flashing light and crashing thunder, unmoved and unconcerned.

At Night.

The attendance at the Opera House yesterday evening was again very large, when "the Question Drawer" conducted by Dr. Gordon proved of instructive interest.

RADIUM IN CANADA

Traces of the Precious Stuff But no Big Find Reported

The Canadian Government is at present investigating several important possibilities in the Dominion. The occurrence of radium in Canadian rocks is being investigated by the Mines Department. The same department is having an investigation made of iron ore possibilities along Lake Superior and elsewhere. A further investigation is also being made into the possibilities of utilising flax straw for purposes of manufacture.

According to a report published by the Geological Survey Department, radium-bearing minerals have not yet been found in economic quantities. There are a few localities, however, in which such minerals have been discovered in traces or small quantities. Among these places are Madoc, Mamainse on the east shore of Lake Superior, Maisonneuve, Quebec; Murray Bay, Quebec; Snowdon, Ontario; Villeneuve, Quebec. More extensive prospects for this valuable ore will be made.

A Montreal firm has under consideration the manufacture of flax straw into binder twine, matting, etc., and the Government will also investigate the possibility of such an industry, and the advisability of granting to it a bounty in its initiatory and infant stage of development.

Reasons For Growing Trees

Trees retard wind.
Trees prevent drifting of soil.
Trees lessen evaporation.
Trees hold snow.
Trees increase yield.
Trees lessen the effect of hot wind.
Trees make a home for birds that eat harmful insects.
Trees furnish fuel and fence posts.
Trees make a place home-like and shelter stock, garden and fruit trees.
When clean-cultivated trees will do well. If left to fight weeds and grass they are quite apt to fail.—H. A. Bereman in Canadian Forestry Journal.

Canadian Beaver in Minnesota

There are now about four hundred beaver in Itasca Park in Minnesota. These are all descended from one male and two females sent from Algonquin National Park, Ontario, in the spring of 1902. The beaver were sent to the Governor of Minnesota by the Prime Minister of Ontario. Five beaver were sent, but two died on the way from Ontario to Minnesota. The descendants of these animals have spread themselves all over the west side of Itasca Park, an area of about twenty-five square miles.

LOCAL BAKERS HAVE MADE NO REPLY YET

Our readers will remember that in several issues of the Times last week we called attention to what seems to be a most unwarrantable raise in the price of local bread.

On Friday morning one of Peterborough's leading bakers called at our office to explain the cause of what would seem to be a hold up in times of general distress. As his arguments were of a somewhat academic and complex nature, we suggested that he write us a letter giving the bakers' side of the question. We promised, as we only want to be fair, to publish his statement. We called this baker up on Saturday morning and reminded him about his promised explanation. It had not been received up to time of going to press.

He verbally explained that whilst bread is sold at Tweed for 10 cents and 13 cents is charged in this city, the Tweed loaf only weighs twenty ounces as compared with a twenty-four ounce loaf sold here. In other words the Peterboro loaf is approximately ten per cent. heavier than the Tweed loaf but costs from twenty to thirty per cent. more.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

POLO PONIES SCARCE

Supply in England Not Equal to the Demand

Polo authorities in England are lamenting the shortness of first-class polo ponies, animals of quality and stamina, and urge the establishment of breeding establishments, especially in Ireland. They assert that polo ponies should prove a most profitable form of horse-breeding. In an appeal The Field says:

"The shortage of first-class ponies animals of quality and stamina, suitably broken, or more perfectly prepared by scientific schooling, is abnormal, and there appears to be a great opening in the horse-breeding districts of Ireland for the further production of animals, for which the demand is everywhere considerably in advance of the supply. It has been proved beyond doubt that the polo pony may be produced by selection, and is no longer a chance-bred animal. Polo ponies should be the most profitable form of horse breeding, because they are naturally hardy, requiring a meagre fare, and come truer to type than any other species of the equine race. They gain their life registration certificate at four years off, and are a saleable commodity at that age."

CAMERAS SNAP FINISH

Races Judged Automatically When Winner Breaks Thread

Successful trials of an automatic photographic apparatus for judging races were conducted at Maisons-Laffitte, and the system may be put into general use on the French tracks. A camera is placed in line with the winning post, and the winning horse, by breaking a thread, releases the electrically controlled shutter of the camera, and a photograph of the finish is taken. The apparatus was tried in Belgium for horse racing, and was used in all the track events at the Olympic games at Stockholm, but there the photographs were chiefly used as additional evidence in case of a disagreement between the judges. One critic thinks this method can hardly be "successful" owing to the thread stretching before it breaks, and thus releasing the shutter when the horse is partly past the lens. But this difficulty has long been known, and it is not impossible to overcome it. Muybridge, a pioneer photographer.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon, and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

GOLF LOOKS EASY UNTIL YOU TRY IT

Fascination of the Game and Its Effect on the Player

What is the secret of its fascination? Probably at bottom that it looks so easy and is so hard. Nothing can well seem simpler than hitting a stationary ball with a club. But in actual fact the human body proves to be curiously ill-adapted for any such task. The problem of dispatching that insolent ball in the desired direction becomes suddenly terrifying. Weak little men with hardly an effort send it flying a sixth of a mile. Huge burly fellows, with a blow that would shake St. Paul's, hit it 20 yards. It is the most baffling, tantalizing, vexatious of games.

But if the sorrows of golf are great, so also are its rewards. There is a feel and a glow about a clean-hit drive, or an approach that dribbles up to the hole, that very few strokes at polo, cricket, lawn tennis, or billiards are able to evoke. In the course of a two hours' round a player has every variety of chance to cover himself with glory or disgrace. It depends altogether on his own skill and nerve and self-control. One suffers for one's own shortcomings; one profits by one's own prowess—with just enough luck and chance thrown in to remind one of the mutability of life. And to many people this sense of standing on one's own merits or defects, and of being solely responsible for victory or defeat, is part of the attraction of golf. It comforts the diffident, it inspires the self-reliant; and the essential companionableness of the game saves it from egotism. Judgment and concentration and the courage never to submit or yield, and evenness of temper; these are all tested and disciplined by golf; while as a physical exercise it has the supreme virtue of being equally good for the young, middle-aged, and the old of both sexes. A veteran of fifty-five with a touch of lumbago defeats a champion of twenty-seven; a boy of twenty disposes of famous and seasoned masters of the game who have been playing it longer than he has been alive. People may point at the golfer as a but too typical product of our soft and leisurely age; but golf itself, so long as it remains a game and does not grow into a disease, needs no excuse.

USES CATS AS HOUNDS

Big Felines Trail, Point and Retrieve Like Hunting Dogs

T. G. Nimmo, of Missouri, probably has the strangest "pack of hounds" in the world. It consists of two huge domestic cats, which he has been training for more than three years, until they trail, point, and retrieve small games as well as any dogs ever seen in his district. The cats are named Tom and Jerry, and are used principally in hunting rabbits, tree squirrels and quail, though they have tracked and helped kill opossums and raccoons, both of which are plentiful in that part of the South.

According to their owner, who began training the cats when they were kittens, on sight of a rabbit, squirrel or quail they assume rigid positions like that of a pointer, except that they move their tails slightly, and wait for him to come up and shoot the game they have found. They have never, since he finished their training, rushed forward to kill the game themselves, or to attempt to stalk it. When the shot is fired they retrieve the fallen animal or bird, and if it is not quite dead give it a quietus by biting it in the neck.

The especial value of these cats, Mr. Nimmo says, is in their ability to trail, capture, and kill wounded squirrels which flee to the tree tops after being shot.

DONT'S FOR GUN-USERS

Legislation, in some degree, may prevent a good many incidents. The remedy, however, largely lies with the individual himself and at the risk of repeating what may seem like a list of platitudes, the following "don'ts" are set down for the consideration of sportsmen readers:

Don't point a gun at any person in fun. It is always the gun that "we did not know was loaded" that goes off. Then only time to point a gun is when you intend to kill.

Don't carry a loaded gun or rifle in a buggy, automobile or any other kind of vehicle.

Don't get excited and shoot without making sure your object is game.

Don't forget to "break" your gun when standing with others or crossing a fence.

Don't pull a gun from a boat by the muzzle.

Don't drag a gun under a fence with muzzle pointed towards you.

Don't allow your boy to handle a gun without first drilling him thoroughly in the way it should be used. To allow him to pick up his knowledge in his own way is courting disaster.

Don't use a cheap gun. They are apt to explode when using heavy charges.

Don't rest on the muzzle of your gun.

Don't load your gun until you actually get to business. At all other times it should be empty.

Don't get intoxicated.

Don't violate the game laws.—Rod and Gun.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large package. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. "HEAVING THE LEAD"

Picturesque Process Which Has Not Been Wholly Displaced

"Heaving the lead" looks easy enough, and anybody who is accustomed to doing it will say that it is quite simple; but it takes a long time before a man becomes a proficient lead man. A novice is apt to be frightened at the whirling fourteen-pound weight on the end of its line, and if he loses heart and omits to give it that peculiar little jerk which brings it flying round in a circle, it may fall perpendicularly in close proximity to his head. Heaving the lead may be all right enough in good weather, but in the winter, when it is blowing hard, raining, or snowing, it is anything but pleasant. The driving rain and snow searches out every portion of the leadsman's anatomy, even though he may be wearing oilskins, while his hands get numb with cold, until there is no feeling left in them.

The deep-sea leadline which was invariably used for deep-water work before the introduction of patent sounding machines, and would still be used if they broke down, consists of 100 fathoms of line and a 28-pound lead. It is marked up to 20 fathoms in the same way as the hand leadline, and then at 25, 35, 45, etc., fathoms with one knot, and at 30, 40, 50, etc., with three four, or five knots, and so on, to the greatest depth of the line. The ship is usually stopped when using the deep-sea line, for it takes a considerable time for the lead to reach the bottom.

The patent sounding machine consists of 300 fathoms of thin piano wire wound on a drum, and to the end of the wire is secured a 24-pound lead, with, just above it, a perforated brass sheath fitted with a cap. Before sounding takes place a glass tube, open at one end and coated on the inside with a red chemical compound, is placed in the brass sheath. The wire is then allowed to run out until the lead is on the bottom, and as it descends the pressure forces the water up the glass tube and turns the red chemical into a milky-white color for a certain distance up it. The lead is then hauled in by hand or by a motor, and the depth is ascertained by comparing the line of demarcation between the two colors in the glass tube with a wooden scale marked in fathoms.

With these simple but extremely reliable machines soundings can be obtained at greater depths, and with the ship traveling at far greater speed, than with the hand lead and line, though, as already stated, the older method is always held in reserve.

PRIZE RING TRICKS

There are more tricks of the trade in prize fighting than are actually seen by the onlookers, and a clever and active brain quick to appreciate a point of strategy and simultaneously to act upon it has often proved more valuable than the possession of a ready fist.

Perhaps the craftiest boxer that ever lived was "Kid" M'Coy. He reduced trickery to a science. One of his little games used to consist of strolling amiably round the ring, talking pleasantly to his friends and all the time wiping his feet on the rosin heap scattered about the canvas floor and collecting it until he had a good deal more than his share in his own particular corner. Then when his seconds crowded round him to fix on the gloves one of the "mittens" was certain to fall on a little heap of rosin, and a glove with a coating of this substance can be made to cut the skin like a whip-lash.

The trickeries of M'Coy's art were numberless. He it was who hit upon the ingenious idea of putting a heavy layer of bicycle tape upon his hands, so that his knuckles were protected with iron-like bands; but this became too obvious, and pugilists are now much more careful about the hand bandages of their opponents than they used to be.

M'Coy coached O'Brien when he boxed Fitzsimmons in San Francisco. "Bob" by that time was almost a spent force. "Tread on the old man's feet; they're bad," was the advice given by "Kid," and O'Brien, acting upon it, won the fight.

Barry requisitioned the services of "Kid" as coach in his fight with M'Vea in Paris. First of all Barry was admonished to "grind the negro's toes," which he did with the utmost good will, but for all the effect it had he might as well have tried to grind his opponent's hard head.

M'Coy was quick to appreciate this. He could see that unless Barry adopted some other trick he was going to be a beaten man. So "Kid" told him that he would not be disqualified for one foul blow low down and as soon as this was delivered to rush in and drive home another of the same. Barry acted on instructions; the referee ignored the foul, the men clinched, and Barry got in another. M'Vea was dazed, and Barry had only to deal an ordinary blow for the knockout when he started butting with his head and was disqualified!

Frightened by a Mouse

A mouse dangling before her eyes caused the death of a Bolton, England, schoolgirl. The child, Ethel Ashall, was returning home from school with some of her schoolmates when one of the latter laughingly swung the mouse at the end of a string before her. In her fright the girl ran off the footpath beneath the wheels of a passing lorry, and was killed almost instantly.

Criminology and Feet

Dr. Charles Perrier, police surgeon at Nimes, France, concludes from experiments lasting ten years that thieves and incendiaries have the longest feet; coiners come next; these being followed in regular order of succession by dynamiters, tramps, swindlers, and poisoners.

SHADOWING THE BALL

An Old Trick Which Fools Batters and Sometimes Wins Games

Can a pitcher be made to order?

Joe Boehling's success raises the question.

Boehling is one of the strangest pitchers the game ever has seen. Every batter who walks to the plate returns in disgust, declaring that "he ain't got nothing."

Boehling was pitching for a team down in Virginia. Clark Griffith saw possibilities in him, because he seemed to have the intelligence and cunning necessary to pitch winning ball and took him in hand. After Boehling had gone to the pitching school under Griffith and Altrock he was as much changed as if he had turned green.

Boehling worked a game against Chicago White Sox once that Griffith used in his best days. And not one of them saw it.

There was a trick used by many of the old-time pitchers known as "shadowing." It consisted of throwing the body to one side as the ball was pitched, so that the pitcher's body was on the line of sight of the ball and "shadowed" it, the body forming the only background. Boehling was doing this repeatedly, and the Sox were swinging late at the ball, although it was not speedy. Batters used to complain that Griffith had more speed than he seemed to have. The secret was that he "shadowed" the ball with his body and the batter did not see it clearly until it emerged from the shadow, and, therefore, thought it much faster than it was.

Ed. Reulbach worked the shadow trick once in another way and won a game by it. There was a new umpire working behind him. Early in the game Reulbach became very friendly with the umpire and, instead of kicking when strikes were called, he was polite and seemed to be anxious to assist. He suggested:

"Stand over a bit. Get on the line of the ball and you can see them better."

For five innings that umpire shadowed the ball, unconsciously helping the Chicago pitcher beat Brooklyn. Then some one kicked and the ruse was exposed.

DOOIN'S POOR START

Made Four Errors in His First Game in Fast Company

Charles S. Dooin, veteran of 1,000 major league contests, was advised by Charles A. Comiskey to stick to the tailoring business after a brief trial in 1889 with the St. Paul Club, of which Comiskey was owner at that time.

Comiskey does not recall the incident, but Dooin tells the story on himself.

Although he had been a member of five teams, Dooin had not participated in a dozen professional games when he became a regular with the St. Joseph Club of the Western League in 1901.

When Charley, then a stripling weighing in the neighborhood of 115 pounds, tremblingly entered the office of the St. Joseph Club to report for spring practice, he found a jovial-looking man sitting at a desk reading a newspaper. Enquiry revealed it was McKibben, his manager. Dooin stood there uneasily, twirling his hat and waiting for the manager to say something. Finally, the great man broke the silence by asking, "What can I do for you, sonny?"

"I'm Dooin, your new player," stammered the youth.

McKibben slowly laid down his paper in surprise, got up from his chair, walked around the recruit once or twice while surveying him from head to foot, then calmly remarked.

"Why, my boy, I want a catcher not a jockey."

Injuries to the regulars, however, gave Dooin his chance, and he was put in to catch "Big Jam" Wiggs.

Dooin was not only a catcher in his first game, but thrower as well. He threw to first and the ball nearly took off the baseman's foot. He threw to second and the baseman there would have needed a stepladder. He threw low to third, and then, with the game in a critical stage and the bases full, he threw to third again to catch a runner off. The left fielder running over to pick up the play, nearly caught the throw on the fly. It emptied the populated sacks.

When the weird session was over and Dooin was charged in the score with four rosy errors, he walked to the club house and began to pack up his things.

McKibben came along, and said. "What are you doing?"

"Gettin' ready to quit before I'm fired."

"Just unpack those duds," said the manager. "Your nerve deserves something, hanging probably, but you get another trial."

Dooin stuck, and caught almost every game that season. In the fall he was sought by several major league clubs.

The Footballer's Boots

The all-important part of the footballer's kit is his boots. These, when new, should be quite tight, even to the point of pinching.

Indeed, the professional footballer when trying on a new pair of boots does so in bare feet, and he will not have the boots unless they fit closely, although, of course, he "breaks them in" before actually playing in them. The wise player has two pairs of boots, one with long studs for wet, heavy grounds, the other with short studs when the pitch is hard and dry. —"Answers."

SEEDS ARE USED TO WEIGH DIAMONDS

Few People know That the Original Carat Grew on a Stately Tree

What is a carat?

Everybody, at some time or another, has boasted that the ring he or she wears is 22 carats' fine. Or that the diamond in the ring weighs a carat and a half and is an especially fine, large, valuable stone. But what is a carat? And why was such a term selected instead of ounce or gram or or grain?

It's a very curious thing that not one person in a thousand probably ten thousand—knows what a carat is. And there is probably not one person in a hundred thousand who knows that the use of the term is different in its relation to gold from its use in relation to precious stones, although in both instances the weight is referred to. The facts are these:

The original carat is the seed of an Abyssinian coral flower, or coral tree. The name was also applied by the Arabians to any pod or husk and particularly to the fruit of the locust tree. It probably was introduced into Abyssinia by the Arabs. In those days there was no system of weights or measures—or at least there was none among the nomadic Arabs and the Abyssinians. Gold was traded by its weight, and, as the seeds of the Abyssinian coral tree were uniformly the same size and weight, it gradually became the custom to weigh gold with these seeds, and gold, therefore, was said to weigh so many carats—or, in other words, so many seeds.

In modern times, with our well arranged system of weights and measures, the carat seems to have become, not a distinct term of weight when applied to gold, but a term of purity. Gold is weighed now by the troy pound or ounce. It would seem to be much easier to state that an ounce of gold is 96 per cent. pure or 75 per cent. pure. But the jewelers and assayers think differently. They divide gold into 24 parts, instead of 100 parts as they would do if they figured by percentage, and each of these parts is called a carat. Thus you might get a gold bracelet or necklace that weighed three or four ounces and yet would only be 14 carats' fine. That would mean that your bracelet or necklace was fourteen-twenty-fourths pure gold and ten-twenty-fourths alloy. The ordinary wedding ring is 22 carats' fine. It is very seldom that anything is made 24 carats' fine pure gold. The metal is too soft.

With diamonds and other precious stones the carat is a term of weight —the weight of the old seeds. One carat weighs three and one-sixth troy grains in this country. But, strangely enough, it is different in other countries. For instance, in London it is 205.4 milligrams; in Paris, 205.7 milligrams; in Berlin, 205.44 milligrams; in Amsterdam, 205.75 milligrams. This system of having a different weight for the carat in different countries has caused the jewelers to start a movement for the standardization of the carat all over the world at 200 milligrams or about 3 grains in the system of weights and measures.

NEED OF POLITENESS

Time to Revive Usages of Chivalry, Young Germans Think

A number of young men of good standing in the German capital, displeased by the growing lack of chivalry to be seen in men's treatment of women, formed a league pledged to practice and encourage politeness in public places.

Members of the league obligate themselves, for instance, to surrender their seats in street cars to women and the aged; to offer assistance to women at street crossings and in other places of peril; and to revive so far as possible, all the little niceties of deportment which went into eclipse about the time that women began to compete largely with men as wage-earners.

The objection to chivalry is that it is only skin deep; that along with extreme politeness may go the most substantial injustice. That, of course, is true. But isn't it better to have the injustice with politeness than to have neither justice nor courtesy? Courtesy costs so very little, and it is so nice!

The Boy Scout movement has elements of usefulness in this direction; but a courtesy league for elders, as in Berlin, might also serve a good purpose in our careless age.

Uses of Seaweed

Not useless when cast upon the strand are the dark masses of seaweed which you may survey at low tide at the seashore. On the contrary, these flowers of the waves have many uses. The broad, thick stem and flat leaves of the oarweed, when thoroughly dried, are used for making knife handles. The green and purple layers, better known as sea lettuce, are in parts used for food after being boiled down to a jelly. So is, too, another sea plant of a deep, dark, reddish hue, called the dulse.

From another, known as carrageen moss, size is obtained, which is used in the process of calico-making. Farmers also use it for fattening calves and thickening meal and potatoes for pig feeding. The long narrow leaves of the grass wrack, after being dried, form excellent packing material, as well as being used for bedding purposes for stock.

DRY IRRITATING HACK OF BRONCHITIS INSTANTLY RELIEVED BY "CATARRHOZONE"

No Failure, Cure in Every Case Treated By Catarrhozone.

Catarrhozone can't fail to cure Bronchitis; its so healing and balsamic that every trace of the disease flies before it. When you inhale the pure piney vapor of Catarrhozone, you send healing medication to the spots that are diseased and sore.

Isn't it rational to apply medicine where the disease exists? Certainly! and that's why Catarrhozone is so successful; it goes where the trouble really is, gets where a spray or ointment can't penetrate. For the relief and complete cure of bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, throat trouble, we guarantee Catarrhozone in every case. You don't take medicine—don't take drowsy drugs—just breathe the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone; it does the rest safely and surely.

"For three years I was seriously bothered by a bronchial cough. At night I would awaken with dry irritable feeling in my throat. I couldn't cough up anything, but very soon coughed my throat into quite an inflamed condition. Once I got Catarrhozone Inhaler I was all right. I took it to bed, and if an attack awakened me a few minutes use of the inhaler gave me relief. Catarrhozone has cured me and I strongly urge everyone with a weak throat to use it regularly.

Signed J. B. BEAMER,

A Cold Walk Home.

On Saturday morning the caretaker of a Bank on George Street had a cold journey to his home. It seems that the caretaker in question opened the bank he worked for shortly after the rays of the sun spread their glorious rays over Armouries Hill. There was a spring lock on the door. The caretaker's key was in his vest pocket inside.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Local Man Robbed

This morning an employee of the Fitzsimmons Auto Body Works, brought a traveller's valise to Chief of Police Short, which he had found in the river at Wellington street bridge. When found the valise had been cut open along the side and the contents of a pair of pajamas, shaving brush, some Gillette safety razor blades, and five collars with W.J.D. marked on them, presumably a laundry mark. This morning a Post reporter in investigating the myst discovered that the owner of the valise was Mr. W. J. Donovan, of Peterboro, representing the International Correspondence School. He had left his valise at the Benson House, and while he was out spending the evening, a sneak thief stole it from the hotel.—Lindsay Post.

Our Local Pavement

The general manager of the Foley & Gleeson Co., J. S. Driscoll, has stated that it was necessary to tear up every foot of the work laid in Peterboro last year the company will do so and it will not cost the city a cent. According to Mr. Driscoll the company greatly underestimated the traffic of George Street. They placed the pavement that is ideal for residential streets thinking that this city's main thoroughfare would not be subject to greater traffic than the residential streets in some larger cities. The surface they put down was not as close a mixture as is used on heavy traffic streets and the water got into it and was never allowed to dry out. Considerable of the blame for the scaling of the surface can be laid on the fact that far too must water is being placed on George street in an effort to overcome the dust. Mr. Driscoll is of the opinion that no pavement in the world could give satisfaction where the water is put on so freely and the slime and mud not cleaned off properly.—Lindsay Post.

Eulogy of Dr. Gordon

We think we can say without fear of contradiction that Dr. J. L. Gordon closed on Wednesday night the finest series of sermons viewed from either a scholastic, an educative or a religious standpoint ever delivered by a single individual in this town. From the outset he won the hearts of his hearers and the respect and admiration of all classes of citizens. A man of large mould, with the vision of a statesman and the tact of a diplomat; a man of sound sense and ready wit and human sympathy; mighty as a preacher, full of fire and apostolic zeal, he gripped the hearts of the people until heart, conscience and will respond to his messages.

Night followed night with no abatement of vigor or of zeal and it was with general regret the great audience that hung upon his sentences each successive evening, heard his closing words on Wednesday night. It was the unanimous belief of the several local speakers of that evening that Dr. Gordon's visit would mean much to the life of the average citizen of the town his practical treatment of all phases of every day life being such as to touch every hearer at some vulnerable point.

DISTRIBUTING OF SEED GRAIN

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the Experimental Farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid), to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE
Director Dominion Experimental Farms.

Kaiser's Troops Find it is a Long And Disastrous Way To Tipperary (Paris)--Germany's Whole Plan of Campaign Has Been Shattered by Allies

BATTLE ALONG THE YSER RIVER FRIGHTFUL DESTRUCTION OF LIFE

Fighting the Air, on the Sea and on Land--Infantry Digs in, Charge and Engage in Hand-to-Hand Tussels--Correspondent Calls it a Brisk Day. Officer Says "Not so Bad" Position Won and Lost Again and Again

London, Oct. 26.—The correspondent of the Daily News who has been in an armored train to the banks of the Yser, gives a good description of the battle in the west. He says:

"The battle rages along the Yser with frightful destruction of life. Air engines, sea engines and land engines death-sweep this desolate country, vertically, horizontally and transversely. Through it the little frail human engines crawl and dig, walk and run, skirmishing, charging and blundering in little individual fights and tussles, tired and puzzled; ordered here and there, sleeping where they can, never flinching and dying unnoticed. A friend may find himself firing on a friendly force and few are to blame.

Win and Lose Positions.

"Thursday the Germans were driven back over the Yser; Friday they secured a footing again and Saturday they were again hurled back. Now a bridge blown by one side is repaired by the other; it is again blown up by one side, is repaired by the other; it is again blown up by the first or left as a death trap till the enemy is actually crossing.

"Actions by armored trains, some of them the most reckless adventures, are attempted daily. Each day accumulates an unwritten record of individual daring feats, accepted as part of the daily work. Day by day our men push out on these dangerous explorations, attacked by shell-fire, in danger of cross-fire, dynamite and ambuscades, bringing a priceless support to the threatened lines. As the armored train approaches the river under shell-fire the car cracks with the constant thunder of guns aboard. It is amazing to see the angle at which the guns can be swung.

Machine Gun is Master.

"And overhead the airmen are busy venturing through fogs and puffs of exploding shells to get one small fact of information. We used to regard the looping of the loop of the Germans overhead as a hair-brained piece of impudent defiance to our infantry fire. Now we know it means early trouble for the infantry.

"Besides us, as we crawl up snuffing the lines like dogs on a scent grim train loads of wounded wait soundlessly in the sidings. Further up the line ambulances are coming slowly back. The bullets of machine guns begin to rattle on our armored coats. Shells we learn to disregard but the machine gun is the master in this war.

Foe Scattered By Machine Gun.

"Now we near the river at a flat country farm. The territory is scarred with trenches and it is impossible to say at first who is in them, so incidental and separate are the fortunes of this river side battle. The Germans are on our bank infilading the lines of the allies' trenches. We creep up and the Germans come into sight out of the trenches, rush to the bank and are scattered and smashed. The allies follow with a fierce bayonet charge.

"The Germans do not wait. They rush to the bridges and are swept away by the deadliest destroyer of all, the machine guns. The bridge is blown up, but who can say by whom. Quickly the train runs back.

"'A brisk day,' remarks the correspondent. 'Not so bad,' replies the officer. So the days pass."

Severe Fighting Results In Allies' Advance On Ostend

London, Oct. 25.—J. M. N. Jeffries, a Daily Mail, telegraphs from Flushing:

"Heavy firing was again heard this morning from the direction of the seaboard. As a result of severe fighting amid the dunes the allies advanced further upon Ostend. Their lines are now running from the coast, through Lombartsyde and Mannikeverre, to between Slype and St. Pierre-Capelle.

"The Germans between Westende Village and Westende Bains, were exposed to fire from three sides. The British ships are now off Valdeherge.

"The light and railway service between Knocke and Ostend has been suspended and a large number of the supply trains have returned to Bruges. English cavalry is reported to be active, working up from Thourout. The Germans placed artillery between Thourout and Tabbeke last night. The enemy is still occupying Thieult. Ghent and Bruges are quiet."

A Daily Mail correspondent telegraphs from the north of France:

"A battle has been fought in the extreme right of the German wing in the region of Nieuport, with extraordinary violence. The Belgian troops, helped by the vessels of the British fleet, literally massacred a German force which had attempted to push out a column to the south toward Dunkirk. At high tide the waves were washing piles of German dead up on the beach."

Mine Host Of The Empress Entertains City Council

Mr. George Graham, mine host of the new Empress Hotel, at the corner of Charlotte and Water Streets, entertained the City Council, City officials and the press at dinner last night, commencing at nine o'clock, after the City Fathers in council adjourned. The occasion was, in part, to celebrate the opening of this splendid hostelry, and give opportunity in high municipal quarters for judgment. The menu was a recherche one, served in the most approved style, and in a handsome and spacious dining room which, together with its up-to-the-minute appointments cannot be surpassed by any hostelry in any city of the size of Peterborough. The guests were shown through the big hotel, and expressed surprise and pleasure at the lavish manner in which every detail for the comfort of transient and permanent guests has been carried out. In every particular, the management has spared no pains nor expense to meet any demand which may be made upon its staff or accommodation.

Not to be prolix this magnificent hostelry offers the best which can obtain for comfort, and convenience not to say luxury, and promises to [illegible] meet with that full measure of appreciation which enterprise and consideration deserves at the hands of an appreciative public.

LOCAL BAKER GIVES HIS EXCUSE FOR PRICE RAISE

"To the Editor of The Times:

"Dear Sir:

"Having noticed from time to time in your paper certain references to the bread situation in Peterboro, and as the statements are somewhat incorrect and misleading, being apparently derived from some source not in possession of facts, and believing that you do not want to misinform the public nor treat unfairly any section of the business community, I take it upon myself to address this communication to you, trusting that you will correct any previous incorrect statements, made through error, or otherwise.

It has been stated that there was no warrant for the advance in the price of bread, and inferred that the bakers were just taking advantage of the war conditions to reap larger profits, when in reality the market of flour would have necessitated the rise in the price of bread three months ago, has not the bakers been protected against such rise by having a large stock of flour on hand. And instead of advancing then, they gave all the benefit of their fortunate buying to the public, and not until the old stock was consumed was there any attempt made to increase the price.

I might mention that Peterboro has had the best and cheapest bread in Ontario for a number of years, and outside of a few places where business jealousies of some local condition is the cause of bread being sold below cost, the bakers of Peterborough are still selling as cheap as the cheapest, and quality ahead of most. That is the reason why Peterborough bread is so much in demand in the outlying towns. Your statement regarding the price was misleading, you gave it as thirteen cents, when in fact twelve cents buys a double loaf from any baker or grocer in the city. Owing to the close margin that we will be working on this winter we find it imperative to eliminate as much as possible the credit business, so adopted the plan of charging one cent extra on the double loaf for monthly accounts. We understand your paper to say that flour had increased in price thirty cents, this we think must have been a typographical error. The increase in the price of flour alone, since our last purchase is over two cents the double loaf, this fact we are prepared to prove to any responsible person entitled to such proof.

You also stated that Peterborough bread was sold in Tweed for ten cents, when in fact there is not a loaf of bread shipped there from here. The bread sold in a number of the towns to the east of us is only twenty oz. to sell at ten cents which is exactly the same price per pound as we are charging here.

I might mention that there are a few places where Peterborough bread is sold for less than twelve cents, but the grocer in each case has either personal or business reasons for giving up his profit and charging the loss of such to advertising.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I can assure you that the bakers of Peterborough instead of being heartless and selfish, are the very reverse, and in philanthropy and patriotism will compare favorably with any other section of the business world.

Thanking you for the liberty you give through the press, and only asking that justice be done and truth uttered,

I remain sincerely yours,

.. W. STOCK.

Comment on Above.

As regards Mr. Stock's denial that local bread is sold in Tweed at 10 cents per loaf, we were told that such was the case, our informant being seemingly well informed on the subject. We accept Mr. Stock's explanation of the Tweed matter as absolutely honest, as well as his statement that Peterboro bread, after paying freight is sold cheaper than here in other towns. If our former article said that there has been a "decrease" instead of an "increase" in the price of flour that was an evident, as explained by Mr. Stock, typographical error. Still we cannot understand why a Tweed citizen should go out of his way to inform The Times that he is regularly using Peterboro bread on his family table at 10 cents a loaf unless such were the case. Of course Mr. Stock is speaking for himself, and there are other bakers besides him who could supply Tweed with the "staff of life." In fact, Campbellford is another town close to Peterboro filed on our editorial table as buying Peterborough breMMMM MMMMMMM Peterboro bread at 10 cents a large loaf.

The Times has no axes to grind with our bakers; we simply wish to give facts as they are guaranteed to us. We are pleased to receive Mr. Stock's views on this subject, and will be equally pleased to receive statements from other local bakers.

New German Line Of Battle In the North Held Back By Allies

French are Forcing the Fighting on Extreme Right, Which Has Been Weakened by Withdrawal of the Bavarians--Germans in Advance Across the Yser River Suffered Terribly and Cannot Take Advantage of Their Gain at This Point--British Fleet Continues in Action

PARIS, OCT. 26.—THE GERMANS ARE BEING HELD ALL ALONG THE NEW LINE OF BATTLE IN THE NORTH, WHILE THE FRENCH ARE PRESSING THE FIGHTING ON THE EXTREME RIGHT IN AN EFFORT TO FORCE A CHANGE IN THE GERMAN PLANS.

THIS WAS THE INTERPRETATION PLACED TODAY ON THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT SEVERE FIGHTING HAS TAKEN PLACE IN BOTH THE WOEVRE AND ARGONNE REGIONS. THE GERMANS IN ORDER TO MAKE THEIR OPERATIONS FROM THE NORTH SUCCESSFUL WITHDREW BAVARIAN TROOPS FROM THEIR LEFT, AND SENT THEM INTO ACTION IN BELGIUM, SUPPORTED BY FRESH LEVIES FROM COLOGNE AND BERLIN.

THE FRENCH HAVE TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF THIS, AND AS A RESULT IT IS BELIEVED THEY ARE NOW MAINTAINING SO STERN AN OFFENSIVE ON THEIR RIGHT THAT THE PRESSURE ON THEIR EXTREME LEFT MUST SHORTLY BE RELIEVED BY FORCING THE GERMANS TO SEND SOME OF THEIR FORCES FROM THE BELGIAN FRONT BACK AROUND TO THE WOEVRE DISTRICT.

THAT THE ADVANCE OF THE GERMANS ACROSS THE YSER HAS NOT BEEN FOLLOWED UP WITH ANY FURTHER OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT IS BELIEVED TO BE DUE TO THEIR TERRIFIC LOSS IN GAINING THEIR SUCCESS AT THIS POINT. ALL REPORTS FROM THE FRONT AGREE THAT THE GERMANS SACRIFICED THOUSANDS OF MAN IN THIS MOVEMENT, AND ALL ALONG THE FRONT THE GROUND IS REPORTED TO BE COVERED WITH BOTH DEAD AND WOUNDED GERMANS.

THE FLEET CONTINUES ITS OPERATIONS ALONG THE COAST FROM NIEUPORT TO OSTEND, AND THE NAVAL GUNS ARE CONSTANTLY RAKING THE GERMAN POSITIONS, WHICH HAVE NOW BEEN WITHDRAWN INLAND FROM TWO TO FIVE MILES.

Garrison Duty There Will Be Taken Up By Another Canadian Corps

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The Royal Canadian Regiment now on garrison duty at Bermuda will likely be sent with the next Canadian contingent, which it is expected will leave in December. Their place will be taken by another Canadian regiment which in its place will be later forwarded to Europe.

With the addition of the Royal Canadian Regiment, a corps from the Army Service and a corps of engineers it is expected that the first reinforcements will be nearer fifteen to sixteen thousand men rather than the ten thousand first announced.

Recruiting is Satisfactory.

Latest reports from the Militia Headquarters show that the recruiting is proceeding splendidly all over the country. The recruiting is particularly enthusiastic in the West where the whole of the present call for troops could be soon secured if required. At militia headquarters it is stated that there is no truth in the story of Canadian troops going to Egypt. It is branded as another "made in Germany" yarn. It is denied at the Naval Department that a squadron of Japanese cruisers is off the British Columbia coast to protect Canadian shipping there.

CAPT. SCHULTZ HELD AS SPY IN ENGLAND

Guelph, Oct. 26.—Chief of Police Randall received a cablegram this afternoon from Manchester, England, saying that D.L. Schultz was held there as a spy, and that Schultz had claimed to be a Canadian from Guelph. The records show that Schultz was a former resident here and a Captain of one of the companies in the 30th Regiment. Chief Randall cabled this afternoon to Manchester.

GERMANS UNDER OATH PROVE ATROCIOUS PRACTICE OF FOE

French Have Positive Evidence That Orders to Take No Prisoners and Shoot Wounded Was Carried Out--German Officials, However, Say Statement is an Impudent Lie--Captain Curtis Superintended the Execution

Washington, Oct. 26.— The French Embassy today issued the following statement:

"The report appeared in the press some time ago, according to which General Stenger, commanding a brigade of the German army in France, had issued an order to his troops prescribing to them to give no quarter to any prisoners, but to shoot them all, and to finish the wounded.

"'An official statement' from Berlin, via Sayville, was issued thereupon, declaring that this was an 'impudent lie.'

"The atrocious order had, nevertheless, really been given and carried out and proof of it is in the hands of the French Government. Over twenty German prisoners of the 112th and 142nd Regiments of Infantry (forming the Stenger brigade), are now held in France, at Montbrison and St. Etienne. They have declared, under oath, before the magistrate, that this order was actually issued on the 26th of August, and that, in accordance with it, all French wounded found on that day were at once dispatched. Officers, and notably Captain Curtiss personally, of the 112th Regiment, superintended the execution."

Germans Mounting Big Guns At Antwerp For Defence

London, Oct. 26.—The correspondent of The Times at Rotterdam sends the following:—

"It is clear that the Germans are putting Antwerp into a state of defense. In most of the important forts the Belgian guns have been replaced with German fortress artillery of the largest type.

The bridge between Antwerp and Pays de Waes, which the retreating Belgians damaged, has been repaired. Evidently the Germans are preparing a line of retreat from the Ostend-Dixmude line.

"The authorities have ordered the railroads to cease the free conveyance of refugees from Holland to Antwerp. Only a small garrison is at present in Antwerp, probably not more than 3,000 men."

The City Fathers Met In Special Session Last Night

The City Fathers met in special session last night, Mayor Buller presiding. There were also present Aldermen McIntyre, Weir, Langford, G. Walter Green, Johnston, Duffus, Dobbin, A. H. Stratton and Duncan.

A Weir was warmly welcomed by his worship as a member of the Council, representing East City.

City Treasurer Frank Adams was granted three weeks absence, in order to undergo an operation in the hospital. In his absence Miss J. Swinton will be appointed acting treasurer.

The Street Railway Co. wrote that it is impossible to proceed with street railway extensions west of Park St. this year.

Joseph Bell and a number of others petitioned that a public meeting be called to discuss such propositions as would make for perpetual peace at the conclusion of the present war.

Expropriation Business.

Ald. Johnston submitted the following, which was adopted as read:

Gentlemen: Your Power Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

1. That the Mayor, Chairman of this Committee and the City Solicitor be empowered to engage experts to make a valuation for and give evidence in the arbitration proceedings in connection with the expropriation of the property of the Peterborough Light and Power Co.

2. That the City Solicitor be authorized to consent to the appointment of His Honour, Judge Huycke, as third arbitrator in the said arbitration proceedings.

3. That if, in the opinion of the City Solicitor and Mr. M. K. Cowan, counsel, it is advisable to consent to the payment out of court to the Peterborough Light and Power Co. of the $100,000 which was paid in court, they be authorized to do so on the mortgage upon the property being discharged.

4. That the Chairman be instructed to have tile for lighting purposes laid on Water Street from Charlotte St. to Brock St.

Employment Bureau.

Ald. Johnston submitted the following:

Gentlemen:—Your Finance Committee beg to report and recommend as follows:

1. That a grant of 80.00 be made to the Peterborough branch of the Industrial Association of Ontario to enable the branch to try the plan for an Employment Bureau and similar work.

The report was adopted.

General.

Ald. Langford asked for a light in the market weigh scales. This was granted.

Ald. Langford was authorized to have the plaster work around the windows in the city hall building repaired.

ATHLETICS IN FRANCE

In the matter of training her young men for athletics France is going ahead very rapidly. At Rheims the Marquis Polignac has established a wonderful athletic college. It is the most complete school of its kind in the world—in fact there is nothing like it the world over. Every appointment for the teaching of physical training is absolutely perfect, and nothing is neglected. There are now hundreds of young Frenchmen being taught physical training, athletics of specially, in the college. Rheims [illegible] large number of these coaches—that's what they are—are being graduated from the Rheims college each year and sent out to take up their work throughout France. It's not hard then, to picture the result of this—a nation of wonderful athletes. The French are tak

RACETRACK ROGUES IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Swindling Operatives Who Happily Have Few Counterparts in the Dominion

The racecourse is notoriously a happy hunting-ground for thousands of scheming rogues, who visit the principal race meetings with the sole intention of relieving the unsophisticated sportsman of his money by fair means or unfair—mostly unfair, says a writer in the Glasgow Herald. Some of the schemes are undoubtedly clever, but others again are as old as the hills, and it is really surprising to find a public gullible enough to swallow them.

A common piece of thick tape, about two feet long and half an inch wide, is doubled up and folded round like a catherine-wheel. The operator then places it upon a table, and bets the eager onlookers odds of three to one that they cannot insert a pointed skewer in one of the loops so as to retain the garter when he pulls it. As there are about thirty similar loops visible, it is small wonder that the proprietor very rarely has to pay up.

This swindle is usually well watched by pick-pockets, as they have a splendid chance of plying their trade amongst the players.

The Race-table Swindle

The numerous race-tables scattered all over most racing grounds have an irresistible attraction for many would-be sports. Painted upon these tables are presumed likenesses of the various horses engaged in the big race for the day, and in the centre of the table is a revolving spindle.

The gentleman in charge of the gaming apparatus bets odds against the spindle stopping at any particular one of the various colored racers. His confederates stand around, and, by their remarkable luck in backing long-priced winners time after time, induce outsiders to bet heavily.

The backers never win, as the cunning race-game swindler has more than one artifice by which he can slow down the pointer to any horse he chooses.

"Welshers," or bogus-bookmakers, swarm at probably every racetrack course in the United Kingdom and they always work with half-a-dozen or more confederates who pretend to place bets with them.

Innocent Victims

When the welsher realizes that it is about time for him to disappear, a common practice is to offer his high stool to a spectator, "the better to see the race run," as he suavely puts it. Many a simpleton has had to run for dear life after availing himself of such an offer.

During the Derby won by Diamond Jubilee a welsher, about to depart for pastures new, offered his stool to a countryman standing near, who instantly jumped at the offer. He also obligingly held the bookmaker's satchel, which it is needless to say, was innocent of money. Then the welsher bolted, and the backers of Diamond Jubilee nearly killed the guileless yokel ere he was rescued by a body of police, his clothes being torn to shreds.

The Racecourse Sharper

For real cleverness, mug-lumberers, or "tale-tellers" as they are termed in the picturesque vernacular of the turf, are undoubtedly entitled to the blue ribbon of racing swindles.

A sharper of this type is an unerring judge of character, and it does not take him long to pick out a "mug," as the youth with more money than brains is known.

When thoroughly in his victim's confidence, the sharper, as a huge favor, tells him there is a great system of backing horses in existence, of which he—the sharper—is the sole inventor, and if Mr. Simple has any spare cash to invest he has a chance of making a small fortune. At first the poor victim is allowed to win a little; but gradually all the money of which he is possessed finds its way into his affable friend's pocket.

KING OF UMPIRES

Gaffney Brought Arbitrator's Work up to Modern Pitch

While John H. Gaffney, who died at his home in Worcester recently, was known as the king of umpires, he was not the first arbitrator to be honored by that title, writes Old Sport Hough in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Honest John Kelly was the original king of umpires, although it always was a question whether he was really the best of the umpires of his time. But there was one honor no one could take from him. When he was operating, he was the boss of the field, and that was long before the umpires were clothed with the almost autocratic power they are to-day. And then, think of the mobs he had to face in those days. Compared with them the most turbulent of present-day crowds are mild and orderly. But, no matter how tough the going was, nothing seemed to bother Kelly, who, on one occasion, hopped the fence in order to get at his tormentors in the right field bleachers. Gaffney, though, was the originator of modern umpiring. He was the first man to go behind the pitcher when there was a runner on, he was always over the play, and was the first umpire the Old Sport can recall who made it a point to be both blind and deaf at times.

Keeping Racing Straight

When an English racing man—owner or trainer—is "warned off the Newmarket Heath," it means that he is not allowed to attend a recognized race meeting in the British Isles; that any horse trained by him cannot compete in any recognized race, and that he cannot be even part owner of any horse eligible to compete. Apart from taking the trainer's life from him it is difficult to imagine any more drastic punishment.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE

More than one-half of the white population of the empire's dominions is in Canada.

Canada was the first colony to federate its scattered provinces into a dominion, in 1867, an example since followed in part by Australia, New Zealand and South Wales.

Canada was the first dominion of the empire to have a penny post.

Canada made possible the all-British Pacific cable by contributing 5-17 of its cost.

JOHNSON'S SPEED

Walter Perry Johnson, one of the best twirlers who ever threw a baseball, pitched his first game of ball in 1905 for the Fullerton high school nine in California. The contest went fifteen innings and neither side scored a run. Thus early in his career he showed his ability to pitch shut-out ball.

He was born in Humboldt, Kan., on November 6, 1887, and was still a youngster when his parents moved to California, near Los Angeles. He stands just one inch over six feet and weighs close to 190 pounds. He is of Scottish-Irish descent.

This speed marvel depends almost entirely on his fast ball for his success. He uses a curve, but only occasionally. One of the leading hitters of the American League describes his delivery and speed by saying that the ball comes up so fast that there is no opportunity to judge either the height of it or whether it is a curve. "You see his arm move and the only thing to do is just to take a swing at that time and your bat will cross the plate about the same time the ball reaches you. If you are lucky you may hit it."

MATTY A WONDER

Champion Shut-out Pitcher of the National League

Christopher Mathewson is the champion whitewasher of the National League. The one hurler who has blanked more teams than any other twirler in the history of the old league. No pitcher has Big Six approached in this respect in the 37 years the National has existed.

Mathewson leads all or any hurler in the old organization by seventeen games, then along come some real old-timers now almost forgotten—Jeems Galvin and Tim Keefe, these two old heroes of the diamond are tied for second place with 56 shut-out games apiece.

Mordecai Brown of present-day fame is third. John G. Clarkson and Kid Nichols are in the lists and were very handy in applying the brush in their time. But these grand old warriors of bygone days have their records dimmed and shattered by the brilliant performances of the great Mathewson and the three-fingered hurler of the Cincinnati Reds.

Here is the list, giving the shut-out games made by the expert brush wielders in the National League since its organization, all games nine innings or better:—

Mathewson	18	73
Galvin	12	56
Keefe	17	56
Brown	17	51
Clarkson	11	46
Nichols	14	46

If other major leagues are included Mathewson goes down to second place, Cy Young leading him by one game, but Young worked in 200 more games than Matty in his nine years longer of service. Eddie Plank stands third in the list, but Walter Johnson has a better record equal to Mathewson if the figures are based on the number of seasons he has been pitching. In seven years Johnson placed 40 shut-out games to his credit.

WAS A GAME FIGHTER

Ad Wolgast a Retired Veteran Although Still a Mere Boy

Ad Wolgast says he never will don another pair of boxing gloves for a serious encounter in the ring, and doubts very much whether he will ever be induced to even look at the modern tools of ring warfare again.

What is happening to the boxing game when a man is passe at 25 years of age, for Wolgast doubtless is passe and spent in a physical sense? Does this incident serve to show that the general speed of the world these days is reflected in athletics to this extent? In the old days a man was pretty good until he was well by the 30-year mark, and wasn't considered old as long as he had a spark of vitality left in him. In the present boxing age a man gets a couple of defeats, and he is considered thoroughly down and out and past all athletic redemption.

The ring never had a flashier career in its history than that shown by Wolgast. He started battling in 1906, was a sensation out on the Pacific coast in 1908, became lightweight champion of the world by defeating Battling Nelson on February 22, 1910, twice broke his arm on mediocre opponents, and went through an operation and then lost his title to Willie Ritchie on a foul on Nov. 28, 1912.

One thing always will stand out magnificently in the Wolgast record and it is something that nobody can take away from him. No more courageous man ever tapped a pair of hands in the boxing arena than this selfsame boy from Cadillac. His fearlessness was of the dare-devil type that makes the successful aviator and the leading jockey. He never realized the importance of drawing the line closely in the matter of weight. He was once heard to offer to fight Stanley Ketchel for the championship of Michigan, and that, too, when Stanley was at his best and the undoubted champion among the 158-pounders of the day.

RULES FOR BUSINESS GIVERS

Don't give to a collector just to get rid of him. Frauds flourish upon the folly of people who do this.

Don't give money to a solicitor who cannot show proper credentials.

The way to be certain that your contribution will go to the cause in which you are interested is to mail your check to the treasurer—not to give it to a solicitor.

Don't subscribe to organizations which give only a post office box number as their address.

Beware of one-man organizations. Every reputable charity agency should have a board of managers to direct its work and oversee its finances.

The fact that a woman appeals to you for a contribution does not necessarily imply that the charity in which she is interested is worthy. Fraudulent charitable enterprises are quite as often conducted by women as by men.

Always investigate before you subscribe. [illegible]

When Fashion Is Folly, Go Look in the Glass

By Winifred Black

Winifred Black

I SAW her at the celebration the other day—the woman I have known and admired a long, long time. She was laying a corner-stone. And laying it, as is her usual way of doing things, remarkably well.

I didn't know my friend at first—she looked so different. When she first stepped into the circle with her little silver trowel in her hand I thought:

"Why, she's ill and some one has had to take her place. I wonder if it's the neuralgia again?" But as there was something familiar in the turn of the head, the shoulders were, after all, unmistakable, and the way she picked up the trowel—but what in the world had changed her so?

Where was her dignity? What had become of the noble freedom of her open brow? She used to be, not pretty, but beautiful in a fine, early Briton sort of way that made you want to call her Boadicea—or Goneril. She looked like one of the leaders of the British legions, way back in the days when women were queens—as well as women.

What on earth had happened to her? She was just an every-day, rather gaunt woman, with a queer attempt at coquettish daring in her tired face.

Could it be that something dreadful had happened to her? Was her mind—it made me shudder to think of it.

It Was the Hat.

"Oh," breathed the woman who sat beside me, "Oh, what a perfectly darling hat!" I looked again—and it was the hat. My friend of other days was wearing a brand new hat, in the very latest mode. And that was what—that was all—that was the matter with her!

It was a little bread-and-butter-plate of a hat, as flat as a pancake, till it got to one of her ears, and then it hiked up into the air with a long, wild slant that fairly said "Whoopee!" at the top of its feathery voice. The other side banged down over one of my friend's nice, clear, intelligent eyes, and made her look exactly as if she were trying to tip some one the wink—in the old Irish heart comedy fashion—and didn't know how to do it.

Boadicea in a slit skirt—Goneril in a sassy hat! It completely and absolutely spoiled her, and took away even her least pretension to any sort of good looks.

Now I know that if any one tried to get my friend Boadicea to wear her hair in a braid down her back and go out on the front steps and jump the rope, she would think they were crazy—or that they believed her to be.

Why does she allow herself to be persuaded into a hat that is too giddy for a girl of 16, and too impudent for anybody on earth outside the leader of a chorus?

What does my dear friend Boadicea want to look like, anyway? One of those persons whom we never mention—when we can help it?

All the time that Boadicea was laying the corner-stone and bowing and smiling and being introduced I kept wishing the band would play and play at the top of its voice, "Where did you get that hat?"

I wonder if Boadicea would have answered the question? If she got it in Paris, I know one thing: The little milliner who sold it to her could hardly wait till she got to the cafe with Jacques or Henri, that very evening, to imitate Boadicea and the way she looked in that outrageous hat.

What the Milliner Said.

"But are they all mad—the American women?" I hear her say. "How is it that they wish to dress always like little girls—the nice, pretty, pleasant mammas—or like the lady who takes her ten thousand dollar poodle for an airing in the Bois with diamond earrings in his ears?"

No, I didn't hear the little milliner say it—not this particular little milliner this particular time. But I'm willing to wager that she said it just the same.

That's what they are always saying about the American women—the little French milliners. I wonder if what they say isn't just the least little bit in the world true? And I wonder what makes it true?

Why do we do it, we Americans, who are so sensible, so clever in so many ways? Why do we allow our milliners and our dressmakers to make such absolute figures of fun of us? You wouldn't catch a Frenchwoman of the real aristocracy in a hat like that—at a funeral or a wedding, or anywhere on earth. She'd die rather than to wear something which made her look so absolutely what she is not.

I know my friend Boadicea for what she is, a magnificent woman, broad-minded, great-hearted, big-brained—beautiful. I'd like to take the little milliner who's making fun of her this very moment and throw her into the Seine. Oh, yes, I'd call a little, natty French policeman in time to get her out before she drowned. But she should have a good wetting first.

Go home, Boadicea, and look in the glass. Do you really want to look like that—even if it is the fashion? Why? Don't you want to look like what you are and what we all love you for being? And not like what it makes us shudder to even think of—a poor, tired, worn-out woman of that world we never mention?

Think it over, Boadicea—do! And then, get a new hat, or take down an old one and trim it over again. And look like your wholesome self—in spite of all the French milliners in the world.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

THE most delicious and perfectly arranged menu may easily be made unsatisfactory by being improperly served on a carelessly laid table. In the same manner, thin bread and butter, a dish of berries and a glass of iced tea will seem a feast if it is daintily served. Many good cooks seem to have no idea of system in the arrangement of the table or the service of the meal which is so excellently prepared.

There are certain set rules relative to laying a table which should always be observed. The table itself should be covered with felt or asbestos to protect it from hot dishes, and the cloth should be laid evenly with the creases meeting at the exact centre. There should be a centrepiece of linen laid on the cloth, which, if embroidered, is daintier all in white than in colors. On this place a low bowl of flowers or a growing plant.

Have the silver bright, and arrange the knives, soup spoon and oyster fork at the right of the plate, and the forks and smaller spoons at the left. If a butter spreader is used, place it on the bread and butter plate just above the forks, and set the water glass in the same relative position to the knives. There should always be a service plate before each person. The napkin is laid at the left of the plate, or on the service plate.

If tea or coffee is to be served on the table, the service for it should be put in front of the hostess, while the carving knife and fork should be placed at the right of the host, if he is to carve.

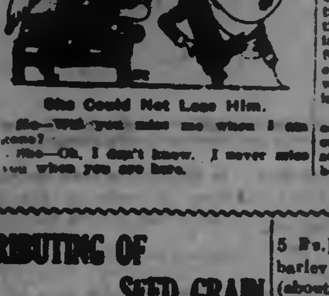
At least 20 inches of space should be allowed for each person, and 30 inches gives more comfort.

If, at the informal dinner, soup is served, the hostess serves it, and the waitress passes it, removing the service plate, at the right of the person as she sets down the soup plate.

The host serves the roast. The vegetables are passed by the waitress, each guest serving himself, the dish being passed to the left.

Either the host or hostess may make the salad on the table. A well trained maid will always hold all dishes by means of a large folded napkin. The use of the tray is not intended for the single large dish. After each course, every dish will be removed, one at a time, the platters last. After the salad, the table should be crumbed by brushing the crumbs from the cloth with a folded napkin to a plate. After the last course, set a finger bowl, one-third filled with water, in front of each guest, having it placed on a plate.

It is a matter of choice whether the coffee shall be served in the dining room or the drawing room. In the former instance it will be served before the finger bowls.



She Could Not Lose Him.

He—Will you miss me when I am gone?

She—Oh, I don't know. I never miss you when you are here.

HOW SAVING MADE A PRIMA DONNA

Elia Gergely, Henry W. Savage's New Prima Donna.

Eliz Gergely Tells How She Won Success

By ELEANOR AMES

EVERY girl who earns enough money to live, earns enough to save.

Saving money is more than a financial habit. It is a psychological problem. It is an attitude of mind. It is a beautifully practical example of will power. And it leads to that state of comparative independence which is the rightful ambition of all persons to achieve.

At least, this is the opinion of Miss Elia Gergely, who is a prima donna today, with all the emoluments that the top of the scale brings to singers. Simply because she learned how to live when she was merely one of the chorus, and schooled herself to go without luxuries, Miss Gergely did not find it a hardship to save money to study and advance in her art.

Of course, it would have been far easier to have forgotten all about tomorrow and the possibilities of making it infinitely better than today, but Miss Gergely has long vision. She decided to look ahead far enough to make the picture of the future so alluring that she would not mind the pinching and scrimping she underwent to make it reality.

"Saving 5 cents a day is better than spending one's last nickel," said Miss Gergely in her tiny apartment, where she prefers to live because she can get more for the money and live more like folks. "No matter how small the saving at the beginning, it will form the habit, and the habit of saving is one that once formed seldom leaves.

"Nearly every girl has some foolish extravagance which she could turn into an economy with lasting advantage to herself. I began saving by taking inventory of my extravagances; by finding out where the little leaks were which made my income scarcely cover the outgo. I found that I was getting lazy and taking advantage of the street cars every time I had more than a half-dozen blocks to go. It was neither good for my health, my figure or my pocketbook. I began to walk. In the first week I saved 25 cents in carfares alone.

"That sum saved for a year would give nearly $20 in the bank. Think of it! Oh, the times beyond count when $5 unmortgaged dollars would have made me feel like a millionaire! Besides, how much better I felt for the exercise of walking.

"Another foolish habit of mine was dropping into candy shops, sometimes two or three times daily, for a soda or an ice, or candy to munch between meals. All bad for my voice, ruinous to my complexion. No sweets. More than a dollar amputated from the outgo and grafted on the bankroll.

"The very first thing to do when you have saved your first dollar is to start a bank account. Once get a really, truly bankbook in your possession, and see your name in black and white, and realise that YOU are a person of financial importance, and you have the saving habit well rooted.

"One of the easiest rules to remember, when you start saving, is to get stingy with yourself. Eat as well as is necessary and dress as becomingly as your business and social position demands. But don't think you must patronise the same restaurants that the wives and daughters of millionaires do, or that you must have every dress novelty that catches your eye, even if you happen to have the price in your purse.

"Once get your system inoculated with the saving germ and economies will suggest themselves. And, just a little surplus money will give you a tremendous belief in yourself, which will make it possible for you to go ahead and work harder for success.

"It is not considered smart in any sense of the word to be wasteful.

"The spendthrift is no longer admired. Thrift is the order of the day.

"I would say that any girl who is not making money enough so she can live decently and have a chance to save a little has the right to complain that she is underpaid. The living wage, of which so much is said, should be amended to mean 'living for today and saving a penny for the rainy day that is sure to come.' Money is too good a friend to be thrown away. Start a bank account today."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I HAVE tried an experiment that I shall not repeat. After my cynical dissertation on dust hunters and housekeepers in general, I brought a business friend home to dinner unexpectedly. Not that I wanted to see if my wife had any philosophy or a sense of humor—I know she hasn't—but simply because I have always envied the man who might say casually: "Come on home to dinner with me, old man. You're always welcome. My wife is a brick about that sort of thing."

"Oh, yes, cynical Benedict, such things do happen. I know a young fellow whose wife is truly an absolute brick. He took me home with him one night to prove a lot of things that we'd argued a great deal about.

"Now," said he, "I won't tell my wife we're coming. I'll promise that. We'll just go."

So I 'phoned Mary and went home with Smith.

He has a tiny house and no maid. The first thing I was conscious of as we walked into the front hall by means of Smith's latch key was the sound of a woman singing, surely the sweetest and most domestic of sounds in the world when it comes from a kitchen. Likewise there was the sound of a great and business-like clattering in the immediate neighborhood of the voice.

"Hello, Madge," sung out Smith cheerfully, "what's the racket?"

"Salad dressing," called back Madge. "Who's with you?"

Smith grinned. We neither of us had supposed she heard the extra footfall. In an instant she was in the hall, her trim white apron looking mighty pretty in the semi-dusk of the hall. I was duly presented.

"I'm glad to see you," she said, quite as cordially as if I'd been invited. "Now Billy and I never make company of any one. We don't know how. Please do hang up your hat anywhere and come out in the kitchen, because Billy has to beat the cream. He always does."

And he did. I shan't forget the pleasant informality of that occasion, or the utter matter-of-fact way in which that girl accepted my presence. The dinner was very simple. Moreover, we ran out of butter, but there was not the least constraint. Billy seized a plate, hiked forth to a friendly neighbor's, and came back smiling. My pretty hostess laughed, patted him on the hand, and called him a good boy. Without a shadow of constraint the dinner proceeded.

"Forgot to order butter, didn't you?" asked Billy with a superior air that said plainly as words "Aha! got something on you this time, little lady, didn't I?" but Mrs. Billy merely arched her eyebrows.

"Seems to me, Billy," she reminded, "that you had a mad desire to make butter scotch last night, didn't you? And you've a pretty heavy hand with the butter. Remember?"

Billy remembered and pleaded guilty. I was fascinated by the wonderfully pleasant informality of it all. Why act so horribly constrained and embarrassed when things go wrong? Why not laugh and own up and put your guest at ease? To be sure it will depend a great deal upon the guest and the way it is done, but most guests, I feel pretty sure, would be mighty grateful to be accepted with absolute informality and made one of the family.

If a woman keeps her house reasonably clear and orderly, if her dinners are eatable, why fly off at a nervous tangent when an unexpected guest arrives to dinner? I have seen homes completely disorganized by the arrival of one solitary stranger to dinner, houses with trained servants in them, too. And surely, if the mistress of the house develops a fit of nerves the servants are going to feel the strain, and the result is a household whose constraint is communicated to the guest just as surely as the nervousness of a driver is communicated to a restive horse.

So after my delightful experience with Mr. and Mrs. Billy I thought to get Mary into a similar habit of mind, and I took a man home to dinner. I wish I hadn't.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Laughter Is a Tonic; How Smiles Bring Vigor

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE friends who in our sunshine live, when winter comes, are flown, and he who has but tears to give must weep those tears alone.

Henri Bergson, the great French-Jewish philosopher, is not the last to become immortal by virtue of his studies on laughter. Even an American poetess became famous for her couplet:

Laugh, and the world laughs with you,
Weep and you weep alone.

Laughter is truly the super-triumphant exercise. A dog may wag his tail in lieu of the capacity to laugh with his proscenium arches, but the effect physiologically is the same, to wit, muscular movements.

Cyclops, Atlas, Hercules, Pantagruel, Samson, Gargantua, Antoeus, Goliath and the other towers of human strength were certainly great laughers. The very mobility and agility of their muscles make it clear that they were hilarious fellows.

Laughter is associated with growth and avoirdupois. It is synonmous with vitality, vigor and strength. Each tiny snigger, titter, giggle, cackle, chuckle, smile, grin, chirp, bark, exultation and rollick has a health value.

Their physiological victories are no less renowned than roars, side-splitting guffaws, paeans of jubilation and the wildest revels of slap stick comedy. To tone up a few little muscles of the mouth and lips, to exercise the skill of the eyelids, eyebrows, cheeks and chin is as important as to move the stomach walls in waves.

To thus rejoice aloud is much the same as to give food to the muscles and music to the ear. Indeed, laughter is a form of music, an Orpheus's lute strung with fleshy sinews. Its golden touch moves steel and stones, makes tigers tame and huge Leviathans forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands.

Relentless Rudolf, Raffles and the other familiar villains of the comic sheet, of song and story, are known to their observers by a harsh, cruel laugh. This type of laughter is an index both to the thoughts of such conscienceless fellows as to their material supremacy.

Beauty, too, is the growth as well as the inspiration of laughter. The smile that is childlike and bland is one of the sweetest decorations of a youngster's features. As age creeps upon you, laughter is apt to grow less. Thus enters Mr. Wrinkle and Mr. Crowfoot.

Laughter, then, is a great outlet for muscular activity. Since the mind is kept fresh by what it learns through the muscles, each smile and laugh extends the breadth and wisdom within.

In this way cheerfulness becomes a tonic to the mental makeup. Like a candle which shines in the dark, or a good deed in a naughty world, so laughter becomes contagious and spreads its radiance all around.

Answers to Health Questions

E. G. S.—Am an elderly woman; suffer with indigestion, and, after meals, have a peculiar feeling of peristaltic derangement. Is there any permanent cure? What will remove liver blotches on my forehead?

If you will go on a milk diet with cereals, sponge cake, whey, zwiebak and other simple diet of infancy and childhood all the annoying symptoms will subside. 2—These skin discolorations are never wholly removed until the internal derangements are cured. You may safely try: Chlorate of potash, one-half dram; carbonate of soda, three drams; acetate of lead, 15 grains; rosewater, eight ounces.

A. B.—While bathing last summer got water in one ear. Have had great trouble since in both ears. They are running, and one occasionally bleeds. Have dull headache continually and sharp pains from back of head up to eyes. Secretion more at night than day. Seems to be swelling inside, and beating against drum. Hearing in one ear practically gone and other in bad shape. Have pains on side of face down to base of ears. Was this caused by bathing?

This may have been caused by bathing. Visit an ear clinic and submit to patient treatment there.

Three Minute Journeys

WHERE BEASTS ARE HUNTED FROM TREES

By Temple Manning

FROM my earliest story book days I had thought the tiger the most dangerous of all the cat family to hunt. But a little experience that I had in India advanced the leopard, or panther, far above the tiger in my estimation.

During a hunting trip in the tiger country we had killed two tigers with comparative ease from the protective shelter of the trees, and had come to the time when we wished to add a leopard to our bag. Our old "shikaree" could not arouse our enthusiasm with tales of tigers seen near the village, but when he said leopard we sprang to our feet and followed him.

Out at the edge of tall grass he led us to a new "macham." Now a "macham" is a platform laid across the branches of a tree, resting on which the hunter lies in wait for his quarry. We climbed up and settled ourselves to wait. After tying out the young goat whose bleatings were to attract the leopard to a hoped-for meal, the "shikaree" joined us.

The jungle was absolutely still. Our alien ears, that could not interpret, seemed not to hear the myriad noises of the teeming world around us. But the "shikaree" heard. He amused us for a long time telling us the meaning of all the sounds that he tried to make us hear. But, when he understood that we did not and could not hear what he heard, he lapsed into a contemptuous silence.

It seemed an age of time that we lay there without speaking. Then the old man touched my elbow and pointed. A slight bending down of the grasses to the left gave warning of the approach of some large beast. The tethered kid set up a frightened bleating, and strained wildly against its rope to get away. With thumping heart I peered out through the leaves at the swaying grasses and glimpsed a leopard.

It was only a glimpse, and I showed bad judgment in taking that shot. I should not have done it. The range was too long, and I only wounded the leopard. Straight up into the air he sprang, disappearing into the tall grass, only to reappear again in a tremendous spring. Right for the "macham" he came, clearing the five-foot grass in a series of bounds, incredibly swift in speed.

In an instant he was at the edge of the grass, and I was ready. With one final leap, that I shall always believe was directed straight at the human occupants of the "macham," the leopard clawed the edge of the platform. I could not miss.

A man can only judge from his own experiences. I do not know what others may think, but I believe the tiger is less dangerous than the leopard. To me the lithe, clean-limbed leopard is the better sport.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have known a young man for about a month. He has visited me frequently, and is always trying to kiss me.

Should I allow this? If not, how can I prevent it, as I do love him, and would not want him to stop coming to see me. DIMPLES.

DIMPLES, you're a goose—a silly, little, fluttering goose, and that's all you are.

Of course you should not allow this. Not for one single minute. If you do allow it you will never win the real love of this man. The one way to keep him is to make him wish for something that you will not give him.

Do you suppose you're the only one he visits? Get that idea out of your head. You're just one in a dozen. He's having fun with you, that's all. Lots of fun. And, when he gets tired of the fun, he'll leave you and go and have fun with some one else, and then you will cry very bitterly and wish you had never seen him.

You do not love him, really. How can you in a month? You probably think you do, but thinking a thing doesn't make it true. Make your young man behave himself when he comes to see you or else do not let him come at all.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

DISTRIBUTING OF SEED GRAIN

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the Experimental Farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE,
Director Dominion Experimental Farms.

German Army Patrols Wearing Belgain Uniforms

London, Oct. 25.—Evidencing the fact that Germany already considers Belgium part of her territory, the official press bureau in continuing today its series of eye witness stories from the rear, declares that the German cavalry patrols are now wearing Belgian uniforms. The report as received declares that this action on the part of the enemy is "inexcusable."

The reports today cover proceedings up to October seventeen, and are in many respects almost a duplication of the matter already made public along this line. The fact that the troops were again advancing toward the north after their long service in the trenches, fresh forces having relieved them there, has greatly cheered the men. All are declared to be very fit, notwithstanding the severe nature

American or German

The Standard Oil Company, owner of the tank steamer Brindilla, has formally protested to Washington against the seizure of this American ship by British cruisers, which took her off Sandy Hook, and brought her, a prize, to Halifax—and, therefore, the most important case that has arisen between the American and British governments in this war must at once have definite adjustment.

Before the war the Brindilla was the German steamer Washington. She hoisted our flag in compliance with the emergency free registry law as the property of the Standard Oil Company. Her master is said to be an American citizen, but it is understood that the other officers and the crew are foreigners.

The ship sailed from New York on Oct. 6, with a cargo of oil for Alexandria, Egypt, a neutral destination. This was on the face of it a lawful voyage. As a German steamer the Brindilla was nominally owned by the Deutsche-Amerika Petroleum Company, a German company was an ordinary subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company, the ownership of the vessel was actually American before the war began, and the British government has signified that ships owned by Americans before the war and transferred to our flag during the war would not be interfered with.

If the Brindilla has really been American property all along, the fact can be demonstrated before the prize court of Halifax, and the prompt release of the ship ought then to be forthcoming. A neutral vessel has an undoubted right to carry even contraband to a neutral country, and the burden of proof will be upon the British government to show that the cargo of the Brindilla was destined for belligerent use.

Icidentally the seizure of this ship confirms what was said in these columns when the emergency free registey law was introduced—that it was a dangerous expedient to endeavor to improvise a merchant marine in time of war by the purchase and "whitewashing" of merchant vessels of belligerents. The seizure of the Brindilla, one of the first, if not the first, of former German vessels to go to sea under the Stars and Stripes may prove the beginning of very serious co,plications which might have been avoided if the Ynited States has had enough ships of its own and officers of its own before the war began.

Italy's Neutrality

Discussing Italy's neutrality the Montreal Mail sums up the situation in the following intelligent manner :—

It is just as well to bear in mind that Italy's refusal to enter the war, on the side of the Kaiser, was no surprise to the Germans. No well-informed German ever expected the co-operation of Italy. Italy was included in the Triple Alliance by Bismarck in order to keep her from going to war with Austria. A war between Italy and Austria would have seriously embarrassed Germany, and the best way to avoid it was to compel friction between France and Italy, and to seize the opportunity to get Italy into the Triple Alliance. In his own masterly fashion, Bismarck did just that, but Italy's relation to her allies were never more than platonic friendship.

At the present time, the German claim is that Italy is bound by her engegaments to her allies to remain neutral. At the same time, Italy's neutrality seems to be assured only so long as Germany and Austria appear to be engaged in a losing fight. The depreciation in German standards of national honor which this war has brought to light must inevitably have convinced the Italian people that "a scrap of paper" such as the Triple Alliance engagement is a poor thing to link up German support with Italian interests when, as is the case, these interests clash in very important particulars with the territorial ambitions of Germany's fighting ally, Austria. It is plain, therefore, that the potential strength of Italy is in reality an asset of Great Britain and her allies, and that this asset remains to be realized at any time when it may be required to tutn the tide of victory. No nation is watching the progress of the present Rar with more serious concern than is Italy. Her national honor, which the Italian people cherish, as a heritage from a history that is an admirable account of righteous achievement, is at stake. If England went to war because of a "scrap of paper," Italy remains out of war because of a "scrap of paper," resisting, by all accounts, what is a very pressing temptation to her people. In certain ventualities, Italy may decide that her national necessity demands the breaking of her neutrality bonds—but nothing in her past history leads us to believe that she will succumb to a passing ambitious impulse. If as Germany claims, Italy is bound by her alliance to remain neutral, oaly a very drastic change in the present condition of the warring nations will give Italy an opportunity to plunge into, the struggle free of all suspicion that she was actuated by more or less unworthy motives. In the meantime, we may take some satisfaction from noting the strictness of Italy's neutrality. Germany's treaty-breaking exhibition when she invaded Belgium has lost her Italy's support, should matters come to a head, as surely as it lost her the respect of all neutral nations.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares ?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000 ; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report :

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time ; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $300,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

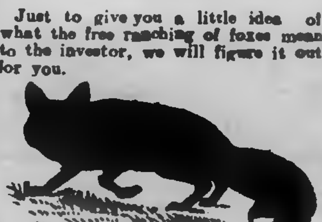
Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.



We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

CHILDREN HATE OIL, CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" best for tender stomach, liver, bowels —tastes delicious.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

RATS AND CANCER

Rodents Prove Dread Disease Caused by Irritation

Speaking of his observations at the Medical Congress at London and the International Cancer Conference at Brussels, Belgium, Dr. J. George Adami, of McGill University, Montreal, said:

"The most significant advancement in medical research which I noted was at the Cancer Conference with regard to the announcement of experiments made upon rats as to the cause of cancer.

"The cockroach had been found to be infested with small worms which when permitted to work caused irritation and cancer. The cockroaches containing these worms were fed to rats, and the rats became infested with cancer. Although this is only one step towards ascertaining the cause of cancer in human beings, yet it proved the theory that cancer is caused by irritation."

Wolves Near St. John

Wolves were seen near St. John N. B., recently for the first time since the days of the early settlers in the district. John Johnston, of Gilbert's Lane, was enjoying an early morning stroll in Rockwood Park, about a mile back from the nearest settled section when he saw four large black wolves and a cub. Two of the animals followed him for a short distance. They did not show any intention of attacking him, but he did not wait to make any closer investigation of their intentions.

While wolves are known to exist in the densely wooded regions in the north of the province, it is many years since any have been reported in the south.

MECHANICAL MIDGETS

Beautiful and Costly Wonders Made by Clever Artisans

A tiny gold watch such as is worn on a woman's bracelet is a marvel of minute workmanship. Of the screws used it takes nearly 130,000 of a certain kind to weigh a pound. Under a microscope they appear in their true character—perfectly-finished bolts. The pivot of the balance-wheel is only one two-hundredth part of an inch. Each jewel-hole into which a pivot fits is about one five-thousandth of an inch larger than the pivot, to permit sufficient play.

The finest screw for a small-sized watch has a thread of 260 to the inch, and weighs one one-hundred-and-thirty-thousandth of a pound. Jewel slabs of sapphire, ruby, or garnet are first sawed into slabs one-fiftieth of an inch thick, and are shellbacked to plates so that they may be surfaced. Then the individual jewels are sawed or broken off, drilled through the centre, and a depression made in the convex side for an oil-cup. A pallet jewel weighs one one-hundred-and-fifty-thousandth of a pound, a roller jewel a little more than one two-hundred-and-fifty-six-thousandth. The largest round hairspring stud is four-hundredths of an inch in diameter, and about nine-hundredths of an inch in length.

Watchmaker's Marvels

A marvel of minuteness and completeness is an engine made by an American clockmaker. It weighs about fifteen grains, and can be entirely covered by an ordinary thimble. The stroke of the piston is a little over one-twelfth of an inch, and its diameter less than one-ninth of an inch. The engine is built of 140 distinct pieces, fastened together by fifty-two screws, and three drops of water fill the boiler and set the engine in motion. It would require about 12,000 such engines to do the work of one horse!

Another marvel of ingenuity in the same line was produced by a watchmaker. This little engine is of the upright pattern, and is made of silver and gold. It rests on a 25-cent gold piece, and can be worked either by steam or compressed air. The cylinder is a little less than one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, with a little less than three-thirty-seconds of an inch stroke. The balance-wheel is one-third of an inch in diameter, and can make something like 1,000 revolutions a minute.

An Exquisite Boat

An English jeweller made a tiny boat out of a single pearl. It was suggested to him by the original shape of the gem, and he most ingeniously carried out his design. He made the sails of beaten gold and studded with tiny brilliants, whilst the binnacle was a lovely, though minute, ruby. An emerald served as the rudder, and the tiny craft stood on a slab of ivory almost microscopic in size. The weight of the boat, tackle and dock was under half an ounce, but the price was infinitely heavier.

The Italians are adepts at minute work, for there are artists in Florence who will take particles of glass and stone no larger than a mustard seed and piece them together on the head of a shirt stud with such nice adjustment of delicate shades of color that minute flowers and insects are represented in perfect detail, with all the truthfulness of nature. An Italian lady, too, painted a landscape in which appear a windmill, millers, a cart and horse, and passengers, with such diminutive neatness that half a grain of corn can cover the whole composition.

IDENTIFYING CROOKS

An Improvement Upon the Fairly Safe Finger-print System

The finger-print system is generally regarded as the last word in scientific detection of crime, but a newer method is being experimented with.

The great objection to the finger-print system is that, though it is quite trustworthy as far as it goes, being based on the fact that no two people in the world have the same pattern on the skin of their finger-tips, it is easily rendered useless by wearing gloves or by having the finger-tips deliberately defaced. Every crack burglar knows this nowadays.

But the newer system will baffle even the [illegible] The idea is to photograph the back of the hand of every convicted criminal. The network of tiny veins on the back of a man's hand is as much peculiar to himself as the pattern on his finger-tips. The chances are billions to one against two men's hands showing the same arrangements of veins. The photograph is taken after the hand has been allowed to dangle down for a minute or two, so that thee rush of blood may make the network of veins stand out prominently.

The advantage over the finger-print system is that no one can attempt to alter the arrangement of the veins without running great danger of bleeding to death.

Pinhole Photography

For pinhole photography, any rectangular box that is absolutely light-tight will answer. In one end insert a very thin plate of metal, in which a minute hole has been made with the point of a needle, and at the other end place the sensitive plate. If you possess an ordinary camera you may remove the lens and replace it with the pinhole. A prolonged exposure is required, about twenty or thirty times the ordinary one for any given subject. No focussing is required, as the image is always fairly sharp, no matter what distance the plate is from the hole. The larger the plate the wider he angle, and the greater the distance between pinhole and plate the larger the image. Pleasingly soft effects of landscape subjects in particular may be obtained by means of the pinhole.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

DOGS MAY TRANSMIT MANY DISEASES

Appendicitis One of Them, According to London Physician—Don't Keep Animals in House

How many people know that appendicitis in a large number of cases is directly traceable to dogs? For years the grapepip or other equally inoffensive articles have been blamed unjustly for civilization's most fashionable affliction.

"Nothing on earth would induce me to have a dog in the house," said a prominent doctor in the West End of London. "Professor Metchnikoff has discovered that dogs are extremely liable to a form of very tiny threadworm. The spores get into the fur, and a lady eating her bread and butter after fumbling the dog about could very easily transmit them to her own body. Once a threadworm gets into the appendix you have appendicitis; in some parts of France about 75 per cent. of the cases are due to this particular form of threadworm in dogs.

"You see, domestic pets are so unhygienic. A dog cannot tell you of the earliest symptoms of a disease, which is thoroughly developed before you can diagnose it. From a sanitary point of view, houses are much healthier without animals in them.

"Dogs are not the only offenders. Diphtheria is chiefly promulgated by cats. Whenever you find it among schoolchildren, suspect the cat. Canaries are specially subject to mumps and many outbreaks among children have been traced to these feathered pets.

"Human beings were not supposed to live herded with animals—the days of the Ark are over and gone."

Mr. W. Kirk, a well known London veterinary surgeon, took a different view of the matter. "There is no danger in handling dogs in the ordinary way," he said, "and there are few diseases except rabies which can be transferred to a human subject. You might have a low kind of fever from the infliction of wounds caused by the foul teeth of an old dog; but that is very infrequent."

ORIGINAL GUM CHEWERS

The Aztecs of Mexico are said to have been the first gum chewers known. The followers of Cortez reported that the Indians chewed a gum to quench thirst and relieve exhaustion. They obtained it from the sapote tree by tapping, and to-day the manner of gathering the sap is in close analogy to the process of gathering maple sap. The wood is of a reddish mahogany color, is quite hard, heavy, compact in texture, and fine grained. Door-sills and frames of this remarkable wood have been unearthed in the prehistoric ruins of Uxmal and founh to be in an excellent state of preservation. The wood is in demand to-day by cabinet-makers, who employ it in the manufacture of high-grade furniture and household fittings. The fruit, the sapodilla pear, was once very popular in Latin-American markets, but the constant demand for the gum and the consequent tapping so reduced the size and quantity of the fruit that it has become almost a negligible product. The sap looks like milk at first, but soon turns to a yellowish color and thickens to the consistency of treacle. It is collected and boiled in a rather primitive manner in large kettles, and when it has reached the proper consistency it is kneaded and the surplus moisture expressed. It is then moulded into large loaves and is ready for shipment.

Rescue Frozen Birds

The monks of St. Bernard's monastery in the Alps have lately been extending to birds the hospitality which they offer to travelers overtaken by storm. During a heavy snowstorm they saw a dense black cloud of migrating swallows approach. Immediately all the windows of the monastery were opened, and a few moments later halls and cells were filled with thousands of the half-frozen birds. There the little travellers spent the night in safety, and next morning they flew through the open windows and set out once more on their long journey to the south.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon, and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

SOME SIMPLE FACTS ABOUT THE MOON

A Lesson in Astronomy About Our Nearest Neighbor in the Realms of Space

Did you ever stop to consider that every bit of light the moon furnishes us, is stolen?

The moon is simply a distributing agent for the sun. And the habit of stealing light has become so firmly fixed with the moon that part of the time when it can't get all it wants from the sun it actually steals a little from the earth!

When the earth was a mass of gas and lava-like liquid whirling through space at a terrific rate, a big drop of the material of which it was made formed on one side and was thrown off into space, according to the best theories. The drop that fell off kept whirling, too, as it went off into the air. It followed the general path of the earth, only revolving a bit slower. As the earth cooled, the big drop cooled, too. And that drop became the moon we know now. It is the nearest thing in the heavens to the earth—being only 238,800 miles away.

A person can learn more about the moon by observing it through a simple pair of opera glasses than can be learned about any other heavenly body, studied in any way. A survey shows that it is completely covered with big bumps and hollows. These are great mountains and valleys. In the early days of astronomy it was believed that there were seas and lakes on the moon. This has since been disproved by closer investigation.

Of course, then, there being no water on the moon, there is no life there. That is the reason there are no changes in the surface, astronomers say, although it was believed for a long time that there were changes.

The mountains, some of which are very high, one at least reaching an altitude of 20,000 feet, are most interesting to study. More than 500 of them have been mapped by astronomers and half of these have been actually named.

The Earth, as it Would Look to an Observer on the Moon.

Besides these mountains there are immense plains. These are mostly given the names of seas and the names are far more poetic than those of the waters of the earth. Thus we find the Sea of Tranquility, the Sea of Showers, the Sea of Serenity, and the Bay of Rainbows.

We see only half of the moon. The other half has never been seen by man. And the reason for this is that the moon moves around the earth in exactly the same time that it takes it to spin once on its axis—27 days, 7 hours, 43 minutes and 11½ seconds. As the earth turns the same way there is always just one side of the moon turned toward us.

The moon gets its light from the sun. In other words, it simply throws a reflection of the sun's light. But few persons are aware, however, that it also reflects light from the earth. There are certain times when it does, however.

You see, the entire surface of the moon is not always where the sun's light will be reflected to the earth. This is what gives it the different shapes we see. Suppose, for instance, we observe the moon in what we call the "new moon" shape. The sun, is just shining on one edge of the great moon-ball. But if we look closer we see a rather dark shape that continues the spherical outline of the whole moon. This is sometimes called the "old moon in the arms of the new moon."

But that darker reflection, scientists declare, is really the reflection of the earth's light on the moon. Or rather a reflection of the sun's light reflected from the earth. This is of course, not so bright as the direct reflection of the sun on the moon itself.

The most important influence of the moon on the earth is in the action of the tides. This is caused by gravitation and is the force or pull exerted by the rotation of the moon on the water on the surface of the earth. Both the sun and the moon pull the water up as they near the earth. And the fact that the two are pulling, sometimes together and sometimes in opposite directions, is what makes the higher tides—the spring tides—and the less high tides—the neap tides.

Mack Not Infallible

When John J. McGraw said under his own signature that Eddie Collins was the greatest second baseman, he did not mention that he let a glowing opportunity to get this remarkable player slip through his fingers. When Collins was playing with the Columbia University team, both McGraw and the late Fred Knowles were fairly begged to give Collins a trial. It may not be called bad judgment, perhaps, but the fact remains that the Giants had the first chance not only to get Collins, but also Eddie Plank.

Feed For Fowls

Those who experience any difficulty in providing the necessary greenstuff for their fowls—as many do in winter—can provide an excellent substitute by sprouting barley or oats. The method is as follows. Place a layer of the grain in a shallow box and over the top, instead of the lid, place a piece of canvas, keeping it constantly moistened. Place in a warm place for a week, when the grain will swell and throw out long succulent shoots. It is a feed that is eagerly devoured, and greatly assists egg production.

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

ORIGIN OF AMBER

"Clotted Sunshine" of the Ancients is Merely Fossilized Gum

Scientists have said that the high value placed on gold is purely a hereditary instinct coming down to our present enlightened generation from our sun-worshipping ancestors, who saw in its color some kinship with the life-giving "orb of gold" above their heads. The same explanation has been given for the esteem in which amber has always been held—"clots of sunshine," the glowing globules have been called. Whether because it was "sun-stuff" or simply because it was pretty, the fact remains that in all ages amber has been coveted by the ladies for their adornment, and has ranked as a gem from the stone age to the present day.

Great mystery the ancients made of its origin, appearing as it did mysteriously and by chance on the shores of many seas, but amber is now known to be the resinous gum of prehistoric trees fossilized in certain strata of the earth's crust, and here and there laid bare by the gnawing of the ocean currents, to be rolled up in rounded pebbles or nuggets on the nearest strand.

Amber has been found on all the coasts of Europe, and sometimes in inland lakes and springs, or in the shafts of coal mines. The so-called amber of Burma and other parts of the East seems to be rather a non-fossil gum similar to the copal which is used in making varnish. It seems probable that all the genuine amber is directly or indirectly of European origin. The chief deposits of amber are on the shores of the Baltic near Konigsberg, the only place in the world where the collecting and mining of the precious fossil is an organized industry. From these shores the Greeks and Romans obtained their chief supply, and here it is to-day worked into pipe mouthpieces, or ground up to serve as a basis for varnish. Another use of the powdered amber is in Oriental temples, where it is burned by Mohammedans and by Buddhists as an incense.

It is as a gem, however, that amber is most attractive; and here the pale yellow product of the north is surpassed by the many-hued nuggets which the streams and shores of Sicily yield. Not only does yellow deepen into orange and orange into a dark rust-red—it even occurs in greens and mellow blues, and is rendered more lovely by the fluorescence of its surface, causing a shifting play of colors with every change of light. Such treasures, however, are rare, and when found compete not unequally with diamonds in value. The surface of cut amber dries and darkens with age, adding variety to the hues obtainable. A wide variety of objects has been found embedded in amber, and much interesting knowledge of early insect life has been obtained by zoologists from the specimens thus immortalised—a form of immortality which has also provided a favorite figure for the poets.

COMPLAINTS FROM CHINA

Far Away Wives Want the Money Husbands Earn in Montreal

Acting upon complaints which came all the way from China, prominent Chinese merchants in Montreal appealed to Chief Campeau for his assistance in a final attempt to put a stop to the wholesale gathering of married and single laundrymen in the various joints along Lagauchetiere street in that city, where they are lured by the fan tan game to hazard their earnings of a week at one sitting around the plain wooden table, over which the keeper presides and from which he takes the bets in unceasingly.

The gambling and its baneful influence was so far-reaching that far-off China was heard from in the complaint of the nine wives of as many Chinamen, who were sending no money home on account of fan tan.

The letters sent to Montreal declared that for a long time gambling has diverted the flow of money from the wives of many Canadian Chinamen, to the pockets of the fan tan gambling houses, and tales of hardship were recounted by the women, mothers of children, whose fathers were doing nothing for their maintenance.

When Chief Campeau was appealed to he readily accepted the offer of the delegation of Chinese merchants who agreed to place him in touch with the meeting places of the Tongs, where gambling was likely to take place. Heretofore it has been a difficult job to catch Chinamen at a fan tan game, and it is declared that the number of successful raids do not come anywhere near in numbers the ones which brought no results, other than to find a meeting of Chinamen with nothing in sight to indicate that a game was in progress. Sentries are placed as far away as one hundred yards, and the semaphore signals of Boy Scouts are a poor second compared to the speed of the sentry once the police appear in sight.

Feed For Sheep

In feeding sheep in winter hay is all-important, and, although a heavy root or cabbage crop may be an inducement to give them an extra bite to save it, it is a risky proceeding. Sheep need hay, and good hay. Sweet, well-made hay, the produce of young grass, is both easily digested and nourishing, and, after all, a daily ration costs very little in the end. Being a dry food, it is splendidly adapted for supplying to sheep on a watery root crop, which is by no means rich in nutritious matter. It sometimes happens that the turnip crop fails, and then, if cabbage or kale are grown, all will be well. But where there is no such crop to fall back upon the pasture is the only resource, with the assistance of food in the trough.

INDUSTRIOUS SETTLERS

Doukhobors, Though Sometimes Troublesome, Have Done Well

The Doukhobors, in their comparatively few years of residence in Canada, have prospered amazingly. In the Kootenay valley, near Nelson, and in the Kittle valley, near Grand Forks, the society owns 14,000 acres of the richest fruit land in the world. One of the largest brick-making plants in Canada is that founded by the Doukhobors at Yorkton. Since their immigration from Manitoba to British Columbia they have increased their landholdings, and, notwithstanding their primitive way of living, they make very successful farmers.

The Doukhobors—the name means "led by the spirit"—originated in Russia about 200 years ago. Because they denied man's right to rule man, they were exiled to the Arctic regions. That was the first of many painful pilgrimages. The English Quakers befriended the exiles and in 1899 had the entire sect, 7,500 souls, transported to Canada, where they were offered freedom to practice their religion in their own way. They made rapid progress both as farmers and artisans.

PETER VERIGIN
King of the Doukhobors

There are no idlers in a Doukhobor family, nor a Doukhobor community. Their clothing is characteristic of the sect. The women wear gorgeous colors and fantastic, broad-skirted gowns. The men wear patriarchal blue coats, with flaring pleated skirts. Their are 11,000 Doukhobors in Canada, their leader being Peter Verigin, a former Siberian exile.

THE ESKIMO'S CRUISER

Whole Family and All Possessions Carried in Big Oomiak

The oomiak may be described as the "family boat" of the Eskimo. It is used by the men in whale and walrus hunting and by the whole family during their annual summer trips, which they make to gather the winter store of fish and berries. Then it presents a spectacle not soon forgotten. Crowded to the gunwales with a mixed assortment of men, women, children and dogs together with piles of provisions and hides and all the impediments of camping, it moves slowly along. A sail of white and colored drilling, sewn in alternate strips, or even of patched skins, assists the laboring vessels through the water. Some of the occupants paddle when they feel like it, others scan the shore or watch the water rippling from the stern. If progress is too slow even for the Eskimo the dogs are put ashore, a stout line of walrus hide is attached to the bow, and they tow the boat along. Such parties are away all summer, or, rather, during the three months' interval which is not winter—a brief, beautiful season of unending delight.

Fish Worth Catching

What was said to be the largest sturgeon ever caught in the district was taken in a pound net at Old Woman Harbor, six miles from Little Current, Ont., by John Lapointe. From tip of tail to end of nose it measured 7 feet 8 inches. Its circumference behind the fins or flappers was 3 feet 8 inches; its weight 274 pounds. The value of the fish, which was shipped to the New York market was slightly over $200, it containing 51 pounds of caviare, worth $3.25 a pound.

HOW GERMANS REGARD IMPORTED GOODS

These ten commandments, an instructive circular which has been distributed throughout Germany by the Chambers of Commerce, were read in London at a meeting of British manufacturers:

1. In all expenses, keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots.
2. Never forget that when you buy foreign articles your own country is poorer.
3. Your money should profit no one but the Germans.
4. Never profane German factories by using foreign machinery.
5. Never allow foreign eatables to be served at your table.
6. Write on German paper, with a German pen, and use German blotting paper.
7. Use German flour, eat German fruit, and drink German beer. You alone give your body the true German energy.
8. If you do not like German malt coffee, drink coffee from the German colonies.
9. Use only German clothes for your dress and German hats for your head.
10. Let no foreign flattery distract you from these precepts, and be firmly convinced that whatever others may say, German products are the only ones worthy of the citizens of the German Fatherland.

WHEAT CONSUMPTION

The Average Canadian Leads the World in This Regard

The consumption of wheat has been estimated for various countries, with results as given in the accompanying tabulation. The estimates are based upon the average production for ten years, exports or imports of wheat, including wheat flour reduced to wheat equivalent and exclusive of that used for seed. Canada is easily in the lead, an average Canadian using nineteen times as much wheat as a Japanese in his native country. The figures in bushels are.

GOOD ROADS

Always an Inducement to Clean up the Neighborhood

Given a good highway, the farmer sets to work to rebuild tumble-down fences, to clean out ditches, to get a new coat and hat, to shave a little oftener, to carry himself straighter, and to take more pride in his house and wife and horse. Presently he is worrying about the appearance of his farm. For the first time he notices that the old home looks run down and painfully like a shack. Nothing will suit him but to change to better quarters before the year is out. Meantime a grand new coat of paint won't be amiss, for he is now somewhat ashamed of the home which he had built with his own hands. Everybody in the neighborhood catches the improvement fever. Neighbors set to work making their collective surroundings better. The schoolhouse is the first thing that comes in for general attention. The church no longer looks so aloof in its spotlessness. In short, the good road has reformed the man, reformed the housewife, transformed the children. It has made better husbands and wives and citizens; it has cleaned out the stables and the ballot, and changed the ways of living and thinking and dealing; it has put more money into the farmer's pocket, and more pride of the genuine sort into his heart. It has been a preacher and a lecturer. It has fitted the neighborhood for citizenship, and paved the way for the world to follow. In a word, it has regenerated the community.—Thomas W. Wilby, in "A Motor Tour Through Canada."

CLEVER WORKMANSHIP

Aged Goderich Man Made Pistol From Odd Scraps of Metal

A rare example of skill, patience, and perseverance is found in a remarkable piece of handicraft by Mr. William McArthur of Goderich, Ontario.

Mr. McArthur filed and fitted without the aid of any machinery a pistol that is the admiration of everyone who sees it. But when one learns from what a miscellaneous assortment of oddities the weapon was made, one can be excused for doubting at first that such an intricate work could be performed by hand.

From a sewing machine shaft the firing barrel was filed; a rat-tail file changed its shape to a firing bolt; a flat file became the trigger; a tuning fork was utilized for the barrel-brake, while a piece of copper steam pipe was cut and fitted for the stock sides.

Nine years ago the pistol first took shape in the mind of the old gentleman, now well over the allotted span of life, and many a dreary winter night was spent filing and shaping the manifold parts that each might fit its proper place with exactness.

IF CATARRH KEEPS YOU HAWKING USE "CATARRHOZONE"--THE QUICKEST CURE

Nothing Known So Sure For Throat Weakness, Bronchial Trouble, &c.

No doctor attempts to-day to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicine so taken effects only the stomach—never reaches the seat of catarrh.

The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this air with healing medicaments and you solve the problem. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. It contains the richest pine-balsams and the greatest healers known.

One breath of Catarrhozone instantly circulated over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant—suffering stops at once—germs are destroyed—every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat, relieves hoarseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened.

Catarrhozone is pleasant and certain. You breath Catarrhozone—you don't take it. Large $1.00 size is guaranteed; smaller size 50c, and trial size 25c, at all dealers everywhere.

An Explanation.

In the Personal column of yesterday's issue we noted that Mr. Walton Stevenson "who has been on the staff of the Bank of Toronto, Toronto" has enlisted for the war. The accidental omission of a "slug" or line of type stating that he has occupied that position for the past few years, it might be thought he had severed his connection with the Bank. Such a supposition is incorrect.

At yesterday's police court a local shingle maker pleaded guilty to having been drunk as a blacklister. He was fined $10 which he paid. When asked who supplied him with liquor, the defendant said he was supplied by a bartender in a local hotel. He did not know the bartender's name but could recognize him. This was the first liquor he had that day. The bartender gave him a bottle of whisky which witness drank in the hotel yard. The bartender served him with two flasks. He finished off the first flask alone but the second, produced in court, was uncorked.

A Peculiar Fish.

A story filtered into the city yesterday from Buckhorn. This story is given the Times on seemingly good authority. It seems that a young married couple from Rochester, N. Y., were honeymooning at mine host Tom Eastwood's. They engaged an Indian named Jacobs to take them fishing. At the business end of their trolling line came a tug. The fish was drawn to within three feet of the skiff. Both groom and bride claimed that the fish was four feet long, had no scales, had a mouth like a snake and had medals on its chest. Just then the guide cut the line and this peculiar specimen of the finny tribe escaped. It developed later that the description was based on the madness of love's young dream.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

June: The "French complexion fad" you inquire about is probably the craze for liquid powders. They're thought to be more wholesome for the skin, as well as more beautifying and less likely to show than ordinary powder. The following preparation can be made at home from ingredients to be purchased from any druggist, dissolve in one half pint hot water and add two teaspoons glycerine. It is splendid in effect, looks very naturally and clings as if it belonged to your skin.

Lilly: You will find shampooing with a teaspoonful canthrox dissolved in a cup hot water is a quick and pleasing way to free the scalp of dust, dandruff and excess oil. This is cleanser and invigorator most appreciated by one whose scalp is either dry, scaly and itchy or profusely oily. Its use restored healthful vigor to my scalp and induced the hair to come in plentifully, with a gloss, and greatly enriched color.

Bess: The best blood-cleanser I know is kardene because it acts on the liver and kidneys and if as you say, you are troubled with severe and constant headaches, it is an indication that your kidneys and blood need attention. To prepare, put one ounce kardene (from the drug store) into one half pint alcohol (whisky should not be used) then add one half cupful sugar and hot water to make a full quart. A tablespoonful before meals is the dose. This kardene tonic greatly expels poisonous waste from the body and tones up the internal organs so they can do their work. You will find this tonic good for lost appetite, failing strength, and to clear up the complexion.

Lorlei: Even the woman of middle age nowadays is determined to keep her flesh down who can blame her, not that present styles demand slimness? I always recommend parnotis (which I mix up at home) as the safest, cheapest and best flesh reducer. Get four ounces parnotis at druggist's and dissolve in one and one half pint hot water. Cool, strain, and take a tablespoonful before each meal. Dieting or exercise is not necessary with this.

Mrs. S.: My own experience with wrinkles was three years ago when I removed them with a very simple, inexpensive preparation which I made by mixing an ounce of almozoin (from any druggist's) in one half pint cold water and adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. This, by contracting the skin slowly, restores healthy firmness and keeps the surface circulation of the blood so good that a perfectly natural glow develops in the cheeks. I have used it ever since.

Madge: No, you need not have lots of money in order to give your hair and scalp perfect care. I often recommend many made-at-home items which are even better than high-priced patents. As a hair tonic I get an ounce of quinzoin at the druggist's; dissolve it in one half pint of alcohol and add one half pint of water. Rub a little at a time well into the scalp and your dandruff will disappear and you will [illegible] healthy.

Exie: I brighten my eyes and rest them when tired by putting a few drops of crystos solution into each and bathing the lids with the same. I make the tonic by getting an ounce of crystos from the drug store and dissolving it in a pint of clear water. It will not smart and is soothing and healing. It is the safest way of making the eyes sparkling and expressive.

Germans Forced Over the Frontier to the East of Nancy---Allies in North West Are Still Advancing Canal Choked With Dead and Dying Germans

IN OBEYING ORDERS 5000 GERMANS WERE KILLED--WEEK TO CROSS YSER

Enemy Advancing In Close Formation Were Mowed Down Time an Again By Hurrican of Bullets. German Autocrats are Not Fighting But Slaughtering Their Men Sickening Spectacle of Heaps of Dead

London, Oct. 27.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail in Northern France telegraphing under date of Sunday night, regarding the fighting on the River Yser, says:

"These ghoulish facts alone give in the Yser Canal this morning after the fighting in the night. Many of them were drowned and others were bayonetted. The very water itself was bloody while Dixmude's streets were strewn thick with the dead.

"These ghoulish facts along give some idea of the savageness of the fighting, the desperation of the German attacks and the stubbornness of the allies' resistance.

"The night was a hell from dark to dawn. At almost every point of the line man opposed man, sometimes at a few hundred yards distance, but more often in close grips. Face to face men even wrestled and died by drowning each other in the canal's waters. The Germans had had orders to get through that night.

Delay Incensed General Staff.

tured, said that the delay of more

"An officer of theirs, who was capthan a week in crossing this waterway, had incensed the autocratic military mind in Germany. It must be crossed tonight if it costs thousands of men. That in effect was the order given and the German soldiers, all credit to them, did their best

"Probably 5,000 of them gave their lives last night. They could not give more, yet they failed, but not because the Germans did not literally obey their orders. They crossed the waterway all right as they were bid, but once through they could not make good. They were mowed down with rifle shot, torn into human fragments [illegible] shells and bayoneted back yard by yard over their own dead in the waters of the canal. Into the very gray of the morning, this bloody work went on so fiercely that there was hardly a trench or bridge guard in the whole line that did not imagine that he had been singled out for special attack.

5,000 Got Over; Few Got Back.

"It is believed that some 5,000 Germans crossed the River Yser, but hardly one of them got back. Those to the north and northeast of Dixmude, probably 2,000, were met by a fine rally of the Belgian infantry and of the cavalry who had tethered their horses, and were driven by main force at the bayonet's point to the river canal and into it. There must have been frantic scenes and the bodies seen in the water on the next day gave grim testimony of this.

About 3,000 German infantrymen got into Dixmude. They held it for a time, but with shell fire and rifle fire, the place was riddled through and through. The Germans dashed out of the crumbling houses only to be wiped out by a sirocco of shrapnel and shot in the streets.

"When Sunday morning broke the dead and wounded were everywhere. Dixmude was a cemetery, but in the woods not far away the Germans still lingered.

Are Still Across the River

"They held a position under a desperate fire and eventually were reinforced. The allies could not oust them and the Germans are still across the Yser.

"Their presence may not be permanent and they may suffer the same fate as has overcome hundreds of their fellows during the week, who got over only to meet their death. but the Belgian and French lines, for the time being at least, have been drawn back about this point."

Cossack Prisoner Jumped Up Behind General and Rode Oft

Petrograd, Oct. 27.—A Cossack feat or horsemanship is thus told by an official from Lwow (Lemberg.)

An Austrian general, finding his men unduly terrorized by legends of Cossack prowess, decided to teach them that the Cossack was only an ordinary soldier and ordered them to take one alive at all costs. This, after some time, was done and the Cossack was brought bound before the general, who read his men a lecture from horseback and explained that he would prove that the Cossack was nothing in particular.

Finding the Cossack readily understood signs, he explained that he would give him a sword and that he must show what he could do with it. The Austrian soldiers crowded around delighted with the fun. The Cossack whirled the sword and with a wild cry, which is part of the language used by all horse-loving people of the world in all ages and has a curious effect upon the equine species, suddenly leaped up behind the general.

He lifted the horse to charge into the crowd of soldiers, who were unable to shoot for fear of killing their own chief and made ready way before them.

The Cossack headed for home. The Austrians, surprised by the curious apparition, sent a few wild shots after the pair without effect, and the general went into captivity fully persuaded that there was, after all, something diabolical about these Cossacks.

HUB MAN STABBED TO DEATH AT DANCE

Damariscotta, Me., Oct. 27.— Blame for the death of Hugh Clark of Boston, who was stabbed late last night in a crowded dancing pavillion at East Jefferson, was placed on Gilmour Bowman of Somerville, Me., by the coroner's jury late today at the conclusion of a hearing at which a number of witnesses testified.

It was alleged the stabbing was don with a jackknife which was afterwards found about 30 or 40 feet away with the open blade covered with what appeared to be blood. Clark's jugular vein was severed, his heart was penetrated and there were a number of flesh wounds.

Clark lived only a few seconds after exclaiming: "I have been stabbed". He was alleged to have been fighting with Bowman at the time.

Bowman was arraigned before a trial justice on the charge of murder and probable cause was found for holding him for the grand jury at Wiscasset next Tuesday. He was ordered committed to Uuburn jail without bail. The court proceedings were brief. Clark was 24 years of age, Bowman is 26. Clark was passing a vacation at his former home at Jefferson. He had been employed as a roofer in Boston and lived in Somerville, Mass.

Spirited Fighting Continues Between Rivers, Yser and Lens

Allies Make Substantial Progress Between Ypres and Roulers Germans Are Forced Over the Frontier in the East. Germans Continue to Hurry Up Reinforcements. Allies Destroy Several of the Foe's Batteries

PARIS, OCT. 27.—THE FRENCH OFFICIAL ANNOUNCECEMENT GIVEN OUT AT 3 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON, SAYS THAT SPIRITED FIGHTING CONTINUES BETWEEN THE MOUTH OF THE YSER AND LENS; THAT IN THIS DISTRICT THE ALLIES HAVE NOT DRAWN BACK, AND THAT THEY HAVE CONTINUED LO ADVANCE IN THE REGION BETWEEN YPRES AND ROULERS, AND ELSEWHERE.

THE TEXT OF THE COMMUNICATION FOLLOWS: ...

THE FIGHTING CONTINUES TO BE PARTICULARLY SPIRITED BETWEEN THE MOUTH OF THE YSER AND THE REGION OF LENS. IN THIS PART OF THE FRONT THE ALLIED FORCES HAVE AT NO POINT DRAWN BACK, AND THEY HAVE CONTINUED TO MAKE PROGRESS IN THE REGION BETWEEN YPRES AND ROULERS. IN THE GENERAL REGION BETWEEN SOISSONS AND BERRY-AU-BAC, AN ARTILLERY ENGAGEMENT RESULTED IN OUR ADVANTAGE, AND RESULTED IN THE DESTRUCTION OF SEVERAL BATTERIES OF THE ENEMY.

IN THE REGION TO THE EAST OF NANCY, BETWEEN THE FOREST OF BEZANGE AND THE FOREST OF PARROY, WE HAVE ASSUMED THE ZFFENSIVE AND DRIVEN THE ENEMY ACROSS THE FRONTIER.

RUSSIA: ON THE RIVER SAN AND TO THE SOUTH OF PRZEMYSL. THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IS BECOMING MORE ACCENTUATED.

MORE FRESH TROOPS HURRIED UP

London, Oct. 27.—The Germans are continuing to send large masses of troops to the westward and the southwestward, according to a despatch from Terneuzen, Holland, published in The Amsterdam Courant today. A message to this effect has been sent to London by the Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company.

The Terneuzen message says further that the allies who approached Thielt, Saturday, were repulsed by fresh German troops. Sunday 10,000 Austrians arrived at Ghent, where only a few Germans remain.

NEW YORK WORLD RAPS GERMAN AMBASSADOR FOR FOOLISH TALK

Germany Has About as Much Chance of Invading Canada as the Moon. The German Attitude Toward America's Munroe Doctrine Leaves a Great Deal to be Desired--Count Bernstarff is Wanting in Diplomacy

New York, Oct. 27.— Commenting on the suggestion made by Count von Berustorff, the German Ambassador, that Germany has the right to invade Canada. The World today says editorially:

"It is true that technically there is nothing in the Munroe doctrine that would necessarily interfere with the landing of German troops in Canada, provided Germany did not try to hold territory. But as long as the British navy is afloat, Germany has no more chance of invading Canada than she has of invading the moon.

Great Deal to be Desired.

"The German attitude toward the Munroe doctrine has always left a great deal to be desired from an American point of view. German political writers have habitually treated the Munroe doctrine as a piece of contemptible Yankee impudence, and this is rather a dubious occasion for a German diplomatist to raise hypothetical questions as to the event and application of the doctrine in a hypothetical campaign against Canada.

"Should German troops ever invade Canada the application of the Munroe doctrine to the specific case will be defined in Washington, not in Berlin."

Is Weak on Diplomacy.

The American sarcastically says:

If the German Ambassador really holds this theory it would have been the part of diplomacy for him to keep it discreetly to himself. It would not add to his popularity in this country.

We trust the Count will not supplement his interesting remarks on Canada and the Munroe doctrine with the proposition that should Germany wish to invade Canada the Belgian precedent would afford ample justification for marching her troops through New England.

As to German Culture.

The Herald asks:

Can Von Bernstorff imagine that Americans are so enamored of German "kultur" as exemplified in Belgium that they would welcome its appearance on this continent?

If there is one thing more calculated than any other to make Americans give ear to the foolish talk of those persons who would have the United States break its neutrality and give all its aid and comfort to the allies, it is the picture Count von Bernstorff paints of German armies hacking their way into Canada.

BIG PLOUGHING MATCH TO-DAY

The First Ploughing Match to Be Held in Peterborough County Will Take Place Today

On the farm of Mr. Sandy Matchett, Con. 16, Lot 19, Otonabee, near Stewart's Hall, if fine weather. The match has created wide interest throughout the County. Word having been received by the officers that a considerable number from a distance are expected to come to the city by train, and that they did not know how they would get out to the farm, the Executive have arranged with Blewett and Middleton to run a bus from their stables at half-past eight in the morning and at two in the afternoon. This will give business men in the city who would like to see the competition of the match without spending all day on the field, a chance to do so.

The Prizes.

It was at first announced that the Cup given by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., was worth $50, but Mr. Burnham later made other arrangements whereby the Cup is really worth $60, and which he has always turned over to the County Council. Mr. C. A. Sessmith, M. P., has contributed a $12 prize, which completes the prize list. All those who have contributed prizes have been invited to attend the match tomorrow and present their prizes in person to the successful competitors after the match is over. The contestants, judges and officers are to be entertained to dinner by Mr. Matchett Permission has been granted by the directors to a caterer to erect a tent and attend to the wants of the public.

Competition in the Men's Class in stubble and in the young men's class in sod is not likely to be very keen unless some enteries are received by mail or are accepted by the judges tomorrow. Any young men who have not yet entered and would like to, are advised to take their ploughs tomorrow as it is quite possible the directors will accept their entries. The ground is in excellent condition for the match.

New British Gun To Menace Airship

London, Oct. 27.—The new British gun used for the first time in recent days, says the correspondent of The Times, in Northern France, has provided a fresh terror for German airmen. The gun, the correspondent states, succeeds in finding its target with great facility.

FACE PAINT TABOOED: REMOVE SKIN INSTEAD

"A few years ago only one class of women painted their faces," says Dolly Madison in Chicago News. "It was a sign of social ostracism and was tabooed in refined circles. The custom has become so universal we must admit it is to be deplored and to be shelved as soon as possible."

How foolish to seek artificial "beauty" of this sort, obnoxious from artistic and moral standpoints, when it is so easy to obtain a truly natural complexion by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which may be had at any drug store in original one-ounce package. This mercolized wax is so effective, harmless and inexpensive, no one need think of using anything else for the purpose. Applied like cold cream at night, and washed off in the morning, it at once begins to show its remarkable rejuvenating effects. It gently absorbs the lifeless surface skin in tiny particles, gradually showing the fresher, livelier beautiful underskin. Naturally it takes with it all surface defects, like freckles, pimples, moth patches and liver spots.

KAISER ORDERS THAT CALAIS MUST BE CAPTURED AT ANY COST

Allies Fighting Battle in West Flanders With Warships at Their Back--Both Armies Now Using Caution--The Zeppelin Scare Now Side-Tracked--Will Germany Fleet Come Out and Fight?

London, Oct. 27.—On a miniature scale the status of the opposing armies in Upper Belgium ran parallel today to the conditions which prevailed when the German rush toward Paris was checked. In other words the German forward movement has been characterised by an even greater prodigality of men than was shown in the march in the direction of Paris. Invaders succeeded for days in battering their way on and then suddenly came to something which caused them to pause.

Since Saturday no German gain has been recorded and it is apparent that the allies either brought up such strong reinforcements or entrenched themselves so well, or both, that the Germans must sacrifice man after man for every foot of ground.

With Warships at Their Backs.

The flat country in West Flanders permits no such entrenchments as made the area of hostilities in France famous, but the British and Belgians, with warships at their backs, have dug themselves in wherever practicable, while throwing out every obstacle to impede the enemy.

Whether Germany can drive her forces like a ram through the allied barrier is a task, the result of which should decide the success —or failure —of her plan to reach Calais and from there set in motion a long cherished scheme to harass England. On the other hand the failure of the German forces to progress, it is maintained by military observers in England, probably would mean another retreat.

Caution Is Necessary.

A statement issued by the official press bureau today indicated how slowly each side must feel its way among the hundreds of little Belgian villages. To go forward without careful reconnoitering would be extremely perilous as it never is known whether a village is merely occupied with harmless citizens or is held by armed forces ready to attack.

The Admiralty has not yet admitted that the monitors working off the Belgian coast have sustained any damage though the Germans claim to have reached the vessels with their artillery.

Zeppelin Scare Side-tracked.

The talk of Zeppelins visiting London has assumed second place alongside of the speculation as to when the German warships will dart from their havens and engage the British naval units. Englishmen cannot explain to their own satisfaction how the Germans are going to do this feat, necessitating as it will the running of the gauntlet of the British fleet as well as speeding through a mined area.

Orders Calais to be Taken.

Despatches reaching London aver that Emperor William has demanded unequivocally that Calais be taken, and a telegram received today quoting the Saxon Gazette gives what purports to be an ambitious plan of the German invasion, once the north coast of France is in their hands.

Traitor Marity's Rebellion Is Very Quickly Crushed

London, Oct. 17.—An official despatch from Col. Wylie at Upington, Cape Province, describing Col. Brits' attack on Lieut-Col. Maritz's force north of Kakamas on Oct. 24, forwarded from Pretoria to London by Reuter's Telegram Company, says that Maritz only defended the town about one hour and then retreated.

The losses sustained by the followers of Maritz are not known, but the number of wounded, captured and surrendered men is large.

Traitor Slightly Wounded.

Lieut.-Col. Maritz was wounded in the leg, though not dangerously. His forces retreated hurriedly. They left their tents standing and they abandoned large quantities of stores and a waggonload of ammunition.

The horses of the Union of South Africa troops, the official despatch adds, unfortunately were exhausted and unable to pursue Col. Maritz. Of the Government forces one man was wounded.

New Zepplin Is Launched This Makes Thirty-One

London, Oct. 27.—A despatch from Geneva, Switzerland, to The Express gives this account of the launching of a new Zeppelin:

"The most powerful Zeppelin yet made has just been launched at Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance. Without preliminary trials it flew away northwards at great speed, cheered by the soldiers, who shouted "To London!" Count Zeppelin was present at the launching.

"The airship has a special armored compartment for bombs near the propellers and a big gun is mounted in front to destroy aeroplanes. A second airship of similar type will be ready by the end of October.

"As soon as this new airship—the thirty-first of its kind,—is finished, work will be begun on another. More Zeppelins are being built at Dusseldorf, Colmar and Berlin, the German staff desiring that the number be brought to a hundred quickly."

MORE BIG CONTRACTS LET

Ottawa, Oct. 27.— There was a lengthy session of the purchasing committee of the Cabinet today when it is understood a number of important contracts for the purchase of material and equipment for the second contingent were let. The members of the committee are Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon J.D. Reid, Sir George Foster, Hon. Frank Cochrane and Hon. C.J. Doherty.

The committee is endeavoring to spread out the contracts with due economy that industries in all parts of Canada will be benefited. The Canadian contracts along with the heavy British and French contracts let in Canada have already given a big impetus to many industries in Canada.

Finding the Cossack readily understood signs, he explained that he would give him a sword and that he must show what he could do with it. The Austrian soldiers crowded around delighted with the fun. The Cossack whirled the sword and with a wild cry, which is part of the language used by all horse-loving people of the world in all ages and has a curious effect upon the equine species, suddenly leaped up behind the general

He lifted the horse to charge into the crowd of soldiers, who were unable to shoot for fear of killing their own chief and made ready way before them.

The Cossack headed for home. The Austrians, surprised by the curious apparition, sent a few wild shots after the pair without effect, and the general went into captivity fully persuaded that there was, after all, something diabolical about these Cossacks.

HUB MAN STABBED TO DEATH AT DANCE

Damariscotta, Me., Oct. 27.— Blame for the death of Hugh Clark of Boston, who was stabbed late last night in a crowded dancing pavillion at East Jefferson, was placed on Gilmour Bowman of Somerville, Me., by the coroner's jury late today at the conclusion of a hearing at which a number of witnesses testified.

It was alleged the stabbing was don with a jackknife which was afterwards found about 30 or 40 feet away with the open blade covered with what appeared to be blood. Clark's jugular vein was severed, his heart was penetrated and there were a number of flesh wounds.

Clark lived only a few seconds after exclaiming: "I have been stabbed". He was alleged to have been fighting with Bowman at the time.

Bowman was arraigned before a trial justice on the charge of murder and probable cause was found for holding him for the grand jury at Wiscasset next Tuesday. He was ordered committed to Uuburn jail without bail. The court proceedings were brief. Clark was 24 years of age, Bowman is 26. Clark was passing a vacation at his former home at Jefferson. He had been employed as a roofer in Boston and lived in Somerville, Mass.

Spirited Fighting Continues Between Rivers, Yser and Lens

Allies Make Substantial Progress Between Ypres and Roulers Germans Are Forced Over the Frontier in the East. Germans Continue to Hurry Up Reinforcements. Allies Destroy Several of the Foe's Batteries

PARIS, OCT. 27.—THE FRENCH OFFICIAL ANNOUNCECEMENT GIVEN OUT AT 3 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON, SAYS THAT SPIRITED FIGHTING CONTINUES BETWEEN THE MOUTH OF THG YSER AND LENS; THAT IN THIS DISTRICT THE ALLIES HAVE NOT DRAWN BACK, AND THAT THEY HAVE CONTINUED LO ADVANCE IN THE REGION BETWEEN YPRES AND ROULERS, AND ELSEWHERE.

THE TEXT OF THE COMMUNICATION FOLLOWS: ...

THE FIGHTING CONTINUES TO BE PARTICULARLY SPIRITED BETWEEN THE MOUTH OF THE YSER AND THE REGION OF LENS. IN THIS PART OF THE FRONT THE ALLIED FORCES HAVE AT NO POINT DRAWN BACK, AND THEY HAVE CONTINUED TO MAKE PROGRESS IN THE REGION BETWEEN YPRES AND ROULERS. IN THE GENERAL REGION BETWEEN SOISSONS AND BERRY-AU-BAC, AN ARTILLERY ENGAGEMENT RESULTED IN OUR ADVANTAGE, AND RESULTED IN THE DESTRUCTION OF SEVERAL BATTERIES OF THE ENEMY.

IN THE REGION TO THE EAST OF NANCY, BETWEEN THE FOREST OF BEZANGE AND THE FOREST OF PARROY, WE HAVE ASSUMED THE ZFFENSIVE AND DRIVEN THE ENEMY ACROSS THE FRONTIER.

RUSSIA: ON THE RIVER SAN AND TO THE SOUTH OF PRZEMYSL. THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IS BECOMING MORE ACCENTUATED.

MORE FRESH TROOPS HURRIED UP

London, Oct. 27.—The Germans are continuing to send large masses of troops to the westward and the southwestward, according to a despatch from Terneuzen, Holland, published in The Amsterdam Courant today. A message to this effect has been sent to London by the Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company.

The Terneuzen message says further that the allies who approached Thielt, Saturday, were repulsed by fresh German troops. Sunday 10,000 Austrians arrived at Ghent, where only a few Germans remain.

NEW YORK WORLD RAPS GERMAN AMBASSADOR FOR FOOLISH TALK

Germany Has About as Much Chance of Invading Canada as the Moon. The German Attitude Toward America's Munroe Doctrine Leaves a Great Deal to be Desired--Count Bernstarff is Wanting in Diplomacy

New York, Oct. 27.— Commenting on the suggestion made by Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, that Germany has the right to invade Canada. The World today says editorially:

"It is true that technically there is nothing in the Munroe doctrine that would necessarily interfere with the landing of German troops in Canada, provided Germany did not try to hold territory. But as long as the British navy is afloat, Germany has no more chance of invading Canada than she has of invading the moon.

Great Deal to be Desired.

"The German attitude toward the Munroe doctrine has always left a great deal to be desired from an American point of view. German political writers have habitually treated the Munroe doctrine as a piece of contemptible Yankee impudence, and this is rather a dubious occasion for a German diplomatist to raise hypothetical questions as to the event and application of the doctrine in a hypothetical campaign against Canada.

"Should German troops ever invade Canada the application of the Munroe doctrine to the specific case will be defined in Washington, not in Berlin."

Is Weak on Diplomacy.

The American sarcastically says:

If the German Ambassador really holds this theory it would have been the part of diplomacy for him to keep it discreetly to himself. It would not add to his popularity in this country.

We trust the Count will not supplement his interesting remarks on Canada and the Munroe doctrine with the proposition that should Germany wish to invade Canada the Belgian precedent would afford ample justification for marching her troops through New England.

As to German Culture.

The Herald asks:

Can Von Bernstorff imagine that Americans are so enamored of German "kulter" as exemplified in Belgium that they would welcome its appearance on this continent?

If there is one thing more calculated than any other to make Americans give ear to the foolish talk of those persons who would have the United States break its neutrality and give all its aid and comfort to the allies, it is the picture Count von Bernstorff paints of German armies hacking their way into Canada.

BIG PLOUGHING MATCH TO-DAY

The First Ploughing Match to Be Held in Peterborough County Will Take Place Today

On the farm of Mr. Sandy Matchett, Con. 16, Lot 10, Otonabee, near Stewart's Hall, if fine weather. The match has created wide interest throughout the County. Word having been received by the officers that a considerable number from a distance are expected to come to the city by train, and that they did not know how they would get out to the farm, the Executive have arranged with Blewett and Middleton to run a bus from their stables at half-past eight in the morning and at two in the afternoon. This will give business men in the city who would like to see the competition of the match without spending all day on the field, a chance to do so.

The Prizes.

It was at first announced that the Cup given by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., was worth $50, but Mr. Burnham later made other arrangements whereby the Cup is really worth $60, and which he has always turned over to the County Council. Mr. C. A. Sesmith, M. P., has contributed a $12 prize, which completes the prize list. All those who have contributed prizes have been invited to attend the match tomorrow and present their prizes in person to the successful competitors after the match is over. The contestants, judges and officers are to be entertained to dinner by Mr. Matchett. Permission has been granted by the directors to a caterer to erect a tent and attend to the wants of the public.

Competition in the Men's Class in stubble and in the young men's class in sod is not likely to be very keen unless some enteries are received by mail or are accepted by the judges tomorrow. Any young men who have not yet entered and would like to, are advised to take their ploughs tomorrow as it is quite possible the directors will accept their entries. The ground is in excellent condition for the match.

New British Gun To Menace Airship

London, Oct. 27.—The new British gun used for the first time in recent days, says the correspondent of The Times, in Northern France, has provided a fresh terror for German airmen. The gun, the correspondent states, succeeds in finding its target with great facility.

FACE PAINT TABOOED; REMOVE SKIN INSTEAD

"A few years ago only one class of women painted their faces," says Dolly Madison in Chicago News. "It was a sign of social ostracism and was tabooed in refined circles. The custom has become so universal we must admit it is to be deplored and to be shelved as soon as possible."

How foolish to seek artificial "beauty" of this sort, obnoxious from artistic and moral standpoints, when it is so easy to obtain a truly natural complexion by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which may be had at any drug store in original one-ounce package. This mercolized wax is so effective, harmless and inexpensive, no one need think of using anything else for the purpose. Applied like cold cream at night, and washed off in the morning, it at once begins to show its remarkable rejuvenating effects. It gently absorbs the lifeless surface skin in tiny particles, gradually showing the fresher, livelier beautiful underskin. Naturally it takes with it all surface defects, like freckles, pimples, moth patches and liver spots.

KAISER ORDERS THAT CALAIS MUST BE CAPTURED AT ANY COST

Allies Fighting Battle in West Flaunders With Warships at Their Back--Both Armies Now Using Caution--The Zeppelin Scare Now Side-Tracked--Will Germany Fleet Come Out and Fight?

London, Oct. 27.—On a miniature scale the status of the opposing armies in Upper Belgium ran parallel today to the conditions which prevailed when the German rush toward Paris was checked. In other words "the German forward movement has been characterized by an even greater prodigality of men than was shown in the march in the direction of Paris. Invaders succeeded for days in battering their way on and then suddenly came to something which caused them to pause.

Since Saturday no German gain has been recorded and it is apparent that the allies either brought up such strong reinforcements or entrenched themselves so well, or both, that the Germans must sacrifice man after man for every foot of ground:

With Warships at Their Backs.

The flat country in West Flanders permits no such entrenchments as made the area of hostilities in France famous, but the British and Belgians, with warships at their backs, have dug themselves in wherever practicable, while throwing out every obstacle to impede the enemy.

Whether Germany can drive her forces like a ram through the allied barrier is a task, the result of which should decide the success —or failure —of her plan to reach Calais and from there set in motion a long cherished scheme to harass England. On the other hand the failure of the German forces to progress, it is maintained by military observers in England, probably would mean another retreat.

Caution is Necessary.

A statement issued by the official press bureau today indicated how slowly each side must feel its way among the hundreds of little Belgian villages. To go forward without careful reconnoitering would be extremely perilous as it never is known whether a village is merely occupied with harmless citizens or is held by armed forces ready to attack.

The Admiralty has not yet admitted that the monitors working off the Belgian coast have sustained any damage though the Germans claim to have reached the vessels with their artillery.

Zeppelin Scare Side-tracked.

The talk of Zeppelins visiting London has assumed second place alongside of the speculation as to when the German warships will dart from their havens and engage the British naval units. Englishmen cannot explain to their own satisfaction how the Germans are going to do this feat, necessitating as it will the running of the gauntlet of the British fleet as well as speeding through a mined area.

Orders Calais to be Taken.

Despatches reaching London aver that Emperor William has demanded unequivocally that Calais be taken, and a telegram received today quoting the Saxon Gazette gives what purports to be an ambitious plan of the German invasion, once the north coast of France is in their hands.

Traitor Marity's Rebellion Is Very Quickly Crushed

London, Oct. 17.—An official despatch from Col. Wylie at Upington, Cape Province, describing Col. Brits' attack on Lieut-Col. Maritz's force north of Kakamas on Oct. 24, forwarded from Pretoria to London by Reuter's Telegram Company, says that Maritz only defended the town about one hour and then retreated.

The losses sustained by the followers of Maritz are not known, but the number of wounded, captured and surrendered men is large.

Traitor Slightly Wounded.

Lieut.-Col. Maritz was wounded in the leg, though not dangerously. His forces retreated hurriedly. They left their tents standing and they abandoned large quantities of stores and a waggonload of ammunition.

The horses of the Union of South Africa troops, the official despatch adds, unfortunately were exhausted and unable to pursue Col. Maritz. Of the Government forces one man was wounded.

New Zepplin Is Launched This Makes Thirty-One

London, Oct. 27.—A despatch from Geneva, Switzerland, to The Express gives this account of the launching of a new Zeppelin:

"The most powerful Zeppelin yet made has just been launched at Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance, Without preliminary trials it flew away northwards at great speed, cheered by the soldiers, who shouted "To London!" Count Zeppelin was present at the launching.

"The airship has a special armored compartment for bombs near the propellers and a big gun is mounted in front to destroy aeroplanes. A second airship of similar type will be ready by the end of October.

"As soon as this new airship—the thirty-first of its kind,—is finished, work will be begun on another. More Zeppelins are being built at Dusseldorf, Colmar and Berlin, the German staff desiring that the number be brought to a hundred quickly."

MORE BIG CONTRACTS LET

Ottawa, Oct. 27.— There was a lengthy session of the purchasing committee of the Cabinet today when it is understood a number of important contracts for the purchase of material and equipment for the second contingent were let. The members of the committee are Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon J.D. Reid, Sir George Foster, Hon. Frank Cochrane and Hon. C.J. Doherty.

The committee is endeavoring to spread out the contracts with due economy that industries in all parts of Canada will be benefited. The Canadian contracts along with the heavy British and French contracts let in Canada have already given a big impetus to many industries in Canada.

USES FOR MILKWEED

Science, with practical optimism tries to find "good in everything," and now points out that we are wasting opportunities by not utilizing our neglected wealth in milkweed. The best fibres of the plant, well known to the birds as nest-weaving materials and to Indians as thread, may readily be separated, however, and when bleached yield a white, silky, textile material, much like flax and even stronger. The woody material of which four-fifths of the plant consists has excellent qualities for paper-making, if treated with a soda solution under pressure. From the seeds may be obtained a large percentage of a drying oil, while the long silky down of the seeds is known to be useful as an upholstering material. It would seem as though it would be well worth while to raise the milkweed as a crop, since it can be grown on land otherwise of little value.

PRIZE RING TRICKS

There are more tricks of the trade in prize fighting than are actually seen by the onlookers, and a clever and active brain quick to appreciate a point of strategy and simultaneously to act upon it has often proved more valuable than the possession of a ready fist.

Perhaps the craftiest boxer that ever lived was "Kid" M'Coy. He reduced trickery to a science. One of his little games used to consist of strolling aimlessly round the ring, talking pleasantly to his friends and all the time wiping his feet on the rosin heap scattered about the canvas floor and collecting it until he had a good deal more than his share in his own particular corner. Then when his seconds crowded round him to fix on the gloves one of the "mittens" was certain to fall on a little heap of rosin, and a glove with a coating of this substance can be made to cut the skin like a whip-lash.

The trickeries of M'Coy's art were numberless. He it was who hit upon the ingenious idea of putting a heavy layer of bicycle tape upon his hands, so that his knuckles were protected with iron-like bands; but this became too obvious, and pugilists are now much more careful about the hand bandages of their opponents than they used to be.

M'Coy coached O'Brien when he boxed Fitzsimmons in San Francisco. "Bob" by that time was almost a spent force. "Tread on the old man's feet; they're bad," was the advice given by "Kid," and O'Brien, acting upon it, won the fight.

Barry requisitioned the services of "Kid" as coach in his fight with M'Vea in Paris. First of all Barry was admonished to "grind the negro's toes," which he did with the utmost good will, but for all the effect it had he might as well have tried to grind his opponent's hard head.

M'Coy was quick to appreciate this. He could see that unless Barry adopted some other trick he was going to be a beaten man. So "Kid" told him that he would not be disqualified for one foul blow low down and as soon as this was delivered to rush in and drive home another of the same. Barry acted on instructions; the referee ignored the foul, the men clinched, and Barry got in another. M'Vea was dazed, and Barry had only to deal an ordinary blow for the knockout when he started butting with his head and was disqualified!

"HEAVING THE LEAD"

Picturesque Process Which Has Not Been Wholly Displaced

"Heaving the lead" looks easy enough, and anybody who is accustomed to doing it will say that it is quite simple; but it takes a long time before a man becomes a proficient leadsman. A novice is apt to be frightened at the whirling fourteen pound weight on the end of its line, and if he loses heart and omits to give it that peculiar little jerk which brings it flying round in a circle, it may fall perpendicularly in close proximity to his head. Heaving the lead may be all right enough in good weather, but in the winter, when it is blowing hard, raining, or snowing, it is anything but pleasant. The driving rain and snow searches out every portion of the leadsman's anatomy, even though he may be wearing oilskins, while his hands get numb with cold, until there is no feeling left in them.

The deep-sea leadline which was invariably used for deep-water work before the introduction of patent sounding machines, and would still be used if they broke down, consists of 100 fathoms of line and a 28-pound lead. It is marked up to 20 fathoms in the same way as the hand leadline, and then at 25, 35, 45, etc., fathoms with one knot, and at 30, 40, 50, etc., with three four, or five knots, and so on, to the greatest depth of the line. The ship is usually stopped when using the deep-sea line, for it takes a considerable time for the lead to reach the bottom.

The patent sounding machine consists of 300 fathoms of thin piano wire wound on a drum, and to the end of the wire is secured a 24-pound lead, with, just above it, a perforated brass sheath fitted with a cap. Before sounding takes place a glass tube, open at one end and coated on the inside with a red chemical compound, is placed in the brass sheath. The wire is then allowed to run out until the lead is on the bottom, and as it descends the pressure forces the water up the glass tube and turns the red chemical into a milky-white color for a certain distance up it. The lead is then hauled in by hand or by a motor, and the depth is ascertained by comparing the line of demarcation between the two colors in the glass tube with a wooden scale marked in fathoms.

With these simple but extremely reliable machines soundings can be obtained at greater depths, and with the ship traveling at far greater speed, than with the hand lead and line, though, as already stated, the older method is always held in reserve.

Land Without Owners

Nearly fifty acres of land have been discovered without owners at Trefis, Llangammarch Wells, Breconshire. In the course of investigations for valuation, it has been found that no owner exists. The value is between $1,000 and $1,500. The land is more or less common, and there are grazing rights on it belonging to adjoining farms.

Mrs. Lloyd George at Baby Show

Mrs. Lloyd George delivered a practical little lecture to mothers at a baby show held at Rhostrfan. Mrs Lloyd George said that when rearing her first-born she was, according to a frequent practice among the country nurses of those days, offered some bread and beer. This she resolutely refused. Crestfallen and disappointed, the nurse left the room and confided to others in the house her fears that she (Mrs. Lloyd George) would never recover to rear the child. She, however, reared that boy and four other children without the aid of either gin or bread and beer.

WHAT IS PROGRESS

Every Scientific Invention Has its Human Side

Now and then some prophet looking only at the mechanical side of progress cries out that there is no real benefit in it. But the mechanical cannot be separated from the human side.

Compare the case of the immigrant of to-day with that of his predecessor of fifty or a hundred years ago. In the former the parting with friends in the old country was like death. The Atlantic voyage was a tremendous undertaking. It was followed by a long and toilsome land journey. Few of the exiles could expect to become wealthy enough to return to their native land. Communication by letter was slow. The telegraph and the cable when first introduced were expensive luxuries. To-day the immigrant crosses the Atlantic in less than a week and is whisked off to his destination by fast train in a few days more. He has speedy communication by mail with his friends at home. He can cable if necessary at a moderate expense. He sends money orders home. He receives parcels of plum-pudding at Christmas. A visit to the old land is regarded as no great undertaking.

So every scientific invention has its human side. It lessens farm labor and increases the supply of food. It makes the work of the housewife easier. It makes the house warmer. It enormously increases the output of clothing and other necessaries. If you think these things have no human side, try wearing shabby clothes. Talk to some householder who finds it hard to pay house rent and pay the butcher and buy new shoes to take the place of those that the kids wear out so fast.

CALLINGS WORTH WHILE CALLS FOR INDUSTRY

The Farm is Not the Only Place For the Man to Avoid Who Dislikes Work

The country has natural advantages over the city which the latter can never hope to duplicate. There is a sweet communion with nature to be enjoyed on the farm that is impossible along the walled boulevards of the busy business city. There is freedom, fresh air, good water, health in its fullest measure and eternal joy for the lover of nature in the unlimited outdoor life of a Canadian farm. But all this has existed through the years in which the sons of the soil have been shaking the clay of their fathers' farms from off their heavy boots and donning the patent leathers of city pavements. Conditions are changing. The mail is now delivered at the farm gate; the ring of the telephone breaks the monotony of the kitchen, and facilities for travel are yearly being improved. The farm is not the isolated wilderness which many believe it to be. But when it comes right down to brass tacks, are any of the previously mentioned advantages or improvements destined to become the real magnet which shall inseparably attach the farm boy to the farm or exert such a drawing force on those already in other walks of life as to attract them back and hold them fast to that which is good? We are afraid not. People cannot live on beautiful scenery fresh air loaded with the scent of apple blossoms, and water, be it ever so pure. While these, with conveniences now being enjoyed, are factors towards improving conditions, they are not life itself. They may aid in throwing agriculture into a new light, but they are not destined to be the fundamental cause of the changed conditions which are coming. If the majority of our farm boys are to make farming their occupation they must see in it an attractive life, and the greatest incentive to the young man is a fair and sure profit on his operations. The young men of the farm are not afraid of work. They know that farming means work, but so does any other occupation, and as a usual thing according as one works so he succeeds. The farm has no place for him who is afraid of work, but neither has any other calling worth while.—Farmers' Advocate.

LOCOMOTIVES TOW SHIPS

Forty "Electric Mules" Will Operate at Panama Canal

The forty towing locomotives for hauling vessels through the locks of the Panama Canal weigh 82,5[illegible] pounds; measure 32 feet 9½ inches long by 8 feet wide by 9 feet 2 inches the greatest height over the cabs have an available tractive effort as high as 47,500 pounds, and a windlass rope pull of 25,000 pounds, and four of them, two on each side, will ordinarily propel steamships through the locks. Sometimes six engines will be needed to handle extra large vessels in every case two astern, acting as a brake on the ship's movements will give direction to her course. No vessel will be allowed to enter the locks and go through on her own power. The locomotive is propelled by means of a rack rail while towing and while going up or down the steep grades from one level to another at a speed of two miles per hour. While running idle or on return tracks the speed is changed to five miles per hour, and the machine is propelled by the regular traction method, the track pinion being entirely released. This change is effected by manually operated clutches located in the gear mechanism in connection with a lever in each cab similar to a steam locomotive. The locomotive is driven by two 75 horse-power totally inclosed motors of the mill type, one being direct connected through reduction to each axle.

What Kind of a Castle Are You Making Today?

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THE little boy ran in, his face aflame with joy. He had in his left hand a tall white fleu-de-lis—white flags, we used to call them when I was a little boy's age—and in the other hand he carried a real flag—red, white and blue.

The fleur-de-lis drooped a little, and the real flag was a bit creased and wrinkly—the little boy's hands weren't hands at all, but grubby little paws—and his face was grimy, and the nice clean waist he had put on in the morning was spotted—and he had torn a hole, a great big jagged one at that, right in the knee of his trousers.

"Well," said I, "little boy, whatever is the matter; have you been to the wars?"

And some one, who loves the little boy very dearly—but he does not quite understand him—said, "Little boy, how dreadfully you look. Your hands and your face—I should think you would be afraid the rag man would get you and carry you off in his wagon."

The little boy looked at me and then at the one who does not quite understand him, and his clear eyes shone.

"I know I'm dirty," he said, "and I tared my clothes—but I built a castle. Dis flag is going on top of the castle, and dis big white flower is a tall tree that I'm going to plant by the gate. Come," said the little boy, "come and see my castle."

Little Boy's Castle.

And the one who loves the little boy very dearly, but who does not understand him very well, and I went out into the garden to see the castle—and a fine, brave castle it turned out to be.

"I didn't think I could make it at first," said the little boy. "It was so mixed up, but I worked and worked. I carried the water in my tin cup to mix with the dirt, and I found the stones over there by the garden wall. Some of dem was weal heavy, too—dat's how I tared my clothes, carrying de stones—and now I've got my flag—and my tree—Oh," the little boy fairly danced, "oh, isn't it a splendid castle?"

And it was—quite splendid—and we told him so, and he was very proud and sat down to look at it with his grubby hands on his knees, and an air of great pride and contentment.

I knew a man once who started out to build him a castle. A fair castle of noble proportions—and the name of the castle was to be Success.

He was a fine young fellow when he went out into the garden of the world to build the castle—proud, brave, self-reliant, frank, kind and generous.

We were all very proud of him, in the house where he lived, and we loved him and were very anxious to see what he was going to do, when he left us behind and went out into the great garden to do his chosen work. And one day when it was very quiet at home the man I used to know came back—and he wasn't the same man at all.

His frank eyes were veiled, his high look was fallen, his kind smile was hard, and, oh, his whole face was as if some rough hand had pawed over it rudely, and smoothed away everything that was beautiful and fine—and left nothing there but the smutch of cruelty, and selfishness and evil ambition.

But he had built his castle, so he told me, and a sorry, sorry castle it was—made of nothing but money. No tall trees flowered by the gate—no free flag floated from the battlements. It was just a dirty, sordid, crooked pile—of dirty, sordid, crooked money. And the man who had built it had looked at it so long that he thought it was beautiful, and he could not understand when we, who loved him and wanted to be proud of him, tried to get him to talk about something else.

But a Crumbled Pile.

He showed us the dirt on his hands, he showed us the scars on his face—ugly scars that stood for ugly things—and he was proud of them.

And we were all very sad and didn't know what to say, and the man we all wanted to love and be proud of jingled the money in his pockets so loud that he didn't hear the sweet old song that somebody tried to sing for him—the song his mother sang when she held him in her arms years and years ago. And we, who loved him, were all at once very glad when the man we wanted to be proud of got up and went away—forever—from our lives.

He died the other day. There was a great horde of people around his death bed, relatives most of them, and persons who call themselves his friends.

The man we all wanted to be proud of tried to tell the people, who crowded into the room where he lay dying, something about his castle. He showed them the scars that he had got building the castle—and he told them how hard he had worked, and how fine the castle stood when he had finished with it—and the relatives and the people who pretended to be his friends looked at the clock and whispered—to each other—"When will the will be read?"

And when the man heard this he turned restlessly on his pillow, and asked some one to sing to him the sweet old song his mother used to sing, when she carried him in her arms, when he was a little, little boy—years and years ago. But no one knew the song—and so the man died, without it.

The castle that the man we all wanted to love built? Oh, that was all torn down—the very day the will was read—and the dead man was so proud of it, and so anxious that it should stand forever, too.

Little Boy, with the grave and honest eyes—when you build your castle, build it, I beg you, of something besides money, and let the scars you get in the building of it be honorable ones.

And then we, who love you, will be very happy—for we will be able to be proud of you and of your castle.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am in love with a young fellow with whom I have been going for over two years. He never goes with any one else, and he thinks lots of me. He wants me to marry him, and I am willing to, as we can't stay away from each other.

But my mother doesn't want me to marry. There are six girls of us at home, and I am next to the oldest. Do you think she will give in to my marriage, as there will be five girls left?

I'm sure we are both old enough, as he is 21 and I am 19.

I hope you won't think this too young, as we think so much of each other. My mother hasn't any reason for us not to marry, only she wants the rest of us girls to stay at home.

ANXIOUS.

WELCOME to our department, oh mother of six daughters, who wants every one of them to stay at home with her. I wish I was one of the daughters, don't you, little girl with the matchmaking mamma? Don't you, little sister with the managing aunt?

That mother of yours must be worth going a mile or so to see. I wish I had her address. I'd come and give her a bouquet of roses, a rose for every year of her happy life, and one for each of her six daughters. And isn't she wise—as well as sweet?

You're only 19, you're next to the eldest, and the young man is determined to marry, willy nilly.

Now, if mamma were dying to marry you all off perhaps he wouldn't be so anxious. Don't be discouraged about mamma, she'll listen to reason when you have reason to give her.

Nineteen is pretty young to marry for a girl, and a man of 21 is nothing but a boy. Do you really think you want to risk your whole life's happiness on what two such very immature people seem to think about it—right now? Still, there have been happy marriages at that age.

Don't marry without your mother's consent. She's just trying to see whether you're really in earnest or not. Be a little patient, and she will come around to your way of thinking, never fear.

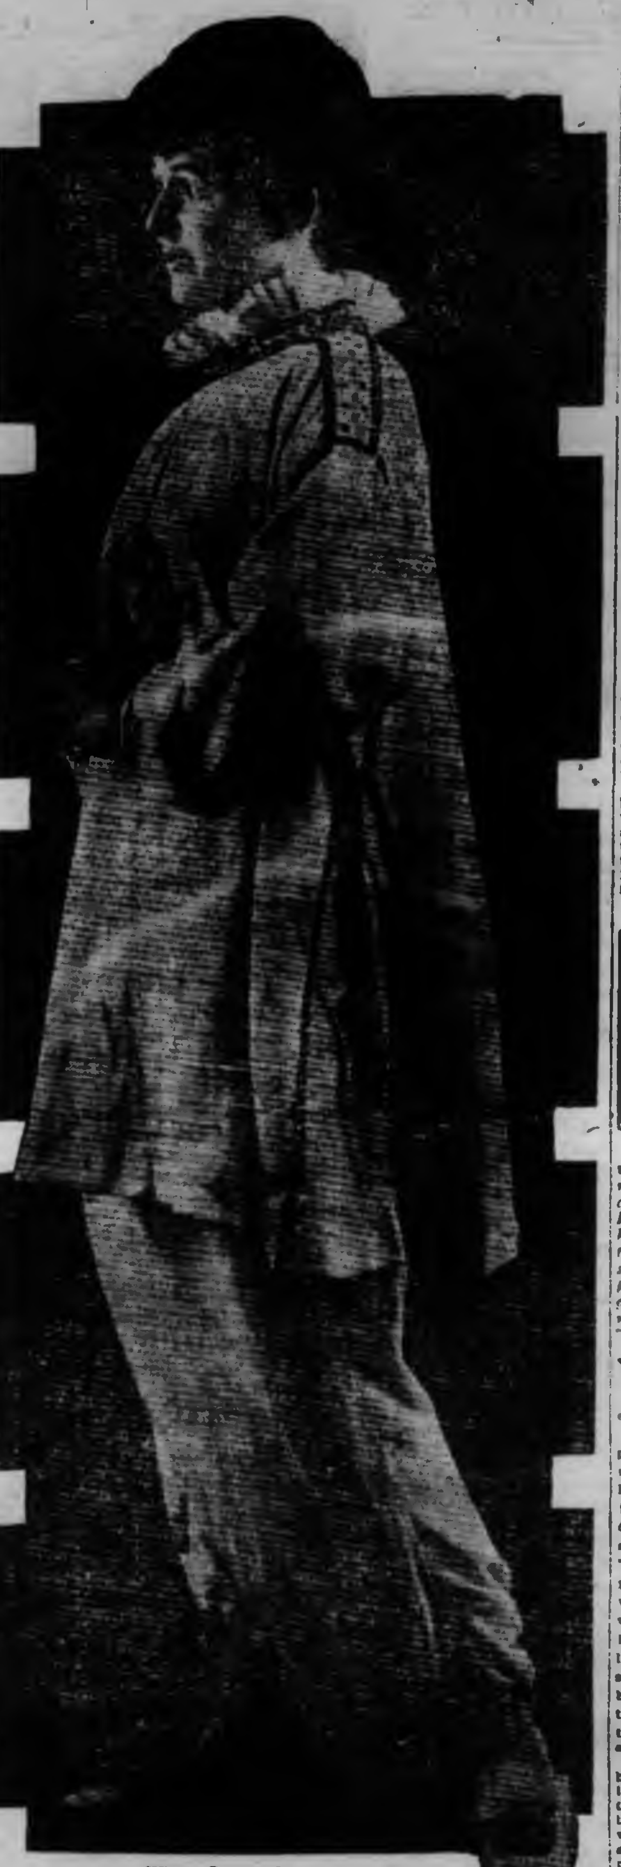
Ding, dong, dell—what's so sweet as the sound of wedding bells.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

HERE'S THE LATEST FROM PARIS

A Lounging (and Smoking) House Costume, Chinese Style, With Just a Dash of Turkish in the Skirt.



White Cotton Crepe.

FROM Paris you always expect the novel, and, when Paul Poiret is the artist, the startling. And Poiret does not disappoint us in this lounging robe.

It is of white cotton crepe, lined with white china silk and trimmed with black hand embroidery. The coat is pure Chinese style, like a mandarin blouse, showing even the pockets of the oriental coat. The neckband is straight, finished with a standing ruche of white tulle, and is very becoming to a slender throat.

The costume may be worn loose or with a girdle. If the girdle is worn, it should be bound close around the body to make a bandage for the hips, leaving the rest of the figure quite free.

The skirt is Turkish, divided style, and is tailored in effect. The feet, clad in Turkish slippers, pass through openings that are trimmed to match, "peeping in and out like little playing mice," as the poet sang so long ago.

Startling as is this very latest lounging robe, it will be noticed that it achieves its effect by lines and not by colors. Black and white are the austere shades, although my lady herself may add the spectrum's gamut with the girdle.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

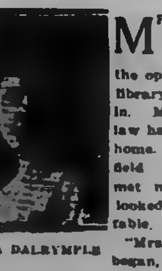
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 127

Mrs. Penfield's Hysterics.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

MRS. PENFIELD was sitting by the open fire in the library when I went in. My father-in-law had not arrived home. Mrs. Penfield glanced up, met my eyes and looked uncomfortable.

"Mrs. Penfield," I began, for I have never called my mother-in-law "mother," and probably never shall, deeming it a profanation of a holy word, "I positively will not have you lending money to Mary!"

I suppose I spoke a little heatedly, for she bristled.

"It isn't necessary to speak to me just that way, Peter," she said, with heavy dignity. "Kindly remember that I am your wife's mother."

"I'm not likely to forget it," I said, angered by her manner.

"Mary," went on Mrs. Penfield, "poor child' had scarcely a cent all month, and she had to have some money. If I did lend her a few dollars it's a thing for which you ought to thank me instead of bolting in here with your hat on and glaring at me in such a vulgar way."

I flushed and removed my hat. She had me there. It made me doubly furious, however, that I had been so remiss, and the storm burst. I had been longing for an accounting with my mother-in-law. We had it then and there.

"And why," I burst forth, "did she have so little money left? Simply because you never taught her the value of a dollar, and she's extravagant. Why are we steadily running behind in expenses? Because you tempted her into living in a fashionable apartment that I simply cannot afford, and she gave me absolutely no rest until I consented."

"If you could not afford to keep my daughter in the way she lived at home," said Mrs. Penfield, looking very stout and ruffled, "you ought never have married her. I insist that my child live in a reputable quarter of town; I insist that she wear decent clothing, and I insist that she have at least some money to spend so that she may not be humiliated in the presence of her friends."

"And you insisted upon her having an 'at home' day, every week," I flung back fiercely, "and you insisted upon her having more furniture than we need.

"When I married your daughter I thought I had married a sweet, pretty, lovable girl that at least knew something of the essentials of housekeeping. My salary is more than sufficient for two people of modest tastes. It isn't sufficient to make a mighty splurge with, and I won't be drawn into the social whirlpool. Mary doesn't know the first thing about money, she doesn't know the first thing about a house—or at least she didn't.

"I can thank you for her lack of training, and I certainly will not have you encouraging her in her new extravagant notions and spoiling my life. That's what you are doing. You're dominating Mary and leading her on to all sorts of foolishness. Why should she take an art course with Casetti? Why should she want to be a social climber?

"The job of wife and mother is good enough for any girl. And I can thank you for the fact that my life will likely be childless. You've filled Mary's head with a lot of wicked, artificial ideas. She's afraid to bear a child—you needn't shrink and tell me I'm coarse. Natural facts can't be coarse. Mary and I quarrel—and in every quarrel I can trace your influence."

Mrs. Penfield, white and shaking, held up her hand to stem the tide, but I raved fiercely on. I don't remember what else I said, but, clear and cold, I laid the facts before her. I spared her nothing. My temper guided my tongue to hopeless indiscretion. I only remembered that at the end Mrs. Penfield gave a wild shriek and went into hysterics. I went home and left her in a state by the fire with the maid telephoning for the doctor.

Why Aeroplaning Is Like Aerophagia (Air Gulping)

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

HAVE you a stomach? If you are aware that you possess this ubiquitous and soul-stirring organ, something is wrong. Some sophisticated persons worry because they cannot feel their food digest. This is a curious opinion, as prevalent among longshoremen as among the wealthy and elect.

Opinion, however, as Pericles said, is but a fool that makes you scan the outward habit for the inward man.

If you begin to learn by any of the myriad, wireless signals of your own ego that there is a Pandora's box of evils in your tummy and gizzard department; if, by any devices known to your tissues, you, yourself, your "I," are made aware that deeds of derring-do are a-brewing in your gastric sac, then something is truly amiss.

Gas in the stomach and flatulency has been the source, since time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, of more despair and melancholia than all financial and domestic calamities known.

Other than the habit of aerophagia, or air swallowing, which—like aero-planing—is a voluntary thing, there are all sorts of causes for gastric—gastric comes from a Greek word which means stomach, not "gas"—flatulency.

High blood pressure, the tango heart—due to any kind of muscular excess and athletics—heart and kidney inflammations, dilated stomachs, indoor life, an excess of sweets and starches, are only a few of the three-score-and-ten ways to be a chronic Zeppelin dirigible.

Asafoetida has a worse name than it has odor among pharmacologists. Until very recently no scientific physician ever again dared look his fellow-savant in the eyes if he prescribed it. But like the turban hat, the poke bonnet, the Medici collar, and the girdle tunic, it has come into medical vogue once more.

Ginger, gentian, quinine, magnesia, charcoal, cinnamon, dilute acids, and hexamethylenetetramine with lithia are each separately useful to stop the stomach Aeolus from blowing first hot and then cold.

If the muscular walls of the stomach are asleep at the alimentary switch the use of adrenalin, physical culture, the maxixe, tennis and other disturbers of these sluggards must be called into requisition. But only under your doctor's orders.

Dr. Hirshberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He will not undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally, if a stamped and addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirshberg, care this office.

Study Your Mirror For Wrinkle Reasons

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."

LUCREZIA BORI

WOMEN don't look in their mirrors often enough!

Isn't that a surprising statement to make? Perhaps I had better amend it, and say they don't look with sharp enough eyes. The mirror is the greatest friend a woman has. If she wants it to show her how she really looks to an unprejudiced world it will do so. Most women look at themselves with blinded eyes. They look to find what they want to find, not what is really there. Mirrors are truthful, but the eyes that see cannot read a-right.

Every woman who wants to improve her personal appearance will do well to learn how to use the mirror. She will take it where the light is strongest and begin by studying her reflection as a whole—as a general assemblage of line and color. Then, she can pick it to pieces later. The tout ensemble is what strikes the ordinary observer. The more intimate acquaintance notices details.

What about the expression of the eyes and mouth? What is the story it tells? Does it tell a tale of selfishness, greed, deceit, conceit, superficiality? Or does it give out the idea of kindness, love, generosity, good sense, intelligence, friendliness? Or is there a queer intermingling of good and bad expressions? And, in that case, which is the most enduring, and which flashes across the face more often?

Just sit down with an open mind before your mirror and ask questions. You will learn a whole lot about yourself in a half-hour. And if you are as wise as woman ought to be, you can map out a campaign of beauty culture right in your own mind, and put it into effect with no one but yourself being the wiser, and gain results that will make all your friends compliment you.

"I caught a glimpse of myself in a mirror the other day," a woman confessed to me, "and my own face frightened me. There was such a peevish, discontented look about the mouth, such a sullen light in the eyes that I was really startled. I knew I had been peevish and out of sorts for weeks, that I had been letting go my temper, that I had seemed a different being from the self I had always supposed was me, but I hadn't dreamed that it was indexed on my face.

"I have started on a course of beauty culture, and the first thing I am going to do is to love everybody and everything in the world, even if it hurts to do it. I won't see faults in any one but myself. I will have only kindly wishes for every one—even my dearest enemies. And I'll even try to make friends of them. Something is wrong in my innermost being when my face can carry an expression like that."

Her work is worth copying. We can make expressions for ourselves, and we are the only ones who can make them. Others can electrify tissues, and revivify complexions, and iron out wrinkles and arch eyebrows, but, when it comes to changing the expression which is the reflection of the mind and the nature, no one in the world has the power to do it but the individual who owns it.

Sit down, sisters mine, and get out the most exacting mirror you can find. Pull the shades up, and let the strongest and most truthful and glaring light of day shine upon you.

Purge your mind and vision of prejudice. Then work, according to the result. There's a reason behind every frown, and every little curl of the lip may soon mean a fixed sneer. It is up to you to find out the reason, and to right the fault.

Three Minute Journeys

Where "A Life for a Life" Still Rules

By TEMPLE MANNING

FAR in the mountain fastnesses of New Guinea our party came upon a little huddle of huts that appeared deserted. Experience had taught us caution, so we waited until my impatience led me to advance with one of our bearers. Instantly an amazing thing happened. From the nearest hut three natives emerged, crawling on their hands and knees, stopping every few feet to knock their heads upon the ground. I soon discovered the reason. I was the first white man they had ever seen.

For days they would not permit us to leave. At last, when we insisted on parting, six of them joined our party to accompany us to the coast.

Everything went smoothly until one of them fell into a stream and was drowned. His tribesmen approached us threateningly; they held us responsible for the man's death. They wailed and demanded payment. We offered them armlets, colored dishes and cloths, but they would not be appeased. They wanted a life for a life.

As quickly as we could we made the nearest coast settlement, embarked upon a "prau" and went back to civilization. Later I learned that, after the invariable custom of their race, the dead man's brother hung about the coast until he had killed a white man.

His brother's death was avenged—a trader had paid the price.

The Trader Paid.

BIG BATTLE ALONG THE YSER RIVER

London, Oct. 26.—The correspondent of the Daily News who has been in an armored train to the banks of the Yser, gives a good description of the battle in the west. He says:

"The battle rages along the Yser with frightful destruction of life. Air engines, sea engines and land engines death-sweep this desolate country, vertically, horizontally and transversely. Through it the little frail human engines crawl and dig, walk and run, skirmishing, charging and blundering in little individual fights and tussles, tired and puzzled, ordered here and there, sleeping where they can, never washing and dying unnoticed. A friend may find himself firing on a friendly force and few are to blame.

Win and Lose Positions.

"Thursday the Germans were driven back over the Yser; Friday they secured a footing again and Saturday they were again hurled back. Now a bridge blown by one side is repaired by the other; it is again blown up by one side, is repaired by the other; it is again blown up by the first or left as a death trap till the enemy is actually crossing.

"Actions by armored trains, some of them the most reckless adventures, are attempted daily. Each day accumulates an unwritten record of individual daring feats, accepted as part of the daily work. Day by day our men push out on these dangerous explorations, attacked by shell-fire, in danger of cross-fire, dynamite and ambuscades, bringing a priceless support to the threatened lines. As the armored train approaches the river under shell-fire the car cracks with the constant thunder of guns aboard. It is amazing to see the angle at which the guns can be swung.

Machine Gun is Master.

"And overhead the airmen are busy venturing through fogs and puffs of exploding shells to get one small fact of information. We used to regard the looping of the loop of the Germans overhead as a hair-brained piece of impudent defiance to our infantry fire. Now we know it means early trouble for the infantry.'

"Besides us, as we crawl up sniffing the lines like dogs on a scent grim train loads of wounded wait soundlessly in the sidings. Further up the line ambulances are coming slowly back. The bullets of machine guns begin to rattle on our armored coats. Shells we learn to disregard but the machine gun is the master in this war.

Foe Scattered By Machine Gun.

"Now we near the river at a flat country farm. The territory is scarred with trenches and it is impossible to say at first who is in them, so incidental and separate are the fortunes of this river side battle. The Germans are on our bank infilading the lines of the allies' trenches. We creep up and the Germans come into sight out of the trenches, rush to the bank and are scattered and smashed. The allies follow with a fierce bayonet charge.

France Will Never Forget.

It seems that German agents are now trying to divide the Allies by suggesting generous peace terms with France, and belittling the land efforts of the British in support of France. Of course the effrontery of such insinuations are accepted by France in the spirit in which they are offered, and all efforts to seduce the loyalty of France to the Allies will fail.

British land operations since the incipiency of the war stand for what they are worth in the eyes of the world without bluster. To use the words of General Joffre, "France will not forget" that Britain's "insignificant" army saved the whole French army from defeat, and Germany has learnt Napoleon's lesson, "that the British infantry is the devil." Should France fail to appreciate the support of her British Allie in France—and there is no danger of that—she has only to question the motive of German agents in insinuating that Britain is not giving adequate support to the Allies. The fact is, Germany is beaten. She recognizes, too late, that the might of Britain's resources grows apace with her (Germany's) exhaustion, and will have dominating effect in the end. She is afraid of the first world-power, which is, advisedly, preparing for a ten years' war, if need be, and whose resources in men, wealth and ships are practically unlimited. And the Kaiser's awakening to the fact that the British have not begun to fight yet, but have merely sent an advance guard into Europe. he dreads the hour when she is ready to wage war in earnest. Hence Germany would like to settle with France "on generous terms," to be free to fight the titanic struggle Britain will eventually force upon him.

Cuts Out Liquor Business

"But the Russians love strong drink," replied the illustrious Vladimir to the learned Moslem who tried to win him to Islam. That settled it. Russia became Christian. Vladimir and his Droujina have passed; but the national taste has not changed. The fact has been turned to account by Russian statesmen and a government monopoly of vodka has proved the mainstay of the national budget. It is about 12 months since Czar Nicholas decided that this should stop. It was at the time of the resignation of Premier Kokovstoff. They told the autocrat then that he would lose more than half his revenues. Better lose all than that this should go on, was his reply. Now he has declared that the government of Russia will never again engage in the liquor business. He will keep his word. The revenues may suffer at first, but they will recover.

The fact that the Czar decided on a step sure to embarrass Russian finances for a time while Germany was adding to her army to combat the alleged Slav peril, has been cited to show that Russia had no aggressive intentions prior to the Austrian ultimatum to Servia.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure!

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache toothache or cramps, Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

Germany Attempts Bluff.

Germany's advance toward the channel coast has created activity for a small part of Britain's navy, to the consternation of the foe.

Frequent reports come that the Germans are actively engaged upon work preliminary to the invasion of Great Britain. These reports appear to be ridiculous enough, says the Montreal Mail. So long as the British navy remains on guard, any German plan of invading England, other than the seemingly Quixotic scheme for a Zeppelin raid, can be discounted as buncombe. It is well to bear in mind that Germany is pursuing a policy of attempted bluff and terrorism, and is continually making extravagant claims of what she will do.

However, the situation in the North Sea is daily becoming more interesting. Whether or not the greater part of the British fleet is concentrated there remains a question. Naturally, nothing about the position of the fleet is made public, but wireless communication is so perfected in the fleet that the main body may not be ranged in a solid ring about the Kiel canal, as most people imagine. As yet, no ironclad fleet has been able to weather the winter storms in the North Sea, so a tactical change in Britain's naval defence may be looked for before many weeks have passed, supposing the fleet to be now on guard in the waters lying between British shores and the German refuge.

The war situation is always satisfactory from our standpoint when word does not come of any important German victory. We are engaged in a starving out project, and we can go on indefinitely while the situation remains as at present. The onus of taking the initiative is on the enemy. He must strike home before his food and his men give out, else he will shortly pass where he gives up the hope of ultimate victory. German talk of the nation's being prepared for an indefinite struggle is simply ridiculous. The nation is not. Germany might "get away" with this claim had her domestic history not been an open book for the past few years.

Friction between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States over the matter of seizure of neutral ships is deplorable but it is bound to occur. That which developed during the past week will probably be repeated, in some form or other, as time goes on, so long as Great Britain remains supreme on the seas and bends all her energies towards keeping supplies away from the enemy.

We are quite relieved to hear the German Ambassador at Washington assure us that Germany has no designs upon Canada. Not that we were at all alarmed over such a prospect, but because Germany has awakened to a sense of her impotence in regard to invasion of British territory, either across the channel or across the Atlantic. The loss of Teutonic life in present operations is sufficiently appaling to eliminate any desire on our part to see German losses augmented by fool-hardy aggressiveness.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest,

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the Homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalise your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

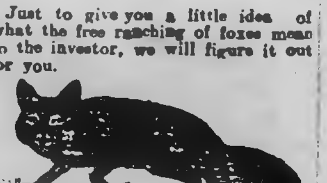
Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.



We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

Fox Dividends Declared to Date

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Beautify your hair! Make it soft, fluffy and luxuriant — Try the moist cloth

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first —yes but really new hair-growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any— that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

GERMAN SPY CAUGHT WITH CANADIAN'S

Arrested While on the Trip Across the Atlantic—Ahe Story is Now Confirmed by Letter Received at Quebec—Was at Valcartier for Weeks

Quebec, Oct. 27.— A letter received here today from a Quebec volunteer in the first Canadian contingent says, that out at sea, a German spy was caught on one of the transports.

The letter says that the man was disguised as a Canadian soldier, having been at the Valcartier camp during the whole length of the manoeuvres.

The letter comes from George Matte local constable, who wrote the news to his wife here.

LAWRANCE D'ORSAY IN THE EARL OF PAWTUCKET

There is only one Earl of Pawtucket Lawrance D'Orsay. They say "give a dog a bad name and hang him," but you could give a thousand good actors his name without making one of them a D'Orsay.

"Since the days of Richard Askew Bethern and Lord Dundraary there never has been an actor or a theatrical personality like Lawrence D'Orsay Esquire. (It seems incomplete with the Esquire!") Mr. D'Orsay (don't you love the name?) is the ideal Dundreary. Genius made a Dundreary of Crichton" of the stage peers.

Mr. D'Orsay is the perfect "dude" of the later Victorian era, but he is more than that. His personality is so pronounced, his affected accent so exaggerated that one is apt to lose the sight of the art that conceals art. Yet it is this intellectual subtlety of the actor that makes him the ideal "silly arse." His art is so absolute that it is concealed by its apparent lack of art artifice. Mr. D'Orsay is as easy and natural in the "la-di-da" part as Charles Hawtrey is in that of a liar. But every gesture and action is a triumph of stage technique and his "Earl of Pawtucket" is the best study of the "heavy swell" Englishman since the days of Dundreary and that other consummate actor, R. H. Bethern."

Mr. Lawrance D'Orsay and his all-star company will appear at the Grand Opera House on Monday, Nov. 2nd for one night only.

Yesterday morning a local German went to a municipal office here looking for a job. He began to talk so pro-German that an English Civic employer ordered him out of the office saying "skidoo."

Yesterday morning early the Oriental Hotel received a telegram from Toronto asking for rooms for a large contingent of travellers. Two busses full arrived at the popular caravansary at noon.

Judging by censored war reports of German retreats, Kaiser Bill's forces must now be near Ennismore. Should they ever reach that shore of Mud Lake, the Lord only knows what will become of them!

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TIRED METALS

Metals get tired with over-working just as much as human beings do. And, like human beings, they need a holiday and complete rest in order to recover from the strain and rush of modern life!

It was Lord Kelvin who showed that metals suffer from fatigue. He kept iron wires in constant motion during a week, and watched the way they acted. At the end of the week they had lost a considerable amount of their original elasticity. He gave them a day's rest and they completely recovered. He further experimented and discovered that an iron bar, after a three weeks' rest, gained ten per cent. in elasticity. In repeated experiments he found that steel and wrought iron deteriorated very rapidly if they were worked continuously, and, in the long run, break up completely, just as the human being does. Knocking them off work at regular intervals adds years to their powers of resistance.

A good instance of this was shown by Lord Kelvin. A steel rail, which had done service for over twenty years, suddenly broke into half-a-dozen pieces under the weight of a passing train. For the whole of that twenty years it had not had a day's holiday. Lord Kelvin pointed out that if that rail had had proper rests it would have done duty for another twenty years. As it was the strain was too great for it.

CANADA'S MINES

Coal Our Most Important Product With Silver Next

Particularly fortunate in its great store of mineral wealth is Canada. From this storehouse is being drawn an increasing and seemingly unending output of minerals. Before the year 1890 mineral production in Canada was comparatively small. In 1890, however, the production of all minerals exceeded 16 million dollars or a production of $3.50 per capita. The mineral output from that time showed a phenomenal development, increasing by 1900 more than three and a half times to a total exceeding 64 millions. Now, however, this figure has been more than doubled, the present total production being more than 133 million dollars, or $18 for every man woman and child in the Dominion. Of the metals, silver is the most important in value, followed by pig iron nickel, copper and gold, but the non metal mineral product, coal, exceeds in value any of the metals, the yearly output of coal amounting to about $36,000,000.

THE LOCAL BREAD QUESTION

Editor Morning Times,

Sir :—

As a local resident and a taxpayer, I must congratulate the Times on its manly stand on the hold up of poor people by our local bakers. You have clearly shown, to my mind, that the bakers of Peterboro have raised prices in a most unjustifiable way. I only hope that the City Council, who are elected by public vote, will answer your suggestion that a Civic bakery be established to give the poor of this city their mainstay of life as cheaply as Peterboro bakers sell it in other towns.

TALK ON MARRIED MEN'S MISTAKES

The George Street Methodist church was again crowded to overflowing last night, when Dr. Gordon gave a heart-to-heart talk on "Married Men's Mistakes." Needless to say the subject was handled in a manner which is peculiarly the distinguished visitor's own, and his whole discourse was timely, instructive and attention-holding. Dr. Gordon will speak again tonight in the same church, service commencing at 7.40 as usual.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

CHEAPER FENCE-POSTS

Preservatives Prolong Life of the Poorest Woods

As a result of the many inquiries in regard to the preservative treatment of fence-posts, the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, issued a circular on this subject. The great advantage of these treatments is that they keep even cheap woods free from decay for from ten to fifteen years. Many kinds of wood found in farmers' woodlots will last, when used as posts, only four years or thereabouts; after treatment, such as described, they last twice or three times, even four times as long. Creosote, which costs in Canada, from ten to twenty-five cents a gallon, is the best preservative. When boiling-hot creosote is applied liberally with a brush—a paint brush or whitewash brush, for instance—to the butts of well-seasoned posts from which the bark has been removed, it sinks into the wood for a distance of about a quarter of an inch. This should add at least ten years to the life of a post made from a non-durable wood, such as poplar, balsam, fir or spruce. This is not the best method, but it is the simplest and, on a small scale, probably the cheapest. Other methods require that the posts be kept covered in tanks of hot creosote for a longer or shorter period. Besides lengthening the life of the post, the preservative treatment also tends to reduce the cost of the posts in another way, for, as cheap local woods can be used, the first cost and the cost of transportation are usually much lower than for cedar, oak or tamarack. Moreover, as posts will need to be set less often, the proportionate cost of setting the post will be less. Taking into account all the items that go to make up the cost of the post, and comparing this with the number of years it will last, it will be found, in the majority of cases, to be much less for treated posts.

Some Hog Pointers

A dry pen and a dry bed are essential to thrift in pigs.

Leaves make good bedding, but straw is much better.

Don't keep the breeding sows or the growing pigs on a plank floor all winter.

Give them a yard in which to exercise on the sunny side of the pig house.

Bank the pig house well so there will be no drafts under or on the floors.

Drafts are fatal to hogs, causing rheumatism, pneumonia and other ills.

Hogs often have sore throat, quinsey, etc., from exposure to drafts and cold.

If your pigs squeal they are either cold, hungry or uncomfortable in some way.

Find the cause and remove it, if you wish to prevent loss.

Satisfied profitable pigs will grunt but they do not squeal.

Keep the pigs clean and they will be healthy.

Did you ever study economy in feeding hogs? Good work for the winter season. May be made very profitable, too.

What is a Pullet?

There seems to be a hazy notion among some farmers as to the exact meaning of the terms used to describe young and old stock. A pullet, strictly speaking, is a female under one year old. A "large roaster" means a plump, soft chicken of four or five pounds' weight. The broiler weight in March is one and one-quarter pounds each; in April, one and one-half pounds; in May, one and one-quarter pounds to two pounds. Old cock birds have a special classification, and do not come under the head of "large roasting" fowls

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon, and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties— Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

NATURAL BASIN NEAR CALGARY

Immense Water Supply is Only Thirty-five Miles Away

That the citizens of Calgary have a natural basin with an estimated storage capacity of 500,000,000 gallons of water, enough to supply the city for an entire winter, only 35 miles up the Elbow river, was an interesting report made by Mr. A. W. Ellison Fawkes.

For some months Mr. Fawkes had a crew of surveyors and assistant engineers working out the data on a pipe line scheme and also a proposed filtration and pumping scheme as an alternative.

On a trip up the Elbow Mr. Fawkes inspected three feasible sites for the location of an impounding dam. The nearest of these for a pipe line is about 35 miles distant, and here the Elbow widens into a big basin with the immense storage capacity mentioned. It would be necessary to have a dam at this point 400 feet long. Five miles farther up the river and again three miles above this point there are other suitable sites. But, of course, the closer site, 35 miles up, has the advantage, when the cost of constructing a pipe line is considered. The upper sites would on the other hand be narrower and would not require as long a dam.

ADVERTISING A NATION

How Canada is Made Known Across the Waters

In the course of a lecture made by J. Obed Smith, immigration commissioner of Canada he said: "Because there is very little red tape in this department a great deal of responsibility rests upon the officials. While Ottawa controls the policy, the details, including expenditures, are worked out in London. Outside the British Isles we have agencies at work in Paris, Belgium and in the Scandinavian countries. There is a good deal of work required in advising and planning discipline for 4,000 booking agents who can be made into good advertising agents for Canada.

"In advertising Canada, the department of the Interior offers no apology, particularly in the old land, where there are fewer opportunities for farm laborers.

"Correspondence also plays a big part in the propaganda, for while it indicates publicity work, it is becoming most productive. So much information has been diffused about Canada that those writing are not content with one or two questions, but set out voluminous inquiries. This indicates that the enquirers have been reached by advertising, and they in their turn have led others to also seek information. Our department, while primarily concerned with advertising Canada alone, is also obliged to set out the advantages of each province. The policy of the department is set along such lines as to make advertising pay a government as well as a business firm.

"Our work is largely carried on by bringing before the public the advantage of farming in Canada. Our agents attend every show or fair, and distribute literature and also give advice to those requiring it. These results are most satisfactory, but perhaps our most effective work consists of carrying information to every town and village by means of motor and horse wagons. These are in charge of experienced Canadian officials, who stop outside schools, and having obtained permission from the teachers, address the children on Canada, although nothing is said about immigration. Later on we get good results from this campaign.

"Another important phase in advertising is that of giving illustrated lectures. Hundreds are given each season, principally in the winter, and afford us the means of getting into closer touch with the intending emigrant. The most valuable adjunct is the after meeting, when the people gather round and ask questions. We also endeavor to supply news items to the reading public.

"There are good and bad advertisements. The latter consist of derogatory letters and complaints from those who have not succeeded. However, Canada does not want the immigrant to fail, but, on the other hand likes to point to the successful settler as illustration of what can be done out here."

The Whirligig of Time

In place of the hitching post and the carriage stepping stone has come the gasoline filling station. In place of the livery stable has come the modern garage, and the old-fashioned roadside smithy has been turned into a modern automobile repair shop.

The motor car has brought many changes, but with the changes has come prosperity. The foundry that once turned out ornamental hitching posts with a horse's head, or a little iron negro jockey patiently waiting to hold old Dobbin's reins, is manufacturing automobile parts.

The gasoline motor has played its part in making the automobile the popular method of transportation, but without the pneumatic tire the motor car would be limited to improved city streets and boulevards.

Many Centenarians

According to official statistics compiled in Germany, the number of centenarians in Europe is far greater than is generally imagined. Spain possesses 410; France, [illegible]; Italy, 197; Great Britain, 92; Russia, 89; Germany, 76; Norway, 23; Sweden, 10; Belgium, 5 and Denmark 2. Switzerland has none. The Balkan States hold the record. In Bulgaria alone there are no fewer than 3,883 centenarians, and there are another 1,074 in Roumania and 573 in Servia.

Strength of Hickory

Hickory is the strongest Canadian wood. When properly seasoned a hickory column will support a weight of twelve tons per square inch cross-section, which is considerably more than what could be borne by a pillar of cast iron or steel of the same length and weight.

Life of Wire

A telegraph wire in the open country lasts four times as long as one in a city.

Copper Jumps

Feed For Fowls

Those who experience any difficulty in providing the necessary greenstuff for their fowls—as many do in winter—can provide an excellent substitute by sprouting barley or oats. The method is as follows. Place a layer of the grain in a shallow box and over the top, instead of the lid, place a piece of canvas, keeping it constantly moistened. Place in a warm place for a week, when the grain will swell and throw out long succulent shoots. It is a food that is eagerly devoured, and greatly assists egg production.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work."

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SEEDS ARE USED TO WEIGH DIAMONDS

Few People know That the Original Carat Grew on a Stately Tree

What is a carat?

Everybody, at some time or another, has boasted that the ring he or she wears is 22 carats' fine. Or that the diamond in the ring weighs a carat and a half and is an especially fine large, valuable stone. But what is a carat? And why was such a term selected instead of ounce or gram or or grain?

It's a very curious thing that not one person in a thousand probably ten thousand—knows what a carat is. And there is probably not one person in a hundred thousand who knows that the use of the term is different in its relation to gold from its use in relation to precious stones, although in both instances the weight is referred to. The facts are these:

The original carat is the seed of an Abyssinian coral flower, or coral tree. The name was also applied by the Arabians to any pod or husk and particularly to the fruit of the locust tree. It probably was introduced into Abyssinia by the Arabs. In those days there was no system of weights or measures—or at least there was none among the nomadic Arabs and the Abyssinians. Gold was traded by its weight, and, as the seeds of the Abyssinian coral tree were uniformly the same size and weight, it gradually became the custom to weigh gold with these seeds, and gold, therefore, was said to weigh so many carats—or, in other words, so many seeds.

In modern times, with our well arranged system of weights and measures, the carat seems to have become, not a distinct term of weight when applied to gold, but a term of purity. Gold is weighed now by the troy pound or ounce. It would seem to be much easier to state that an ounce of gold is 98 per cent. pure or 75 per cent. pure. But the jewelers and assayers think differently. They divide gold into 24 parts, instead of 100 parts as they would do if they figured by percentage, and each of these parts is called a carat. Thus you might get a gold bracelet or necklace that weighed three or four ounces and yet would only be 14 carats' fine. That would mean that your bracelet or necklace was fourteen-twenty-fourths pure gold and ten-twenty-fourths alloy. The ordinary wedding ring is 22 carats' fine. It is very seldom that anything is made 24 carats' fine pure gold. The metal is too soft.

With diamonds and other precious stones the carat is a term of weight—the weight of the old seeds. One carat weighs three and one-sixth troy grains in this country. But, strangely enough, it is different in other countries. For instance, in London it is 205.4 milligrams; in Paris, 205.7 milligrams; in Berlin, 205.44 milligrams; in Amsterdam, 205.75 milligrams. This system of having a different weight for the carat in different countries has caused the jewelers to start a movement for the standardization of the carat all over the world at 200 milligrams or about 3 grains in the system of weights and measures.

NEED OF POLITENESS

Time to Revive Usages of Chivalry, Young Germans Think

A number of young men of good standing in the German capital, displeased by the growing lack of chivalry to be seen in men's treatment of women, formed a league pledged to practice and encourage politeness in public places.

Members of the league obligate themselves, for instance, to surrender their seats in street cars to women and the aged; to offer assistance to women at street crossings and in other places of peril; and to revive so far as possible, all the little niceties of deportment which went into eclipse about the time that women began to compete largely with men as wage-earners.

The objection to chivalry is that it is only skin deep; that along with extreme politeness may go the most substantial injustice. That, of course, is true. But isn't it better to have the injustice with politeness than to have neither justice nor courtesy? Courtesy costs so very little, and it is so nice!

The Boy Scout movement has elements of usefulness in this direction; but a courtesy league for elders, as in Berlin, might also serve a good purpose in our careless age.

Uses of Seaweed

Not useless when cast upon the strand are the dark masses of seaweed which you may survey at low tide at the seashore. On the contrary, these flowers of the waves have many uses. The broad, thick stem and flat leaves of the earweed, when thoroughly dried, are used for making knife handles. The green and purple layers, better known as sea lettuce, are in parts used for food after being boiled down to a jelly. So is, too, another sea plant of a deep, dark, reddish hue, called the dulse.

From another, known as carrageen moss, size is obtained, which is used in the process of calico-making. Farmers also use it for fattening calves and thickening meal and potatoes for pig feeding. The long narrow leaves of the grass wrack, after being dried, form excellent packing material, as well as being used for bedding purposes for stock.

Building Land

Land is being built out to sea from the mouths of the Mississippi river at an estimated average rate of 300 feet a year.

Dairying in Holland

Holland manufactures about 143,000,000 pounds of butter and about 176,000,000 pounds of cheese annually.

Many Greenland women are bald on the sides of their heads, owing to their method of dressing the hair, which is pulled back tightly and held in place by a ribbon.

SHADOWING THE BALL

An Old Trick Which Fools Batters and Sometimes Wins Games

Can a pitcher be made to order?

Joe Boehling's success raises the question.

Boehling is one of the strangest pitchers the game ever has seen. Every batter who walks to the plate returns in disgust, declaring that "he ain't got nothing."

Boehling was pitching for a team down in Virginia. Clark Griffith saw possibilities in him, because he seemed to have the intelligence and cunning necessary to pitch winning ball and took him in hand. After Boehling had gone to the pitching school under Griffith and Altrock he was as much changed as if he had turned green.

Boehling worked a game against Chicago White Sox once that Griffith used in his best days. And not one of them saw it.

There was a trick used by many of the old-time pitchers known as "shadowing." It consisted of throwing the body to one side as the ball was pitched, so that the pitcher's body was on the line of flight of the ball and "shadowed" it, the body forming the only background. Boehling was doing this repeatedly, and the Sox were swinging late at the ball, although it was not speedy. Batters used to complain that Griffith had more speed than he seemed to have. The secret was that he "shadowed" the ball with his body and the batter did not see it clearly until it emerged from the shadow, and, therefore, thought it much faster than it was.

Ed. Reulbach worked the shadow trick once in another way and won a game by it. There was a new umpire working behind him. Early in the game Reulbach became very friendly with the umpire and, instead of kicking when strikes were called, he was polite and seemed to be anxious to assist. He suggested:

"Stand over a bit. Get on the line of the ball and you can see them better."

For five innings that umpire shadowed the ball, unconsciously helping the Chicago pitcher beat Brooklyn. Then some one kicked and the ruse was exposed.

DOOIN'S POOR START

Made Four Errors in His First Game in Fast Company

Charles S. Dooin, veteran of 1,009 major league contests, was advised by Charles A. Comiskey to stick to the tailoring business after a brief trial in 1889 with the St. Paul Club, of which Comiskey was owner at that time.

Comiskey does not recall the incident, but Dooin tells the story on himself.

Although he had been a member of five teams, Dooin had not participated in a dozen professional games when he became a regular with the St. Joseph Club of the Western League in 1901.

When Charley, then a stripling weighing in the neighborhood of 115 pounds, tremblingly entered the office of the St. Joseph Club to report for spring practice, he found a jovial-looking man sitting at a desk reading a newspaper. Enquiry revealed it was McKibben, his manager. Dooin stood there uneasily, twirling his hat and waiting for the manager to say something. Finally, the great man broke the silence by asking, "What can I do for you, sonny?"

"I'm Dooin, your new player," stammered the youth.

McKibben slowly laid down his paper in surprise, got up from his chair, walked around the recruit once or twice while surveying him from head to foot, then calmly remarked:

"Why, my boy, I want a catcher, not a jockey."

Injuries to the regulars, however, gave Dooin his chance, and he was put in to catch "Big Jam" Wiggs.

Dooin was not only a catcher in his first game, but thrower as well. He threw to first and the ball nearly took off the baseman's foot. He threw to second and the baseman there would have needed a stepladder. He threw low to third, and then, with the game in a critical stage and the bases full, he threw to third again to catch a runner off. The left fielder running over to pick up the play, nearly caught the throw on the fly. It emptied the populated sacks.

When the weird session was over and Dooin was charged in the score with four rosy errors, he walked to the club house and began to pack up his things.

McKibben came along, and said: "What are you doing?"

"Gettin' ready to quit before I'm fired."

"Just unpack those duds," said the manager. "Your nerve deserves something, hanging probably, but you get another trial."

Dooin stuck, and caught almost every game that season. In the fall he was sought by several major league clubs.

The Footballer's Boots

The all-important part of the footballer's kit is his boots. These, when new, should be quite tight, even to the point of pinching.

Indeed, the professional footballer, when trying on a new pair of boots, does so in bare feet, and he will not have the boots unless they fit closely, although, of course, he "breaks them in" before actually playing in them. The wise player has two pairs of boots, one with long studs for wet, heavy grounds, the other with short studs when the pitch is hard and dry. —"Answers."

ORIGIN OF CHECKS

It is claimed that the business world owes the idea of the bank cheque to nothing else than London's fogs.

These fogs are sometimes of such a density that the pedestrian can see but a few feet ahead of him. Something over a hundred years ago the attacks of thieves and highwaymen in the streets of London upon bank messengers and tradesmen going to settle their bills became to frequent in times of heavy fog as seriously to interfere with the conduct of London's business.

It was easy for the thief to ambush his victim, club him into insensibility, rob him, and then disappear into the murky atmosphere, with little likelihood of apprehension or identification, or that passers-by would witness the commission of the crime or be of any assistance in the chase.

In these circumstances bankers, tradesmen, and others set their wits to work, with the result that the bank cheque was devised for the payment of debts. Soon the highwaymen found that a few pieces of paper were all the booty they were likely to get from a "hold-up" of even a wealthy tradesman. Accordingly the activities of daylight robbers soon came to an end, but the convenience of the bank cheque proved so great that it survived not only in London, but was adopted throughout the civilized world.

USES FOR RUBBER

Vast Field For the Use of the Article if Cheap Enough

Improved and cheapened methods of manufacture are likely to bring about an enormously increased demand for rubber. Such a cheapening in the art of manufacturing rubber goods will doubtless ultimately result in everybody possessing a waterproof coat and durable galoshes and it is more than probable that rubber soles will ultimately be turned out to last as long as leather ones and be equally agreeable in use. Furthermore, the rubber sponge, which can be made in every size, shape and degree of hardness, is likely to prove a successful competitor of the ordinary bath sponge, it having one great advantage over the latter, the fact that it can be thoroughly sterilized. A reduction in price is also sure to bring about a greater demand for tennis balls, golf balls and footballs, as under such circumstances, our athletes will no longer content themselves with using old balls for practice, as is now generally the case. It will probably also not be long before rubber mosaic floors will be generally used in houses, as they are now on board the latest ships; more especially is the flooring admirably adapted for the requirements of bathrooms, where it is vastly preferable to the cold cement and wood now generally in use. Furthermore, both the hoofs of our horses and our own ears would be greatly spared if the streets of our great towns were paved with rubber, and there is no reason why we should not also live to see this. The whole question is merely a matter of price and organization.

SPREADING THE GOSPEL

Touching Incident of Canada's Far North Related by Pioneer Bishop

Writing in Church Life the Bishop of Athabasca described a trip through the Peace River district and a visit to the Indian Mission of St. Peter, far up toward the Arctic Circle. Concerning the latter place the Bishop said:

"One of the most interesting and sincere Christian Indians is a poor old man of remarkable intelligence, but unfortunately totally blind. I was much impressed to see a young boy, named Arthur, who, but a year ago, was brought to our school, knowing not even the simplest rudiments of Christianity, but whom I shortly afterwards baptised, leading by the hand, through the steadily falling rain, the poor blind man, to Church; to worship and to be present at the Confirmation. The child so recently brought to Jesus that he might bestow His blessing, and the aged follower of Jesus, hand in hand, through the sodden grass to Church, the child leading. Was it not a vision of the triumph of the Christian faith?"

The Reward of Kindness

"It requires a lot of courage and charity to be philanthropic," said Sir Thomas Lipton. "I remember when I was just starting in business. I was very poor, and making every sacrifice to enlarge my little shop. My only assistant was a boy of fourteen, faithful, willing and honest. One day I heard him complaining, and with justice, that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to go to any place of worship on Sunday. 'There's no chance of my getting a new suit this year,' he told me. 'Dad's out of work, and it takes all my wages to pay the rent.'

"I thought the matter over, and then took a sovereign from my carefully-hoarded savings and bought the boy a stout, warm suit of blue cloth. He was so grateful that I felt repaid for my sacrifice. But the next day he didn't come to work. I met his mother in the street and asked her the reason. 'Why, Mr. Lipton,' she said, curtsying, 'Jimmie looks so respectable, thanks to you, sir, that I thought I would send him round town to-day to see if he couldn't get a better job.'"

DON'T HAWK, SPIT, SNEEZE, CURE YOURSELF! BREATH "CATARRHOZONE"!

Gives Instant Relief, Clears Out Nose, Throat and all Breathing Organs.

In this fickle climate, repeated colds very easily drift into Catarrh.

The natural tendency of Catarrh is to extend through the system in every direction.

Exposure to cold or dampness intensifies the trouble and nasal catarrh is the result.

Unless a complete cure is effected, inflammation passes rapidly to the throat, bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs—hence Consumption is practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and fatal stage.

Catarch sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists, germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed,—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills. Its pleasant, safe and guaranteed in every case. Complete outfit $1.00. Smaller size 50c., at all dealers.

HEARING IS RESTORED TO DEAF

Without Mechanical or Artificial Hearing Devices. Deaf Hear With Their Own Ears. A Wonderful English Discovery.

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence" thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread notice throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to produce a stimulous necessary to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

LOCAL BREVITIES

The Board of Trade holds a banquet at the Oriental Hotel to-day.

Belleville has now 30 accepted troops enlisted for the second Overseas Contingent.

The regular weekly meeting of the Kitchener Red Cross Club was held yesterday evening in the Y.W.C.A.

$50.00 was collected in Lindsay police court on Monday. The prisoners were mainly drunks and "sich."

Kaiser Bill has ordered that Calais must be taken. This is liable to happen when Peterborough's tax rate comes down to 8 mils on the dollar.

There was "nothing doing" at the police court yesterday morning. This speaks well for a city of over 20,000 population as well as for the good work of our local police.

A letter received from Col. Hopkins of the 45th Regiment for England says the soldiers on his ship were aboard nineteen days during the ferry trip.

The first fall of "the beautiful" was observed here yesterday. Home-going reporters saw it on Monday night.

This snow fall reminds us of what Gen. Sherman said about war.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

Lindsay Post, referring to the P. C.I. vs. L.C.I. game on Saturday says that the Peterboro aggregation "was more experienced in the rules of the game" than the Lindsay bunch.

NIGHT ATTACKS IN NORTHERN FRANCE MEAN TERRIBLE WORK

The Foe Advanced to Within Thirty Yards of the British Trenches, But Broke and Fled in Terror at Sight of Cold Steel. A Night of Slaughter Illuminated By Burning Bushes

London, Oct. 28.—The correspondent of The Times in northern France sent the following regarding the fighting in Belgium under Tuesday's date:

"The British fire at Ypres, after a glorious stand for five days against overwhelming odds, drove the enemy back fifteen miles. The German forces were commanded by the Bavarian Crown Prince who, it is reported, has been wounded.

"The British forces captured Langemarck, five miles northeast of Ypres, on Friday after conflicting enormous losses on the enemy and established entrenched positions beyond the village.

Got Within 30 Yards; Recoiled

"At night, after the roar of the cannon had ceased, there was suddenly a shrill whistle and bushes soaked in petroleum broke into flames, throwing a glare over the scene. Masses of men sprang up from the beet crops within a few hundred yards of our trenches, and with bugle sound, yell and song they came dashing forward to our position.

"Though taken by surprise our brave men were not unprepared. They took their places in the trenches and held them pouring a terrific fire into the advancing hosts.

"Answering with rifle and machine gun the enemy advanced still with the bugle playing, and amid shouts of 'Hoch, Hoch.' They were in dense masses and they fell by the hundreds. They got within thirty yards of the trenches when they recoiled.

In Among Them with Bayonet.

"Then came three blasts of a whistle, sounding the retreat. Our men sprang out of the trenches and went in among them with the bayonet. The slaughter was terrible, and there were many hand-to-hand encounters.

"In the dim glare of the burning bushes some of the enemy threw down their arms and pleaded for mercy. No quarter, however, was given on either side. The work was too desperate for that. Bayonet and bullet did their work and the enemy was driven back on Roulers.

"A battery and several machine guns were captured and thousands of prisoners were taken including a general and several other officers."

SIXTEEN THOUSAND KILLED AND THIRTY THOUSAND WOUNDED

Was the Toll Paid by the Germans in Their Attacks on Dixmude--Foe Preparing to Mine Ostend and Build Air Ship Sheds--Germans Have Fallen Back From Westende

London, Oct. 28.—A despatch to The Dail Mail from Flushing, Holland, says: "Several mines have been washed ashore along the coast below Ostend. All were in excellent working order, for they exploded promptly, doing, however, no serious damage.

"The Germans have fallen back slightly from Westende. They are putting the coast from Ostend to Knocke in a state of defence. At Ostend preparations are being made to place mines at the harbour entrance.

"The German losses on the Nieuport-Dixmude line are estimated at 16,000 killed and 30,000 wounded. During Sunday four hundred vehicles loaded with wounded soldiers passed through Ostend.

"The Germans have commandeered a large quantity of lumber at Bruges for use in building a giant airship shed at Geldonck. Artillery is being placed in the dunes between Huyst and Duinberg. Five train loads of artillery have been taken to Zeebrugge."

France Has Many More Than 1,000,000 Men In Reserve

Paris, Oct. 28.—When the allies resumed the battle in Belgium today the issue apparently was still far from determination. For days the opposing sides have continued the struggle fiercely, now one side and then the other gaining some ground so the battle thus far has been in the nature of a deadlock.

That the Germans have made up their minds to reach a decision in this part of the theatre of war is indicated by the report that their general staff has issued a further call for troops from Belgium and Germany, for concentration in the vicinity of Dixmude where some of the most severe fighting in the battle of Flanders has occurred.

To Take Offensive.

The gain of the allies in the region to the south of Dixmude as officially announced, showed that they are able despite the heavy and continuous cannonading and the attacks of the German infantry, to take the offensive against the German contingents which previously had succeeded in crossing the Yser. This news was received with much satisfaction by the public here, as was also the announcement regarding the offensive movement by the French around Nancy.

As to the action in this last named vicinity, the French recalled a recent remark by Gen. Castelnau, when in putting the public on its guard against possible bad news, he said:

"We will perhaps receive a blow in the stomach, but we are sure to return it."

One Million in Reserve.

France, according to the general still has more than a million men in reserve to give battle to the Germans to say nothing of large numbers of good volunteers. These are so numerous in fact that many are being refused.

German Attack Has Weakened Over The Entire Battle Front

Allies Hold Their Positions and Win Further Gains at Several Points--German Losses in Dead, Wounded and Prisoners Have Been Large--Russians Capture 20 Guns and Much War Material

PARIS, OCT. 28.—THE FRENCH OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT ISSUED THIS AFTERNOON FOLLOWS:—

DURING THE DAY OF YESTERDAY, THE GERMAN ATTACKS IN ALL THE REGION BETWEEN NIEUPORT AND ARRAS WERE LESS VIOLENT. OUR POSITIONS WERE EVERYWHERE MAINTAINED, AND WE CONTINUED TO ADVANCE TO THE NORTH AND TO THE EAST OF YPRES. WE ALSO MADE SOME PROGRESS BETWEEN CAMBRIN, TO THE SOUTHWEST OF LA BASSEE, AND ARRAS.

FURTHER INFORMATION CONTINUED TO CONFIRM PREVIOUS REPORTS THAT THE GERMAN LOSSES IN DEAD, WOUNDED AND PRISONERS HAVE BEEN CONSIDERABLE IN THE NORTHERN REGION.

ON THE RIGHT BANK OF THE AISNE THE GERMANS ATTEMPTED AT NIGHT A VERY VIOLENT OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT, IN THE REGION OF CRAONNE. ON THE HEIGHTS OF THE HIGHWAY DES DAMES THEY HAVE BEEN REPULSED.

IN THE WOEVRE DISTRICT, OUR TROOPS HAVE CONTINUED THEIR ADVANCE IN THE FORESTS BETWEEN APRIMONT AND ST. MIHIEL, AS WELL AS IN THE FOREST OF LE PRETE.

FURIOUS FIGHTING IN FORESTS

Russia—To the south of Warsaw the fighting extends from Rawa to the junction of the River Ilsa with the Vistula on a front 100 kilometers (62 miles) long. In the region to the northwest of Rawa, the Russians have inflicted heavy losses on the Germans. There has been furious fighting in the forests between Kozienica and Radom.

RUSSIANS CAPAURE GUNS

In Galicia, the Russians are making progress. To the south of Sember, in the narrow valley of the Podbuj, they surrounded the 38th division of the Hungarian Honved, together with detachments from the Landstrum, and destroyed them completely, capturing twenty pieces of artillery and a quantity of war material.

In East Prussia partial attempts at a counter offensive movement on the part of the Germans resulted in failure.

GERMAN BOMB RIFLES SWISS

Paris, Oct. 28.—A Havas news agency despatch from Belfort says that a German aeroplane which flew over the fortress of Belfort on Friday and into Swiss territory, dropped a bomb, which fell on Switzerland. Much irritation, it is added, was caused there against Germans by the incident.

C. E. Would Won Burnham Trophy For Ploughing

Yesterday was a red letter day not only in the township of Otonabee but in the whole County of Peterborough. Mr. J. H. Burnham, with his proverbial interest in public matters of his constituency and the Dominion at large, had presented the County Council with a very handsome silver cup, mounted on an ebony pedestal to be competed for in a ploughing match.

The farm of Mr. Sandy Matchett, Con. 16, Lot 19, Otonabee, yesterday was a busy hive of industry. Between 600 and 700 residents of both this city and Council were gathered there. The City Council, including Mayor Buller, the County Council, local members of both Dominion and Provincial Governments and other leading people were represented.

It might be noted, as explained in Mr. Burnham's Cup is one of the handsomest and most expensive ever presented in a public event in this County. It stands some two feet high including its pedestal.

At yesterday's event the Judges were Messrs. G. Berry, F. Walden and W. Rutherford.

THE RESULTS.

An interesting feature of the occasion was the speeches of the distinguished visitors.

Trophy Presented.

In presenting the handsome cup, Mr. Burnham said:

Mr. Burnham, M.P., the donor of the trophy, said:

"In presenting this cup to the County Council of Peterborough as a perpetual record of the names of those distinguishing themselves in the best of all industries and the most satisfactory of all vocations, the farmers, permit me to say a few words. One of the things people have most to guard against is a slump in their efforts. Grown people like children get fits of laziness occasionally when they are inclined to lie down under the shade of a tree and lean back and say, "Well! well! Why work so hard? What's the use of it? Why not take it as easily as we can? We'll be a long time dead. There's no hurry. All this high flutin' talk about high spirit, hard work, honesty, the glory and satisfaction in being up and doing well our part in life, is all rot. Such people are themselves on the brink of the state of rot to which they refer. To make a long story short, we all know that the difference between the successful farmers, the successful business man and every other good man and the tramp, consists solely in that high spirit which sometimes we hear decried. If it were not for an honest decent pride, the pride of true manhood and womanhood, we would be like the poor miserable tramp who laughs at everything decent and respectable, and wallows in filth, squalor and decay. All this has a bearing on the other spirit which animates us to-day. We are here to do what we can to maintain in the County of Peterborough the pride of our fathers, of the men and women who made this country, and we are gathered together to show that Peterborough shall not be behind other countries in this respect. The charge has been made that Peterborough is falling behind. We will show the world that this is not true. It is true that the yield is not so great per acre as it used to be, but when we learn intensive farming and proper fertilization and cultivation, farming will be a delight instead of a toil. No other business is so steady in peace and war, and so capable of providing body and soul with what nature intended, the peaceful fruits of the soil. The day is not far distant when capable farmers will in large countries like Canada rejoice in snug farms or spacious estates, pretty homes, beautiful surroundings, prompted and provided by scientific and intensive farming when one acre will provide what it takes five to produce at present and when we will save four-fifths of our labour by cutting out four-fifths of the area worked over."

GERMANS ADMIT ALLIES BEAT IN AEROPLANES

London, Oct. 28.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail in Paris, in a despatch to his paper, given gives a copy of the German order on avoiding aeroplanes. It says:

According to the report of aeroplane observers, our troops are very easy to discover in spite of their gray uniforms, because of the density of their formation, while the French know how to protect themselves perfectly from aerial reconnaissance.

"Avoid Mass Formations."

During a fight our troops must make use of the narrow files among the trees, at the edges of villages and near the shelter of houses, avoiding mass formations. Above all absolute stillness must be maintained in exposed places.

At the approach of an aeroplane all movements should cease.
it is also necessary to avoid all movement of batteries when aeroplanes are surveying. A single man moving will betray a battery. There should also be no firing for the flash of a gun betrays its position to the air squadron.

The success of the French artillery, which has caused such marked losses is due, first, to their quickness in determining the positions of our batteries. To equal them it is necessary that our observations should be pushed like theirs, far in advance of the lines by men of good courage who are not afraid of sharpshooters.

GERMANS LAID MINES IN PACIFIC

Two Japanese Vessels Sunk--Very Little Loss of Life, However

Tokio, Oct. 28.—Two Japanese steamers have been blown up thus far and a third damaged, while engaged in removing German mines, several thousand of which were laid off the German possession of Kiao-Chow. As reported by cable the loss of life was relatively small. The details have just arrived as follows:

"The first vessel to suffer was the small steamer Wakamiya Maru, which with orders was clearing mines from the gulf of Laoshan, northeast of Tsing-tau, off the point where the second Japanese expeditionary force was landed. A tremendous explosion occurred beneath the Wakamiya Maru. Water rushed into the engine room and extinguished the flames. Realizing the had struck a mine, the captain ran his vessel full speed into shallow water, closed the water-tight compartments, and finally beached the ship. The explosion killed one man and injured seven."

Another "mine dragger," the Nagato Maru, witnessed the accident and was hastening to render assistance when her nose touched a mine. Her bow leaped into the air and in a column of smoke. Falling to the water the ship settled and sank. Three seamen were killed by the explosion and eight men, including two officers, were wounded. The others jumped and were rescued.

Men Thrown Overboard

The loss of the Koyo Maru, October 1, occurred in about the same manner. A detonation shook the engine room. All officers and sailors on the upper deck were thrown overboard by the force of the explosion. Everybody in the engine room was either killed or wounded. The bow of the vessel rose in the air and the ship sank in three minutes the stern first.

Two other ships hurried to the rescue. They picked up the wounded first and then the commander and other officers and the men. The casualties numbered nine.

FRENCH WON FROM THE GERMANS AT YPRES BAY A CLEVER TRICK

Caught Germans in Advance Formation With Deadly Shell Fire. All Were Practically Annihilated. Guns Working to Full Capacity of Four Shells A Minute Sprayed Bursting Projectiles Over German Trenches

Paris, Oct. 28.—This is how a portion of the German lines northeast of Ypres was taken Monday, according to officers who have arrived in Paris from the battle line. A series of light four gun, 3-inch field batteries, each invisible from the front were disposed behind the natural cover of undulations in the fields, bits of wood, ruined farm houses and dry ravines.

The guns, working to their full capacity of four shells to the minute, sprayed bursting projectiles over the German trenches in a wide belt, before, over and just behind the carefully dug and roofed field works that is the usual thing with the adversaries. The German infantry as long as they kept inside the covered trenches, were secure except from the chance of shells falling directly through the narrow space left for rifle and machine gun fire.

Cease Fire by Agreement.

The French infantry, from the rear of their own line of trenches got up as if for the usual run for the German lines. The French guns at a moment agreed upon, ceased their fire and the Germans supposing the usual charging rush was coming, ordered up their reserve infantry, who were held outside of the shell zone, to support the slender lines in their trenches.

The French infantry, although firing heavily, did not charge. The French artillery changed their range and at a signal by telephone from the French trenches caught the German reserves coming on the run one with a shattering shell fire which thousand yards beyind their works broke formations and seemed to bring down a third of the men in the line. They simply could not advance through the section of bursting shells.

The French infantry then charged and won their way through the line from the German trenches which they took with the bayonet.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS A MOST SUCCESSFUL DINNER

Large Gathering at Oriental Hotel Yesterday, Had Feast of Reason and a Flow of Wit

Yesterday at one o'clock the Peterborough Board of Trade held a most successful dinner at the Oriental Hotel. The management of this most popular caravansery had spared neither time nor expense in making this banquet the success it proved to be. The long tables were covered with immaculately white napery. The silver and crystal were of latest design and well furnished for the occasion. The dinner was held under "Sans ceremonie" conditions. Those present wore their ordinary business suits thus precluding any chance of "the average man" feeling uncomfortable for lack of what Mr. Uriah Wilson, M.P., for Middlesex, used, at Ottawa, to call a "forky tailed" coat. President Basil Hall very [illegible] filled the chair.

Adjt. McIlheney of the Salvation Army said grace.

After the admirable and well cooked and served dinner, Mr. Greenlaw gave a patriotic vocal section that was greatly appreciated.

Here President Hall called on Rev. Dr. Gordon who arose amid cheers.

Dr. Gordon said it always interested him when a Doctor of Divinity had chance to get back at a Board of Trade. (Laughter). The Reverend Doctor then gave a number of very interesting stories that were loudly applauded. He regarded it as a great privilege that "a travelling Pilgrim should be invited to address the business men of Peterboro. The speaker who was born in the U.S., said, "I have been a citizen of our glorious Dominion for the past fifteen years!" Cheers. "We are living in the best land the sun ever shone on!" (Cheers). "The crown of a bright destiny rests on the forehead of Canada. A true citizen believes in his own land and her possibilities. If there was ever a flag worth fighting for it is the Union Jack. It is the finest piece of drygoods ever produced. It is to England's credit that she went, when as she was by honor forced into the present war. After this war is over, which I hope to God will be soon, British capital will flow in streams to Canada. He prophesied that the universal language will soon be English. Nature has done wonderful things for Peterboro! The church of Christ has been a fool in not looking after the amusement of the people better. He disclaimed the doctrine of some churches which would put the theatre out of existence. In the future it will not be the diplomatist or the statesman who will control the destiny of the world. The man who will rule is the business man."

The doctor kept the audience in roars of laughter during all of his speech.

Mr. J. J. Turner moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Gordon. This was carried amid enthusiasm.

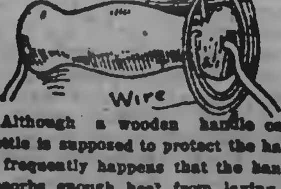
Cool Kettle Handle



Although a wooden handle on a kettle is supposed to protect the hand it frequently happens that the handle absorbs enough heat from laying on the metal part of the kettle to cause severe burns. Besides, it has frequently happens that the handle is burned or charred. A good way to prevent both of these happenings and keep the handle cool is to attach a coil of wire to one side of it, as shown in the sketch. This keeps the handle away from the kettle, and when it may get warm will never get hot.

WHEN HANS WAGNER BUNTED

Fred Clark was discussing Hans Wagner's peculiarities. "I'll never forget the first time I ordered him to bunt.

"It was in Louisville, back in 1897. Honus had been with us only a few days. I didn't know him then as I know him now. We were playing Pittsburg, and Jess Tannehill was pitching against us. We were not hitting Jess, and, as I had noticed the Dutchman to be fast, I asked him if he could bunt. He said he could try.

"So I told him to lay one down the third-base line and try to get on. He selected a bat for the purpose, and, while we sat back watching for his bunt, he didn't do a thing but knock the ball clear over a distillery for a home run.

"The next time his turn came I asked him if he thought he could bunt another one like that. He never cracked a smile, but said he thought he could. He did. The first good one Tannehill served Honus cracked it over the same distillery. They were two of the longest home runs I ever saw, and on those two smashes over the old Louisville distillery we beat Tannehill that day, 2 to 0."

CATCHERS SELDOM GOOD BASE STEALERS

Chief Reason Is That the Unnatural Position They Assume Bunches the Leg Muscles

About the rarest article in baseball is a catcher who can steal bases.

Ask any manager what he would give for a backstop able to work 100 games a season and steal 50 bases and he will tell you that such a player is not yet born.

And he will mean every word.

Scouts have been searching for catchers who can steal bases and they haven't turned up one to date; and when they did pick up a catcher with speed he lost it by the time he was tutored to the point where he could catch many games.

There are two reasons for catchers losing their fleetness of foot. The first is that squatting behind the bat develops muscles which retard rather than help in running, and the second is that catchers are hampered by the fact they are nine times out of ten just ahead of the pitcher in the batting order.

The time to steal is when two men are out, but a catcher cannot take a chance at this time, for if he is thrown out the pitcher will be the first man at bat in the next inning, and no manager wants to lead off with a weak-hitting pitcher.

Constant squatting develops the catcher's quadreceps extensor muscle, just above the knee, causing it to "bunch." The ideal sprinter has muscles strung out and pliable. The difference between the leg muscles of a catcher and those of a sprinter is the difference that is found in the muscles of a boxer and wrestler.

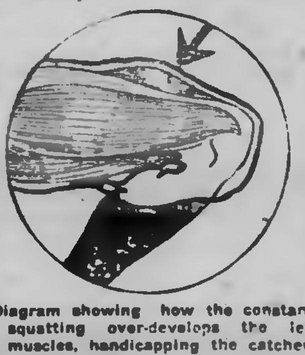


Diagram showing how the constant squatting over-develops the leg muscles, handicapping the catcher.

The boxer requires long, pliable muscles, for speed; the wrestler needs slower, "bunched" muscles for gruelling strain.

Many young catchers go to the majors with speed, but they soon slow up.

NO ADVANCE IN BASEBALL

Former Star Says Game no Faster Now Than Years Ago

Frank Killen was one of the best pitchers in the National League, and in 1893 was entitled to rank with the league leader; to-day he is selling real estate in the Sewickley valley, which is in Pennsylvania.

Killen says the game is no faster than in the 90's, and as he managed and pitched minor league baseball for 10 years after he heard the bell ring out his major league career, he has something more than suspicion to back his opinion.

He does say there are more speedy men in the game to-day, but he checks this with the statement that there are not so many first class hitters, and declares that the real advance in the game is the amount of space devoted to it by newspapers.

"Many an old play comes up under a new name, and very few new plays are really new," declares Killen.

Rusie was the wonder of all pitchers, in Killen's opinion, and of Amos he says: "Bear in mind Rusie was pitching just as far from the plate as the pitchers of to-day, and working 50 games every season."

SMOKERS IN FACTORIES

Their Carelessness Causes Many Needless Fires

It is an open question whether the careless fool or the deliberate criminal does more damage by fire. Advantage seems to lie with the fool, because he is everywhere gladly bringing down destruction, while the fire bug must go about his deadly work stealthily at weird hours and in awkward places.

Chief among the fools who carelessly cause fires is the smoker. His blazing match is cast down still alight. His cigarette end falls into piles of paper or shavings. The burning ashes of his trusty pipe descend gently into oil vats and barrels of gunpowder. If the fool destroyed only himself, the world could bear his actions philosophically, but he usually escapes while better men perish.

In England great wealth was accumulated by a man who was shrewd enough to locate small tobacco stores opposite factory entrances, but his fortune represented the loss of many fortunes by his brother manufacturers.

Smoking should be absolutely prohibited in or about every Canadian factory, and employes breaking this rule should be dismissed. If the rule became national, manufacturers could inform each other of these dismissals and could refuse employment to persistent offenders. If it were enforced there would be fewer fires, better work would be done, and the smoker would enjoy his weed more keenly in the evening, after a day's self-denial.—Industrial Canada.

NO SALT HORSE

It Costs Huge Sum Nowadays to Provision Ocean Liners

In these days, when the high cost of living is so much in the public mind, it is interesting to know what it costs a steamship to provide the necessities of life to the hordes of passengers who cross and recross the Atlantic. The annual statement of the North German Lloyd Company throws some interesting light on the subject.

For one year the company's bill for provisions alone was $4,920,000, while during the same period the coal man was paid $7,276,735 for 1,758,740 tons of coal which were shoveled into the ships' furnaces during the twelvemonth. For these two items alone—provisions and coal—the company paid the enormous sum of $12,296,735.

The itemized provision bill showed that the butcher got $1,685,000 for meats. This does not include fish and game; for the former the company paid an additional $239,660, while the bill for the game amounted to $412,360, a total of $652,020.

Preserves cost $255,760 for the twelve months and fresh vegetables ran into the respectable figure of $128,110, while for "sundries," including bread, flour, spices, fruits and the thousand and one articles that are used in the kitchen, the company paid $1,688,890.

More potatoes were consumed during the year than any other single article, the total amount having been 17,875,273 pounds. Flour ranked next with 6,313,152 pounds, fresh beef third with 5,769,134 pounds, while the bread was fourth with 2,353,083 pounds. The passengers consumed 7,093,560 eggs, 4,271,000 oranges and lemons, 797,625 pounds of onions and 983,302 pounds of salt. They used 465,240 pounds of coffee and 41,729 pounds of tea and 529,619 cans of sterilized milk, to say nothing of 14,918 bottles of fresh cream.

THE GREAT LAKES

We all know in a general way that Lake Superior is the largest and Lake Ontario the smallest of the Great Lakes, but the relative facts are scarcely known to the average person. While Lake Michigan ranks second in size, being forty-five miles shorter than Lake Superior, it is twice as deep at its greatest depth, the figures being 900 feet for Lake Superior and 1,800 feet for Lake Michigan, so that in cubical contents the latter far outreaches Superior. Lake Huron's greatest depth also is a hundred feet more than that of Lake Superior, so that the greatest is not superior to everything after all.

Lake Erie and Lake Ontario are comparatively shallow, with maximum depth of 204 feet and 412 feet, and yet we should not like to fall overboard in either of them. In width—maximum figures—Lake Superior comes first with 160 miles, Huron second with 105, Michigan third with 84, Erie fourth with 60, and Ontario last with only 53 miles of greatest breadth.

In comparison with its area, Ontario leads with a drainage of 29,760 square miles for its area of 6,700, the others being Erie, drainage, 39,680, area 23,000 square miles; Michigan, drainage, 70,000, area, 22,400 square miles; and Superior, drainage, 85,000, area, 32,000 square miles. Drop in elevation is very gradual, Lake Superior being 600 feet above sea-level, Michigan 578 feet, Huron 574 feet, Erie 564 feet, and then comes a big drop to 234 feet for Lake Ontario.

How to Grow Old

Don't smile.

Suspect everybody.

Keep your wireless station tuned to rumors, trouble, gossip or misery.

Specialize the grouch habit.

Be afraid of people and things. Imaginary fear is a great producer of wrinkles.

Envy your neighbor.

When you hear of another man's good fortune, feel mean about it.

When you sit down to dinner tell your wife and the children what every thing costs.

Never mind the pleasant day. Rain to-morrow.

These are sure and positive rules.

Dead Cats as Scarecrows

A novel method of scaring away birds was adopted by a Kentish farmer. He had killed a number of cats had them stuffed, and placed them in various attitudes among the branches of the fruit trees in his orchard.

Bilibid Prison, at Manila, was the scene recently of the production of a play, written, staged, and acted by prisoners, in a theatre specially built by prisoners, and before an audience composed of prisoners.

Should You Marry a Man Who Drinks?

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am desperately in love with the dearest boy in the world, but my father and mother do not want me to marry him. All they have against him is that he drinks.

He doesn't get intoxicated intentionally. He cannot seem to help it. One little drink will start him off.

He tells me that if I marry him I can reform him. I know I can, we love each other so dearly. But mother says I can't. What shall I do?

HEARTBROKEN.

SO the only reason your father and mother have against the man you love is that he drinks, is it? Dear me—is that all? Why, you wouldn't let a little thing like that keep you from marrying him, would you?

Not if you are a real heroine in a real romance—not if you love him "madly, passionately, blindly," like the girl in the stories. The very idea! What's a drink or two compared to the volcanic emotions of your maidenly heart?

Why, you think it makes him alluring, don't you? You love to look at him, and think that he is wicked and desperately daring—such a darling, romantic sinner—some one to help—some one to "reform."

And he's told you all about it, has he? Ah, yes—how interesting.

He's told you, too, that you are the white lily of his life, the one pale star of purity shining into the dark sky of his existence. You can save him—you, and you alone. He clings to you as a drowning man clings to a straw—and with about as much common sense, too, let me tell you.

An Object Lesson.

You live in a little town, you say. Look around you and see what is happening there. That's real life, you know—it isn't in a book or in a play or in a song—it's real. As real as the cold that bites in winter and the heat that stifles in summer.

What's that little family down there by the tracks? You never go down that way and don't know anything about them. Well, go for this once. You need to know them—just a little.

The woman down there—can you believe that just a few years ago she was the prettiest girl in her own village—yes, and the gayest and the lightest of heart? Look at her now; you can scarcely think that she ever smiled in all her life. What wretched clothes she wears, and the two babies she tries to make look respectable—but how patched and faded their little clothes are.

That's her husband you met slouching out of the gate—good looking chap, wasn't he, fine manners, too?

She was dead in love with him when she married him—just as you are dead in love with your sweetheart now—and he was dead in love with her, too. He told her that if she'd marry him he'd never drink another drop—and if she didn't marry him he'd go straight to the devil.

Reform?—Perhaps.

He did try to "reform," poor chap; he tried hard, and she tried to help him. But it was no use, he might as well have tried to reform from the typhoid fever. It was in his blood—the disease of drink—and now he lets the woman he loved so madly go hungry and, sometimes when he has been drinking, he is unkind to his own little children and the woman is ashamed to go back home and so she stays there with him, a martyr to her own folly and her own stubborn self-will.

Oh, yes, there are men who "reform," thousands of them—yes, thousands upon thousands, thank the great Giver of all Good—but, little girl, wait till your own particular man has "reformed" before you marry him.

If you can't stop your sweetheart from drinking before you're married to him, you'll never in the world be able to stop him afterward.

Listen to your mother and father—put the man on probation—and see.

That's the best way, little girl—that's the only way. Take it if you want a fighting chance for happiness.

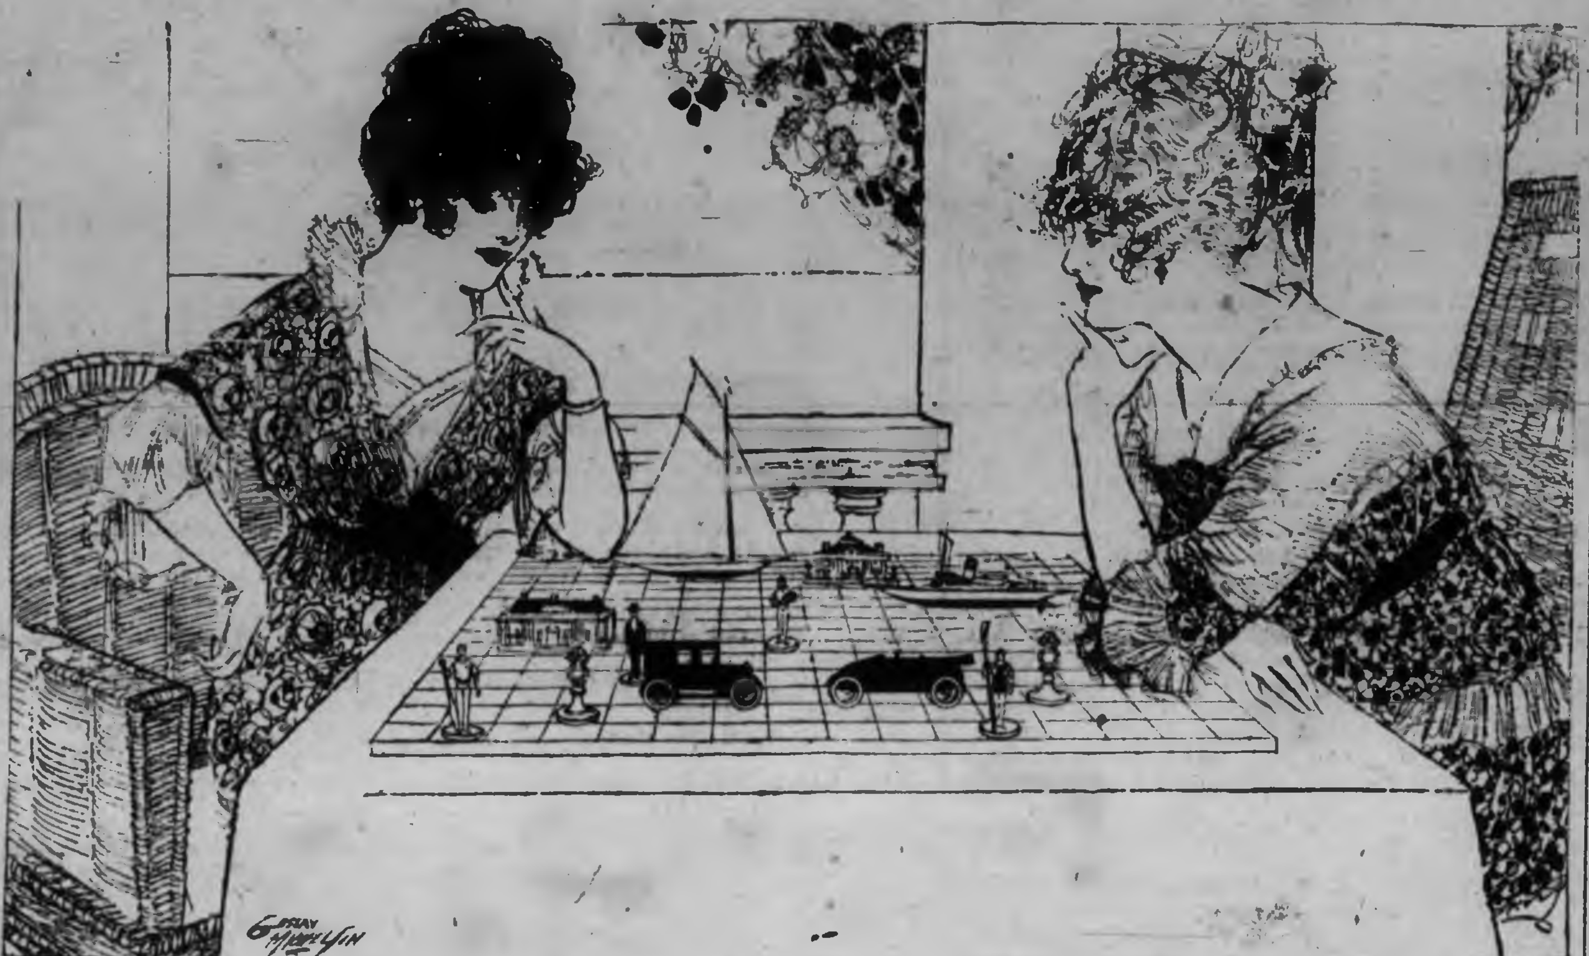
THE SUMMER GAME

By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

YES, it is a game that two can play at, and it really is a wonderful game when the two are both feminine. The chess board is the field of summer life. The pawns—well, there is a long list of elements in this game. You would know the pieces by sight very well—and, of course, these are MEN.

The game is to have things placed so that you can JUMP to where you want to go—so that you can get what you want in spite of any possible obstacle from an opponent. This sometimes includes the cruelty of taking her man. But it is all part of the game. You can't play it, of course, unless you are prepared to have her take YOUR man if she can do it. Some players show simply WONDERFUL skill—and sometimes (this is really very sad) the players don't like each other very well afterward.

Peter's Adventures In Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

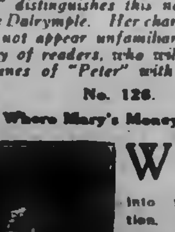
Where Mary's Money Went.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

WITH the new year I put my new rules into rigid execution. I paid every household bill by check. I went over bills. I tried to show Mary where she was an extravagant buyer, and we were getting along fairly well. And then came the end of the month. I paid the lighting bills and the rent—paid the grocer and butcher and milkman, and Mary expressed herself as very glad to be rid of all the worry.

"And you said we'd divide what was left, didn't you, Peter?" she finished. "My half will be quite mine to do with as I please, won't it?"

"Yes," I said absently, footing up the total. "quite your own."

Then I smiled grimly. For, after our heavy rent was paid and our heavier bills there was exactly $7.45 left.

Mary turned pale.

"It can't be, Peter," she said. "Go over it again."

I carefully added the list of figures once more—then I made out a check for half of it and laid it on Mary's lap.

"Peter," she said, "I've got to have more money. I need a waist."

"You can get a waist for $3," I said, "can't you?"

"Don't be horrid," said Mary. "Oh, Peter, where did all the money go?

"That's for you to say!" I hinted. "Our bills are still higher than they ought to be. I've told you so often, Mary, that you buy extravagantly, that I don't like to keep harping on it, but our table expenses do certainly run too high."

"What shall we do?"

"Economize," I said, as I had said 50 times before. "We've got to do it."

Mary sat very tearful and quiet for a long time. I smoked.

"At last," I thought, "I've found a way to bring home to her the value of money. If at the end of every month, she finds herself with but $3 or $4 with which to buy clothes and petty essentials, certainly she'll begin to realize that to get more money she'll have to be careful. Go slow, Peter, old man, and let her work out her own salvation."

During the month that followed I watched my wife with considerable interest. She didn't seem to be worrying in the least about economy. She had money all month. I fancied she was tenderly nursing that $2.88 cents. I was disillusioned. When our accounting time rolled around and I drew forth my check book, Mary looked up from some fancy work she was doing and said, with a coolness I shan't forget:

"Oh, Peter, before you make out the checks for the house bills, make out a check for mother for $20, will you? She insisted upon lending it to me, and if anything has to suffer it simply mustn't be her. Charity begins at home."

I was too flabbergasted to speak.

"Of course," Mary was saying brightly, "I realized that last month was a very poor month for us with Christmas in it and all that sort of thing, and, of course, we only had $7 or $8 dollars left, but this month I knew it would be different, and so, when mother learned I had so little money and offered to lend me some I took it—wouldn't you?"

Do you wonder more young fellows don't marry when there's many a girl with Mary's ideas about money? I tenderly laid aside my check book. I tenderly reached for my hat—I walked forth to interview my mother-in-law.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

COMMON bracken fern laid down in places frequented by cockroaches will drive them away.

A very easy and quick way to skin sausages is to immerse them for a second or two in cold water.

If anything on which paraffin has been spilled—hands included—is rubbed with raw potato, the smell will immediately disappear.

New potatoes should be placed in boiling water to which salt and a little milk have been added. The milk prevents them from turning black.

The popular cabbage is useful for drawing and cleansing a gathered finger or poisoned hand. Take a cabbage leaf, roll it out with a bottle until the juice comes, and tie it on the affected part.

Salt will remove black beetles. Put plenty of salt where the beetles frequent, and keep it there for a week. Do not leave any water where the insects go. When they eat the salt it will dry up their bodies.

To remove the smell of fish or cabbage from a saucepan, burn a piece of brown paper on the fire and turn the saucepan down over the burning paper. This will remove all odor, whatever it is, in a few seconds.

Sprinkle dry flour over any japanned trays that are beginning to look shabby. Leave for an hour or so, then rub off the flour, and polish with a soft duster. It is wonderful how this treatment will improve even a shabby tray.

When buying tea, before using it spread it on a sheet of paper and place it in a warm, but not too hot, oven from 10 to 15 minutes. By doing this the tea will be made to go much farther, and the flavor will be greatly improved.

Four Dishes by the Famous M. Sauvigne

Chef of Hotel St. Denis, New York.

IF you have a liking for delicate dishes in cold weather, your hot weather menu must be especially delicate. Even at its best, appetite is a vagrant blessing, blown away by the slightest breath.

To tempt, to delight, to nourish—these are the three requirements of the summer menu. The recipes I here offer you are favorite warm weather dishes of mine, which, as delicious viands go, are to be prepared with comparative ease.

Breasts of Chicken Merry Widow

TAKE breasts of tender chickens, season with salt, white pepper and paprika, then fry them slowly in butter for 15 minutes. Add as many good-sized heads of fresh mushrooms as there are breasts, and let cook five minutes longer. Have also as many cooked crawfish, also a slice of Virginia ham and a heart-shaped piece of toast for each breast.

Then put a slice of ham on each toast, pour a spoonful of Bearnaise sauce over it, and place the breast of chicken on top. Put a spoonful of asparagus tips and also one of minced sweet red peppers heated in butter on each side of the breast, and stand one crawfish against it. Finally place a mushroom on the crawfish head. Serve hot.

Filet of Beef Funston.

CUT slices of well-trimmed beef tenderloin weighing two ounces each. Saute them in butter over a brisk fire. Have some artichoke bottoms of the size of the slices of filet, heat them in butter and place a filet on each, also a slice of marrow on the filet and pour a spoonful of Bordelaise sauce with minced green peppers in it over all.

Garnish around with clusters of small lima beans and corn mixed, and fried Parisienne potatoes.

Serve very hot.

Mussels Mariniere.

SCRAPE and clean two quarts of mussels, wash them in several waters, then put them in a saucepan with half-pint of Rhine wine, two chopped shallots, four medium fresh mushrooms chopped, also a little parsley and a pinch of freshly ground black pepper, two ounces of butter and salt to taste. Set on fire and let boil until they are all open.

Pick them out of the saucepan, remove half of the shell, and dress them in a casserole or chafing dish, reduce the liquor to one-half and thicken with a little white sauce, stir two more ounces of fresh butter in sauce and pour over the mussels on their half-shells.

Serve hot.

Crab Flakes a la Dewey.

FOR half a pound of crab flakes, slice four or six mushrooms and a large green pepper, cook them slowly in butter, then add the crab flakes, a gill of white wine and sherry and enough cream to cover the crab flakes. Let simmer for five minutes without stirring, then add the belly part of a dozen steamed soft clams, bind the sauce with three raw egg yolks diluted in cream and two ounces of fresh butter; season to taste and serve with fresh, hot toast on the side.

Exercise for Beauty Useless if Not Enjoyed

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."

LUCREZIA BORI

A CLEVER poet wrote long before you and I were on earth:

"Health is the vital principle of bliss,
And exercise of health."

If you haven't health you needn't expect to have beauty. And, I can't figure out any way to have health without taking exercise.

There is a concerted defiance to age abroad in the land today. One of the most successful ways to make the years stand still is to keep the body elastic, the mind active, and the spirit cheerful. And how can the body be elastic unless it has exercise? You know what happens to a horse if he is allowed to stand in the stable with no chance to exercise. He may be the finest race horse in the world when he is put in the stall, but if he stands still long enough he'll be a stiffened old nag when he comes out.

Dancing is doing a lot to keep old age away from women who have begun to see its face over their shoulder, and feel the tweak of its approach in their stiffened knees.

Any woman can get some exercise, no matter what her life, unless she is a hopeless invalid or crippled. She can bend and twist her body and take deep breaths, even if she lives in a hall bedroom. She can walk at least some distance each day, even if she has to sit in a close factory room, in a shop or bent over her sewing.

The housekeeper is the one who usually errs most in lack of the right kind of exercise. She gets plenty of one kind, but her life is a good deal like the horse on the treadmill, and she should try to get out and take a walk each evening, if she has no time before. As a rule, the housekeeper is the wife and mother. It is important that she has her health and keeps old age at bay. She is an important factor in the life and well being of the community. Others are dependent on her.

If you can't walk, run, standing still. Just clench your fists and hold your elbows at your sides and run with all your strength, right in one place. It will put you out of breath and set you in a dripping perspiration, but it will give you splendid exercise—more of it in five minutes than you have probably had in a month.

Skipping rope is another small space exercise that will set your blood in circulation and keep the age germs out of your system. And when you are exercising make your mind help your body. Don't walk with your face clouded, your lips compressed and an "I'll-do-it-or-die" expression. Instead, think how beautiful the world is, and how much good there is about you, and how you are enjoying the chance of being able to walk abroad, well and free and happy.

I heard a woman say to a little chap selling papers: "It is a hard life, isn't it, when the weather is cold and stormy?" And the urchin, turning a saucy, smiling face up to her, said: "Say, you can con yourself into liking anything."

Odd and Interesting Facts from Everywhere

In the cloisters of Westminster Abbey is a tombstone which has been polished every morning and decorated afresh with a bunch of flowers for nearly five years. It is over the grave of the late Mrs. Wilberforce, wife of the present Archdeacon of Westminster, who died May 15, 1909. Never a morning has passed but a fresh floral tribute has been laid on it, and more than 1830 days have passed since May, 1909.

A pit pony named Baldy has just been drawn to the surface of an old English mine to end his days in comfort after 17 years' work underground. The pony which is 21 years of age, is blind owing to its long confinement, but its general condition is wonderfully good.

It has been discovered, according to the reading of an old will, that to dispense one of the London charities according to the exact terms of the bequest it would be necessary to throw to the poor from Paddington Church steeple $5000 worth of bread and cheese.

A thrush has built its nest, laid three eggs, and in the natural course of events will, if undisturbed, rear its young on a scaffold-pole at the secondary school for girls which is being erected in Northampton, England. The nest has been built at the junction of two poles. There are between 50 and 60 men working on the building, but the bird takes not the slightest notice of them.

The New South Wales government has decided to supplement its enterprises by the creation of a state bakery in Sydney. The government will acquire a bakery and bake bread for its own institutions. It is expected that the government will be able to deliver bread to the public institutions at 1 penny per pound. It is not intended to supply the general public from the government bakery.

Secrets of Health

Why Our Eyes Very Often Deceive Us

By Dr. L. K. HIRSHBERG

(A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

YOU must wink and blink hard to shut your eyes from germs and dust. The eyes are more than homes of silent prayer. They are too easily the abiding places of dirt and microbes.

It may look foolish to wear goggles and shields to protect the eyes from flying grains and to safeguard vision from the glare and shimmer of the sun, but it is the least of many possible evils.

It was a wiser man than a doctor who first suggested wind-shields for motor cars, dark-lensed spectacles for mountain-climbing, smoked glasses for the seashore beach, and upward-turned chandeliers for the home.

Psychologists such as Prof. John T. Watson and illuminating engineers such as Mr. Herbert Ives were the benefactors who, without medical knowledge, devised the practical, present-day methods of illumination. The essential factor in all progressive schemes of interior lighting is to conceal the source of light from the eyes, yet to obtain maximum luminosity.

Sight and Memory.

A child's eyes are more sensitive to light on the very first day it is born than the Venus fly-trap is to a fly. The eyes of the new born babe must be protected from both sun and artificial light.

This same rule, followed more in the breach than in the observance, should be looked to more deliberately in later years. True enough, some attention is given to this matter as regards the proper position of desks, chairs and school furniture, but it is decidedly more necessary to defend the eyesight and the eyeball when in rapid motion.

Light must never strike the eye fairly and squarely on the pupil, neither quiet light nor movable light should do so. The eyes must be rested, never strained. The flicker and motion of the bright rays received upon the retina, while driving rapidly in an auto, motor boat, aeroplane or upon a race horse jeopardizes the sight.

Goggles and masks are not the Little Old Men of the Sea that many feminine friends would have you believe. In reality they are the health wardens of your most useful sense.

The sensation of sight is, perhaps, the most delicate of all the senses. It is subject to as many vicissitudes as any of the others, yet it needs more protection.

Psychologists are universally convinced that there is no such thing, after the first hours of birth, as a pure sensation. That is to say, the eye and the other senses never see strictly singly, and without memories, anything they light upon. After the first days the eyes have many memories which become associated and fused with vision. Thus what was a sensation becomes a perception.

Honest Witnesses.

You can prove this to your own satisfaction from the well known fact that you really see things before they happen. If you see a globular flash of yellow thrown into the air, you say: "I see an orange."

You are certain it was an orange. Perhaps it was—in most cases it would be. Once in a while it would not be—yet you would swear on the witness stand that it was an orange. This is why most honest eye witnesses do not, under oath, tell the truth.

You perceived an orange. That is to say, your past memories immediately shot an "orange" into your thoughts, almost before you saw the flash of round yellow. You did not see the orange; you perceived it—an entirely different thing.

Children see things more accurately and distinctly, because their eyesight has not been dulled by repetitions and mixed memories. As each year passes you become farther and farther removed from all sensations. Your perceptions become more and more complex. Therefore, to save to your eyes all the delicate sensitiveness that you can retain, safeguard your eyes with strict care.

Answers to Health Questions

L. M.—You suggested for me to take all kinds of exercise and also cold baths to benefit nerves. Now, when is the best time to take them, as nervous system is in bad shape?

Take a cold bath in the morning and a shower bath in the afternoon. Play tennis in the morning, nap in the early afternoon, and row, canoe, swim and play ball or dance in the late afternoon.

HUB MAN STABBED TO DEATH AT DANCE

Damariscotta, Me., Oct. 27.— Blame for the death of Hugh Clark of Boston, who was stabbed late last night in a crowded dancing pavilion at East Jefferson, was placed on Gilmour Bowman of Somerville, Me., by the coroner's jury late today at the conclusion of a hearing at which a number of witnesses testified.

It was alleged the stabbing was done with a jackknife which was afterwards found about 30 or 40 feet away with the open blade covered with what appeared to be blood. Clark's jugular vein was severed, his heart was penetrated and there were a number of flesh wounds.

Clark lived only a few seconds after exclaiming: "I have been stabbed." He was alleged to have been fighting with Bowman at the time.

Bowman was arraigned before a trial justice on the charge of murder and probable cause was found for holding him for the grand jury at Wiscasset next Tuesday. He was ordered committed to Auburn jail without bail. The court proceedings were brief. Clark was 24 years of age, Bowman is 24. Clark was passing a vacation at his former home at Jefferson. He had been employed as a roofer in Boston and lived in Somerville, Mass.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness.

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

What the Germans Thought

A journalist who is particularly well informed with regard to naval affairs is Mr. Hector C. Bywater who for some years was the Berlin correspondent of The Navy, the organ of the Navy league, and of the Naval and Military Record. In the latter paper he not long ago made some interesting remarks upon the German attitude toward the British navy. He first commented upon the exploit of the British submarine E9 in sinking the German destroyer S126, and continued:

"German papers recently to hand have contained allusions to the British navy which read somewhat strangely when contrasted with German press utterances on the same subject before the war. We are now given to understand that the enemy entertains a wholesome respect for our fleet. The events of the last two months appear to have convinced them that there may after all, be something in the fighting traditions of the British sea service, which they had been assured by their experts were largely based on legend and myth. A great change in the tone of their press comments set in after the fight off Heligoland. The consummate skill, dash and courage which distinguished the conduct of that engagement obviously came as an eye-opener to the Germans. We may be sure that later events at sea, including the dual exploit of E9, has deepened the same salutary impression. Even the leading German papers now admit that the Fatherland must look to the land campaign both for its laurels and substantial successes, as the prospect at sea is not encouraging. In a word, they are beginning to realise that the British fleet is a factor whose power has been grossly underrated, and it is clear from their guarded admissions that they have no great confidence in the ability of the German Navy to fulfill its much advertised mission of protecting the commerce and the colonies of the Fatherland. It may be remarked, in passing, that unless it does something and that soon, the German navy will suffer a severe loss of prestige in Germany itself. German patriots, we may well imagine, are already beginning to ask themselves what return they are getting for the enormous expenditure on naval armaments during the last fourteen years? It is literally true that up to the present this great fleet has been utterly powerless to affect the course of the campaign in any direction whatever. It has, perhaps, prevented a hostile landing on the German coasts, but this elementary form of coast defence could have been equally well undertaken by small flotillas costing but a fraction of what the high sea fleet has cost. Indeed the reliance which has been placed on shore batteries and minefields proves that the navy was never intended for coast defence, in the narrow sense of the term. Sooner or later the German public will demand some decisive action by the fleet. Whether the hands of the navy department could be forced by the public opinion is another question, but the officers and men of the fleet cannot be feeling very happy in the knowledge that their comrades of the army are doing all the work while they remain absolutely idle.

"One of the most widely-held opinions in Germany before the war was that the British navy was a thoroughly effete institution. Time after time it has been the writer's duty to record in these columns statements by prominent Germans which showed how completely they believed this to be the case. To take the material first, every type of vessel in the British navy from the super-Dreadnought to submarine, was subjected to the most scathing criticism by German wiseacres. Our ships were ill-designed, badly built, and unseaworthy owing principally to the absence of unscientific methods in naval design and the decadence of the British workman. Our guns were of very inferior quality, inaccurate, and short-lived, while the very last issue of "Nauticus," published in July, contained an article in which British gunnery methods were treated with supercilious contempt. It was the personnel, however, which these critics professed to consider responsible for the alleged decline of British naval power. Certain amiable writers, who were supposed to know the sentiments of German naval officers were wont to assure us that these gentlemen had a high respect for the personal character and professional attainments of the British naval officers. Such, however, was not the impression one gained from a perusal of German service literature, in which our officers were uniformly set down as lacking in that zeal for hard work and the purely professional side of their duties which were held to distinguish the German "seaoffiziere." As for the men they were mercenaries who had taken to the sea because they were not much good for anything else. Drunkenness was rife among them and insubordination frequent, with the result that discipline was at a low ebb and the war training of the fleet suffered in consequence.

"Much as we may smile at these views, the fact remains that they were commonly shared by the vast majority of intelligent Germans, and there is reason to believe, by many high naval authorities in Berlin. The prevalence of such opinions helps to explain the supreme confidence with which the Germans looked forward to an encounter with Great Britain. They knew their fleet to be much smaller, but they really believed that the superior skill and devotion of their personnel together, with the incomparable finer ships they manned, would achieve victory in the face of heavy odds.

"As we have said, Heligoland came as the first real shock to this characteristic self-complacence. Other events followed, minor in themselves, but all pointing the same way. Meanwhile it must have been brought home to the meanest intelligence in the Fatherland that Britain's grip on German sea commerce is remorselessly complete. With the exception of some good work by its submarines, the 'successes' of the German navy to date have been of the negative order."

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $60,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalised company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15.000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

MARVELLOUS FEATS OF TRAINED PIGEONS

High-flyers Which Stay up in the Air For Eighteen Hours And Even Longer

To tell the uninitiated that pigeons will fly for over eighteen hours at a stretch, without food, water, or a rest, is probably to find oneself accused of pandering to one's imagination. Yet such is the astounding truth. Amongst the birds of those who make a hobby of breeding and training pigeons to fly for long periods among the clouds, specimens which regularly fly the clock around are to be numbered by the thousand. Week in, week out, in the districts where high-flying—the name by which the pastime is known—is followed, pigeons leave their aviaries at the break of day, go right up into the blue almost beyond the vision of the human eye, and remain flying there until the light falls in the evening. It is, in fact, by no means uncommon for them to keep up their aerial evolutions until darkness comes on, and the owner cannot see the birds of which he is so justly proud.

Somersaults in the Air

The variety of pigeon which flies the longest time is the Flying Tippler, and consequently it is the most popular. Other flying breeds are the Cumulet, the West of England Tumbler, the Performing Tumbler, and the Roller. The two last-named perform in the air as they fly, the Tumbler tumbling and the Roller rolling. The actions of the latter are most peculiar. A Roller will stop in its flight and turn somersaults downwards in an almost perpendicular line, sometimes actually striking the ground and injuring itself.

Thousands of English working men find recreation in the sport of high-flying. The great centre of the sport is Sheffield, which is as much the headquarters of the hobby as Newmarket is of the racing world.

Many clubs exist throughout England and these bodies organize the sport and promote the flying competitions.

How Contests Are Conducted

The manner of conducting these contests, briefly described, is as follows. A time is fixed by the club for the birds to start. This is as early as possible, say 3.30 a.m. or 4 a.m. An official referee is sent to each competitor's home to take the time, and see that the conditions of the fly are properly carried out. The referee remains until the birds drop. At the liberation hour the owner allows his "kit" of birds, usually three in number, to leave their loft. The pigeons, revelling in their liberty, immediately soar aloft, and commence flying with an easy, graceful action. Although they do not usually go very far out of sight of their home, they cover quite a wide area, flying backwards and forwards and round and round.

The conditions usually are that the "kit" has to be seen by the referee once in the first two hours of the fly and once in each subsequent hour.

Calling the Pigeons Home

When the birds show signs of coming down, the owner puts out what is known as the "droppers." This is usually a white pigeon of some other variety—a white Fantail, for instance. When this bird appears on the loft top the high-fliers see it, and if they have been properly trained they fly down to their aviary, though it sometimes takes hours to get flying pigeons to "drop." The referee records the time up to the moment at which the owner puts out the "droppers." The pigeons have all to "drop" within a prescribed area, and within a fixed length of time, or they are disqualified.

The world's record fly is eighteen hours thirty-two minutes and there are many proud owners whose birds have stayed aloft for eighteen hours.

Gaol for Boxers

Ruthless M. Carten de Wiast, Belgium's Minister of Justice, cast a bomb into the sporting circles of that country by declaring that all boxers must be sent to gaol.

His Excellency circularised the provincial State prosecutors instructing them to put in the dock every man who boxed, charging "criminal wounding," or "criminal attempt to wound." M. de Wiast proclaimed that even the starting of a boxing match was a criminal offence, because "it is designed against the health and bodily security of the persons engaged."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

BAKER'S STRONG MUSCLES

The Home Run Artist Has a Tremendously Powerful Body

Many stories are told of Frank ("Home Run") Baker's gigantic strength. Here is what Charlie Herzog has to say of him:

"I remember one time Baker and his younger brother and I were arguing over the weight of a sack of phosphate used in fertilizing. Neither young Baker nor I could lift it, but Frank had his brother sit on it, then carried both the phosphate and his brother across the barnyard with no trouble at all.

"Another time he offered to bet that he could throw a wagon axle further with one hand than his brother or I could with both. We had an awful time swinging the thing ten or twelve feet, but Frank, taking hold of one end of the thing with his right hand, gave it a flip and sent it more than twenty feet.

"It's no wonder Frank can hit a baseball nine miles when he lays onto one. He figures he's going to get a hit every time he goes to bat and wonders what's wrong when he doesn't."

Frightened by a Mouse

A mouse dangling before her eyes caused the death of a Bolton, England, schoolgirl. The child, Ethel Ashall, was returning home from school with some of her schoolmates, when one of the latter laughingly swung the mouse at the end of a string before her. In her fright the girl ran off the footpath beneath the wheels of a passing lorry, and was killed almost instantly.

Waistcoats for Women

In Canada are hundreds of business firms striving with all their might to make better times for themselves and their communities. To them all honor.

But there are other firms — manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers — who are "standing pat," "playing safe," doing absolutely nothing to build up business. They are mere lookers on, not participating in the valorous struggle of their brethren to maintain and establish good times.

Look about you and you will find in the advertising columns of this and other newspapers many messages from firms with a sturdy confidence in the future.

SUPERSTITIOUS PLAYERS

Why Should Loose Hay Bring Good Luck and Baled Hay the Opposite?

Superstition is one element in baseball "dope" that no one can figure out. In fact superstition plays an immense part in all sports.

The idea that meeting a hay wagon loaded with loose hay brings luck is general in baseball. Players frequently grab straws from such a load to wear in their caps. Baled hay, on the other hand, is unlucky.

Clark Griffith, who scoffs at all superstitions and jokes about them has his pets. If Grif dreams that a pitcher is getting hit hard, that pitcher is kept out of the game. He says he isn't superstitious, but that it doesn't pay to take chances.

There is a major league manager who a few seasons ago was leader of a team that seemed the strongest in the circuit. It looked as if it would win as certainly as anything in baseball can be figured. One reporter picked the team to win. That evening the manager was gloomy.

"I thought we'd win sure," he said. "I never had a doubt until this morning."

"Why, that fellow picks us to win," he wailed. "He never was right about anything. He's jinxed us. If he'd have picked us for fourth we'd have won sure."

And his team didn't win.

Your Watch as Compass

Hold a watch horizontally and face upwards. Point the hour hand at the sun. Then a line drawn from the centre of the dial to a point halfway between the figure "XII." and the pointer of the hour-hand points approximately to the South Pole, and the rough directions of north, east, and west can be easily determined.

This method is to be used in the Northern Hemisphere only.

In the Southern Hemisphere point a line from the centre of the dial to figure XII. at the sun. Then a line drawn as before from centre of dial to halfway between figure XII. and the pointer of the hour-hand points more or less north

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

NEST IN CACTUS STALKS

Mexican Woodpecker Makes Its Home in Giant Plant

There is a species of woodpecker in northern Mexico that frequently makes its nest in the stalk of one of the large cactuses—the giant cereus—which abound on the plains in that region.

Undismayed by the spines that cover the trunk of the huge plant, the bird clears a space, and with great labor digs a short tunnel and a flask-shaped cavity in the tough, fibrous wood.

Both the male and female woodpecker work at the task, and they use the same nest for several years unless the growth of the plant disturbs it. Such a nest is safe from all natural enemies.

Occasionally this handsome woodpecker—Centurus elegans—digs its tunnel in the trunk of a palm instead of the cactus—a circumstance likely to lead to the destruction of the tree. After the young have flown and the nest is left empty, the small seeds of the wild fig are often carried into it by birds or bats.

The moisture of the rainy season causes the seeds to germinate and to grow tendrils that before long reach the ground and take root. The wild fig grows rapidly until in a few years it wholly envelops the palm and suffocates it.

STRANGE CHEQUES

Documents Will be Honored Even When not Written on Paper

A cheque, as an order for payment, if otherwise valid, is perfectly good if made out on material other than the orthodox form provided by the bank.

Some time ago a cheque written on an oyster shell was drawn for a sum of $5.00, presented, and cashed by a bank at Atlantic City, New Jersey. It was plainly written, and nobody thought of dishonoring it on that account.

There is a Manchester cabinet-maker who frequently draws cheques on thin slips of wood lying about his workshop. If his cheque book is handy he uses it, but if it is not, then a slip of wood has to serve.

Cheques have been drawn on collars and cuffs, or portions of them, and duly cashed.

A cheque for $100 is held as a curiosity by the bank on which it was drawn. It is made out on the leather tongue of a boot, as the outcome of a wager respecting the payment of such a cheque. Two business men were disputing one day about the obligation of a bank to honor a cheque so drawn, whereon the one who upheld its validity undid his boot, cut out the tongue, and forthwith plainly wrote a cheque upon it. Both then went to the bank, where it was presented and cashed.

What is Butter Fat?

Butter fat is composed of several fats varying in degree of hardiness, also in relative amounts. In the summer time when the cow has plenty of green succulent grass the soft fats are present in comparatively large amounts. In the winter time when the cow is on dry hay and grain feed just the reverse is true—the hard fats being relatively high. To overcome this feed the cow on corn silage or root crops to supply the necessary succulence in her feed so to keep the proper balance between the hard and the soft fats in her milk.

THE POOR MAN'S BANK

An Institution Which Might Advantageously be Copied in Canada

The Atlanta Loan and Savings Company is the official title of an institution in the Georgia city which everyone calls "The Poor Man's Bank."

W. W. WHITE

It was founded by Mr. W. W. White as a protest against the loan shark and lives up to its name in spirit and act. Its basis of credit is honesty and labor, the only capital a poor man has. To draw money from this bank all the borrower needs do is to get three reputable persons to endorse him as honest and industrious. On this security "the poor man's bank" will advance money for a term of 52 weeks on dollar-a-week payments. Eight per cent. interest is charged. Each borrower, whether his loan be large or small, subscribes for one or more shares of stock, according to the amount of his loan. This stock is hypothecated to secure the loan. At the end of the 52-week term the borrower may surrender his stock and cancel his note or he may re-invest it in bank stock. In its first year it made 1,115 loans for a total of $150,552, and it has practically put the loan shark out of business.

YUKON TIMBER WASTED

Immense Fire Damage Caused by Careless Travellers

Writing from the Yukon a gentleman interested in the conservation of natural resources, said: "I know of no other place in Canada where our limited area of timber should be so zealously guarded as in the Yukon. We have many uses for wood here, whereas it is not so necessary in other parts of Canada. We must depend entirely upon it for fuel, and we cannot import timber for mining purposes as it would be too expensive and we would have to let low grade mines remain undeveloped. Notwithstanding these facts, our timber land is burned over and thousands of cords destroyed every year. Most of this destruction could be avoided. The fires mostly occur along the Yukon valley on account of people making their way into the interior in small boats. They land on the bank of the river to cook their food. After this is done they return to their boats, leaving the fires to go out or to ignite the nearby woods just as may happen. This could be stopped by increasing the Mounted Police patrol, and this should be done as early as possible."

A Substitute For Tea

A French scientist discovered a substitute for tea. The dried leaves of the coffee plant are used, an infusion is made just as in the case of ordinary tea, and the resulting beverage is aromatic but somewhat bitter to the taste. It contains almost as much theine as real tea, while there is a notable falling off in the proportion of tannin, which is the most undesirable component in a beverage. This new "coffee-tea" is admirably refreshing and restorative in its effects.

Soil Fertility Wants

Did you ever hear a man say, "We don't grow the crops we used to. This land is getting run out." Very often this statement applies only too truly, especially where the land has not been properly worked, and is in need of fertilizer. But people worried about the decline of soil fertility over three hundred years ago. In the 17th century an observer wrote: "There has been for a long while, and in every part of the world, complaints that the crops are gradually becoming poorer, both in quantity and quality. Farms no longer yield the returns they used to, and still no one seems to investigate carefully the reasons for this decrease, which is growing more serious every year. Some countries, once the center of flourishing agricultural industries, such as Egypt and Sicily, granaries of which supplied food in abundance to the Roman Empire, have become almost barren, unable even to feed their own scanty population."

Clean pots and pans with
GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

A WHEAT RECORD

An English Stack Went Unthrashed for Forty Years

The longest authentic period for which a wheat stack has been kept unthrashed is forty years. The story of this forty-year-old stack is briefly as follows: The crop of which the stack was built was grown in 1855. This stack and another belonged to two brothers, both farmers, who lived in the neighborhood of Harrogate, England. In March of the preceding year the Crimean War broke out, and the price of wheat rose by leaps and bounds. Shortly after the stacks were built the price of wheat rose to $23.28 per quarter, and at this price one of the brothers sold out. The other, however, determined not to sell until the price rose to $25.00.

In March, 1856, the war terminated, and the price of wheat fell. The farmer, however, stuck to his resolution and refused to sell. He kept his stack until 1895, when the farm passed into the hands of a younger brother, who then thrashed it out.

During the whole forty years of its existence it had enjoyed perfect immunity from rats, but was the abode of thousands of spiders. It yielded eighteen quarters of wheat, but the quality of the grain rendered it fit only for chicken feed.

BULLETS THAT DRUG

A Soldier Hit by One Goes Painlessly to Sleep

A new kind of bullet, known as the "narcotic bullet," is now being experimented with. A minute particle of morphia is used, and the drug is carried in tiny wells in the steel jacket of the regulation army bullet. The inventor claims that it in no way interferes with the effectiveness of the missile. The slight indentation in the steel jacket causes no splintering when it comes in contact with the bone and no deleterious effects will follow the unique administration of the drug.

The soldier receiving a slight flesh wound from the new bullet fights no more that day; he calmly stretches himself on the ground and goes to sleep. The man receiving a serious wound suffers no agony, as the narcotic from the bullet is absorbed by his system, and he is insensible to pain before he reaches the hospital.

The Cynic's Epigrams

No man is happy unless he thinks he is.

The school of experience grants mighty few holidays.

THE READING HABIT

Sooner or later we all of us need some kind of consolation and diversion; for the world is not invented to suit any one man's fancy, and the continuous clash of wills is bound to bring about a certain amount of sorrow to everyone. Of all consolations, the cheapest, the easiest, the most effective, is a passion for the printed page. To be able to step out of our immediate environment at will, to roam the centuries, to scour the earth, to beckon the spheres, to have all the best minds ready to serve our need—this is the gift for the reader.

Reading, like everything else, is a matter of habit. The little child, as a rule, finds it painful and certainly less alluring than action. But habit perfects one in this matter, and the life with books may become as vital, as real, as consoling as a life with society. Moreover, as soon as one has learned to love them, books never fail us; they are always accessible, always willing to yield up their secrets, always sympathetic.

In life one cannot always cultivate the associations we would like. The people you want to know may live at the other ends of the earth, or their moods may be variable, or their interests other than yours; but in a world of books we can literally choose just what we want for our own immediate consolation.

On the whole, there is nothing in the world, perhaps, so repays a person as acquiring the habit of reading.—"Harper's Weekly."

ONE DRINK AT A TIME

Peculiar Rules in Vogue at Odd London Drinking Places

At a well known London public house called "Dirty Dick's," it is the rule that only one drink can be served to customers at a single visit. There is another licensed house in London where not only is a similar rule enforced, but where smoking is strictly prohibited.

The proprietors of this licensed house, which is in Artillery Lane, Bishopsgate, frankly state that they reserve to themselves the right to conduct their business upon any system they may deem expedient, and they cannot permit their rules to be broken on any account with impunity. Furthermore, they "respectfully request all persons objecting to the regulations, and who are not willing to act in strict conformity therewith, to kindly transfer their patronage to some other establishment."

For upwards of sixty years they have adopted among others, the following three rules:

"No person or party of persons can be served, under any circumstances, more than once, the rule being that he, she, or they (as the case may be) must have left the house at least half an hour before either are entitled to be served again.

"The quantity served upon any occasion, for consumption on the premises, not to exceed one gill of wine, half a gill of spirits, or one glass of malt liquor, for each person.

"Smoking is strictly prohibited at all times and under all circumstances."

Canada was the first of the dominions to establish government wireless telegraph stations.

SPORT SACRIFICED

Money the Only Consideration in Profession Baseball

Organized baseball seems to be on the verge of losing its last vestige of sport for sport's sake, according to W. J. MacBeth, a New York sporting writer. The commercial end of the enterprise overshadows all else. The magnates are out for the money and make no bones of the fact. The lust for gold is as deeply rooted in the minor leagues as in the major organizations.

The two big circuits depend upon patronage for financial gains. Because of this it is necessary for them to secure the very best talent to display before the public. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are expended every season by each club in the National and American Leagues for the sole purpose of fortifying for the future. Every club owner has several highly paid scouts beating all around the country in search of likely looking "bush" timber. Some have as many as six sleuths under salary. Besides these, there is a grand army of amateur sharps who do business on a commission basis. This policy of near extravagance is all well enough for first division aggregations; the end more than justifies the means. But it is a serious drain upon the pocketbook of the unfortunate holders of second division franchises.

Because of their weaknesses second division clubs in the major leagues call for the greatest expenditures. This makes their lot all the more severe. The money is put up on a sure gamble, because a club away down in the race is lucky to make interest on investment. The leading teams which might well afford to speculate in talent, have not the same crying need to do so. But these leaders usually string along in a sort of "dog in the manger" fashion and often corral most promising talent which they cannot possibly use, just to keep it away from some lowly rival that might utilize it to the disadvantage of the strong.

GEORGE SISLER

phenomenal young pitcher of Michigan University. Joe Sugden, the Detroit scout, says of him: "He has the best curve of any left-hander I ever looked at." Few college players know how to run bases and not many slide properly. Sisler is an aggressive runner and has the hook slide down to perfection. His one fault seems to be over-anxiety to hit. He is almost as brilliant as an outfielder as in the pitcher's box where his specialty is the spit-ball.

OLD RACING TERMS

Fine Distinction Between Stake and Purse Often Overlooked

The old and well defined term "stake" receives some rough handling on the trotting turf when races are reported by art critics, golf experts, baseball writers or any person who happens to be available when the trotters come to town. Some of the trade papers of the trotting turf and even track officials themselves seem at times unable to recognize the plain distinction between a purse and a stake.

From the earliest period of racing the term stake, or sweepstakes, has always been used to designate a race for which the prize is the total amount of money contributed by the nominators, all of which belongs to the winners. This is the definition incorporated in the rules of the National Trotting Association, and the same meaning is given to the term sweepstakes in the New York Jockey Club's rules of racing. A race is still a stake when money or other prizes are added to the entrance fees or subscriptions, but is never a stake if the prize is less than the total amount paid by the nominators. In a "stake" the association promoting the race merely holds the entrance money in trust for the nominators.

A purse is a fixed sum offered by the promotor of the race, to which the nominators do not contribute. All entrance fees in such a race belong to the association, and if they amount to more than the purse, as often happens on the trotting turf, the association profits to that extent, and the purse remains the same as if there were only two or three entries.

Ever since instalment purses came into vogue on the trotting turf, there has been a tendency to call all early closing races stakes. As a matter of fact there are few—very few—stake races on the trotting turf, most of the promoters preferring to offer purses so that they need not pay out all the entrance money in case this exceeds the face of the purse. Even the futurities in harness racing are nearly all purses instead of stakes, and for the reason just mentioned.

FAIRIES AND ELVES OUR OWN ANCESTORS

Quaint Theory of a Learned Professor Makes Missing Link Quite Lovable

A fascinating theory that the elves, pixies and fairies of folk-lore were real dwarfs, the actual little people who were man's remotest ancestors, was advanced by Professor Hastings Gilford, in a lecture at the Royal College of Surgeons, London.

"There is a common impression," he said, "that scientists believe we are descended from brutes like the formidable adult apes of tropical forests. This is a mistake, and there is much reason to believe that our ancestors were akin to the intelligent, affectionate, lovable little baby chimpanzees, orangs or gorillas which are so much like human babies in their appearance and disposition.

"Fossil remains of our pre-historic ancestors," he said, "have been found here and there which throw much light on our ancestry. Some of these skeletons are of a big, coarse brutish type. These are not necessarily the bones of our remote forefathers, but are very likely degenerate, ape-like offshoots from the main stock. Other bones have been found belonging to a more elegantly-formed, shorter people, with big heads, and other features similar to those seen in modern children.

"Such dwarfs are known to have existed over large tracts of the earth's surface, and there is reason to believe that they represent the childhood of our race. Some of these little people have left pictures of themselves carved upon rocks or upon bone, and the figures they represent are in some respects wonderfully like those of children of the present day.

"The testimony of tradition," said the Professor, "as handed down from generation to generation in the form of folk stories or fairy tales, afforded valuable support. These short people went by the name of pixies, fairies, elves, little people, etc. They are," he said, "characterized by a mixture of quaint shrewdness and simplicity. They are fond of dancing, of music, of processions, and were active, roguish, good-natured, capricious. Even their appearance is described, and in appearance, in habits, in tastes, and in disposition they are invariably childish.

"In these legends we often hear, too, of giants—dull-witted, strong, brutal, of coarse tastes, often cannibals and at enmity with the little people. These giants represent the big, ape-like, muscular, coarse men whose brute-like bones have been alluded to above. We talk of these little people as if they died out ages ago leaving no more than legends of their existence, but there is reason to believe that they still linger, not greatly altered, in certain remote corners of the earth's surface."

Professor Gilford said the child of civilization playing with bows and arrows, delighting in music and dancing, in living animals, birds' nesting, and the glow and crackle of bonfires, and dreading the dark, made one think of the children of the race whose small bones, pictures, and legendary records showed that the manhood of yesterday was the childhood of to-day.

HINTS IN DAIRYING

How You May Increase Profits From the Dairy

Weed out the unprofitable cows.

Feed economically.

Care for the milk produced in the way that it should be cared for.

The question is not "What is the average production of the herd?" but "Is each cow in the herd a profit-maker?"

Study the feeding problem in order to get maximum returns for your outlay.

It is important to know what it costs to feed a cow, but it is also worth while knowing how much is left in your pocket after the feed is paid for.

In caring for milk, cleanliness and cold are the two great essentials.

Milk may become contaminated in many ways, and anything that we do to keep dust and dirt out of the milk-pail means milk of better flavor and better keeping qualities.

Keep the separator and its surroundings clean.

Set the separator to take a cream so rich that one gallon will make from 3 to 3½ pounds of butter.

Cool the cream to a low temperature immediately after separating.

Never add warm cream to the cool.

Stir the cream in the can thoroughly every time fresh cream is added.

Do not add sweet cream to the ripened cream the day you are going to churn.

Choose the temperature that will bring the butter in nice, firm granules in from 20 to 30 minutes.

A CHILDS LAXATIVE IS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

They love to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach, liver or bowels.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

SASKATCHEWAN CO. SAYS INCREASE PRODUCTION

Regina, Oct. 27.—"Increase the production" is the advice that has been sent throughout Saskatchewan by its most prominent business men. The farmers are rising to the opportunity and the acreage which is being prepared for seeding to wheat is much greater than that of last year. Honorable George Langley, minister of Municipal Affairs of the Saskatchewan government, when in Regina a few days ago, stated that "judging by the present indications there will be an increase of 50 per cent. in the acreage of Saskatchewan land ready for seeding to wheat in the spring of 1915." The minister went on to say that conditions were excellent for fall cultivation as there had been abundant rainfall.

Practically every organization in Saskatchewan aims to increase production. The Regina Board of Trade is doing its utmost to further the "Closer Settlement Movement," started at Regina recently. The movement aims to provide land for men who are willing to go on the farm and who are now out of work.

Regina business men have endorsed the scheme started with a view to supplanting German wares with Canadvanced by the Toronto Board of Trade has approved of the scheme advanced by the Toronto Board of Trade.

The farmers of Saskatchewan are taking advantage of the offer of the City of Regina, to fatten stock which has been raised in district where there was not sufficient feed for this purpose. A carload of young feeding hogs has been received at the Regina Municipal Stockyards during the past week. The Industrial Commissioner, who has charge of the stockyards, has made ample arrangements for all such shipments that may be received.

A movement having in view the settlements of Belgian farmers in Saskatchewan has been started at Regina and is receiving good support, Lieutenant Governor Brown having agreed to act as patron to the Belgian Relief Committee in charge of this work. Careful attention will be given to the details of the scheme in order that results may be satisfactory. The Pootmans Bros., who are of Belgian extract and residents at Regina, are among the members of the relief committee, and are endeavoring to carry out the scheme to a successful conclusion. It is claimed that the Belgian farmers are among the most skilled in the world and with the desolation in their own land, caused by the war, it is recognized that many of them will have to immigrate to other lands, and as Saskatchewan has an abundance of land, not now cultivated, the opportunities for these Belgian farmers to settle in this country would be great. Lieutenant Governor Brown, in discussing this scheme recently, pointed out that the Belgians would make excellent dairymen and market gardeners.

The grain crop of Saskatchewan in 1914 is valued at $100 904,192 by the provincial department of agriculture. On a very conservative estimate the wheat crop is estimated at 74,610,643 bushels and valued at $66,030,419, or approximately 85c per bushel, but the grain market reports would seem to indicate that much better prices than that estimated are being received. The oat crop is estimated at 66,698,953 bushels and valued at $922,679,591.20. The barley crop is 5,652,783 bushels and valued at $2,827,960.95, and flax crop is estimated at 5,086,475 bushels and valued at $5,366,221.12. The acreage under wheat this year was 6,003, 22 acres, an increase of 243,373 acres, or approximately 4.2 per cent. over the previous year. The government figures are based on an estimate of 12 bushels of wheat per acre.

WOMAN LIVED ON BERRIES IN WOODS 41 DAYS

West Falmouth, Oct. 28.—After living for forty-one days and nights in the woods here, with nothing but berries, leaves and acorns to keep body and soul together, Miss Martha Palmer, 52 years old, of Sharon, wandered up on the steps of the cottage of George Frost of Boston, today. She had been missing since Sept. 12, when she went for a walk to relieve a headache and her friends, after days of vain searching, had given her up for dead.

Miss Palmer, who lived with her sister, Mrs. James Clarke, of Viaduct Street, Sharon, came here in the latter part of August and was staying with Mrs. Lucy Emmons of Framingham, a summer resident. Mrs. Clarke came down here when she was notified of her sister's disappearance and searched among friends. When she was unable to find the missing woman here she communicated with her aged mother in Biddeford, Me., and another sister in Attleboro, but neither was able to give any information about Miss Palmer.

Hunted Over Cape in Vain.

Then the local authorities were asked to assist in finding her, and a thorough search of the whole Cape was started. Woods, swamps, bogs, ponds and every place that a person might have got into were searched in vain. Finally the hunt was given up. Mrs. Emmons closed her cottage and went home and it was thought Miss Palmer was dead.

About 10 o'clock this morning the Frosts went out on their front piazza and found a thin, barefooted woman sitting there. She said she was Miss Palmer, and that she hadn't seen a human being for 41 days. She was taken into the cottage, new shoes and stockings and some dry clothing were given her, and then she was taken to the Falmouth almshouse and turned over to the matron. Sheriff Lawrence at once notified Mrs. Clarke who will come here tomorrow and take her sister home.

The case is without doubt the most mysterious that ever came to attention of the local authorities, for the woman, who says she has been in woods all the time, was never more than a mile away from any one of several settlements hereabouts. Church spires can be seen from various points in the woods and the wonder is that she did not wander out into a street or to a cottage long before.

At the almshouse Miss Palmer talked freely about herself and her disappearance. Although she is exceedingly thin from her long exposure and lack of solid food she seemed to be perfectly rational. She said that when she left the Emmons house six weeks ago she was going home to her sister in Sharon and was trying to find a railroad station. She wandered into the woods and there she said she had been ever since

Had Been Under no Shelter.

Sheriff Lawrence asked her if she had been in a cave or a cottage or under any shelter, but she said she had been living in the open all the time, hadn't seen a human being in all the six weeks nor come upon a cottage until she found the Frost cottage this morning. Her only food has been berries, leaves and acorns. She says she felt chilly two or three nights, but otherwise had been fairly comfortable, although she wore only a wrapper and light summer underclothing. Her clothing was badly torn and bedraggled and she had her shoes and stockings wrapped up in paper. When she left she had $2 in her pocket and this was found intact.

A Seeming Hold-Up On Our Local Bread

Adverting to a letter in the Times of Tuesday, signed by Mr. Stock, the well known local baker, trying to explain why Peterboro bread is sold at the seemingly extortionate price of 12 and 13 cents a large loaf here and at 10 cents, after paying freight elsewhere. Mr. Stock says in part: "I might mention that there are a few places where Peterborough bread is sold for less than twelve cents, but the grocer in each case has either personal or business reasons for giving up his profit and charging the loss of such to advertising."

Yesterday a local wholesale grocer assured the Times that, having seen our articles on the hold up by Peterboro bakers, when in Campbellford on Tuesday he made enquiries as to bread conditions in that town. He bought two large loaves of Peterboro bread for 10 cents a large loaf. The bread of one local baker, a day old, weighed 47 ounces, the double loaf of another Peterboro baker weighed 48 ounces. Still both loaves sold at 10 cents. Campbellford grocers are not selling a staple article like bread for the good of their health alone!

HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS

Dearie: Yes, I believe men all recognize a "made" complexion. Throw away your powder and rouge and use a plain spurmax lotion. Then you will have a complexion of which you can feel justly proud, because it will be real as well as beautiful. To prepare it, dissolve four ounces spurmax (which you may get from your druggist) in one half pint witch hazel or hot water. This lotion cannot be detected when on and its regular use banishes lines, blotches, pimples, blackheads and sallowness. The spurmax lotion is delightful for spring months, as it protects the skin from the winds.

Dora: You can make your eyes sparkling and clear by this simple home treatment: Dissolve an ounce of crystos (get at drugstore) in a pint of water. One or two drops in each eye every day will be all that is necessary to make them feel strong and look bright. If the lids are red or inflamed, try soaking dabs of absorbent cotton in the tonic and laying them on each eye.

Juanita: The sagginess of skin which you write about is disfiguring and you will be soon wrinkled past help if you neglect it. But try this simple treatment and I'm sure it will work wonders. Mix an ounce of almozoin (from the drug store) in one-half pint cold water and add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. This cream jelly will cause the skin to contract slowly until the healthy firmness is restored. Keeps your complexion clear and free from blemishes. Also removes blackheads.

Eugenie: Your yellowness doubtless means that your liver requires a regulator and I would suggest a plain kardene tonic. This will cleanse the blood and give tone and strength to the liver and kidneys and when these organs are in a healthy condition you will be free from the bilious attacks, the obstinate headaches, and the pains in small of back and groins. To prepare this tonic I get one ounce kardene from druggist and put into one half pint alcohol (never use whisky), then add one-half cupful of sugar and hot water to make a quart. The dose is a tablespoonful before meals. The kardene tonic is excellent to clear the skin of pimples, blotches and sallowness and its timely use frequently saves doctor's bills.

Chloe: I have found the most beneficial shampoo for the scalp and hair can be made at home by dissolving a teaspoonful canthrox in a cup hot water. This is unusually soothing and cleansing to the itchy, dandruff-laden scalp and quickly corrects over-oiliness and other scalp-up-sets. My shampooing with canthrox has restored an even color, rich gloss and soft fluffiness to my hair, which was becoming dull and brittle. It seems to have encouraged a vigorous and luxuriant growth.

P.S.: The styles point to a continuation of the slim figure effects and as you show signs of an added waist line you should take steps to reduce your weight. Make this preparation at home and before each meal take a tablespoonful: Get four ounces parnotis from your druggist and dissolve in one and one-half pints of hot water. Strain and cool the mixture before using. This inexpensive and will be welcome to the woman who does not want strenuous diet or exercise.

Lorraine: Your faded hair is not necessarily dying; though it is in danger. Here is a home-made tonic, costing little, which I know is of great value to scalp and hair: Into one half pint of alcohol put one ounce quinzoin (which I get from the druggist's), then add one half pint hot water. This gives you a full pint. I have found it very soothing and it banishes the dry, harsh, unhealthy condition of the scalp, invigorating the hair roots so a beautiful growth is certain to result.

Entire Russian Army Again Advancing Against Austro-German Forces, Allies in France and Belgium Holding Everywhere and Gaining Ground

REPORT THAT GERMAN FLEET AND ZEPPS PREPARE TO FIGHT BRITISH

Considerable Activity at Cuxhaven--Another Wild Cat Story of What the Germans Hope to Accomplish on the Sea --Fact That Their Port Entrances are Mined in Does Not Seem to Figure.

London, Oct. 29.—The correspondent of the Times at Copengagen:

"All the entrances to Cuxhaven, by land and by sea, have been closed by Imperial command. No civilians are allowed in the vicinity of the harbor,, which is crowded with floating batteries, Zeppelins, and submarines.

A despatch from Sluis, Holland, to the Handelsblad, asserts that parts of several submarines have been sent from Germany by railway to Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast, where they will be put together and the boats then sent against the British fleet off Ostend.

Strict secrecy, according to the Sluis correspondent, surrounds the German movements in Belgium, and all railway communications to Zeebrugge, Knocke, and Bruges is interrupted. Bicycle and motor traffic is also forbidden. A map in the office of the German commander at Bruges shows a straight line from Mariakerke, running south, beyond which no civilians are allowed to go.

Eight airships passed over Hasselt, on the German-Belgian frontier, going westward, and evidently making for Brussels and Antwerp where, it had previously been stated, Zeppelin sheds were being constructed, according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Daily Mail.

According to an Antwerp telegram to the Rhenania Transport Company of Mannheim, some of the ships sunk in the port off Antwerp by troops of the allies have been raised and the river is again navigable. An inventory of the goods in the raised vessels isbeing make. The Antwerp Government has invited bids for the raising of the remainder of the sunken ships.

Britain Will Recognize Rights Of Allien Citizens

London, Oct. 29.—The refusal of the Government to treat the Declaration of London now as an authoritative code of international law has been received with approval in naval circles. There is a growing feeling here that the recent rounding-up process of civilian Germans in England was carried to an unnecessary extent. The Government at first was unduly lenient and not suspicious towards German and Austrian subjects. Then came indiscriminate despatch of adult Germans to concentration camps, many of them people who have ben here since childhood and hating Prussianism equally with ourselves. Some writers even proposed that naturalized Germans and Austrians should be treated as potential enemies. Second thoughts are convincing the nation at large that such extreme measures can only damage us in the eyes of neutral powers, and give Germany an excuse for harsher treatment towards the British there.

Registration Bureau For Aliens To Be Established

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—Registration bureaus will be established at Toronto, for the Province of Ontario, for the registration of alien reservists in Canada, in accordance with the order-in-council passed yesterday. Steps will be taken at once to obtain a full list of these men, that every hostile reservist in Canada may be under the surveilance of the Dominion police authorities. Some will be allowed their freedom on a system of parole; others considered to be a menace to the country will be placed in detention and held. The Dominion police will be in charge of the work.

STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC BY MISS WEIR

To the Editor of The Times,

Sir,—Many persons have requested me, since the Review appeared on Saturday, to give a statement to the public, concerning the Sukloff matter which was considered by the Board of Education, on Wednesday and Thursday nights last.

I have been interested directly or indirectly in the advancement of educational affairs of the City of Peterborough for over ten years, and for that reason I feel that I have a right to explain to the public the exact situation of affairs, and of how they at present stand.

Louis Sukloff, a lad of about fifteen years of age, and son of Norman Sukloff the dry goods merchant, on George Street, in this City, has been a student at the Collegiate Institute for about two years. This boy is considered by myself, and at least one other teacher, as a "Romanticist," which is a fair description of the boy's habit of representing facts as they appear, to me. I do not wish to use a stronger term, as this probably sufficiently describes him. He had last year, what is called a "speckled record of class attendance"—that is, he was frequently absent, so that the registers showed much irregularity of attendance.

A pupil is permitted to absent himself from class, provided he furnishes forthwith, a written excuse from his parent or guardian, and the only excuses which the law apparently permits are sickness or some sufficient or urgent reason, but I believe most of the teachers, myself included, are always willing to admit pupils presenting a note from either parent or guardian, who give a valid reason for absence, but it must be in the writing of a parent or guardian.

Allies Still Continue To Make Substantial Advances In France

Brilliant Operations Between Ypres and Arras Result in Capture of German Trenches Allies Also Advancing in the Argonne Region and in Apremont Forest--Austrians are Retreating

PARIS, OCT. 29.—THE ALLIES ARE CONTINUING TO MAKE PROGRESS AGAINST THE GERMANS. THIS IS ESPECIALLY NOTEWORTHY IN THE REGION BETWEEN YPRES AND ARRAS, WHERE THE ALLIES HAVE TAKEN A NUMBER OF GERMAN TRENCHES BY A SERIES OF BRILLIANT OPERATIONS. THIS INFORMATION WAS MADE PUBLIC IN AN OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE. IT WAS ALSO STATED THAT THE ALLIES ARE ADVANCING IN THE ARGONNE REGION AND IN THE FOREST OF APREMONT. ELSEWHERE ALONG THE BATTLE LINE, IT IS STATED THE CONDITIONS ARE UNCHANGED.

PETROGRAD, OCT. 29.—THE ENTIRE RUSSIAN ARMY IS AGAIN ADVANCING AGAINST THE AUSTRO-GERMAN FORCES. AFTER MORE THAN A WEEK OF FIGHTING ALONG THE SAN RIVER, THE AUSTRIANS HAVE NOW COMMENCED TO RETREAT FROM THE SOUTHERN SECTION. THE ONLY THING THAT IS INTERFERING WITH THE ADVANCE OF THE ENTIRE RUSSIAN LEFT WING, IS THE STUBBORN RESISTANCE BEING MAINTAINED BY THE FORTRESS OF PRZEMYSL.

ENERGETIC EFFORTS ARE BEING MADE TO REDUCE IT AND IT IS BELIEVED THAT IT WILL NOT BE ABLE TO RESIST MORE THAN A FEW DAYS LONGER. ALREADY BREACHES HAVE BEEN MADE IN THE OUTER WALLS. LARGE QUANTITIES OF AMMUNITION AND SUPPLIES OF EVERY SORT, AS WELL AS A NUMBER OF PIECES OF ARTILLERY, HAD TO BE ABANDONED BY THE GERMANS BECAUSE OF BECOMING BOGGED IN THE RETREAT FROM THE VICINITY OF WARSAW. AN ENORMOUS NUMBER OF PRISONERS HAVE BEEN TAKEN ALL ALONG THE BATTLE FRONT.

EMDEN FLYS JAPANESE FLAG, SINKS CRUISERS

Small Russian and French Boats Sunk in Straits Settlement Harbor German Cruiser Dashed in Under Cover of Japanese Colors

Tokio, Oct. 29.—The British embassy hears that the German cruiser Emden, flying the Japanese flag and disguised by the addition of a fourth smokestack, entered Penang, a British possession in the Straits Settlements, and fired torpedoes which sank the Russian cruiser Jemtchug and a French destroyer.

The Emden's entrance into the waters of Penang was audacious. She came in under the guns of the fort, and after sinking the cruiser and the destroyer escaped through the Straits of Malacca. The fate of the crew on board the Jemtchug is not yet known here.

Merchant vessels belonging to the belligerent nations are taking refuge at Colombo, Ceylon.

The Russian cruiser Jemtchug was a boat of about 2,100 tons, and was laid down in 1902. Her main battery consisted of six 4.7-inch guns and she had a speed of 21 knots. She carried a crew of 334 men. After the battle of the sea of Japan, during the Russian-Japanese war in 1905, the Jemchug was interned at Manila.

"The Germans have so flagrantly her exploits in the Indian Ocean around India, where she sank a score or more of British steamers, has apparently shifted her scene of operations more to the eastward to the vicinity of the Straits Settlements.

On Tuesday she was reported as having sunk a Japanese passenger steamer bound for Singapore, from which she probably secured a Japanese flag.

RUSSIAN ARMY OF 8,000,000 BEGINS TO TELL

Men on Fighting Line are Frequently Changed--Berlin Admits Crushing Defeat--German Generals Shot

London, Oct. 29.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Mail sends the following regarding the fighting in Russia:

"The Germans are astonished and disheartened to always find themselves pitted against fresh troops full of energy. The secret of this lies in the Russian plan of keeping an immense reserve for every army, changing regiments frequently, and never leaving the same men on the firing line long enough to become stale.

"In this way the vastness of the Russian Emperor's army of 8,000,000 men is beginning to show a marked influence on the campaign."

German Generals Shot?

A news agency despatch from Petrograd, which is unconfirmed, from any other source, says that a German officer who was taken prisoner declares that the three German generals responsible for the disaster to the German arms at Augustoff were court-martialed and shot. The officer, according to this story, showed a copy of a general order by the Emperor expressing the most intense indignation over the surrender of Augustoff and ordering the recapture of the position under a penalty of death.

The Russian army now holds Lodz, 110 miles south-east of Posen, and 260 miles from Berlin. Further north it holds Plock, about an equal distance northeast of Posen, and thence the Czar is in possession of every-why more and more people quit tea and coffee and use—

POSTUM

Once convinced that tea and coffee are actually harmful to health, few parents would give tea or coffee to their children, or drink it themselves.

What proof more convincing than the unnatural aches and pains that many tea and coffee drinkers suffer?

What proof more conclusive than the scores of expert medical and scientific opinions against tea and coffee?

Brain, Stomach, Heart, Liver and Kidneys are the first organs to be affected. Sometimes it shows in headache; often in nervousness, indigestion or heart disturbance; frequently in biliousness or disturbed vision.

If you are in doubt, try this test—

Stop both tea and coffee ten days and use POSTUM

This pure food drink made of prime wheat and a small per cent of wholesome molasses, has a delightful, snappy flavour and is absolutely pure and free from the tea- and coffee-drug, caffeine, or any other harmful ingredient.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—needs no boiling. A teaspoonful of the soluble powder stirred in a cup of hot water makes a delightful beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds, and the cost per cup is about the same.

GERMANS MAY MAKE EFFORT TO GAIN COAST WITH AID OF BIG GUNS

Reported That They Are Bringing Up Long Range Siege-Guns--Heavy German Reinforcements en Route to the Front--Will Probably Meet Fate of Previous Reinforcements, as Allies are Preparing to Meet Them

Paris, Oct. 29.—Although today's official communique was optimistic, it furnished no new information regarding the conditions at the front. For this reason it was generally accepted that important movements are in progress. It was known that the Germans have moved far enough inland so that they are now protected from the guns of the fleet, and that they are now bringing up some enormous siege guns. With them it is believed here they may attempt a long range bombardment of the coast cities to the north, and it is said at the military headquarters that steps have been taken to checkmate any such move. Repulsed along the coast the Germans are certain to deliver their next attack from the interior, probably from a point between Lille and the Belgian frontier. Heavy reinforcements are reported by the allied air scouts as en route to the front from Aix La Chapelle, and from the left of the French centre, but the allies on their part are taking similar precautions so that the Germans will gain no material advantage.

London, Oct. 29.—Additional warships have been sent to the Channel ports along the northwest coast of France. They will furnish support to the allies in the new attack which is apparently being planned by the Germans on these ports. Incidentally they will be in readiness for either an under water or in air raid against English ports. No doubt is felt here that the Germans have massed submarines and light torpedo craft in the canal between Bruges and Zeebrugge. They are also moving their aerial navy or at least part of it into Belgium.

The British Navy Does Not Require Any More Men

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The British navy has its full complement of men and is in a state of thorough efficiency. Such is the conclusion to be gathered from an intimation received at the naval service department here to the effect that no more royal naval reservists or naval volunteers are required

British Destroyers Sink German Cruiser In Adriatic

Paris, Oct. 29.—A squadron of British torpedo boat destroyers has sunk in the Adriatic a German steamer which had been converted into a cruiser, according to a despatch from Barcelona to the Havas News agency.

The Barcelona correspondent explained that this news appears in "Publicidades," a Spanish newspaper published at Gibraltar. The British destroyers rescued 86 members of the crew of the German vessel.

BERLIN WIRELESS ADMISSIONS.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Today's official wireless from Berlin to the German Ambassador supplements last night's official announcement of the retirement of the German-Austrian troops before new Russian forces and says the Belgians have been reinforced in the fighting between Nieuport and Dixmude, which continued on the 28th.

ANOTHER STEAMER SUNK OFF IRISH COAST

Fleetwood, Eng., Oct. 29, via London, 12.45 a.m.—Word has been received through a trawler which arrived here Wednesday night, that another steamer has been sunk off Malin Head, off the north coast of Ireland. There are no details of this new shipping disaster.

The Times in an editorial suggesting that the mines off the coast of Northern Ireland have been dropped by North Sea trawlers flying a neutral flag, says:

"The Germans have so flagrantly violated the precepts of international law that the only safe precaution seems to be to close the North Sea to all neutral maritime traffic in order to prevent any further dangerous abuse of neutral flags.

"We do not at present advocate this extreme measure, but it is for the authorities and above all for the Admiralty to say whether such a development is practicable and desirable."

A Stockholm despatch says the Swedish steamer Oran, from Portugal for Gothenburg, Sweden, hit a mine on Monday in the North Sea and sank off Cuxhaven. Five members of her crew were drowned.

Mats of Ivory

There are but three mats of ivory in existence. The largest one measures 8 feet by 4 feet, and, although made in the north of India, has a Greek design for a border. It is used only on State occasions, like the signing of important State documents. The cost of this precious mat was almost incalculable, for more than 6,400 pounds of pure ivory was used in its construction. Only the finest and most flexible strips of material could be used, and the mat is like the finest woven fabric.

The Movie Everywhere

Everywhere the moving picture show is carrying all before it, from China to Peru. There is not a town of any importance in any part of the world without its picture palace. Half-naked Indians now see on the screen the doings of far-away lands, races being won and lost in England, penguins waddling about in Polar regions, and a billion and one scenes of wonder.

SALMON INDUSTRY

Quebec Man Started First Packing House on Pacific Coast

Notwithstanding the fact that the first salmon cannery on the Pacific Coast was erected in United States territory—on the Sacramento river—it is interesting to note that it was the creation of one who had learned the canning business in Eastern Canada. This man, Hapgood, had worked in a lobster factory in the Baie des Chaleurs, Que. A school mate named Hume, from Augusta, Maine, who had been to California and returned home, had told Hapgood of the abundance of salmon on the Pacific coast, and Hapgood saw no reason why salmon should not be canned as well as lobster, and entering into partnership with Hume, erected the first Pacific coast cannery in 1864. A year or two later witnessed the establishment of the industry in British Columbia.

In 1876 the total pack of the province was but 10,000 cases of 48 pounds to a case, while now the production of the canneries is around a million cases per year. Many changes are observable in the industry. With the increasing demand for salmon, other kinds than Sockeyes have been increasingly canned, and now a considerable proportion of the pack consists of hitherto neglected kinds of salmon. Then again the Indians and white fishermen are being gradually displaced by Japanese.

Perhaps the most remarkable development is that of the Dog Salmon industry. These fish were until recently regarded with contempt, but so great is the demand from the Japanese market, that more than 3,000 tons, dry salted, have been exported in a single year from British Columbia. Just as the turkey is the universal Christmas dish with us, so a salted dog salmon is the chief item at New Year's feasts in Japan. The average price of a seven pound dog salmon in Japan is said to be fifty cents.

ORIENTAL MENACE

Presbyterians on Coast See a Real Asiatic Peril

The Westminster Presbytery, representing that denomination in Vancouver and all the lower mainland, passed a long resolution as to their policy on Oriental immigration. They view with alarm the ever-increasing arrival of Orientals, whose influence is felt in social, economic and even moral conditions. They add:

"The situation is already exceedingly serious. One in every nine of our population is an Oriental, and as a large proportion of their members are men, it means that one man out of every five in British Columbia is an Oriental.

"This Presbytery would therefore urge that an understanding be arrived at between our Government and the various governments interested to exclude Oriental laborers until the population of Orientals to Occidentals is one to thirty of the population of British Columbia. In case of Hindus already residing here, we urge they be allowed to bring in their wives, providing that no other members of this race will be permitted to enter Canada until the above condition is reached, when the question may be re-opened."

NEW ICE CUTTER

Saw Carried in Frame That Is Mounted on Pair of Wheels

The old style way of cutting ice was by the use of a long hand-saw, sometimes operated by two men. A western man has designed a machine for the purpose and it is said that with this machine one man can cut ice quicker than two men could with the hand-saw. A frame with spaced side bars, is mounted on a pair of wheels. Between the bars, at their lower end, a saw is mounted and this saw is driven up and down by a chain gear that is operated by the turning of a handle at the top. Adjustable gage shoes are pivoted at one end to one of the side bars and these shoes keep the saw running straight, so that the cut it makes is at all times the same distance from the former cut that it must parallel. The saw in this machine instead of being of the regulation stiff blade type, is in the form of a chain.

Giant Carbide Light

Over 27 feet in height, and holding a ton of carbide, which will light it for one year, an automatic acetylene gas buoy was placed in the Wash. It has a 120-candle power light visible for ten miles.

Earrings on Cows

Cows in Belgium wear earrings. The law requires that when a cow has attained the age of three months it shall have in its ear a ring to which is attached a numbered metal tag for taxation purposes.

Canadian banks have nearly $50,000,000 loaned to municipalities.

Three Great Catchers

Men who follow baseball closely realize the power that lies in a great catcher like Bresnahan, Kling, Thomas and a few more of the top notchers. In the club of youngsters he built up to startle the baseball world, Clarke Griffith, manager of the Washington team, has a splendid catching department. His best catcher is Ainsmith, who handles the lightning delivery of Walter Johnson. John Henry comes second, handling the curves of Bob Groom, Tom Hughes and Carl Cashion. The third of the Washington backstops is Alva Williams, the big, good natured friend of young pitchers.

RECORD GOLF DRIVE

Over Half a Mile With Frozen River as Green

Robert Jolly, better known as "Wee Robbie," one of the younger members of the famous St. Andrews Jollys, all of whom are now golf professionals in the United States, established what he claims is the record drive of a golf ball. The feat was a drive of 1,026 yards, and the drive was made under conditions which were as unusual as the drive itself.

"WEE ROBBIE" JOLLY

Early last winter, after the weather had driven almost all the golfers off the links of the Park Ridge Country Club, a lawyer continued to play over the frozen ground. He experimented. Discovering that the cold golf balls could not be driven as far as he ordinarily drove in summer, he warmed them by a stove before starting out, and carried them inside his clothing finding that the warm balls striking on the frozen ground would bound and roll fully fifty yards per drive further than cold ones.

Then, without revealing his secret, he bantered Robbie Jolly into wagering that he could not drive 350 yards. On the frozen ground and with a heated ball the feat proved easy, and the joke was on the professional.

With his Scotch aroused, Jolly remarked that, under proper conditions, he could drive 1,000 yards. It seemed impossible, and the wager was made.

Then the Des Plaines river froze and presented a perfect sheet of ice clean and hard. Jolly notified the jokers that he was ready for revenge and took them to the river. He teed off a ball warmed to 105 degrees, and, save for a slight bend, the "fair green" was a sheet of ice without obstacles for two miles. The first drive struck the bank about 600 yards away. The second went past the only hazard, the jutting bank at the curve, and, bounding along forty yards to the bound, whizzed down the middle of the river. The judge stationed at the 1,000-yard mark said it was still going strong when it passed him, but bounded, struck an over-hanging willow limb and, after rolling a few yards further, rolled down a slope in the ice against the bank, where it was found.

WAS A GAME FIGHTER

Ad Wolgast a Retired Veteran Although Still a Mere Boy

Ad Wolgast says he never will don another pair of boxing gloves for a serious encounter in the ring, and doubts very much whether he will ever be induced to even look at the modern tools of ring warfare again.

What is happening to the boxing game when a man is passe at 25 years of age, for Wolgast doubtless is passe and spent in a physical sense? Does this incident serve to show that the general speed of the world these days is reflected in athletics to this extent? In the old days a man was pretty good until he was well by the 30-year mark, and wasn't considered old as long as he had a spark of vitality left in him. In the present boxing age a man gets a couple of defeats, and he is considered thoroughly down and out and past all athletic redemption.

The ring never had a flashier career in its history than that shown by Wolgast. He started battling in 1906, was a sensation out on the Pacific coast in 1908, became lightweight champion of the world by defeating Battling Nelson on February 22, 1910, twice broke his arm on mediocre opponents, and went through an operation and then lost his title to Willie Ritchie on a foul on Nov. 28, 1912.

One thing always will stand out magnificently in the Wolgast record and it is something that nobody can take away from him. No more courageous man ever tapped a pair of hands in the boxing arena than this selfsame boy from Cadillac. His fearlessness was of the dare-devil type that makes the successful aviator and the leading jockey. He never realized the importance of drawing the line closely in the matter of weight. He was once heard to offer to fight Stanley Ketchel for the championship of Michigan, and that, too, when Stanley was at his best and the undoubted champion among the 158-pounders of the day.

RULES FOR BUSINESS GIVERS

Don't give to a collector just to get rid of him. Frauds flourish upon the folly of people who do this.

Don't give money to a solicitor who cannot show proper credentials.

The way to be certain that your contribution will go to the cause in which you are interested is to mail your check to the treasurer—not to give it to a solicitor.

Don't subscribe to organization which give only a post office box number as their address.

Beware of one-man organizations Every reputable charity agency should have a board of managers to direct its work and oversee its finances.

The fact that a woman appeals to you for a contribution does not necessarily imply that the charity in which she is interested is worthy. Fraudulent charitable enterprises are quite as often conducted by women as by men.

Always investigate before you subscribe. There is no disgrace in giving wisely.

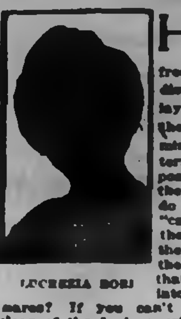
Beauty Hints

The Best Time to Aid Beauty Is Bed Time

By Lucrezia Bori

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of women."



LUCREZIA BORI

HOW do you go to bed? Happy and carefree, or worried and disturbed? Do you lay your head on the pillow with a mind at peace, determined to get all possible good out of the night's rest? Or do you take the "cares that infest the day" over into the night, and turn the sweet dreams that are your due into hideous nightmares? If you can't wipe the slate clean of the day's worries when you go to bed, you have no right to expect to rise with radiant face.

Don't complain if you are heavy-eyed and dull-witted, with sallow skin and lack of ambition. Worrying all night over the work of the day never made any one beautiful, healthy, wise or rich. How can you help it? By calling mind to the rescue and letting common sense act.

How will worry help your work? How will staying awake all night solve the problems or lighten the labor of the day ahead?

The only excuse for worry of the day that is past is failure in application or beauty of effort. Determine to do better. Then stop worrying.

Night is the psychological time for beauty culture. It is the time for erasing the care-lines of the day, and making ready for rebuilding. It is a time of recuperation, of gaining strength, of repairing nerves.

If you want to rise with a sunshiny face, go to sleep with a mind freed from inharmony. Put away all "envy, hatred and malice." Set yourself at peace with the world, yourself and your fellow-men.

Take some simple exercise for the relaxation of tense muscles. Don't say you are too tired, and tumble into bed with the 'tired' thought. You have to breathe, whether you are tired or not. Twenty-five deep breaths will quiet nerves, start the circulation, loosen the tension of body and mind. A warm bath will do as much good as an hour's sleep.

Brush your hair with long, even strokes, breathing rythmically meanwhile. Massage the scalp. It will clear your head, and take away the feeling of being "bound with bands," which is the sign of a tired brain.

Sit before your mirror in a strong light and carefully smooth out all lines of worry, of petulance, of unhappiness. Work over the lines about the eyes and across the brow with some simple emollient. I have given dozens of recipes. If, however, you want a specific for wrinkles, try this:

> Half an ounce each of lanolin and coconut oil, a quarter of an ounce each of white wax and spermaceti, one ounce of oil of sweet almonds. Melt together and while stirring add half an ounce of orange flower water and a few drops of benzoin.

Brush the eyebrows into an arch. Massage the hands with a nourishing and whitening lotion. Push the cuticle back from the finger nails and gently pinch the finger tips into shape.

Brush your teeth, rinse your mouth and then consider its expression. Dispel all peevishness. Think pleasant thoughts. With happiness and peace in your heart, seek your pillow, and sleep the sleep of the just. Give "nature's sweet restorer" a chance to "knit up the ravelled sleeve of care."

TAKING DICTATION : : : By Michelson

"MISS WILLING," says the Boss, "will you please take some dictation?" Certainly. It is Miss Willing's job in thousands of offices all over the country. And the Boss proceeds with his unromantic commercial epistle.

But Miss Willing writes other letters that are SUPPOSED to be all her own. Her HEART goes into these letters—or as much of it as seems prudent at the moment. She doesn't know how often Master Cupid, the most dominating boss of all, is sitting there calmly telling her WHAT to write. She doesn't know that she is "taking dictation" at all, which only goes to show how clever Cupid is. The fact is that he dictates so softly and beautifully and plausibly that it is EASY for any writer to get down what he says if she once gets under his spell.

Of course, she signs HER name, you know! It would never do to divulge the real DICTATOR!

A Poet's Sweetheart

Petrarch was one of the unfortunate poet lovers. One day in the Church of St. Claire, in Avignon, he met Mme. de Sade, better known as "Laura," a delightful blonde whose soft dark eyes contrasted strangely, yet coquettishly, with the pale golden hair that rippled in ringlets over her white forehead. This dainty dame was of noble birth, enjoyed a high social standing, and was considered the belle of the entire sunny South of those days.

The Italian poet fell helplessly and hopelessly in love with the French beauty. He wrote in her honor hundreds of sonnets full of the choicest tenderness, in which he described his sweetheart's mental and physical charms, and vowed that never lived a fairer woman than she. Yet she was obdurate to his suit, though she confessed herself pleased with his society. She was by nature fond of admiration, and she felt proud of the fact that she had won the devotion of one of the greatest poets of the age. Wherever she promenaded, whether in the parks or streets, she heard the gossips murmur as she passed: "There goes the beloved of Petrarch."

Laura was platonically fond of her poet, but no amount of poetry could induce her to bestow a warmer affection upon him. She died of the plague in 1348. Her death was a rude shock to Petrarch, who still loved her, and mourned her loss for the remaining 26 years of his life.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

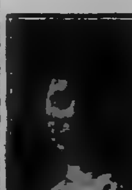
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 128

Fainting Awake.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

HALF way across the street I met my wife with a shawl over her head.

"What's the trouble?" she demanded wildly. "Annie telephoned that mother was in hysterics, and that they had had to have the doctor. Oh, Peter, what have you done?"

"I've told your mother some plain truths," said I, "and I'm not sorry."

Oh, yes, I was a brute. I know that very well. I should have had some sympathy for a woman in hysterics, but I haven't. I'm too accustomed to Mrs. Penfield's brand of hysterics. She can turn them off and on at will. They're never spontaneous. Whenever my mother-in-law wishes to arouse a furore of sympathy and excitement she goes into hysterics, the maid phones for the doctor and Mr. Penfield, and, believe me, things hum.

Mary was so excited and upset that I went back with her. I'd reached the "What's the use?" state now and was quite calm. I expected Mary to turn furiously on me and tell me what she thought of me, but she merely rushed on across the street with me at her heels and into the house. Mrs. Penfield was still by the fire, wildly wringing her hands and sobbing and screaming. When she saw Mary she held out her arms and redoubled her spasm. When she saw me she let out a hysterical wail and closed her eyes.

"Mother," said Mary in great distress "do please try to calm yourself."

Mrs. Penfield merely rocked back and forth and demanded why she had ever been born.

I wondered, too. We had a wild time. The doctor drove up in his car, and, next, Mr. Penfield arrived. He wasn't half so worried as one might have expected. He, too, was used to these cyclonic spells that might be turned off and on at will.

If I had been furious before I was hopelessly disgusted now. I have never seen a woman force hysterics as Mrs. Penfield did. I have learned since that it is a frequent trick of highly sentimental, emotional types. Any doctor can detect the genuine kind. I suspected from the doctor's air that inwardly he was none too patient.

Mrs. Penfield, of course, in time tired herself out and we had a rest. Then she complicated the situation again by fainting.

This time I was genuinely alarmed, for Mrs. Penfield talks some at times of having a temperamental heart. But the doctor didn't look worried in the least.

My mother-in-law moaned and groaned and faintly articulated something. Mr. Penfield went out of the room to get the spirits of ammonia for which she had asked. Mary was wildly chafing her mother's hands. The doctor drew me aside and looked at me keenly. He's a young chap who frequently helps Dad out with his patients and always takes his night calls.

"Don't look so glum, Peter," he said. "These talking faints that women have never amount to a great deal."

And I learned something new of the opposite sex. Women sometimes faint and talk!

"You can't mean it," I said to the doctor.

He shrugged.

"Of course," he said, "you can't really faint and talk—but you can pass away in spirit at least and keep one eye on the company to see how they take it. Mind I'm not saying Mrs. Penfield does that. But it is a trick of emotional women who want sympathy for fainting and are too darned healthy to experience the real thing."

Mystery—thy name is woman!

The Good Night Story

The Three Clever Boys :: By Vernon Merry

THERE was once an old man who had three sons. All his property and money was in the form of one house, so how could he, without selling it, divide that one house equally among three sons? He thought a long time and then he called his sons to him.

He told them that he could not decide and, therefore, they must go out and each one learn a trade. The boy that brought him evidence of the greatest mastery of his trade should have the house for his own.

The oldest boy became a blacksmith, and so well did he work that soon he secured the post of horseshoer to the King. He felt sure that he would win the house.

The second boy became a barber, and he was so fine a workman that he shaved the King every day. He was positive that he would be given the house.

The youngest boy became a fencing master and was so very clever with his sword that he taught the King's son the art of fencing. Naturally, he, too, felt that he had done well.

The time came when the three brothers went together to their father to show him the mastery they had gained in their professions. While they were talking together a runaway horse came tearing down the village street. "Watch me!" cried the oldest boy, and he ran out and took that horse's shoes off and replaced them, without stopping him at all. It was so wonderful that his father wanted to give him the house right away.

But a hare came running along and the second boy pulled out his razor and lather brush, and lathered and shaved the hare's whiskers without stopping him at all, or cutting any other hairs than the whiskers. They were all so amazed that the house seemed surely his.

But just then it began to rain. The youngest boy drew his sword and made such swift passes through the air that not one drop fell upon his father or his two brothers. Although it poured in torrents, the three were kept dry by the moving sword.

They all agreed that his feat was the most wonderful and so his father gave him the house.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

SUMMERTIME is sandwich time. Nothing more acceptable can be prepared for the children's midday lunch, for the porch tea, or the informal evening entertainment than these delicious edibles.

The wise housekeeper has plenty of sandwich secrets at her command. Sandwich-making has improved since the day they were invented to give the Earl of Sandwich nourishment without compelling him to leave the gaming table.

The earl was an inveterate gamester, and would rebel against leaving his game long enough to eat dinner. One day, after repeated urging to attend to his eating, he ordered slices of bread and meat to be brought that he might eat and play at the same time. The modern sandwich had its beginning.

There are only two rules to follow in making sandwiches. One is to have the bread cut thin. The other is to have the filling well seasoned. There are sandwich cutters to be had for a few cents, which make it possible to vary the form of this dainty.

Dates and English walnuts make a delicious sandwich mixture. Chop and sprinkle the mixture over bread which has been spread with cream cheese softened with cream.

Chopped figs and nuts will appeal to the children, and, used with brown bread, are nourishing.

Bits of chopped chicken may be mixed with mayonnaise and will make acceptable dainties for the summer supper table.

A delicious chicken sandwich filling, one especially good used with whole wheat bread, is made with one cup of chopped chicken, one cup of chopped almonds, moistened with cream and seasoned with salt and pepper.

Cheese fillings are sure to be well received. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and mix it with half a cup of grated cheese, two tablespoons anchovy paste, half a cup chopped olives, season with salt, paprika, and a bit of mustard and press between thin slices of white bread.

For those who like high seasoning, sliced tomatoes with a dressing of mayonnaise and horseradish, in equal quantities, will be encored. Such sandwiches are better served between whole wheat or brown bread.

Graham bread with egg filling is delicious. Chop two hard boiled eggs and mix with mayonnaise until of the spreading consistency.

Sardines, boned and reduced to a paste, seasoned with a little mayonnaise, and spread on a leaf of lettuce and served between thin white bread are good.

For the tea, when daintiness counts for more than mere substantiality, try sprigs of mint or nasturtium flowers pressed between dainty forms of bread which is spread with mayonnaise. Numerous fillings will occur to the one who prepares the sandwiches, for there is something about this form of simple food which inspires originality.

Curious Meanings of River Names

Hudson river was named for Henry Hudson. The Indians called it Mahakenaghtuc, "the flowing water," and other appropriate names. Gomez called it St. Anthony's river, and to the Dutch it was known as Mauritius river, in honor of Prince Maurice of Holland.

The Brandywine was first named the Fishkill. Bunce says that the stream was renamed by the Dutch to commemorate the loss at its mouth of a vessel loaded with brandy. Another authority says the name was given on account of a famous distillery on its banks.

The Colorado river was named by the Spaniards from a word in their language meaning ruddy or red, an allusion to the tint of the water. La Salle first named the river Maligne, misfortune, one or two of his party having been drowned in its current.

The Ohio was so-called from an Iroquois word Oheo, meaning "beautiful." It appears on various early maps as the Albacha, Cubach, O-o, Ochio, Sabogungo, Causisseppione, Kitone-cepe, Ohuipeekhanna, Ohui, Opeek, Alliwegi-Sepe, Oheesuh, Hohio and Youghiogheny.

The Illinois river was so termed from the Illini, a tribe of Indians on its banks. Another derivation is suggested in Isle aux Noix, Island of Nuts. Several derivations more or less fanciful are suggested by the etymologists and geographers.

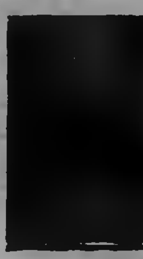
The French Broad, in North Carolina, was called by the Indians Tockyeste, "the little roarer." It received its present name from the early settlers, who called it so on account of its width at one place, and because the country to the west was then claimed by the French.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How to Nurse Your Child Through Scarlet Fever.

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

NOW that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood.

It remains a puzzle unsolved, and an enemy unconquered. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is as yet no drug or anti-toxin that will cure it. Yet the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powder than his predecessor, and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics.

Though the exact cause of scarlet fever is still far from certain, there is no doubt whatever that it will be determined with absolute accuracy within a few years. A large number of competent observers have come to the conclusion that the causative agent must be a minute parasite closely related to that which produces malaria.

An attack of scarlet fever may begin a day or so after the patient has been exposed to contagion, and then again there may be an incubation period of a week or even more. Several years ago, in the course of my practice, I visited a family in which there were four bad cases. Next day I left the city and remained away for a full week. On the day of my return I fell ill with the disease, and a very severe attack was immediately in progress. In this case the incubation period seems to have been no less than eight days.

The First Symptoms.

Scarlet fever usually begins with chills, rising fever, headache, loss of appetite and pains in the limbs, and sometimes, particularly in very young children, with convulsions. A sore throat and painful tonsils next afflict the patient, and at the end of a day or so the characteristic red rash appears. This commonly begins around the neck, and over the chest, and at the start consists of tiny scarlet blotches the size of pinheads. The blotches soon run together and the whole surface of the body becomes a brilliant red. The membranes of the mouth become swollen and take on the so-called "raspberry" appearance.

Despite the almost universal notion, there is no crisis in scarlet fever. A crisis, in medicine, means a sudden change in, or terminating of, symptoms. In scarlet fever, the fever does not cease suddenly, but slowly. This is called a termination by lysis, which is the very reverse of crisis. When the fever goes down—usually about the fifth day—the scarlet rash begins to disappear, and the skin of the patient peels off.

Whenever it is possible a trained nurse should be engaged, and in any event the doctor's orders should be obeyed with scrupulous exactness. Nothing could be more foolish than the common custom of seeking advice in such emergencies from grandmothers, neighbors who have "pulled their own children through" and other well-meaning, but blundering "experts" of that species.

Good nursing means not only intelligent care of the patient, and a capacity for quick and accurately recognizing threatening complications, but also intelligent efforts to prevent a spread of the infection. Scarlet fever is one of the most contagious of known maladies, and in achieving an effective quarantine of his patients the cautious physician often takes measures which, to the layman, may seem almost ridiculously elaborate.

Disease Very Contagious.

When one of your children develops the disease, put it to bed in a large and airy room, preferably on the top floor of the house, and prepare another room nearby into which the child may be taken when the sick-room proper is being aired and cleaned. Take all unnecessary furnishings out of both rooms. Under this heading come carpets, rugs, pictures, draperies and ornaments. In the sick-room a bed for the patient and a chair and table for the nurse are about all that may be called needful. A plain clothes-rack will suffice for holding the necessary changes of bed-clothes.

If it is at all possible, send the other children of the household to some relative's home, and keep them away from school for a week. If they are apparently well at the end of that time, it will be safe to let them go back to school. If sending them away is out of the question, and they must remain in the house, keep them away from all other children until the patient upstairs is well. They may take the disease at any time, even in the face of careful precautions, and you certainly would be greatly grieved to see them carry it to their fellow-pupils and playmates.

If you nurse your child yourself, you must make up your mind to an entire separation from the other children in the house for a period of at least six weeks. Your bedroom should be next to or very near that of the patient, of course, but I cannot advise your sleeping in the sick-chamber itself. Besides increasing the chances of infection, this practice results in unduly vitiating the air of the room. The oxygen that you consume is needed by the child, for in a sick-room the supply of oxygen is never too ample.

The Amateur Nurse.

With proper treatment the patient should be quiet enough to give you a reasonable amount of sleep, but you must school yourself to awaken easily in order that you may look after its nocturnal wants. It is highly important that you go out every day, for an hour or so, for fresh air and exercise, and during this time some one else must be on guard. This assistant nurse, during her stay in the sick-room, should wear a long coat and a dust cap over her hair as a safeguard. You yourself, on leaving the sick-room, should make a complete change of clothes, and wash your face and hands thoroughly. The clothes you wear outside should be kept in an anteroom.

The doctor will give you detailed instructions as to the care of the patient. The little sufferer will probably be greatly annoyed by the discharges from its nose, throat and ears, and these must constantly be looked to. Instead of a handkerchief or napkin for keeping it clean, use small bits of the absorbent cotton sold everywhere. This cotton is cheap, it has been sterilized and its application is not irritating. Every piece should be burned immediately after it has been used.

After the fever goes down and the child's skin begins to shed, it will suffer greatly from itching. This can be relieved by rubbing the body very gently with carbolated vaseline. During this stage the child should be bathed often in cold lime water or in water which contains a small amount of ordinary baking soda. Hot baths are to be avoided, but the water may be warm enough, as the phrase goes, "to take off the chill." Do not attempt to help nature by pulling off the pieces of loose skin. They will drop off themselves, just as soon as the new skin beneath them is hard enough to be exposed.

How to Disinfect.

Scarlet fever is most contagious from the third to the seventh day, but its contagiousness does not disappear entirely for a long while after that. Until the shedding of the skin and the discharge from the ears have quite ceased, no person, save the doctor and the nurses, should be permitted to approach the patient, and in any case the period of quarantine should be at least six weeks.

If you have had scarlet fever in childhood you need not fear for your own health, but even if you haven't, your chances of taking it are small. It is, in fact, rare among adults, but all the same it is well to adopt precautions.

After the patient has recovered, the sick-room should be thoroughly cleansed; and this means cleansed in the surgical, and not in the common, sense. In large cities the work is best entrusted to the health department. When such experts are not available, the floor, walls and ceiling should be mopped again and again with a solution of corrosive sublimate, and the windows should be thrown wide open. It is always best to have the wall paper scraped off.

There is no reason to fear the worst when the doctor's verdict is scarlet fever. In all maladies you should remember that the death rate is kept up by the enormous number of deaths among the children of the very poor.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a schoolgirl, and will soon be 14 years old, and there are three boys and I like the three of them.

They talk quite a lot to me and call me very nice names, and say I am pretty and they love me.

Especially one; he teases me, and, sometimes, I get mad at him. But I couldn't stay mad with him if I tried. Do you think I am too young to have anything to do with him?

CUTEY.

WHY, you foolish little schoolgirl, you, you can't even spell quite correctly, and then you want to know whether you are old enough to choose a sweetheart.

Go on letting the three boys talk "quiet" a little to you, and have a good time with them, but don't let them make a goose of you calling you such very nice names and pretending that they love you so dearly. Any boy anywhere near your age who is so very glib with very nice names is not in earnest. A 17-year-old boy doesn't talk when he's in love; he'd like to, but he can't.

When he's just fooling he can talk—a lot—and he does, and that's what they are doing with you, these three boys you like so very well.

They are just making fun of you, little girl, and they talk about you to each other; oh yes, they do. You are no different from any other girl who allows boys to make a goose of her.

I'm glad you're pretty and I'm glad you're sweet. Keep your beauty and your sweetness for some one who will really appreciate them. And don't waste them now before you realize what they really mean.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

GERMANS ADMIT ALLIES BEAT IN AEROPLANES

London, Oct. 29.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail in Paris, in a despatch to his paper, gives a copy of the German order on avoiding aeroplanes. It says:

According to the report of aeroplane observers, our troops are very easy to discover in spite of their gray uniforms, because of the density of their formation, while the French know how to protect themselves perfectly from aerial reconnaissance.

"Avoid Mass Formations."

During a fight our troops must make use of the narrow files among the trees, at the edges of villages and near the shelter of houses, avoiding mass formations.

Above all absolute stillness must be maintained in exposed places.

At the approach of an aeroplane all movements should cease, and it is also necessary to avoid all movement of batteries when aeroplanes are surveying. A single man moving will betray a battery. There should also be no firing for the flash of a gun betrays its position to the air squadron.

The success of the French artillery, which has caused such marked losses is due, first, to their quickness in determining the positions of our batteries. To equal them it is necessary that our observations should be pushed like theirs, far in advance of the lines by men of good courage who are not afraid of sharpshooters.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

The Canadian Magazine for November contains a spirited impression entitled, "The Cynic at Valcartier," by Newton MacTavish, with a large number of illustrations of the great military camp, which will soon be occupied again with our second expeditionary force. There is also an arresting article by Britton Cooke, "Is This True?" the question referring to the charge that in many instances we discriminate against Canadian-made goods. "Self-Government in Canada," by G. G. S. Lindsey, K.C., is a valuable historical article, and there are contributions also by the Honourable William Renwick Riddell, John Stuart Thomson, L. M. Montgomery, A. Wylie Mahon, Lindsey Crawford, Virna Sheard, and others.

A Coming Lecture.

Our readers are reminded of the address to be given in the Assembly Room of the Public Library tomorrow evening by Dr. Turnbull, former Secretary of the Associated Charities in Toronto. He will speak on charitable work, and it is hoped that many will hear him, especially those who are interested in this work. The lecture has been arranged by the local Council of Women.

The Power of British Gold

It was Napoleon who declared that British gold had caused his downfall. Apparently Mr. Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has not forgotten the lessons of the Napoleonic struggle and the effect of British subsidies on the fighting spirit of the various coalitions against Napoleon. As an eminently practical man, he intends that England shall husband all her resources, to the last penny, for the war.

Without in the least underestimating the worth of British valor on the battlefield, Mr. Lloyd-George pins his faith in ultimate victory as much on the ability of the Allies to come to time with the last millions when the treasuries of Germany and Austria have been exhausted.

Playing Part of Conqueror Too Soon

The belief has been prevalent ever since the German army burst into Belgium that in the event of Germany being finally victorious the invaded country would be annexed and made a German province. Schleswig and Holstein, Alsace and Lorraine, are notable instances of that kind of transformation. But annexation at an early stage of a war, while neither side can be certain of ultimate success, is quite another thing. Yet Belgium seems now to be annexed in fact, if not in legal form. What else does the proclamation issued by Baron von der Goltz signify? It tells the people of Belgium that the order of the Belgian government summoning three military classes to the colors is without validity, and that therefore the relatives of those who have obeyed the order and left their homes will be held responsible.

The gallant marshall may have become a grand old Turk during his long residence at Constantinople, but we may be sure that he has not taken this despotic course of his own accord. As the German military governor of Belgium he is subject to direction by the German government, and in the present case he has doubtless acted on instructions from Berlin. There is surely a lack of wisdom at the seat of authority. Nothing whatever can be gained by telling the Belgians that they owe no allegiance to their own national government. True, the men who nominally compose it have been driven out of the country by the German forces for a time, but the Belgians and their Allies expect to drive those forces out forever. And in any case the Belgian government is not merely the ministers, but is the will of the Belgian people.

It is monstrous that the families of Belgian soldiers should be punished because the men have been simply loyal to the national flag for the defence of the nation. This will intensify Belgian hatred of the invaders. And the proclammation will stiffen the resolve of the Allies to continue the war until Germany is utterly disabled from laying a finger on Belgium. It is a blunder to command the allegiance of the Belgians to the German government. Too soon is the part of conqueror played—too soon is the decree of autocracy brought into operation, while as yet annexation has not been proclaimed. But Germanys antagonists will not regret her premature action.

NAVAL LOSSES OF ALLIES AND GERMANS COMPARED

The Naval and Military Record of October 14 contained a review of the naval achievements of the two sides in the great struggle. The war had entered its eleventh week, and, taking into consideration only events which had been officially announced, and only ships which appear in navy lists in peace time, the comparison of losses was as follows:—

LOSSES OF THE ALLIES.

	Tons
Cruisers—
Aboukir	12,000
Cressy	12,000
Hogue	12,000
Light Cruisers—
Amphion	3,440
Pathfinder	2,940
Pegasus	2,135
Gunboats—
Speedy	810
Zelee	680
Destroyer—
Shirataye	380
Submarine—
A E 1	725
Total	47,110
Balance of tonnage in favour of the Allies	3,340
	50,450

LOSSES OF GERMANY AND AUSTRIA.

	Tons
Battle Cruiser—
Goeben	23,000
Light Cruisers—
Breslau	4,550
Madgeburg	4,550
Koln	4,550
Mainz	4,350
Ariadne	2,660
Zenta	2,300
Hela	2,040
Gunboats—
Mowe	650
Hedwig Von Wissman	199
Tsingtau	168
Vaterland	168
Destroyers—
V. 187	650
S. 126	487
Torpedo Boat—
No. 19	78
Submarine—
U. 15	250
Total	50,450

It will thus be seen that, in spite of the severe blow dealt by German when she sank three cruisers on September 22nd, the balance is still against her; and if we take into account armed merchant vessels lost it is still more so, as will be seen by the following comparison.

ARMED MERCHANTMEN LOST

By Allies—
- Oceanic.

By Germany—
- Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse
- Cap Trafalgar
- Bethania
- Spreewald
- Soden
- Itolo
- Rheim
- Konigin Luise

Whilst those of the vessels lost by the Allies (the Japanese destroyer Shirataye submarine A E 1, and the Oceanic) have been lost through ordinary risks of navigation, every one of the German-Austrian casualties has been the result of their enemies' efforts—unless we except the Austrian torpedo boat No. 19, which struck one of her own mines.

For the information of readers who may not have come across references to all the small craft mentioned in the list of German losses, it should be mentioned that the Mow was sunk by the Pegasus and the Astrae in the harbour of Dares-Salem, German East Africa; the Hedwig von Wissman (a lake gunboat) was captured on Lake Nyasa by a British vessel of similar type; and the Tsingtau and Vaterland were disarmed and interned at the Chinese ports of Canton and Shanghai respectively. The Soden, Itolo and Rheim were small vessels which were converted into gunboats for the defence of the Cameroon colony, now in the hands of the Allies. The Soden was captured by the British, and the other two were destroyed by the French gunboat Surprise.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest,

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

Our market letter giving information on the Alberta Oil Fields is free for the asking.

In adding this port to her long chain of connections in the Far East, Canada through her most powerful transportation agent, the Canadian Pacific has rendered a very signal service to Manila as well as to herself. Heretofore the best time from the Pacific Coast of North America to Manila by any regularly established trade route was twenty-eight days. By the inauguration of the steamship service of the Empress Steamships of the Pacific to Manila this time has been cut to seventeen days, thereby lopping off 11 days from the best time ever made.

Obviously the advantage is great. It brings Vancouver, the chief Canadian city on the Pacific a very lucrative trade and connects Canada with this rich tropical "land of pine and palm" and in such a way that all others are distinctly second. From the Phillipine point of view it is most advantageous for it opens a market 11 days closer and brings the islands and their vast resources of minerals, fruits, tobacco, rice, sugar, rubber and hard woods within closer range of the countries to which they look for purchasers.

Merchants of New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, as well as Manila have been striving for years to cut the distance—which in transportation terms, is time, between the Phillipines and the North American ports.

Added to these advantages is another benefit which transportation men declare will be by no means small. This is the tourist travel that will undoubtedly flow in an annually increasing stream to the Phillipines, as the world wide water and rail routes of the vast Canadian Pacific system will be diverted to make Manila another attractive visiting place for the traveller to the Far East.

For ages the riches of the Phillipine Islands have been carried on first by the Chinese and Malays, then by the Spanish, the Portuguese, the English, the Danes, the Americans, and now the Canadians. War and rebellion, bloodshed in the name of Christianity and Mohammedanism, tribal conflicts and strife of one kind and another have for centuries swept from one end of this island group to the other. It has only been in the past decade that decided steps have been made towards improvement and development, with the co-operation and participation of foreign capital.

In the short period the American government has been working with the natives of the Phillipines towards civilizing the country, marvellous changes have been wrought and today these islands, with Manila as the first port of call and the chief city, are attracting the attention of the travelling and tourist public. European and American customs have been adopted both in the hotels and trains, so that the tourist will not be ill at ease although in an entirely foreign and tropical country. From Manila there are many fine automobile roads and some hundreds of miles of excellent rail roads. These add materially to the comfort of the tourist and sightseer. By both train and auto the traveller will be brought to places which in historical interest rival the other centres of the world.

Since the time of the world-circling Magellan, who lost his life and was buried in the Phillipines, Spanish customs, language and architecture have been well established in these islands. In fact the Spanish and Portuguese so stamped their civilization on the people of the Phillipines that in many parts there languages, or corruptions of them, are still spoken.

In and around Manila there are many beautiful spots which delight travellers. With guides, procured for small sums, these places can be visited. The tales connected with the history of the Phillipines are as thrilling as those related on other pages of Spanish conquests. Picturesque Spanish churches, forts and public buildings make the civic appearance of Manila and other of the larges towns delightful indeed.

Such long strides have been made towards establishing roads, modern buildings, sanitary appliances, water works, electric light plants, street car systems, railroads and all of the other agents of the present civilizations, that none of the dangers are to be found in the Phillipines.

From Manila splendid steamboat connections can be made to Hong Kong, Borneo, Japan and Chinese ports. It has been said by travellers who have spent time enough in the Phillipines to become acquainted with the country from the ocean beaches to the mountain ranges, that these islands will in the future, and not long hence either, rival the Hawaiian islands in tourist popularity.

THE BLONDE ESKIMOS

Northern Trapper Claims to Have Seen Them Before Stefannsson

A far northern trapper, G. L. Deschanbeault, returning from Fort Simpson to Edmonton, challenged the claim of Explorer Stefannsson that he was the first discoverer of the blonde Eskimos.

Some two and a half years ago Deschanbeault on a hunting expedition accompanied by Joseph and William Hudson encamped on the Copper Mine River, seven hundred miles north of Fort Simpson. While in camp the Eskimo interpreter informed Deschanbeault that strange stories were being told among his companions about another tribe of "Huskies" who, although they resembled the ordinary Eskimos in their habits, had the pale faces of the white man.

Fired by curiosity, Deschanbeault decided to follow the Copper Mine River to its juncture with the Great Bear Lake. On arriving at the shores of the Great Lake, the little party came upon the encampment of the strange tribe. The Eskimos were dressed after the customary fashion of natives of the north, but instead of being squat of stature and dark were fair haired and of light complexion.

CHAMPION WALKER AND HIS METHODS

English "Ped" With Marvellous Record Tells Some of the Rules He Follows

The wonderful pedestrian powers of Mr. T. E. Hammond, hon. secretary of the Surrey Walking Club and a member of the Stock Exchange Club, are well known in England, but perhaps not generally known in Canada. He it was who, a few years ago, set up fresh figures for a twenty-four hours' walk, reaching 131 miles 880 yards in the allowed time, while he is also the holder of the London to Brighton and back record and the London to Oxford record. While making his 24-hours' walk Mr. Hammond lost nine pounds in weight.

Some people may have the idea that it is necessary to lead a Spartan life in order to become a champion walker. Mr. Hammond confesses, however, that he is neither a teetotaller nor a non-smoker, but he is always most abstemious, and, as regards smoking, he seldom departs from the pipe, which he fills, say, three or four times a day only.

In training for a walking race, Mr. Hammond does not recommend walking long distances at a slow rate, as they make one lose speed. When a novice has acquired a good style of walking—and this is most important, as bad faults are more easily acquired than eradicated—he should commence walking in order to obtain speed. A good plan is to begin with a quarter of a mile at top speed. "As soon as he can accomplish this in anything under two minutes," says Mr. Hammond, he may gradually increase the distance from day to day, but must be particularly careful not to continue long distances if the watch indicates that he is at all affected in his speed."

Putting the Feet Down

Referring to style in walking, the champion says that fair walking is generally called "toe and heel," and one foot should always be on the ground. The steps are taken as much as possible from heel to heel, which part of the foot must touch the ground first and be firmly dug into it. The ball and toe of the foot should not be on the ground for any perceptible space of time. If they are dwelt on the walker loses a certain amount of time in each stride, besides causing the knee to bend by bringing the weight of the body on the toes, which are unable to bear it.

"At each stride the loin and hips corresponding to the leg which is put forward should be twisted well round, the right loin and hip towards the left, and the left loin and hip towards the right. By this means the walker is enabled to put his feet down in a geometrical straight line, one in front of the other, and thereby gains additional length of stride.

"As regards the upper part of the body, the arms must be kept well up and inclined outwards from the chest, with the elbows slightly bent; since in fast walking the arms perform almost as important functions as the legs.

Watch the Arms

Each arm must be swung across the chest and the shoulders well lifted at the same time, in unison with each alternate stride. The object of this motion is to raise the weight of the body off the heels, and thereby enable the legs to take a quicker stride. Some walkers keep the arms close to the body, move them much less, and more towards the nostrils. This method, however, is only suitable to men very slightly built about the chest and trunk.

"They can walk with a very quick and rapid stride, being enabled to move their legs much faster from having no weight to carry. Above all things, the shoulders must be kept well back, the chest out, the whole body as upright as possible, and the knees quite straight. Nothing tends so much to 'lifting' as stooping forward with the body or bending the knees."

DODGING WASPS

Those Acquainted With Them do Not Run But Throw Themselves Flat

A man on his first trip into the wilds and marshes of an unknown country with a party of engineers was struck by a unique method they have to escape from the attack of wasps and hornets. The country traversed is generally covered with thick undergrowth, and a path has to be cut through this all along the line. So when a big wasp nest is reached there is very little warning, sometimes the axmen cutting into a big one with their machetes.

The person relating this experience was some sixty feet behind the axmen with the instrument, when all at once the two axmen dropped in their tracks as if they had been struck by a thunderbolt. The man behind and the two chainmen did likewise. While they were lying prone on the grass and wet marsh, they heard what sounded like bullets singing over their heads. One after the other they came with angry zips. When things had quieted down a bit, work was continued, and the new man found that to escape from wasps or hornets the thing to do was to drop instanter. The insects seem to be so mad that they fly in straight lines along a level, and do not have time to hunt around for you.

It is said that hornets are not so prone to follow this rule as wasps; but the wasps never vary. Men have been stung to death by hornets, and horses and mules likewise.

Largest Dam in World

New Mexico is to have the greatest dam in the world, when the $8,000,000 government construction at Elephant Butte is done. It will need 15 years' rains to fill and will then hold 850 billion gallons, or twice the capacity of the Assouan dam.

Criminology and Feet

Dr. Charles Perrier, police surgeon at Nimes, France, concludes from experiments lasting ten years that thieves and incendiaries have the longest feet; coiners come next; these being followed in regular order of succession by dynamitards, tramps, swindlers, and poisoners.

Poet's Corner

EVENTIDE.

The sun is sinking in the far, far west,
The lowing cattle wend their homeward way,
The weary toiler welcomes twilight hour
That brings him rest at close of toilsome day.

The little children lay aside their toys,
Their little feet are tired with ceaseless play,
And kneeling now at Mother's loving side,
They lisp their evening prayer at close of day.

The lovely flowerets close their petals fair,
And song birds hush their joyous warbling lay,
And fold their tiny heads beneath their wings,
For rest is sweet to them at close of day.

The aged christian bows his hoar-head,
Tired are his feet and long has been the way,
And now he waits to hear the Master's voice
Calling him to heaven and rest at close of day.

GLAD BRITISH ARE OPPOSING

London, Oct. 29.—A despatch to Reuter's from Amsterdam says: "Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, brother of Belgium's Queen and commander of the Sixth German Army Corps, has issued the following order:

"Soldiers of the Sixth Army Corps: We are fortunate to have opposed to us the British troops—the troops of that nation whose envy has worked for years to surround us with enemies. They are the cause of the present bloody war. Therefore take reprisals for the cunning of the enemy and for all sacrifices when we now meet them.

"Show them it is not so easy to wipe out the Germans of history now that we face an enemy who is the greatest obstacle to peace.'

BERLIN AGAIN LIES.

London, Oct. 29.—Official denial given in London today to the report sent out from Berlin, October 27, saying there had been sanguinary encounters between the British garrison and the Indian troops at Alexandria, in Egypt, and that a courtmartial held in Alexandria had sentenced 30 men to death.

This German report was from official sources. It was declared today to be an entire fabrication, the best proof of which was found in the fact that no Indian troops are stationed at Alexandria.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WASTED $250,000

Rich Man Reduced to Singing For Coppers and Asking For Crusts

A man who had been left several fortunes, and after spending all came to be charged with begging, found himself in the dock at Northwich, England.

He was John Marsh, aged sixty-nine, of St. Helens. He declared that he had been left by various relatives sums totalling $250,000, which had all been spent in drinking, gambling, and helping others. He had inherited his fathers's spendthrift nature and his mother's generosity.

He was formerly in a grocery and confectionery business at St. Helens, but now worked for farmers solely for his food, varying the monotony by singing in publichouses songs of his own composition, and dancing.

Reduced to hunger, he pleaded, he simply begged a crust. His one desire was to tide over another year to qualify for an old age pension, as he had an aversion to becoming a pauper. The magistrate gave him money to help him on his way, and dismissed the case.

ANIMALS AND SLEEP

Most people sleep on their sides, with their knees drawn up.

Elephants always and horses commonly sleep standing up.

Bats sleep head downward, hanging by their hind legs.

Birds, with the exception of owls and the hanging parrots of India, sleep with their heads turned tailward over the back and the beak thrust among the feathers between the wing and body.

Storks, gulls and other long-legged birds, sleep standing on one leg.

Ducks sleep on open water. To avoid drifting shoreward, they keep paddling with one foot, thus making them move in a circle.

Sloths sleep hanging by their four feet, the head tucked in between their forelegs.

Foxes and wolves sleep curled up, their noses and the soles of their feet close together and blanketed by their bushy tails.

Hares, snakes and fish sleep with their eyes wide open.

Owls, in addition to their eyelids have a screen that they draw sideways across their eye to shut out the light, for they sleep in the daytime.

ROUGH TACTICS WIN PENNANTS

Baseball General of Bygone Day Believes in Real Warfare on the Diamond

Patsy Tebeau, one of the gamest of old-time managers, has no use for "kid glove" baseball. When he heard that President Ban Johnson regarded Manager Birmingham's Cleveland players as "too rough" Patsy expressed the opinion that the mollycoddle days had come.

"Show me a ball club that is fighting every inch of the way and I'll show you a team that is after the pennant," he said. "This having players shaking hands every time they meet is foolish. It gives the fans the wrong impression. You've got to get the fighting spirit to win.

"We never thought of greeting our opponents. Our idea was to get out and beat them. I can see a runner sliding to first with me playing the bag and getting his head pumped with the ball. Think I'd apologise? Not Patsy Tebeau! 'Get your head out of the way and you won't get hurt,' would be more like it. About a year ago I saw a fellow steal second. He came up all dust, and what do you think happened? Why, the second baseman helped him dust his uniform. And that team finished last in the race. That isn't my brand of baseball.

PATSY TEBEAU

Fighting manager of the old Cleveland Spiders.

"Rush the other fellows off their feet. Make them think you're tough. Scare them to death and you've got them licked. We used to sit on the bench and file our spikes. They had to be sharp to give when they cut into the ground and at the same time the other team knew we wouldn't give an inch in a pinch. One day I was sharpening my spikes when I heard a man on the other team say, 'When Tebeau slides into me you bet I'm going to get out of the way.' I had him scared, see?

"There's a difference between rowdyism and aggressiveness. The aggressive player will be on top when the parlor boy is at the bottom. Off the field, oh, well, that's different. On the field fight them to the last."

BEN TINCUP IS RICH

Indian Pitcher Plays Ball Only Because He Likes It

The majority of ball players are in the game for the amount of money they can get out of it; a few play it because of their love for the pastime. Ben Tincup belongs to the latter class. Tincup is a Cherokee Indian pitcher the Phillies picked up. He hails from Texas, and is said to be the richest ball player in the world, and probably one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

When the Indian comes of age in a few months his yearly income will be over $50,000 a year. He already has $20,000 stored away in a bank, besides being the possessor of 400 acres of valuable oil lands in Oklahoma, which the Government is leasing for him. So if Tincup fails to make good in the big leagues he won't have any cause to worry.

Since he is one of the few remaining Cherokee Indians, all the Oklahoma lands are held in trust for him. As soon as he is 21 years old he will go to Washington to collect the dividends which are accumulating for him. As Tincup's allotment of land was among the oil fields he is wealthier than many of the other survivors of the Cherokee tribe.

Preparing in Time

Antwerp has already commenced to prepare for the Olympic games, to be held in that city in 1920. A committee has been formed, and the support of the most influential persons in Belgium obtained.

The town authorities are to obtain a vote of several million francs for the expenses, and everything is being done to make the event a huge success. In recent years Belgium has come to the fore in international sports.

Forget Bride For Dog

So anxious was Charles Humar, of Carlisle, Pa., a noted wing shot, to recover a black and white pointer that he had lost that he forgot that it was his wedding day. When he was told an hour before the wedding by his kennel keeper that the dog had disappeared he rushed out of the house and started hunting through the woods of his estate and the wedding party was getting nervous when he was reached by phone after finding his dog. He hurried to the bride's home to explain as best he could that he had "forgotten."

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE

More than one-half of the white population of the empire's dominions is in Canada.

Canada was the first colony to federate its scattered provinces into a dominion, in 1867, an example since followed in part by Australia, New Zealand and South Wales.

Canada was the first dominion of the empire to have a penny post.

Canada made possible the all-British Pacific cable by contributing 5-17 of its cost.

Canada has one-third of the entire area of the British empire.

The Battler Had a Reason

"Suspicion is a terrible thing," said Jimmy Britt, former champion. "One gets so he is afraid to trust anyone. I remember just before I was going to fight Bat Nelson for the championship a newspaper wanted us to pose in fighting position for photographs. We both consented. When we came to pose I was watching Bat and he was eyeing me. Both of us were suspicious. Bat refused to pose at all unless I got in one position and let him assume another. My suspicions were aroused. We wrangled ten minutes. Finally I consented, but was ready to pump him full of right hands if he made a crooked move. Nothing happened, and for years I wondered what the matter was. Then, a short time ago, I met Bat, and we had a long talk. I asked him about it.

"You sure had me guessing," I remarked. "Why did you insist on that position."

"Well," said Bat, "I didn't want this worst cauliflowered ear to show in the picture."

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. WHIPPET RACING AN ENGLISH SPORT

Speedy Little Animals Very Popular in North—They Get the Very Best of Care

In [illegible] the racing dog, or whippet, [illegible] the poor man's racehorse. [illegible] these races are particularly popular amongst the workingmen in the North and Midlands, and also, to a lesser degree, in the South. The whippet resembles a miniature greyhound; he wears a neat cloth coat and a perforated leather muzzle. This prevents him from picking up stray scraps of harmful food, which would not be good for him when training. It also prevents "doping" just before a race.

The different competitors in a race are distinguished from one another by means of different colored collars; and, in order to judge the winner, the judge has a small pit prepared in a line with the winning-post, so that when he gets into pit he is on a level with the dogs, and can see which first crosses the line without any difficulty.

The length of a whippet race is generally from 100 to 200 yards, and the heavier dogs are handicapped when racing against lighter competitors. Each dog is held by a man who acts as starter, and this starting of the whippets is in itself quite an art. The starter holds his dog by the back of the neck and the base of the tail. At the sound of the starting-pistol the man slightly raises the dog from the ground, and tosses him forward. The idea is to drop the dog so that his hind legs touch the ground first, and he can then take up his stride at once.

A good whippet will complete 200 yards in 12 seconds, or 16 yards 2 feet per second. Whippets are trained to race by means of what is technically known as the "rag," or, in other words, a piece of cloth. The animal is taught to run to the man who waves a "rag" at him, and it is in order to reach the rag-wavers that the whippets run down the racecourse at full speed.

The men with the rags stand on the far side of a line ten yards beyond the winning-post. The rag-wavers are placed thus, instead of standing at the winning-post, because the dogs then pass the post going at full speed. If the rag-wavers stood at the post, the dogs would naturally slow up before they reached them, and the race would consequently be spoiled.

The little whippet has a very good time in his master's house. He is very carefully looked after, and is often the pet of the whole family. His diet probably consists largely of bread and mutton, and he is taken out for systematic gallops after the rag. He is groomed as carefully as a racehorse by his devoted owner.

TENNIS FOR LONG LIFE

Thirty Ex-champions Sat Down Together at Banquet

In point of physique and weight, Maurice E. McLoughlin is the most youthful tennis champion the United States ever had. He is only twenty-three years old, and at his best playing weight he tips the scale at 154. The muscular though short Beale C. Wright, the strong William A. Larned, the tall, graceful William J. Clothier, all were mature when they carried the laurels now held by McLoughlin, and all of these champions of a few years ago scaled, when playing tennis, at over 160 pounds. Wright, on one occasion, lost eight pounds in one championship match.

No stronger contrast of tennis champions was ever presented than when, with the exception of three, every champion of the United States for the past thirty-three years sat around a table to celebrate the return of the Davis Cup. If any recommendations were needed for tennis that table loudly voiced its claim. There is probably no other sport that can show such a clear roll-call of champions for a similar length of time. McLoughlin promises to be another physical advertisement for tennis. He is rugged and strong, never afraid of donning the gloves in a friendly bout and can hold his own in a number of other sports. Certainly his physique belies any hint that tennis is a game for the weakling.

CHANCE'S BIG INCOME

Some eight years ago Frank Chance was made manager of the Cubs. At that time he had a bank account of $7,000. When Charles Taft and Charles Murphy bought Hart's interest in the Chicago team they declared Chance in for 10 per cent. of the stock. He paid for it with his dividends. Chance admits that he is now worth $200,000. For looking into the lens of a moving picture camera for 25 minutes he was paid $1,000. His salary for his first season with the New York Americans was $25,000. He owns a 34-acre orange grove in California, and modestly calculates that his yearly income is about $55,000.

Must Pay Real Players

"You can't do anything with cheap talent," says Frank Chance, manager of the New York Americans. "You've got to pay top-notch players big salaries to keep them going. I'd rather have five $5,000-a-year men on my club than fifty $2,000-a-year men. The high-priced man usually plays major league ball." Chance's method of rebuilding a team is simple. He believes in buying every man, without regard to price, that appeals to him.

FORESTRY FACTS

Many engineers, well acquainted with the use of steel and concrete have little knowledge of the advantages possessed by wood for certain kinds of structural work. This lack of knowledge is due to the lack of reliable tables showing the mechanical properties of various Canadian woods. To remedy this want, the Forest Products Laboratories at McGill University, will conduct a series of elaborate tests which will establish the strength of these woods, and make available for structural purposes many tree species whose value for this work is at present doubtful.

Quarrymen in France split enormous blocks of stone by inserting wooden pins in small holes along the proposed line of cleavage and then soaking the pins with water.

The word "forest" was originally derived from the old High German word "Voorst," and, in the middle ages, meant a large tract of land, not necessarily wooded, on which the right to hunt was reserved to the king.

Recent forest surveys conducted by the Dominion Forestry Branch in the wooded region lying to the north of Edmonton in Alberta indicate that very large areas of valuable timber have been destroyed by forest fire within the last twenty-five years. Reproduction is good, however, and the possibilities of the rough, sandy region as a timber producer are indicated by the fact that in the few mature stands remaining white spruce attains a diameter of thirty-six inches, lodgepole pine twenty inches, aspen poplar fifteen inches and paper birch twelve inches.

PERILOUS WISDOM

It is an interesting fact that the ancients knew the secret of malleable crystal. In the time of Tiberius an artisan invented a malleable glass, and the shop in which he worked was wrecked for fear that his discovery would bring about a reduction in the price of bronze, gold and silverware.

Pliny refers to this legend and years after another author relates the same story with variations. According to him, the artisan, who was also an architect, restored from partial ruin one of the handsomest of Roman porches, and Tiberius, having a notorious jealousy of any man who surpassed himself even in matters entirely outside of his province, took a violent dislike to one who, he said, was trying to undermine the well-established order of things. Tiberius pointed out that, if the ancient porch had not been restored, hundreds of workmen might have been given labor in the construction of a new one. The man was accordingly banished. Naturally, the architect reasoned that if he could convince the head of the state of the good that might result from the numerous ideas he had evolved, the emperor would modify his opinion and even assist him in the maturing of certain of his plans. So he went back to Rome and obtained an interview with Tiberius.

The emperor is described as listening patiently to what he had to say and finally demanding proof. For answer he flung to the floor a crystal goblet, which dented, and bent it back into shape with his own hands. He was thereupon condemned to death.

Still another version is that Tiberius in a rage at the imprudence of one who claimed to do what Cæsar could not, smashed the crystal and sat spellbound when the artisan took a hammer and twisting it as if it were copper, made a vase of it. The emperor then calmly asked him what else he could do in the way of wonders, and being told that this was all, had the man executed.

NEW PLAY APPARATUS

Wheeled Platform Propelled by Pushing One Foot

After watching small boys coasting about on home-made vehicles propelled by one foot, a man with youngsters of his own designed a more elaborate affair on the same principle. A low platform is mounted on four wheels, the two axles of the device being connected by a strong steel band, on which the footboard rests. The construction is such that by tilting the footboard to right or left of the wheels will turn in the same direction but the boy will not upset. The long handle is adjustable to any height and is used more for support than for guidance. To operate the vehicle a boy stands with one foot on the platform and with the other foot pushes it ahead until sufficient momentum is attained to carry it on. He then gets aboard with both feet and guides it by throwing the weight of his body on one side or the other.

FARMING IN MANITOBA

The Industry in the Province is Yet in its Infancy

Although the Province of Manitoba is the oldest settled of the prairie provinces, it is well within the truth to state that farming is as yet in its infancy. The area now under cultivation is an amazingly small percentage of the total area available for the production of crops.

The following summary of yields per acre of principal grain crops in Manitoba, shows the situation in a nutshell and will convince the most skeptical that this province is one of the richest districts on the American continent.

Wheat, average for 27 years, 12.29 bushels per acre.

Oats, average for 27 years, 35.60 bushels per acre.

Barley, average for 27 years, 29.87 bushels per acre.

Flax, average for 20 years, 13.16 bushels per acre.

WHY FISHES LEAP

Usually They Have a Good Reason—Not Done in Play

If an angler were asked pointblank why he calls salmon and trout "game fishes" rather than carp and roach, I imagine that he would quote their habit of jumping out of the water when hooked as one of the reasons for which, affording finer sport, they are more game than the coarse fish, writes F. G. Aflalo, in The London Morning Post. It cannot be merely the fact of their taking an artificial fly, for the dace is also commonly caught on it. No, the power of leaping clear of the service, adding, as it does to the glorious uncertainty of bringing them to book, undoubtedly sets these members of the salmon family higher in the sportsman's estimation than the ground-hugging carp tribe. If this be definitely accepted, then the salt water fisherman has a wider purview of game fishes, since the mighty tarpon, the fierce swordfish, the delicate little ladyfish, and many other denizens of seas fulfill the conditions and give far more exciting sport on the rod than those which merely bore or sulk.

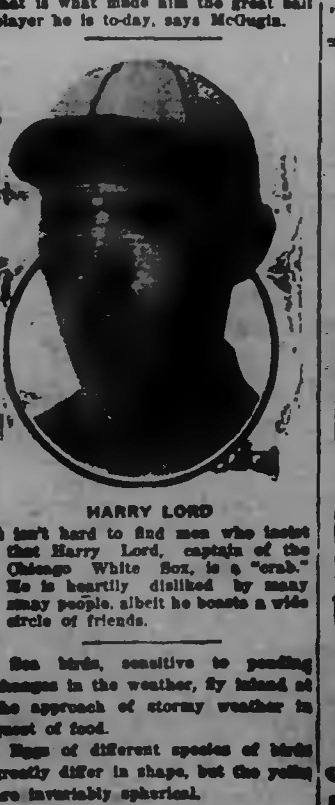
There are two possible reasons why fishes jump out of water. They certainly do not do so like lambs in a meadow, for sheer joy of life. If you see small fry jumping in a lake, as likely as not an old pike or trout is on their track. Such larger fishes as attract the angler do not jump to escape their enemies, but are either jumping after flies or some other natural food, or shaking off parasites. The tarpon, to the best of my belief, jumps only when in trouble of this kind, and then, if not too tired, it will jump every time the rod is jerked after it has been hooked. The fish that gives the most striking displays of leaping in the Gulf of Mexico is the gigantic whipray, and its object is quite evident, for I have seen these great fish fling off three or four remoras in the sunshine. The remora, or sucking-fish, is frequently found adhering to sharks and rays, and to carry a number of these about must be weary work. And so the whipray jumps to shake off its remoras as a dog might try to shake itself free of fleas.

Now and again both salmon and trout are known to jump into boats. In one case I knew of, a fifteen-pound salmon jumped clean into the lap of a lady fishing in the Duke of Richmond's water on the Spey. Porpoises are also notorious acrobats, jumping more continuously than any fish, and one of these marine mammals once jumped into the skiff of a sportsman and knocked him overboard. The only fish known deliberately to charge its captor's boat when hooked is the tremendous swordfish, caught on the rod on both sides of America, and the effect of a swordfish careering along, as it were, on its tail, seemingly erect, is alarming to anyone unaccustomed to such demonstrations. The others, tarpon and the rest, come in collision with the boat only by accident, and the rarity with which such accidents occur must often have struck those of us who have watched huge tarpon repeatedly fall back in the water within a foot or so of the gunwale.

TYRUS HAS BRAINS

Might Have Developed Into a Star Football Player

In the opinion of Dan McGugin, the famous Michigan football player, Ty Cobb would have made just as great a name for himself as a football player as a diamond star had he stuck to the gridiron game. The reason why Cobb became a baseball star, says McGugin, is because he made a careful study of the game. Some years ago Ty was at Nashville, Tenn., and tried out his hand at football. The first couple of weeks he was a joke. But later, after he had learned something, he was drop kicking better than any man there. Ty wasn't a natural footballer, but he used his brains. And that is what made him the great ball player he is to-day, says McGugin.



HARRY LORD

It isn't hard to find men who insist that Harry Lord, captain of the Chicago White Sox, is a "crab." He is heartily disliked by many many people, albeit he boasts a wide circle of friends.

Sea birds, sensitive to pending changes in the weather, fly inland at the approach of stormy weather in quest of food.

Eggs of different species of birds greatly differ in shape, but the yolks are invariably spherical.

Sunny Jim's Mule Gone.

Yesterday the trick horse north of Mr. Crane's garage on Park street, after being vacant for some weeks, was taken by another tenant. The former occupant, it will be remembered bought Sunny Jim Wilson's mule. Alas! The merry carols and midnight roundelays of that mule will never be heard in this vicinity again.

Revoy Gets Two Months.

At yesterday's police court Fred Revoy was up for sentence on a charge of stealing a large amount of money. Mr. Widdifield asked for clemency for the prisoner. The magistrate replied that he always gave heavy penalties to those who rob drunken men. Revoy was given two months in the County jail.

Millbrook Soldiers Leave

Millbrook, Oct. 29.—Yesterday, the first volunteers enlisted at Millbrook for active service at home or abroad left by the noon train for Port Hope, and later for Kingston, where they will be instructed in the various duties of soldiers, before proceeding to join the Overseas Canadian force for service at the front.

The dairymen of this section have responded nobly to the call for funds for patriotic purposes, and the sum of $1,007.63 has been raised from the proceeds of one day's make of cheese from the factories on the Campbellford Board Trent river factory contributed the largest amount, $160.

A Mean Thief.

W. Rose was yesterday charged with stealing $6 from a local woman. He elected for summary trial and pleaded guilty. It seems that the girl boards with prisoner's parents. She works at the Bonner-Worth and had just got out of the hospital. Prisoner on July 12th, 1912, was sent to the local jail for theft. The prisoner was given two months in jail on the present charge.

Yesterday's Police Court.

At yesterday's police court, William Heard was charged with having been found drunk. The prisoner did not know whether he had been drunk and did not remember being arrested. Chief Thompson, in the witness box, said Heard was so drunk in the cell he could not stand up. He was fined with costs $6.30. Heard comes from the 7th line of Smith.

What's Wrong Here?

The total amount so far donated to the Patriotic Fund is $4,980.77 and the total amount used is $912.75. Of this amount $900 has been given Relief Officer Miller. It seems strange that Peterborough's Patriotic Fund should only be in the neighborhood of $5,000 while Lindsay's amounts to $8,774.30 and the residents of that town anticipate realizing $10,000.

A Plucky Patriot.

A young Englishman, who had hoped to go to the war, walked all the way from his place of employment at a farm near Rice Lake, some fifteen miles, on Wednesday. He could not pass the examination, on account of an affliction of the limbs. He arrived here about seven o'clock and when he was informed that his application could not be accepted, the young fellow disappeared before the officers could assist him, in his return journey, which he evidently made on foot.

YOU'RE BILIOUS AND COSTIVE--"CASCARETS"

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, means Liver and Bowels Clogged—Clean up tonight.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with an undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Lindsay Cops after Boer.

Chief Short has received a circular from the Pinkerton Detective Agency in which a reward of $200 is offered for the arrest of one, Peter J. Le Roux, who has absconded with funds belonging to the Adams Express Co. Le Roux is said to be a Boer, is twenty years of age, 5 feet 11½ inches high and weighs 165 pounds. The two middle fingers of his right hand are off and he is said to be some piano player. He was anxious to join the Canadian contingent, believing he could secure passage to Pretoria, South Africa. If you run across this individual, just hang on to him and when he is locked up claim the reward. GIRLS! STOP WASHING THE HAIR WITH SOAP

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still use soap as sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed. your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.

STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC BY MISS WEIR

Louis Sukloff always assured me when I enquired as to the reason of his numerous absences, that Principal Kenner of the Collegiate Institute, had accepted his reasons and excuses, and this concluded the matter as far as I was concerned, until I found that the same thing was being repeated again this Fall. I deemed it wise to call the attention of Principal Kenner to the fact, and let him act if he so desired, but if he did not so desire, then I felt he might leave the way open for me to act in the matter, for I always recognized that it was the place of the Principal to act in a matter of this kind, if he felt so inclined, and in the event of his not acting, then it was my duty to take the matter up.

At my suggestion, Louis Sukloff prepared and signed a statement, of the reasons for absence, which is in the following words: "I, Louis Sukloff, fifteen years of age, on Monday and Tuesday, the fifth and sixth days of October, which are Jewish National holidays of a semi-religious nature, state that I was at perfect liberty to come to school if I so desired. (Signed) Louis Sukloff."

The pupil was sent to Principal Kenner with this statement of facts, and to this, according to Principal Kenner's report to the Supervision committee, is what he takes exception. I suggested that the statement be given to the Principal, because I deemed it wise to ascertain whether this pupil honestly required to be absent or not. The question was then considered closed, until after Thanksgiving, and Louis Sukloff and I, were as we have always been, on the most friendly terms. Whether the Principal told Sukloff or not to bring a note in future absences, I do not know, but Sukloff consented to bring one and indicated his willingness most freely, and, after this incident early in October, brought it. I did not open the note at the time, but opened it sometime after the difficulty had arisen with the boy, and I then discovered, that the note was not written by either of the parents. I excluded him from the room for refusing to present a proper excuse for absence, and he remained stubbornly in the room and went to Mr. Crane. Louis Sukloff's father has told me that a person in authority at the school had advised his son to resist my authority and go to Mr. Crane. It is admitted that the note was not written by either parent of Sukloff. Louis Sukloff finally admitted that the note was written by the maid servant at his home, but with his mother's knowledge. I said I wanted to be sure f it being written with his mother's knowledge, and that I expected that he would bring me a note in the hand writing of either parent, stating the cause of his absence, and that the note which he had presented, written by the maid servant, had not met with that requirement. The pupil absolutely refused to do this.

According to the statement of the boy's father, Mr. Crane went to see Mr. Sukloff, who gave his version of it to Mr. Crane. I further understand from Mr. Sukloff, that he told Mr. Crane that he would support me even if his son's contention were right, but that he did not criticise my action of blaming the son.

A Supervision committee meeting was called for Thursday night of last week, I understand, although I knew nothing about it at that time. The Principal's report was to be dealt with at this particular meeting so I am informed, but I received no notice of it, and the result of the meeting apparently was, that on Monday morning, Principal Kenner spoke hurriedly to me in one of the school corridors, saying, "You had no business to keep Sukloff out of his class. Let him in. Crane says so, too." I acknowledged his instructions with a smile and passed into the room, and I felt that I required to act at once in the interest of discipline in my class. I asked Louis Sukloff why he was there without my consent, and he stated defiantly and impudently, "I am here by a higher authority than you, and I will not go." I said, "I fear you must." He said, "I will not." I then said, "You must if I have to forcibly take you." As he refused to go, I ejected him from the room. He was not struck. I simply took him by the shoulder and took him from the room.

These are briefly the facts upon which the committee acted, and I desire to leave this for the consideration of the ratepayers, in order that it may be ascertained, whether or not, the opinion of the public is that the School Board have acted fairly and frankly with this case. I will give a further statement of facts later on, but these I desire to put before the public, so that no misunderstanding may arise.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Annie Weir.

A Petrograd despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says the number of Austrian prisoners brought into Kiep since the commencement of the war has reached a total of 160,000.

Russian Official.

The following official communication was issued at Petrograd from General Headquarters:

"In the battle which has been in progress for four days south of the Pilica River, in the forests on the line extending from the Bialogura Bialaberzegi) to Gniewwossow, Policzna and Janowisc, our troops have inflicted upon the Austro-German forces a severe defeat. Between the Pilica and Glowaczow the heroic efforts of our troops definitely broke down on Oct 26 the resistance of the 20th Corps and the Reserve Guard Corps of the Germans.

"On the centre, after fighting of an extremely desperate character, we succeeded in establishing a firm foothold on the border of a forest in the region of the villages of Adamoff, Severinoff and Marianoff.

"On the left wing we captured by assault a defensive position established at Policzna and enveloped a portion of the Austrian troops near Berzeje.

"South of Przemysl our troops are advancing at certain points.

"In East Prussia the enemy has violently bombarded our positions in the operations in the region of Dakalarjevo. Repeated attacks have all been repulsed.

"The success which we have won to the south of the Pilica and the result of which was the retreat of the enemy on the main front, is of the very greatest importance."

Germans Admit Defeat.

The German and Austrian troops in Poland, according to an official announcement issued in Berlin last evening, have been forced to withdraw before fresh Russian forces advancing from Ivangorod, Warsaw, and Novogeorgievsk after having repulsed all former Russian attacks. The official statement continued: "At first the Russians did not follow and the withdrawal of our troops took place without difficulty. The reserve troops will change their formation according to the situation."

An official statement issued on Wednesday at noon by the Austrian General Headquarters, says: "In Galicia yesterday there was no change. In some parts of the line our adversaries are strongly entrenched. Our heavy artillery destroyed several points of support of the hostile batteries."

Germans Rush Reinforcements.

Berlin, via The Hague, Oct. 29.—Admitting that the Germans operating in Russian Poland were forced to retreat because of the immense superiority of numbers of the Russians, the War Office, in a laconic statement supplementing the original declaration issued today, says:

"We are again resuming the offensive."

It is understood that strong additional reinforcements have been sent to the east to aid this movement.

MARVELOUS BALSAMIC ESSENCES CURE CATARRA NO DRUGS TO TAKE - A DIRECT BREATHINF CURE

STATISTICS PROVE NINETY-SEVEN PER CENT OF CANADA'S POPULATION IS INFESTED WITH THE GERMS OF CATARRH

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend to the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national curse. Science is advancing every day, and fortunately a remedy has been discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment "Catarrhozone" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of the nose, throat and lungs, carrying health-giving medication to every spot that is tainted or weak. You don't take Catarrhozone like cough mixture—you inhale its healing vapor at the mouth and it spreads all through the breathing organs, soothing and curing wherever Catarrh exists. This is nature's way of supplying the richest balsams, the purest antiseptics known to science.

A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes. A harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system.

For Asthma and Bronchial irritation nothing can equal Catarrhozone—every physician and druggist says so, and we advise our readers to try this treatment if suffering with a winter ill. The complete outfit costs $1.00, medium size 50c., at all dealers.

Calls It Menace to England.

Petrograd, Oct. 29, (via London,) Oct. 30.—In the highest official sources here, it is stated that Russia views the action of Turkey in bombarding two unfortified Russian ports without a declaration of war as infinitely more important to England than to Russia on account of the English communications with India and her position in Egypt. Although Russia, it is stated, now has a new war on her hands, her policy will not be one of general aggression against Turkey, but merely a defense of her own interests in the Black Sea. It is pointed out that the allies had previously guaranteed the integrity of Turkey only if she remained neutral.

Farahdine Bey, the Turkish Ambassador here, said tonight: "I have had no instructions from Constantinople, communications now being cut, and have heard only from the Russian newspapers about Turkey beginning war. I am now in the hands of the Russian Government whose instructions I am awaiting.

"I am sorry that my labor to improve the relations of the two countries has had so disastrous an ending. What moved the Sultan's Government to take this step is absolutely unknown to me. I am sure I have nothing to fear personally."

Russians Show Hostility.

While giving this interview in the Turkish Embassy a clamorous throng surrounded the building, manifesting against Turkey. The people were restrained from violence, by mounted gendarmes.

Germans Tired Of The War Threw Off Uniforms And Fled

London. Oct. 30.—A despatch to the Central News Agency from Amsterdam says. It is reported that a hundred German soldiers have discarded their uniforms and crossed from Belgium into Dutch territory.

In a despatch from Amsterdam a correspondent of the Central News quotes the representative at Ostend of the newspaper Tyd to the effect that thousands of wounded Germans are returning from the battlefield in Flanders Loaded into all kinds of vehicles the sad procession of wounded men is moving northward; those not so seriously hurt are traveling on foot

See Many Unburied Bodies.

Thousands of unburied bodies cover the battle ground, the correspondent continues, and no one can form an adequate idea of the awful number of victims falling every moment in this mad fight.

Between Lepe and Middlekerke the German guns have ceased firing for the reason that the shells would kill German troops, as well as the soldiers of the allies. Consequently only hand-to-hand fighting is taking place.

Advices received here say Paris regards as highly favorable the situation this morning in Flanders. It is to be noticed in official circles there prevails an air of satisfaction surpassing the impression created by the official communications. The second visit of President Poincare to the battle front is regarded as a good sign and is taken to presage important developments

Probable Attack in Alsace.

Military critics regard the prolonged assaults of the Germans along the Yser as having failed, and they expect that the enemy, following their custom, will now make another effort elsewhere. The great activity in Upper Alsace during the last few days suggests an attack from that quarter. It is declared here that all the German wounded at Saint Louis have been taken across the Rhine and that all applications for safe conducts in upper Alsace have been refused.

A NEW PRINCIPLE IN COMPLEXION TREATMENT

Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a permanent, soggy, stifling film which interferes with eliminative action and makes the skin sickly and pasty. There is an application—mercolised wax—which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless, it has the peculiar property of removing by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of scarf-skin, as well as unhealthy matter in the pores. Thus it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion, differing in this respect from cosmetics. The result is a perfectly natural and healthy young complexion. Mercolised wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient), is applied at night like cold cream and washed o in the morning.

The correct principle in the treatment of wrinkles is to tighten the skin, which naturally irons out the lines. A face bath, remarkably effective in this direction, may be made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

Belgians Flood The Germans Out Allies Advance Almost Everywhere

Foe Retreats to the North East. Allies Plan of Campaign is Progressing Just as Maped Out. British Again Take the Offensive and Retake Ceded Positions, Turks Shell Liner

PARIS, OCT. 30.—THE FRENCH OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT, GIVEN OUT IN PARIS THIS AFTERNOON, SAYS:

"ON THE EXTREME LEFT, INANDATIONS BROUGHT ABOUT BY THE BELGIAN ARMY IN THE LOWER VALLEY OF THE RIVER YSER, HAVE COMPELLED THE FORCES OF THE ENEMY WHICH HAS PASSED THIS RIVER TO WITHDRAW. THEY WERE SUBJECTED TO A VIOLENT CANNONADE BY THE BELGIAN AND FRENCH ARTILLERY DURING THEIR MOVEMENT TO RETREAT.

"THE GERMANS ENDEAVORED YESTERDAY TO DELIVER VERY VIOLENT COUNTER-ATTACKS ON THE FRENCH AND BRITISH ARMY CORPS WHICH ARE PROGRESSING TO THE NORTHEAST AND TO THE EAST OF YPRES. AT THE END OF THE DAY OUR TROOPS HAD, NOTWITHSTANDING, CONTINUED THEIR FORWARD MOVEMENT IN THE DIRECTION WHICH HAD BEEN ASSIGNED THEM AND HAD ALSO TAKEN POSSESSION OF VARIOUS POINTS OF SUPPORT.

"The British troops, assailed at several points to the north of La Bassee by superior forces, resumed the offensive with energy and reconquered to a considerable extent the terrain yielded to the enemy. At several other points on their line of combat, the British troops repulsed the attacks of the Germans, inflicting on them important losses.

"On the remainder of the front there has been no general action, only partly offensive movements on our part as well as on the part of the enemy. We have made progress almost everywhere, notably before certain villages between Arras and Albert, upon the heights of the right bank of the Aisne down stream from Soissons, and here and there along the Meuse to the north of Verdun."

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR WITHDRAWN

London, Oct. 30.—The Russian Ambassador at Constantinople has been withdrawn according to official announcement made here today, and in consequence of the Turkish attacks on Russian ports, instructions have been sent Russian consuls in Turkey to leave the country.

Bordeaux, Oct. 30.—It was announced officially here today that two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers entered the port of Odessa, on the Black Sea, yesterday, and sank a Russian gunboat. They also inflicted damage on the French liner Portugal."

IS THIS TRUE ASKS BRITAIN B. COOKE

A certain charge has been made against YOU—against the Canadian people. The writer of this article does not lay the charge, nor does The Canadian Magazine, but men in many walks of Canadian life do lay it. IS IT TRUE?

It is charged first, that Canadians are loyal to their respective towns, except Canadians! That they are loyal to England. That they are loyal to the British Empire. That they are loyal to their respective towns, counties, provinces, and even to Canada as a whole; but that, as between Province and Province, as between Western consumer and Eastern producer in short, as between Canadian and Canadian, there is often a lack of loyalty! It is said that Canadians often seem to lack confidence in the handiwork of Canadians that they want to see the seal of foreign approval on goods before they approve for themselves; that they can be led to admire what comes from outside Canada more easily than that which is originated by fellow Canadians inside Canada; that they will insure their lives in foreign insurance corporations sooner than with the equally strong Canadian concerns; that they even prefer, when they have holidays to spend or trips to take, to spend the holidays or make the trip outside Canada rather than in it!

It is said that Canadian millionaires will pay two thousand dollars to a Dutch art dealer for a small canvas covered with a "smudge and a signature," while the Canadian artists—many of whom have been recognized abroad—have sometimes to eke out a living by drawing advertising pictures, largely because these millionaires pay even leading Canadian artists only a fraction of the rate which they willingly pay Dutch brokers.

It is said that a certain Russian music teacher enjoyed such large fees and such a tremendous clientele of Canadian pupils while he was in London that, like any other logical man, he argued he would do better still to go to Canada and so gain the extra pupils who could not come to him in London; that he came and he lost money; that the disciples of Orpheus would not believe a really good music teacher would deign to come to Canada to teach.

This case is cited: Three young men inherited a considerable legacy, carrying with it a provision that it must be spent in travel. They secured leave of absence from their business and made a grand tour of Europe. All they know of Canada is Toronto, where they live; Muskoka where usually they have spent their summer holidays; Montreal, where two of them are "courting" young women, and Cobourg, where they were born. Their daily income comes from a business dependent upon the Western Canadian farmer, yet they have never been west of the Lambton Golf Club, and they are planning a trip next year—where? To Winnipeg? To the Pacific coast? Through our Maritime Provinces? No. To the Bahamas.

A man is named who would not think of buying, seriously, for his library, a book printed in Canada, if he could get the same volume from an English or American press.

A housewife is mentioned who has never tried Canadian cheese—recognized by foreign epicures—on her table; she buys imported cheese. Another housewife was told of who lives in a town near Montreal; she won't even buy her granulated sugar or flannelette from her local retailer, but sends to Montreal for it! A real estate dealer in Winnipeg who made all his money from Canadian land, and in short who owes everything he has, including his wife and family, to Canada, is cited as having bought a foreign-made automobile, while workmen in a Canadian branch factory, who had bought lots from him, were

TURKEY NOW ENTERS THE WAR SHELLED ODESSA AND SUNK BOAT

Considerable American Property Destroyed, Russian Consuls Leave Turkey--Russia Will Declare, and Glad of Opportunity to Settle Scores With the Turks--Britain Warns Turkey Not to Cross the Frontier

Bordeaux, Oct. 30.—It was announced officially here today that two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers entered the port of Odessa, on the Black Sea, yesterday, and sank a Russian gunboat.

They also inflicted damage on the French liner Portugal

American Property Destroyed

Washington, Oct. 30.—Acting Secretary of State Lansing today announced receipt of a telegram from the American Charge d'Affaires at Petrograd saying Odessa has been bombarded and some American property destroyed.

Russian Consuls Leave Turkey

London, Oct. 30.— The Russian ambassador at Constantinople has been withdrawn, according to official announcement made here today, and in consequence of the Turkish attacks on Russian ports instructions have been sent Russian consuls in Turkey to leave the country.

Warn Turks of Danger.

Constantinople, (via London), Oct. 30.—In anticipation of the possible invasion of Egyptian territory, British Ambassador Mallet, acting under instructions from his Government, has plainly informed the Grand Vizier, that if the Turks cross the frontier, it would mean war with the Entente powers.

It is understood that the Embassies of the allied powers, fearing a rupture, have already made the necessary arrangements for the departure of the diplomatic representatives.

HOSPITAL SHIP WRECKED IN FIERCE GALE

Some of the Crew, Nurses and Medical Staff Rescued From Shore--Every Woman on Board is Saved Regretable Accident

London. Oct. 30.—Signals of distress have been sent up since last night off Whitby, on the Yorkshire coast, from a steamship believed to be the Rohilla, a British vessel of 7,000 tons, being used as a hospital ship.

Early this morning four seamen were found among some wreckage thrown upon the coast, they having evidently tried to swim to shore. Among the wreckage was the name Rohilla, of Glasgow. One of the seamen still is living. Tremendous seas are breaking over the vessel and the members of the crew can be seen in the rigging. The Rohilla was bound from Queens Ferry, to Belgium to bring back wounded from France. She ran on the rocks half a mile south of Whitby, 17 miles northwest of Scarborough at four o'clock this morning during a southeast gale and rainstorm.

The vessel carried four nurses and several doctors and full hospital equipment. All the women on board have been saved. Every one of her boats, except the last one launched, was smashed by the seas and washed ashore. The remaining boat was swamped near shore and the people in it waded to safety.

Life boats with extreme difficulty, brought ashore two loads of the vessel's passengers, after which further attempts at rescue with the boats were abandoned. With 58 persons still clinging to the vessel, which had her after end broken off, hopes are entertained for rescuing them. Efforts are being made to get assistance from other ports.

LONDON OFFICIAL CIRCLES THINK MAY TRY TO EVADE RESPONSIBILITY

For Offensive Action of Her War Vessels by Shouldering Blameon German Commanders--The Allies Have Anticipated Aggression From Turkey, and are Prepared to Make War--Russia Has Big Force Ready

London, Oct. 30.—The statement is expressed in official circles that the Turkish Government may conceivably try to disassociate itself from the action of its warships in the Black Sea in bombarding Russian ports, including Odessa.

It is suggested that the Porte when it hears the comment of the allied Governments, may throw the onus for this course on shoulders of the German commanders of its warships and declare that they acted without orders from the officials.

It is said in London that a demand on the Porte that the German officers and crews now in the Turkish navy be sent home within 24 hours will be made.

The line of battle, as result of the entry of the Ottoman Empire into the international struggle, stretches in an almost unbroken diagonal line across Europe, and it may reach from the Atlantic to the Indian ocean, as Turkey's adherence to the Teutonic side of the quarrel can hardly be a solitary new factor in the war which is gradually engulfing the eastern hemisphere.

Greece, Rumania and Bulgaria are practically certain to be drawn into the conflict which already is engaging ten nations and the ultimate inclusion of Italy and Persia, with perhaps the Asiatic lands to the eastward of the latter country, is today regarded here as scarcely less probable.

Allies To Follow Suit?

Hot on the heels of the Turkish offensive movement against a Russian port on the Black Sea has followed what amounts to a declaration of war by Emperor Nicholas in the form of instructions to his ambassador and his consuls to quit Turkey forthwith, and this will be followed promptly by similar action on the part of each of the allied Governments. The appearance of the allied fleet off the Dardanelles will be a natural sequence.

The intervention of the Porte, since its persistent disregard of the warnings of Great Britain, France, and Russia, has been anticipated and is said to have been thoroughly prepared for. It is accepted in London as another proof of the German need to endeavor to draw off the Russian forces from Poland and Galicia. The Muscovites, however, have a large and growing reserve which they claim is quite capable of attending to the Turkish factor without depleting the armies now in the field

Hungary and Servia Exhausted

These latter, apparently, are making steady progress towards the entrenched positions on the River Warthe in Russian Poland, where the Germans undoubtedly will make another attempt to rend their enemy. The Russian reoccupation of Czernowitz, in Bukowina, is considered important as this town is a railroad junction, and its possession frees another railroad line to Lodz, which is in possession of the Russian troops.

Rumors are again current in London today that Hungary, weary of a war in which she has nothing to gain, would welcome a chance to quit. It is suggested also that Servia soon may be compelled to retire within her own borders and assume a purely defensive role in consequence of the national exhaustion resulting from the fighting off three campaigns in as many years.

Turkey Takes Foolish Step Must Get Out Of Europe

London, Oct. 30.—The Times, commenting today on its Petrograd despatches reporting the Turkish bombardment of peaceful seacoast towns, says:

"The situation in the near East has developed logically. For some weeks past, the influences controlling the Ottoman Government have been working to provoke the allies into declaring war on Turkey. These efforts have been in vain as the allied powers were determined not to be the aggressors.

Found Egyptians Ready.

"They met acts of provocation, like the incorporation of the German cruisers Breslau and Goben in the Turkish navy and the abolition of the capitulations merely by protests. Then a sort of ultimatum was addressed to England regarding the watch kept upon the mouth of the Dardanelles. This also failed, but finally the Turks began a military demonstration against the Egyptian frontier but they found all preparations made for an attack.

Sultan Was Made to Fight.

"Now comes the bombardment of the Russian towns. It is believed that the Sultan and some of his advisers favored a policy of neutrality, but that they have been overborne by the Committee of Union and Progress which is bent on war.

"Great numbers of Turkish troops are supposed to be massed along the Russian frontier where the problem of feeding them must be arduous. To the south of the Ottoman forces are believed to be echeloned through southern Syria and Palestine, with forces actually upon the Egyptian frontier at Rafa on the Mediterranean and Akaba on the Red Sea.

Quite Ready For Turkey.

"The allies are quite ready for Turkey. All preparations have been made by England in any port along the banks of the Suez Canal and the Peninsula of Sinai. Greece too is ready as Turkey will soon discover.

"By her foolish yielding to the instigations of Germany, Turkey has pronounced her own doom. The Ottoman Empire in Europe will soon be merely a memory. Since the Turks are resolved on self-destruction we do not regret her appearance in the ranks of the combatants.

"The present mighty struggle will mean for Europe not only the end of Prussian militarism, but also the end of the Turks in Europe.

London, Oct. 30.--A despatch to The Times from Berlin via Copenhagen, asserts that preparations are being made in the German capital for the public proclamation of the annexation of Belgium which is mentioned officially as "the happy German reichstand under the illustrious sceptre of Kaiser Wilhelm Von Belgium"

Calls It Menace to England.

Petrograd, Oct. 29, (via London,) Oct. 30.--In the highest official sources here, it is stated that Russia views the action of Turkey in bombarding two unfortified Russian ports without a declaration of war as infinitely more important to England than to Russia on account of the English communications with India and her position in Egypt. Although Russia, it is stated, now has a new war on her hands, her policy will not be one of general aggression against Turkey, but merely a defense of her own interests in the Black Sea. It is pointed out that the allies had previously guaranteed the integrity of Turkey only if she remained neutral.

Farahdine Bey, the Turkish Ambassador here, said tonight: "I have had no instructions from Constantinople, communications now being cut, and have heard only from the Russian newspapers about Turkey beginning war. I am now in the hands of the Russian Government whose instructions I am awaiting.

"I am sorry that my labor to improve the relations of the two countries has had so disastrous an ending. What moved the Sultan's Government to take this step is absolutely unknown to me. I am sure I have nothing to fear personally."

Russians Show Hostility.

While giving this interview in the Turkish Embassy a clamorous throng surrounded the building, manifesting against Turkey. The people were restrained from violence, by mounted gendarmes.

Germans Tired Of The War Threw Off Uniforms And Fled

London. Oct. 30.--A despatch to the Central News Agency from Amsterdam says: It is reported that a hundred German soldiers have discarded their uniforms and crossed from Belgium into Dutch territory.

In a despatch from Amsterdam a correspondent of the Central News quotes the representative at Ostend of the newspaper Tyd to the effect that thousands of wounded Germans are returning from the battlefield in Flanders. Loaded into all kinds of vehicles the sad procession of wounded men is moving northward; those not so seriously hurt are traveling on foot

See Many Unburied Bodies.

Thousands of unburied bodies cover the battle ground, the correspondent continues, and no one can form an adequate idea of the awful number of victims falling every moment in this mad fight.

Between Lope and Middlekerke the German guns have ceased firing for the reason that the shells would kill German troops, as well as the soldiers of the allies. Consequently only hand-to-hand fighting is taking place.

Advices received here say Paris regards as highly favorable the situation this morning in Flanders. It is to be noticed in official circles there prevails an air of satisfaction surpassing the impression created by the official communications. The second visit of President Poincare to the battle front is regarded as a good sign and is taken to presage important developments

Probable Attack in Alsace.

Military critics regard the prolonged assaults of the Germans along the Yser as having failed, and they expect that the enemy, following their custom, will now make another effort elsewhere. The great activity in Upper Alsace during the last few days suggests an attack from that quarter.

It is declared here that all the German wounded at Saint Louis have been taken across the Rhine and that all applications for safe conducts in upper Alsace have been refused.

Belgians Flood The Germans Out Allies Advance Almost Everywhere

Foe Retreats to the North East. Allies Plan of Campaign is Progressing Just as Maped Out. British Again Take the Offensive and Retake Ceded Positions, Turks Shell Liner

PARIS, OCT. 30.--THE FRENCH OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT, GIVEN OUT IN PARIS THIS AFTERNOON, SAYS:

"ON THE EXTREME LEFT, INANDATIONS BROUGHT ABOUT BY THE BELGIAN ARMY IN THE LOWER VALLEY OF THE RIVER YSER, HAVE COMPELLED THE FORCES OF THE ENEMY WHICH HAS PASSED THIS RIVER TO WITHDRAW. THEY WERE SUBJECTED TO A VIOLENT CANNONADE BY THE BELGIAN AND FRENCH ARTILLERY DURING THEIR MOVEMENT TO RETREAT.

"THE GERMANS ENDEAVORED YESTERDAY TO DELIVER VERY VIOLENT COUNTER-ATTACKS ON THE FRENCH AND BRITISH ARMY CORPS WHICH ARE PROGRESSING TO THE NORTHEAST AND TO THE EAST OF YPRES. AT THE END OF THE DAY OUR TROOPS HAD, NOTWITHSTANDING, CONTINUED THEIR FORWARD MOVEMENT IN THE DIRECTION WHICH HAD BEEN ASSIGNED THEM AND HAD ALSO TAKEN POSSESSION OF VARIOUS POINTS OF SUPPORT.

"The British troops, assailed at several points to the north of La Bassee by superior forces, resumed the offensive with energy and reconquered to a considerable extent the terrain yielded to the enemy. At several other points on their line of combat, the British troops repulsed the attacks of the Germans, inflicting on them important losses.

"On the remainder of the front there has been no general action, only partly offensive movements on our part as well as on the part of the enemy. We have made progress almost everywhere, notably before certain villages between Arras and Albert, upon the heights of the right bank of the Aisne down stream from Soissons, and here and there along the Meuse to the north of Verdun."

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR WITHDRAWN

London, Oct. 30.--The Russian Ambassador at Constantinople has been withdrawn according to official announcement made here today, and in consequence of the Turkish attacks on Russian ports, instructions have been sent Russian consuls in Turkey to leave the country.

Bordeaux, Oct. 30.--It was announced officially here today that two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers entered the port of Odessa, on the Black Sea, Yesterday, and sank a Russian gunboat. They also inflicted damage on the French liner Portugal.

IS THIS TRUE ASKS BRITAIN B. COOKE

A certain charge has been made against YOU--against the Canadian people. The writer of this article does not lay the charge, nor does The Canadian Magazine, but men in many walks of Canadian life do lay it. IS IT TRUE?

It is charged first, that Canadians are loyal to their respective towns, except Canadians! That they are loyal to England. That they are loyal to the British Empire. That they are loyal to their respective towns, counties, provinces, and even to Canada as a whole; but that, as between Province and Province, as between Western consumer and Eastern producer in short, as between Canadian and Canadian, there is often a lack of loyalty! It is said that Canadians often seem to lack confidence in the handiwork of Canadians that they want to see the seal of foreign approval on goods before they approve for themselves; that they can be led to admire what comes from outside Canada more easily than that which is originated by fellow Canadians inside Canada; that they will insure their lives in foreign insurance corporations sooner than with the equally strong Canadian concerns; that they even prefer, when they have holidays to spend or trips to take, to spend the holidays or make the trip outside Canada rather than in it!

It is said that Canadian millionaires will pay two thousand dollars to a Dutch art dealer for a small canvas covered with a "smudge and a signature," while the Canadian artists--many of whom have been recognized abroad--have sometimes to eke out a living by drawing advertising pictures, largely because these millionaires pay even leading Canadian artists only a fraction of the rate which they willingly pay Dutch brokers.

It is said that a certain Russian music teacher enjoyed such large fees and such a tremendous clientele of Canadian pupils while he was in London that, like any other logical man, he argued he would do better still to go to Canada and so gain the extra pupils who could not come to him in London; that he came and he lost money; that the disciples of Orpheus would not believe a really good music teacher would deign to come to Canada to teach.

This case is cited: Three young men inherited a considerable legacy, carrying with it a provision that it must be spent in travel. They secured leave of absence from their business and made a grand tour of Europe. All they know of Canada is Toronto, where they live; Muskoka where usually they have spent their summer holidays; Montreal, where two of them are "courting" young women, and Cobourg, where they were born. Their daily income comes from a business dependent upon the Western Canadian farmer, yet they have never been west of the Lambton Golf Club, and they are planning a trip next year--where? To Winnipeg? To the Pacific coast? Through our Maritime Provinces? No. To the Bahamas.

A man is named who would not think of buying, seriously, for his library, a book printed in Canada, if he could get the same volume from an English or American press.

A housewife is mentioned who has never tried Canadian cheese--recognized by foreign epicures--on her table; she buys imported cheese. Another housewife was told of who lives in a town near Montreal; she won't even buy her granulated sugar or flannelette from her local retailer, but sends to Montreal for it! A real estate dealer in Winnipeg who made all his money from Canadian land, and in short who owes everything he has, including his wife and family, to Canada, is cited as having bought a foreign-made automobile, while workmen in a Canadian branch factory, who had bought lots from him, were

TURKEY NOW ENTERS THE WAR SHELLED ODESSA AND SUNK BOAT

Considerable American Property Destroyed, Russian Consuls Leave Turkey--Russia Will Declare, and Glad of Opportunity to Settle Scores With the Turks--Britain Warns Turkey Not to Cross the Frontier

Bordeaux, Oct. 30.--It was announced officially here today that two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers entered the port of Odessa, on the Black Sea, yesterday, and sank a Russian gunboat.

They also inflicted damage on the French liner Portugal

American Property Destroyed

Washington, Oct. 30.--Acting Secretary of State Lansing today announced receipt of a telegram from the American Charge d'Affaires at Petrograd saying Odessa has been bombarded and some American property destroyed.

Russian Consuls Leave Turkey

London, Oct. 30.-- The Russian ambassador at Constantinople has been withdrawn, according to official announcement made here today, and in consequence of the Turkish attacks on Russian ports instructions have been sent Russian consuls in Turkey to leave the country.

Warn Turks of Danger.

Constantinople, (via London), Oct. 30.--In anticipation of the possible invasion of Egyptian territory, British Ambassador Mallet, acting under instructions from his Government, has plainly informed the Grand Vizier, that if the Turks cross the frontier, it would mean war with the Entente powers.

It is understood that the Embassies of the allied powers, fearing a rupture, have already made the necessary arrangements for the departure of the diplomatic representatives.

HOSPITAL SHIP WRECKED IN FIERCE GALE

Some of the Crew, Nurses and Medical Staff Rescued From Shore--Every Woman on Board is Saved Regretable Accident

London, Oct. 30.--Signals of distress have been sent up since last night off Whitby, on the Yorkshire coast, from a steamship believed to be the Rohilla, a British vessel of 7,000 tons, being used as a hospital ship.

Early this morning four seamen were found among some wreckage thrown upon the coast, they having evidently tried to swim to shore. Among the wreckage was the name Rohilla, of Glasgow. One of the seamen still is living. Tremendous seas are breaking over the vessel and the members of the crew can be seen in the rigging. The Rohilla was bound from Queens Ferry, to Belgium to bring back wounded from France. She ran on the rocks half a mile south of Whitby, 17 miles northwest of Scarborough at four o'clock this morning during a southeast gale and rainstorm.

The vessel carried four nurses and several doctors and full hospital equipment. All the women on board have been saved. Every one of her boats, except the last one launched, was smashed by the seas and washed ashore. The remaining boat was swamped near shore and the people in it waded to safety.

Life boats with extreme difficulty, brought ashore two loads of the vessel's passengers, after which further attempts at rescue with the boats were abandoned. With 56 persons still clinging to the vessel, which had her after end broken off, hopes are entertained for rescuing them. Efforts are being made to get assistance from other ports.

A NEW PRINCIPLE IN COMPLEXION TREATMENT

Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a permanent, soggy, stifling film which interferes with eliminative action and makes the skin sickly and pasty. There is an application--mercolized wax--which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless, it has the peculiar property of removing by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of scarf-skin, as well as unhealthy matter in the pores. Thus it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion, differing in this respect from cosmetics. The result is a perfectly natural and healthy young complexion. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient), is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

The correct principle in the treatment of wrinkles is to tighten the skin, which naturally irons out the lines. A face bath, remarkably effective in this direction, may be made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

LONDON OFFICIAL CIRCLES THINK MAY TRY TO EVADE RESPONSIBILITY

For Offensive Action of Her War Vessels by Shouldering Blameon German Commanders--The Allies Have Anticipated Aggression From Turkey, and are Prepared to Make War--Russia Has Big Force Ready

London, Oct. 30.--The statement is expressed in official circles that the Turkish Government may conceivably try to dissociate itself from the action of its warships in the Black Sea in bombarding Russian ports, including Odessa.

It is suggested that the Porte when it hears the comment of the allied Governments, may throw the onus for this course on shoulders of the German commanders of its warships and declare that they acted without orders from the officials.

It is said in London that a demand on the Porte that the German officers and crews now in the Turkish navy be sent home within 24 hours will be made.

The line of battle, as result of the entry of the Ottoman Empire into the international struggle, stretches in an almost unbroken diagonal line across Europe, and it may reach from the Atlantic to the Indian ocean, as Turkey's adherence to the Teutonic side of the quarrel can hardly be a solitary new factor in the war which is gradually engulfing the eastern hemisphere.

Greece, Rumania and Bulgaria are practically certain to be drawn into the conflict which already is engaging ten nations and the ultimate inclusion of Italy and Persia, with perhaps the Asiatic lands to the eastward of the latter country, is today regarded here as scarcely less probable.

Allies To Follow Suit?

Hot on the heels of the Turkish offensive movement against a Russian port on the Black Sea has followed what amounts to a declaration of war by Emperor Nicholas in the form of instructions to his ambassador and his consuls to quit Turkey forthwith, and this will be followed promptly by similar action on the part of each of the allied Governments. The appearance of the allied fleet off the Dardanelles will be a natural sequence.

The intervention of the Porte, since its persistent disregard of the warnings of Great Britain, France, and Russia, has been anticipated and is said to have been thoroughly prepared for. It is accepted in London as another proof of the German need to endeavor to draw off the Russian forces from Poland and Galicia. The Muscovites, however, have a large and growing reserve which they claim is quite capable of attending to the Turkish factor without depleting the armies now in the field

Hungary and Servia Exhausted

These latter, apparently, are making steady progress towards the entrenched positions on the River Warthe in Russian Poland, where the Germans undoubtedly will make another attempt to rend their enemy. The Russian reoccupation of Czernowitz, in Bukowina, is considered important as this town is a railroad junction, and its possession frees another railroad line to Lodz, which is in possession of the Russian troops.

Rumors are again current in London today that Hungary, weary of a war in which she has nothing to gain, would welcome a chance to quit. It is suggested also that Servia soon may be compelled to retire within her own borders and assume a purely defensive role in consequence of the national exhaustion resulting from the fighting off three campaigns in as many years.

Turkey Takes Foolish Step Must Get Out Of Europe

London, Oct. 30.--The Times, commenting today on its Petrograd despatches reporting the Turkish bombardment of peaceful seacoast towns, says:

"The situation in the near East has developed logically. For some weeks past, the influences controlling the Ottoman Government have been working to provoke the allies into declaring war on Turkey. These efforts have been in vain as the allied powers were determined not to be the aggressors.

Found Egyptians Ready.

"They met acts of provocation, like the incorporation of the German cruisers Breslau and Goben in the Turkish navy and the abolition of the capitulations merely by protests. Then a sort of ultimatum was addressed to England regarding the watch kept upon the mouth of the Dardanelles. This also failed, but finally the Turks began a military demonstration against the Egyptian frontier but they found all preparations made for an attack.

Sultan Was Made to Fight.

"Now comes the bombardment of the Russian towns. It is believed that the Sultan and some of his advisers favored a policy of neutrality, but that they have been overborne by the Committee of Union and Progress which is bent on war.

"Great numbers of Turkish troops are supposed to be massed along the Russian frontier where the problem of feeding them must be arduous. To the south of the Ottoman forces are believed to be echeloned through southern Syria and Palestine, with forces actually upon the Egyptian frontier at Rafa on the Mediterranean and Akaba on the Red Sea.

Quite Ready For Turkey.

"The allies are quite ready for Turkey. All preparations have been made by England in any port along the banks of the Suez Canal and the Peninsula of Sinai. Greece too is ready as Turkey will soon discover.

"By her foolish yielding to the instigations of Germany, Turkey has pronounced her own doom. The Ottoman Empire in Europe will soon be merely a memory. Since the Turks are resolved on self-destruction we do not regret her appearance in the ranks of the combatants.

"The present mighty struggle will mean for Europe not only the end of Prussian militarism, but also the end of the Turks in Europe.

Evening

From the upland slopes I see the cows file by,
Lowing, great-chested, down the
homeward trail,
By dusky fields and meadows shining pale
With moon-tipped dandelions; flickering high
A peevish night-hawk in the western sky
Beats up into the lucent solitudes,
Or drops with girding wing; the stilly woods
Grow dark and deep, and gloom mysteriously.
Cool night winds creep and whisper
in mine ear;
The homely cricket gossips at my feet;
From far off pools and wastes of reed I hear
With ebb and change the chanting frogs break sweet,
In full Pandean chorus; one by one
Shine out the stars, and the great night comes on.

EDUCATION IN CANADA

There are 2,141,909 children, between 6 and 20, in attendance at school in Canada according to the latest available figures. Of this total, 1,801,779 (or 84 per cent.) are Canadian-born, 142,560 British-born, and 197,570 foreign-born.

Persons in Canada who can read and write, of population of five years of age and over, 88.98 per cent.

Persons who can read only: One-half of one per cent.

Illiterates: 10.50 per cent.

Ontario still leads in percentage of those able to read and write, namely, 93.17 per cent.

Of 2,197,663 males of voting age, 90.57 per cent., or 1,990,341, can read in some language.

REAL BOYS LOVE DOGS

But Many a Lad's Heart Is Saddened Because He Cannot Keep One

"Aw, Ma, lemme keep him. Aw—Ma!"

"I won't have the dirty beast around. See the mud he's brought in already."

And so the boy led the dog out of the house and the two sat on the back steps and communed together, both faces wearing very much the same expression.

There were three unhappy beings because of the mother's ultimatum—for the mother herself, though she triumphed, felt something wrong in the atmosphere.

Good housewives, however, have always forbidden dogs in the house. Dogs don't stop to wipe their feet before coming in. Dogs shed hair on carpets. Dogs, in the exuberance of their feelings, jump on one and muss one's dress. Dogs lie on cushions and the best sofa. And dogs have fleas. Ugh!

NO PEDIGREE—JUST A DOG

What if the very soul of one's boy longs for the intimate companionship of a dog? What if one's husbands would be a happier man with the understanding eyes of his dog sending warm glances toward him every time he moved?

But these are not considerations for many women. Rather a spick-and-span house than a happy boy or husband, if it's a question of a dog. A lot of women never can see anything attractive about a dog. They have eyes only for his faults—just as they manage to have eyes only for the failings of everybody in their environment.

Of course a dog can be an awful nuisance. But so also can a small boy be an awful nuisance. It's largely in their training—and in the way you look at the boy, or the dog. Many a boy is actually starving for affection because his mother just tolerates him and makes no effort to understand him.

BACKYARD GARDENS

Any Kind of Soil Can be Utilized For Vegetable Growing

Many a backyard could annually produce vegetables that would cost $150 if they were purchased at the grocer's. Any patch of ground will grow some kind of vegetable if given half a chance. No matter what kind of soil one has to deal with, it can be made to grow things. If the soil is sandy it will grow early crops to great advantage, but will not stand the hot, dry weather of summer as well as clay or loam. For this reason most sandy soils would be improved by the addition of several inches of barnyard manure and heavier soil plowed in in the spring and thoroughly mixed. Heavy clay soil is the toughest proposition for a gardener to handle. A loamy soil is the best for general cropping. If there is sod in the new garden, it should not be stripped off as is often done, but should be turned under, where it will decay and improve the texture of the soil.

Another feature is fertility. Barnyard manure or commercial fertilizers must be used in abundance. It is difficult to give advice on the kind and amount of fertilizer to use. This depends upon the character of the land and the nature of the crops to be raised. All seedsmen have for sale combination fertilizers that will answer the purpose of most amateur gardeners. Good drainage and lots of sunlight are other necessary factors in getting best results.

Glorious War

M. Philouze, a French statistician, calculates that the war in the Balkans cost the belligerent countries $600,000,000. The money went for ammunition that was fired away, arms that were largely lost or broken, for soldiers' clothing that was worn out, food, etc. There is nothing material to show for it. The situation is as if a fire had swept over the land and destroyed so much property. The countries as a whole and the people individually are poorer than they were when the war began. Their case illustrates what the waste of war means.—Montreal Gazette.

SIKHS AND HINDUS

Some Facts About the Brown Men of British India

Sikhism was founded in 1539 A.D. by Nanak, a Hindu, one of the soldier caste and a dweller in a village. Nanak was looked upon "as an incorporeal Spirit, who had come to save the world and, having enjoyed personal communion with the Lord, was styled 'Guru,' and moreover, being exalted himself was invested with the power of exalting others." Nanak's doctrine was benevolence and his life was pure. He was thus a religious teacher of a very high order.

In order to bring peace and amity into his world Nanak endeavored to reconcile the Hindus and the Mohammedans by teaching a religion which should retain the best of the teachings of both religions and casting away that which had become debased and impure. He failed, however, to reconcile two such bitter antagonists, and, by the purity of his doctrines, and the non-recognition of caste, himself antagonized the Brahmins. It was not until many years after, when the Sikhs became an undesired power, the Mohammedans murdered one of their Gurus, when the Sikhs attempted to avenge the murder, that actual warfare broke out between the latter and themselves.

It will be seen that the Sikhs were originally a religious sect, pure and simple, and could not be described as a race, although certainly the far greater number of them were of the Jat tribe, situated in the northern part of the Punjaub.

Their Bible, known as the "Adi Granth," was compiled by a grandson of Nanak. In it they describe God as: "One soul, self-existing, the meaning and cause of all, who has seen numberless creeds and names come and go." They are therein alike to both the Jews and Mohammedans, Monotheists, in that they worship One Supreme Being, who is above all, in all, and through all, a personal God. Amongst other things they also "recognize the brotherhood of man, do not recognize caste, and inculcate pure and simple ethics." In this they are also as the Free Masons, and indeed many of them belong to that order.

The word "sikh" means "disciple," and at first they were seekers after a divine way of truth. Their sacred writings and our gospels are similar in their teachings and very many passages are almost identical. The Sikhs differ from all Hindus in that they are "not born but made," and when they enter the brotherhood are initiated by baptism. They also have a Communion. The Sikhs are not idolaters and welcome all castes in the community. As regards ourselves they differ from us only in so far that they have not yet learned to know Christ as the Son of God.

In 1721 A.D. the last Guru, Govind, established political independence, Guruship was abolished, and only military leaders were elected. Thus was fulfilled a prophecy that the Sikhs should have only ten Gurus.

As has been said, the Sikhs are not a distinct race though chiefly Jats. They are a well disciplined, religious and military brotherhood, in this respect somewhat similar to the Knights Templars of old. And indeed the Sikhs, together with the Gurkhas and the Pathans, make the finest soldiers (sepoys) we have in India, and this they have proven on many a hard-fought battlefield, showing a bravery and trustworthiness second to none. In number they are about ten million, and eleven-twelfths of these are in the Punjaub.—Church Life.

STRENGTH OF TEETH

Little Instrument Shows Extent of Pressure in Chewing

Scientific inventions have enabled us to determine accurately the amount of force exercised by many of our bodily functions. The strength of the heart's beats is recorded with a precision that the stethoscope can never attain; the physical culturist can measure our breathing powers, and from the penny automatic machine we learn, as accurately as we can expect for the fee, the extent of our gripping, punching, and kicking forces.

A small instrument, with a big name, the Phago-dynamometer, has now been at work testing the strength of our teeth, and some interesting results are shown in the records published by an eminent dentist.

A white man, who is the fortunate possessor of a good set of natural teeth, can exert a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch. But this is a mere fleabite to the 400 pounds which his colored brother can easily accomplish.

The Phago-dynamometer has upset a good many of our notions with regard to the mastication of food. Beefsteak, is not such a tough subject as jokers and humorous artists make it out to be. Under its worst conditions it can be conquered by a pressure of 80 pounds, while normally its juicy fastness yields to half that force. But our real foe has been unmasked in the so-called "soft" bottom crust of the loaf. Unsoaked, it hides under an innocent smooth surface a resistance of 250 pounds to the square inch. Woe to him whose grinders are few and feeble that attacks it unaware. When the momentary shock has passed he will use discretion and keep to the crumb, which is more suited to his dental powers, ranging from 20 pounds to 30 pounds pressure.

Fruitarians will be glad to know that an apple, munched at the end of a meal, is the most efficacious of tooth brushes. The acid of the fruit helps to arrest decay, and as a cleansing agent the pressure used in munching is far greater than would be obtained by the use of the brush.

Winter Stores in Labrador

The Indians of the barren lands of Labrador rely almost entirely upon the migrating caribou for winter sustenance. When the great herds of reindeer go south in the fall, the Indians lie in waiting for them, killing sufficient meat to keep them from starvation during the months of darkness and desolation. The meat, as killed, is packed into caches—either high in the trees, well out of reach of wolves, or in some natural cave which is barricaded with rocks and timber. When the last deer have gone south, the barren lands are almost destitute of life, and should anything happen to their store the Indians are confronted with starvation.

Hints on Home Management

Business Efficiency Pays In Kitchen as in Office

By ANN MARIE LLOYD

MEN have often said that women do not know how to lighten household tasks. They have contended that women neither invent, adopt nor evolve labor savers. They insist that women have made little progress in household methods since primitive days. And these statements seem to have more or less truth.

Women, since earliest times, have had to get along with any old utensils for their housework. If there were any new ones to be had, they were bought to make the work of the man of the house easier.

The man reaped the wheat with the newest-fangled reaper. The woman mixed the flour into bread with her calloused and tired hands just as her mother's mother did. Women have learned to do without—and keep still about it.

Right Tools Needed.

They have been slow in realizing the importance of their job. They are just waking up to the fact that running the home is a business and just as important as the man's business. Now they must learn to run it on business principles, in order to make the money earned through business methods go the farthest and do the most good.

In order to make it a profitable business the woman has the right to appreciate good tools and demand them, satisfactory conditions under which to work and proper pay for her efforts.

As I said before, women are beginning to wake up. I spent a recent summer on a farm in New England. Women had washing machines, bread mixers, vacuum cleaners and a plentiful supply of the smaller utensils which lighten work. They did most of their cooking over an oil stove or in a fireless cooker and had time to sit on the porch and enjoy life. Said one of them to me: "I used to save so Pa could have all the right tools for the farm, but I'm having some of the helps myself now."

There are many homes all over the land which are still indifferent to "helps." The workers are scrimped for means to do the necessary work, conditions are bad under which the work is done, household tasks are done in the hardest way. The woman who does her own work, more often than not, fails to save herself. She will stand on a hard floor and wash or iron, with blistered feet and throbbing head and ragged nerves, when an old piece of cloth, tacked to a carpet lining would make a soft pad and give her ease.

She will carry a slopping pail of water from one end of the room to the other when four castors fastened to a piece of board would let her wheel it about as she wished.

She will bend her aching back over an ironing board which is too low, when a block of wood nailed to each end would raise it to the right height.

She will stand on tip-toe on a rickety chair or a step-ladder to dust a wall or a molding, when in 15 minutes she could tack a mop of cloth to an old broom stick and do the work in half the time, and with a tenth less effort.

She will save $10 to buy a cut-glass dish or a silver ladle and will not spend 10 cents for a strainer, when the one she is using has a hole in the side that makes it unworthy its name.

Kitchen Enterprise.

She will work trees and birds in cross stitch on bath towels and wipe her dishes on her husband's old shirt tail.

She will wear her eyes out putting monograms on linen sheets and use an old cotton sheet to cover the ironing board, which makes an unsatisfactory foundation for the monograms, when there is a heavy, firm material expressly for ironing board covers, costing but a few cents a yard, and if the board is slipped into calico slips when not in use it will last a long time.

Household efficiency is more than a phrase. It means making use of modern methods to carry on a legitimate business—one of the most important and respected enterprises in the working world.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am almost 17 years old, and am going to boarding school, and because I do not care to go around with fellows they call me proud—which I am not.

One night a fellow asked to come home with me, and I let him come; he stayed until I thought he would never go home, and when he did he caught me in his arms and kissed me. I thought that terrible, and began to cry; he was sorry then.

Later I was with a bunch of girls, and some fellows came up to us and wanted to take us home. This fellow was one of them, and I would not let him bring me home. The girls got angry and will not speak, and now I have no girls to run around with till I go back to school. What could I do to gain their friendship, or do you think it worth while?

Do you think it was very nice for a fellow to do what he did?

Please answer right away as I want your advice.

R. E. M.

I WOULDN'T do a thing, little R. E. M.—not a single thing. If the girls are going to "get mad" as easily as that, and don't want to speak to you because you have sense enough to know your own mind, why let them go, they and their hobble-de-hoy beaux. What do you want with them anyway?

The boy you speak of probably thinks you have more sense in your little finger than the whole crowd of them have in their whole bodies put together. No, I do not think it was very nice for him to act as he did, but I do think that you were very sensible yourself, and I haven't a doubt that he thinks so, too. He was just trying you to find out what sort of girl you really were. Now he knows—and likes you a thousand times better than he did before.

If he wants to take you home again, say yes, and notice how much better he will behave this time.

You did right; now don't spoil it all by wishing you had done wrong.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 112.

Mary's "At Home."

LEONA DALRYMPLE

SO to my list of expenses has been added my wife's "At Home" day. I had talked economy so persistently that I felt tired and disgruntled. At first I fancied I'd let the "at home" idea go by without objection. It was merely another pebble in a steadily growing pile. Then the whole situation suddenly made me furiously angry.

"Did your mother suggest an 'at home' day?" I demanded.

"Everybody around here has one," evaded Mary. "It's the proper thing."

"I wonder," I pointed out, "if you realize that you'll have to buy expensive wafers, make sandwiches, tea, and maybe punch. Then there's lemon and sugar and cream—it's bound to count up."

"I don't see how you can have such a cheap mind!" exclaimed Mary indignantly. "It wouldn't take more than three or four lemons sliced."

"I'm not taking solitary exception to the lemons," I said patiently. "It is the conglomerate result. It's bound to be expensive."

"Do you want me to give up everything?"

"Are you giving up—anything?" I flung my paper aside. "Have you paid the monthly instalment on the new furniture?" I asked.

Mary colored.

"No," she said. "You didn't give me enough money for that, Peter."

"Not enough!" I exclaimed. "Mary, you're mad! I gave you enough for that and more to spare. What in the world did you do with it?"

"Do I have to account for every single penny I spend—like—like a common servant?" flashed my wife.

"If you will be so good," I said evenly, "you will tell me exactly what you have done with this particular sum of money. It is necessary that I should know. I'm getting steadily behind."

"Well," said Mary, "I had to buy a lace doily—a big one—for the tea table, and some smaller ones—they're edged with real Cluny, and they're expensive. I can't have people coming into an 'at home' and saying there isn't real lace on my doilies. They can see the house is nicely furnished, and it—it wouldn't look well. Mother says 'always buy good things at the beginning.' It's the finest sort of economy. Then they last. You've said the same yourself."

But I was too indignant to answer. The money I had given Mary for a furniture instalment had gone for fool doilies for an 'at home' day in which I had not the slightest interest or sympathy.

I put on my hat and coat and started for the door.

"Where—where are you going?" demanded Mary.

"Out," said I curtly. I banged the door.

That my wife would immediately go over to her mother's I knew well enough. That she would pour forth the whole situation into a very attentive ear I was equally sure. Indeed, as I swung rapidly on in the cold night air, I tortured myself with building imaginary critical dialogues between my wife and my mother-in-law.

My mother-in-law! The very words made me grind my teeth in impotent fury. For Mrs. Penfield I knew was the extravagant influence leading Mary on to all sorts of financial indiscretions. Why had we never found our income insufficient before? Because we lived a comfortable distance off from the Penfields. My expensive flat, my expensive furniture, my expensive grocer and butcher, and, last of all, this accursed "at home" stunt, I could attribute to my mother-in-law.

I walked until midnight, and at midnight I was still angry and unhappy and worried.

WHAT A MUSIC CAREER MEANS

Marie Hertenstein.

Hard Work the Price of Artistic Success

By CECILE MANNING

MARIE HERTENSTEIN, the young pianist, who recently was declared by members of the American colony in Berlin to be the most beautiful of their countrywomen now in that city, is strong in the belief that an American girl desiring to study music in Europe is perfectly safe in the venture, provided she pays strict attention to her own affairs and applies herself to the task at hand.

"Apropos of the agitation of the moment against an American studying music in Europe," Miss Hertenstein said recently, "I am certain there is no reason in the world why a young girl should not go to Europe to acquire her musical education, provided she wishes to do so.

"My motto has been, 'Mind my own business.' In following out this suggestion, in the ten years I have spent in Europe, I have yet to be treated in any but a courteous manner by my preceptors, or others connected with music.

"For young girls taking up the serious study of the piano, there are several hard and fast rules which must be followed if real artistic success is to be attained.

"First and paramount, whether abroad or at home, is the matter of the selection of a teacher. Choose the best. The price per lesson should not be counted. By this I mean a cheap teacher is generally sure to use cheap methods. One lesson from a competent instructor is worth more than a million from an incompetent one.

"The sooner the pupil comes to a full realization of what an artistic career really means, the better. Long hours of patient and painstaking work are ahead of the aspirant. An analysis of the lives of the 'successes' will quickly demonstrate this point. Only those who have assiduously applied themselves have succeeded in raising their artistic heads above water.

"Then, again, as the technical skill of the pupil advances, she must at once begin to disabuse herself of the almost generally accepted idea that the acquisition of technique is the major part of piano playing. In a sense this is true, but a technician without musicianship and interpretative genius soon finds her level—a place in the background."

Blue and Rose Season's Latest Shades

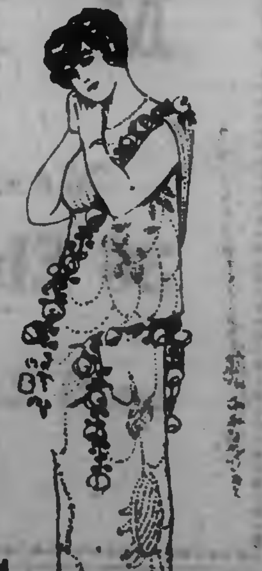
By MADGE MARVEL

IN spite of flounces and super-draping some of the great designers have the courage of their artistic convictions. They adhere to beauty of line and simplicity of detail, following the classic models of ancient Greece, and thereby create gowns that are delightful because they are as attractive as they are different.

Blue, Silver and Rose.

Such is the gown shown, designed by one of the French dress artists, and worn by a noted beauty at a recent Parisian fete. The fact that the wearer was the target for the lorgnons of all other women guests, and that orders for similar gowns followed the affair, gives evidence that some style reaction from the excessively draped gowns of the moment is perfectly possible, if some attractive and original substitute were offered.

The gown illustrated is of pale blue mousseline brocaded in silver, the interweaving of the silver on the blue giving the effect of moonlight. It is in one piece and sleeveless, save for the angel-wing drapery at the shoulder. It follows absolutely the lines of the natural and uncorseted figure, gives not the slightest concession to the existence of a waistline and is slightly draped between bust and knees. The drapery is drawn to the side, giving a slight fulness in front which accentuates the straight-up-and-down lines of the figure.



Draped and Garlanded

Garlands of pink roses are used over the shoulder and down the side front to the hem. Just under the bust line there is a suggestion of a girdle, essentially Grecian.

Drapery Clings Close.

The gown is mounted over faint pink chiffon and clings to the figure following every curve. To wear successfully such a gown a woman must conform to classic proportions, having neither too little and, above all, not the fatal ounce too much avoirdupois.

This combination of pink and blue is one of the most popular of the season. The French designers have always favored it, and this year it has been generally adopted. Nattier blue and pink, palest blue and either flesh pink or deep rose, dark blue and rose, all the variations of blues and pinks are combined in gowns, suits, silks, ribbons and millinery with universally pleasing results.

Roses in silk or chiffon continue to be used to trim the summer evening frocks. The same designer that is responsible for this gown uses blush pink roses shading to gold at their hearts to edge the tunic of a pale yellow mousseline patterned in gold and brocade.

What Causes Old Age; How You Can Avoid It

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

LIKE most things which everybody believes the silly platitude "when age is in, the wit is out," is not true.

If there is anything which makes people madder than a wet hen oftener than to wake them from their cherished dreams, it is unknown to humble me.

Age, like financial pre-eminence and eminent position, is not proof against errors. Nor is it true that manhood, when it verges into age, grows more thoughtful. The contrary is the truth. The more thoughts a man learns the younger he becomes.

Years do not make age, because time, according to psychology, is only a relative matter. It depends only on changes inside of you and me, not outside of us.

The swing of the pendulum, the tick of the clock, the revolution of the earth do not make time. These things move relatively to human life.

Time's Substance.

Pale, withered hands, weazened, trembling bodies may come at any time, according to your ancestry, yourself and your surroundings. The minutes, days, months, years, even ages, are the accidents—you are the substance of which time is made.

There can be no finer heritage than tissues trained to a long career. Justly proud may be any man who can point to grandfathers and grandmothers who passed beyond this life only when over 90 annual thresholds.

Time fleeting in its hurried gait stamps not wrinkles or decay upon any man. 'Tis blasts, distempers, appetites and excesses of you, yourself, and your forbears.

To prevent old age, then, is not to stem the tide of years. It is not the attempt to thwart nature's panoramic changes of going nights and coming days.

To draw on futurity, to steal a march on age, to forestall the drying up of the blood and the cloyed appetites you must begin at 30.

Early to bed, rather than early to rise, are among the greatest essentials to a long life. An outdoor life, full of sunlight, enthusiasm and fresh air sports is necessary, but swimming, golfing and all other exercise will be futile if early hours of good recuperating rest are not among the requisites.

Knowledge at Hand.

The knowledge of how to postpone old age is like the knowledge of how to prevent typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox—ready at hand. It is only a question of using this knowledge.

Plain food, uncontaminated with condiments, is imperative as a senile prophylactic.

A rigid regimen in the way of calm, deliberate mental habits is among the life-long disciplines of absorbing necessity to a hundred years of youth. If there is anything which contributes more to the fruition of a youthful five score of years than the avoidance of excessive exercise, excessive eating, excessive wakefulness and the excesses of ravaging infectious disorders, it is emotional strain, passion and outburst of sentimentality.

One of these aging, irritating things which gives wrinkly, sour faces to many proud people who think themselves good is the leniency of human nature and the law to certain seeming sins.

Many ascetic persons, who consider themselves very good and strait-laced, shrivel themselves up into premature senility by denouncing and hunting down the wickedness in others. Indeed, when these anti-vice scribes and pharisees do not see badness soundly tormented, terrorized and inquisitioned they feel themselves unappreciated.

This emotion strain and irritation causes an excess of thyroid, pineal, adrenal, pituitary and the other glandular juices to be poured into the vital rivulets. The wear and tear causes hardening and general decay. This old age is luckily independent of the flight of years.

Answers to Health Questions

R. L. P.—1—Can you tell me any way to eliminate all the uric acid from the system? 2—I've been told to live entirely on milk.

1—No. If you wish to be murdered the best way is to take something to get rid of all your uric acid! Uric acid is as necessary as your saliva. Forget this antiquated fallacy. 2—You can die on an exclusive milk diet, but you cannot live on it.

ENTHUSIASTIC DISCIPLE—1 have a half-tired feeling in my limbs upon arising which wears off usually later in the day. Seems to be aggravated when I haven't slept well. Am 23 years old. 2—Will you kindly explain what induces fermentation in the stomach? What beside disease in the chest may cause a cough?

1—Go to bed one hour earlier and take a cold wash before you do so. Awaken an hour earlier, then turn over and snooze again for half an hour. Have plenty of air in the room. 2—Fermentation is due to growth of bacteria in the food, which remains there too long. Usually the muscular coat of the stomach is weak and neglected, just as the muscles of the arm grow flabby from lack of tone or exercise.

The Good Night Story

Dobbin and the Lion—By VERNON MERRY

ONCE upon a time there was an old horse named Dobbin that had come to be so old he could not plough any more. His master did not want him for carriage use because he had just bought an automobile, and he felt it hard that he had to feed Dobbin when Dobbin could not do any work. The master sat down in front of the horse one night in the stable and thought about it a long time. He nodded as he thought.

"Dobbin," the man said, "I hate to spend money on oats and hay when you don't earn any money for me. I'll tell you what I'll do; I am going to turn you loose to get your own food, but if you bring me back a lion I'll keep you in food, myself, as long as you live."

Poor old Dobbin went out into the woods with drooping head. His heart was nearly breaking when a fox ran out from the bushes and asked him why he was so sad. So Dobbin told him all about his master and the lion.

"Look here," said the fox, "I'll fix it for you. You lie down as if your were dead. Now, don't you move a muscle until I get back."

With that the fox ran away to where a lion lived, and he called to the lion and said:

"Oh, Mister Lion, come with me. I know where there is a dead horse in the woods, and you can have a fine dinner."

The lion was pleased at Mister Fox's thoughtfulness, and he ran with him to where Dobbin lay perfectly still in the road. When the lion saw Dobbin he licked his chops and said:

"This is a fine meal all right, but I can't eat him here. How can I drag such a big beast away?"

"That's easy," chuckled the fox. "lie down and let me tie your tail to the tail of the horse, then you can drag him easily."

The lion agreed, and when the fox tied the two tails together he entangled Dobbin's tail so firmly in the lion's legs that he could not move. "Get up and go home—giddap!" clucked the fox.

So Dobbin walked into the home stable with his lion.

The noise of a falling pitchfork woke Dobbin's owner. He stared at Dobbin. Dobbin was quietly eating, and there was no sign of a lion. His master rubbed his eyes.

"Well," he said, "I guess I must have been dreaming, but I won't turn good old Dobbin out. I'll keep him comfortable as long as I can. See how sad his eyes are."

WORD ORIGINS

A dun took its name from a celebrated bailiff of London during the reign of Henry VII, named Joe Dunn. He was extremely clever in devising ways and means to compel unwilling creditors to settle their accounts, and hence the saying, "Send Dunn after him" or "Dun him."

GLAD BRITISH ARE OPPOSING

London, Oct. 29.—A despatch to Reuter's from Amsterdam says: "Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, brother of Belgium's Queen and commander of the Sixth German Army Corps, has issued the following order:

"Soldiers of the Sixth Army Corps: We are fortunate to have opposed to us the British troops—the troops of that nation whose envy has worked for years to surround us with enemies. They are the cause of the present bloody war. Therefore take reprisals for the cunning of the enemy and for all sacrifices when we now meet them.

"Show them it is not so easy to wipe out the Germans of history now that we face an enemy who is the greatest obstacle to peace."

Germans May Make Effort to Gain Coast With Aid of Big Guns

Paris, Oct. 29.—Although today's official communique was optimistic, it furnished no new information regarding the conditions at the front. For this reason it was generally accepted that important movements are in progress. It was known that the Germans have moved far enough inland so that they are now protected from the guns of the fleet, and that they are now bringing up some enormous siege guns. With them it is believed here they may attempt a long range bombardment of the coast cities to the north, and it is said at the military headquarters that steps have been taken to checkmate any such move. Reports along the coast the Germans are certain to deliver their next attack from the interior, probably from a point between Lille and the Belgian frontier. Heavy reinforcements are reported by the allied air scouts as en route to the front from Aix La Chapelle, and from the left of the French centre, but the allies on their part are taking similar precautions so that the Germans will gain no material advantage.

London, Oct. 29.—Additional warships have been sent to the Channel ports along the northwest coast of France. They will furnish support to the allies in the new attack which is apparently being planned by the Germans on these ports. Incidentally they will be in readiness for either an under water or in air raid against English ports. No doubt is felt here that the Germans have massed submarines and light torpedo craft in the canal between Bruges and Zeebrugge. They are also moving their aerial navy or at least part of it up to Belgium.

American Oil

Great Britain manifests the frankness which we are entitled to expect says an American exchange, in her prompt release of American oil steamers seized on voyages to neutral ports of Scandinavia and Egypt. The Egyptian situation is so thoroughly in British hands that no petroleum landed at Alexandria can be diverted to an enemy and the Scandinavian countries are undertaking to prevent an export of contraband or semi-contraband to Germany. So there is no further occasion for any interference with the large shipments of oil which have been going out of our ports to neutral destinations. It need not be assumed that these shipments are ultimately intended for belligerents. Countries like Scandinavia and Egypt have been depending upon the Russian oil fields which are now cut off, and it is only natural that they should turn for their light and fuel, as well as for their foodstuffs to America.

This is a thoroughly legitimate trade, which will not hurt the allies or help Germany or Austria. Our own land has a perfect right to extend its own commerce with neutral ports in Europe, South America, Asia or Africa. All that we can secure there will scarcely make up for what from no fault of ours, has been lost to us through the acts of the belligerents. The British government very creditably recognizes this in the release of the Rockefeller and Brindilla, and does not even dispute the validity of the registr of the latter ship, which was American-owned, though under German colors, before the war began. This does not mean, however, that the status of other vessels German-owned up to Aug. 1 will not be questioned if they were purchased by American citizens and brought under the American flag after the outbreak of hostilities.

American consignors of oil and foodstuffs to the neutral ports of Europe can help the situation by making very clear the names and affiliations of the consignees or purchasers of cargoes. It is significant that American vessels are more and more preferred for the transportation of this war-time commerce. Fortunate, indeed, is it for the country that among the larger steamships of our great coastwise fleet are being found first-class carriers for the cargoes which overseas ports are demanding.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps Ends Misery Instantly.

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. [illegible] Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache toothache or cramps, Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

laid off for lack of orders. It is charged that an Eastern Canadian municipality required a number of road-rollers not long ago. It bought imported road-rollers at a price which was only a little less than the price a Canadian firm had quoted. It is pointed out that a certain church congregation in Hamilton allowed its preacher to be lured to the United States by better working conditions. Five years later when he had preached his Canadian sermons in New York and been applauded by the newspapers of the United States, his old congregation induced him to return to Canada. He is drawing big crowds twice a Sunday because he first won a United States reputation!

This was told me by a former salesman of household heating apparatus. He was waiting outside a certain newspaper office to get an early copy of the paper and look over the "Men Wanted" column. He had a wife and children and had been out of work for several weeks.

"I tell you what I feel about this country!" he said, "I feel it is a selfish country and a hard country to get a living in. Canadians include an awful lot of people who begrudge anyone but themselves a living especially among the naturalized American farmers of our west country."

"Go out there and try to sell them a Canadian-made stove. They say: 'How much?' You quote the price—same price as the same sort of American stove. They say, 'Yes, it's a nice little stove, but have you got a Kalamazoo stove.' Where's Kalamazoo? In Michigan. Is that right?"

That is for the Canadian public to answer.

Here is another allegation: A Winnipeg office-supply dealer has built up a large trade in cheap desks and other office equipment by keeping in close touch with a manufacturer in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Once a year the Grand Rapids man clears out his factories of all the odds and ends of the expiring season. These he offers at reduced prices. The Winnipeg dealers buys them and sells them to Winnipeg people at the Regular Canadian price. Meantime, Canadian managers and workmen lose the orders which might otherwise have been theirs.

The other side of that question was presented to me in an interesting light. A Canadian furniture factory found itself overloaded with stock, owing to a sudden falling-off in trade. Desperate, the manager paid a visit to Buffalo and interviewed buyers. "See here," he said, "I have a stock of goods that can be had very cheap—at cost, if you'll help us clean it out." The American buyers, one by one, examined his samples, pronounced them good, admitted that his prices were unusually low, and are said to have concluded to this effect:

"Thank you very much, Mr. —," with a smile, "for letting me see your line. It is certainly a good line and we'd like to buy—but you must remember there are good American factories over here that are turning out just as good goods, at a price which is not much worse than yours. And why should we go outside our own country to buy? We must keep things up in the little old United States, y'know."

That seems an interesting case. Almost ironical, you say. The Canadian maker, driven from his own market by the American with a stock of bargain odds and ends, and lacking the support of his own home market, is refused in the American market on grounds of American patriotism!

I asked an implement agent in Saskatchewan whether he sold many Canadian engines. He said no.

Why?

He couldn't just say.

Were they not as good as American engines?

Hm. He had heard they were better.

Then what was the matter?

Well, his customers came along and said how much is that engine?

"Two hundred dollars."

"Two hundred!—but we can get an American engine for two hundred!"

Of course, there are extenuating circumstances to be borne in mind. For instance, there is the question of comparative costs. If Canadian goods cost more, or are less efficient then it is not to be expected that hard-headed business men will sacrifice real money for patriotic feeling. It is perhaps going too far to suggest that some Canadians would say, "Well, that is a Canadian product—I'll buy it because it was made in Canada." But I am assured that the cases cited above were based upon equal conditions—equal prices, equal values.

Are these things true? Perhaps the reader who says "Yes" is himself an offender. Perhaps you are one of those retailers that sees his business dropping lower every day because the people in your town persist in shopping by mail, from the great department store in the far-off metropolis, in spite of the fact that your goods are just as fresh, just as cheap, bought in the same market, and just as varied? You feel that you have a just cause for complaint. But are you, on the other hand, sending all your big orders to foreign wholesalers, or to the Canadian representatives of foreign manufacturers, instead of passing as much business as you can to your fellow-Canadians?

Or if you are a life insurance man and you find that Canadian retailers are taking foreign insurance instead of yours—you feel aggrieved? Yet when you have a holiday to spend or a pleasure voyage to take with your wife, is it you that says, "Oh, let's go down to the Adirondacks or to Sulphur Springs, Virginia, or to California" instead of introducing your wife to the wonders of Banff, or Jasper Park, or Algonquin Park, or Metis, or St. Andrews?

Or you, Mr. Manufacturer-of-agricultural implements, you feel injured to find Canadian farmers investing in American implements. Are you, in the purchase of your raw materials, as scrupulous as you should be, to buy Canadian-made supplies and materials?

The foreign-made pair of boots which the farmer buys goes to support a foreign workman in a foreign town, and to pay dividends to foreign capitalists. That outside workman and that outside capitalist spend their money on outside products. The money you paid for the boots goes into the foreign economic machine to be turned over and over and over again, employing, feeding, housing, warming, marrying, burying, making happy and making rich the foreigner. Your economic loyalty is due here.

I do not know whether charges such as these are just or not. I cannot give an answer to them. No one can, except the Canadian people as a whole. There is no court to try the case. The accused are also the accusers. In other words, the allegation against the Canadian people is laid by Canadians. Whether, in saying what they say they are merely indulging their bad temper, or speaking out of self-interest is for you to decide.

At first sight you will say, "Nonsense! Nothing of the sort." You may be right. I repeat, it is for you to decide. But you must decide carefully, with an open mind, and complete willingness to find yourself wrong if the evidence goes against you. For reciting what may seem a libel against the Canadian people, I take full responsibility. For the men who accuse Canadians are the very men who dare not do so in public. Their very living might be involved because the people would say at once that they spoke out of selfish interest. Their only policy must be to bear misfortune as well as possible. Yet, at times I have heard a few hints of their feelings crop out. First in Niagara Falls Ontario; then in Quebec, in North Bay, and, more recently, in Toronto and Montreal. These hints piqued curiosity and led to the making of a systematic investigation.

You have the charge. You have the evidence.

Is there any evidence for the defence?—Reprinted, by permission, from The Canadian Magazine, of November, 1914.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

POULTRY KILLING KNIFE

Best Instrument For the Purpose Made From Old File

For killing poultry a special knife may be made, according to the following directions by a Government expert.

The knives in common use in bleeding and braining poultry are not suited to their purpose. The blades are too broad and too long, and the curve at the point should be on the back instead of on the cutting edge. The handle is so large that the killer is encouraged to use too much force in making the cut to bleed, whereas a light touch of the sharp knife, properly directed, is all that is needed to cut the blood vessels. The knives are also insanitary in that dirt collects at the junction of the blade and handle.

The knife which is to be used to bleed and brain poultry should be small, with a narrow blade; stiff, so that it does not bend; of the best steel, so that it can be kept sharp and is not nicked when used in braining; and the handle and blade should be in one piece. Such a knife, with the aid of the emery wheel or grindstone and oilstone, can be made from an 8-inch flat file.

To make this knife the handle of the file should first be ground off. Then the blade should be shaped from the small end of the file. It should be 2 inches long, one-fourth inch wide, and one-eighth inch thick at the back. The curve to make the point should slope from the back downward. A blade of this shape reaches the blood vessels to be cut more surely than does a blade on which the point curves upward. After the blade is made the ridges on the file should be ground down, leaving just enough roughness to prevent the knife slipping in the hand of the killer. The length of the knife, over all, should be 7 inches.

Origin of Old Expression

When William Rufus, second of the Norman kings, ruled in England he made a law that gave freedom to a man condemned to die, providing the convict proved he could read.

The first verse of the 51st Psalm in Latin was the test. If it was read correctly the magistrate announced that the condemned man "read like a clerk," and he was liberated. He was given the benefit of learning or the benefit of clergy, which in that day meant learning.

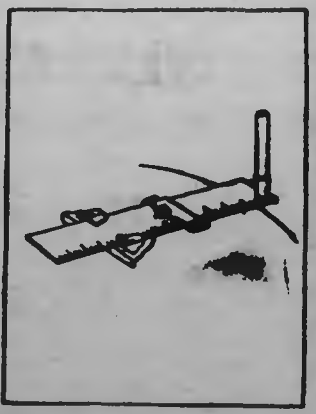
SQUARE MAKES CIRCLE

Seemingly Impossible Performance Accomplished by a New Tool

The seemingly impossible achievement of making a circle by means of a square is accomplished by a new device which has been lately patented. A view of this implement is given herewith and anyone who may be the least bit familiar with the construction and use of a T-square will see at once how it is done and also the advantages of the improvement.



HOW A CIRCLE MAY BE MADE WITH A SQUARE.

A flat, graduated rule has a socket at one end, designed to hold a point such as a piece of lead or lead pencil, and the length of the rule is traversed by a metal slide, designed to be secured at any point and adapted to perform the ordinary functions of a square. The slide is supplied with a projecting point which is used in making the circle in conjunction with the lead or pencil point, as shown in the illustration.

Our Imported Hides

Horse skins come chiefly from Russia; India is the chief contributor of buffalo hides, though small quantities come from the Straits Settlements, and the Dutch East Indies, and occasionally from Siam and Egypt. Kangaroo skins, of course, originate in Australia.

ART OF GROWING TALL

You May Easily Increase Your Height by This Process

Not a little envy must have been created in the minds of those who lack stature, and who aspire to greater physical height than that with which nature has endowed them, by the recent announcement that there is a man living who can add several inches to his height in the course of a few minutes. Such extraordinary growing powers are, of course, unique; but, at the same time, it is possible, without artificial aids, but by merely indulging in certain exercises, to add appreciably to one's height, even after what is popularly known as the "stop growing" period has been passed.

It should be mentioned, however, that exercises are scarcely likely to be beneficial after one has passed thirty years of age, for at that time the bones and cartilages have been so thoroughly matured that it is practically impossible to affect them. The following exercise, however, is often indulged in by army men, and if systematically carried on is said to give a man an extra inch in height.

The main exercise consists in standing, back to wall, until you are just as erect as possible. Then take two paces forward away from the wall, letting the arms hang by the sides with palms outward, and slowly raise the arms above the head until the fingers meet, taking care not to bend the arms in the least, and keeping the palms outward; then lower the arms. By doing this exercise thirty times in the morning and thirty times at night every day for a month or so, one seldom fails to add at least half an inch to the height, and it has been known to give a man even an inch and a half.

There are also certain simple rules which, if carried out, add considerably to one's height. There is the old habit of stooping, for instance. Nearly everyone stoops a little, and if we would only endeavor, as far as possible, to prevent this habit, we should not only look taller but feel taller.

Endeavor to sit up perfectly straight at all times, and stand up perfectly straight. It is not easy at first, particularly when one follows a sedentary occupation. In fact, one is rather apt to feel uncomfortable, but by quiet persistence it will be found quite as easy in a short time to walk and sit perfectly upright as it is to stoop.

If you wish to relax when sitting, don't get into an easy chair and bend over or sag down into a lazy position. Always rest in a chair by leaning back, no matter how far; but never bend forward to rest or talk or read.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). of a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

A SOLDIER'S MEMORIES

Veteran of Two Big Campaigns Has Interesting Stories

In a small cottage at Atherley, Ontario, there lives a veteran of the British army named Neill, who fought in the Crimean war and the Indian mutiny. He is always ready to recount his adventures. He is slightly deaf, a defect which he dates from the battle of Balaklava, when he lay under the heavy guns and witnessed the charge of the Light Brigade.

Neill was invalided home, he has now a silver plate in his skull as a result of a wound, and was stationed at Windsor. He tells an interesting story of the late Queen Victoria. While he was on sentry duty one morning the queen came out to walk down to the river. Neill presented arms, but the next sentry, a new recruit, made no move.

"Good morning, soldier," said the queen.

"Good morning, miss," replied the sentry. "I hope you are very well."

He afterwards confessed that he mistook her for one of the maids. The mistake, however, turned out to his advantage, for the queen asked him his history, and, on hearing that he was supporting an old mother in Ireland, who rented a small cottage, she bought the farm and presented it to the old woman.

On another occasion, Neill relates that the Prince Consort asked him for his rifle to show to the Emperor Napoleon III., who was driving with him. Neill, being on sentry duty, of course refused, and heard Queen Victoria, who was also in the carriage, reprove the Prince for doing what might get the soldier into trouble.

When the mutiny broke out Neill was sent to India and entered Delhi by the Cashmere gate on the day it was stormed. The first street, he says, was lined with cases of brandy, left by the mutineers to attract the soldiers. The sergeants, however, kept the soldiers from the spirits until the city was taken by telling them that the brandy was poisoned.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Immigration Commissioner Thinks It May Aid In Naturalization

In an interview with Mr. J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration at Winnipeg, the conversation turned on the assimilation of the large foreign immigration.

"For the assimilation of varied nationalities nothing can equal," said Mr. Walker, "the use of a common language. But the English language has to them a strange pronunciation and a freakish method of spelling, so they seek to retain their respective mother tongues. My experience among foreigners has brought this conviction that in the Canadian west, into which natives of Europe are pouring in annually increasing numbers, the need of some rational simplified form of spelling is a necessity."

"What objections do you find to the reform of spelling?"

"Well, the matter is not generally considered. The teacher struggles through the labyrinth of di[illegible] is teaching the foreign youngster because he is allowed or knows no easier method. I am in hopes that the propaganda of the Simplified Spelling Society will permeate the educationists of our west and awaken them to the need of some reasonable principle of spelling."

Pinhole Photography

For pinhole photography, any rectangular box that is absolutely light-tight will answer. In one end insert a very thin plate of metal, in which a minute hole has been made with the point of a needle, and at the other end place the sensitive plate. If you possess an ordinary camera you may remove the lens and replace it with the pinhole. A prolonged exposure is required, about twenty or thirty times the ordinary one for any given subject. No focussing is required, as the image is always fairly sharp, no matter what distance the plate is from the hole. The larger the plate the wider he angle, and the greater the distance between pinhole and plate the larger the image. Pleasingly soft effects of landscape subjects in particular may be obtained by means of the pinhole

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ROYAL YACHTSMEN

Apropos of King George's success as a yachtsman, it is interesting to note that yachting in bygone times owed much to English sovereigns, from Queen Elizabeth, who had a fine pleasure schooner built at Cowes, to William IV., who founded the Royal Yacht Squadron; but the keenest of all Royal yachtsmen was Charles II. In all, the Merry Monarch owned fourteen yachts, ranging from twenty-five to 166 tons, and one of them, the "Jamie," was designed by the King himself and built at Lambeth under his supervision. Charles and his brother James generally steered their yachts themselves, and Evelyn, in his diary for October 1st, 1661, describes a sailing match between the Royal brothers—the first contest of the kind in British waters of which we have any record.

FRANK CHANCE

Men who know Frank Chance, the American league's $25,000 manager, can perhaps imagine what Chance is shouting at some Highlander, in this picture. Chance does not believe in handling his players with velvet gloves. He rules them with an iron hand and doesn't hesitate to use language that rasps. It is not difficult to imagine Chance raising the skin of some player in this instance.

DUELLING DAYS

Young Bloods Practiced With Long-Barrelled Pistols

By the end of the seventeenth century the pistol had come fairly into vogue as a duellist's weapon in England, and from that time forward pistol duels were frequent—more frequent than those with the sword. Gunmakers devoted their best workmanship to duelling pistols, and at duelling range, say up to twenty paces, these weapons were as near perfection as skill could make them. The latter-day pistol had a ten-inch barrel, and carried a ball of 48 to the pound. Only constant practice would make a good shot, and a very high standard of marksmanship was set for the man who aspired to be considered an expert with the pistol. When he could hit twelve wafers at fourteen yards, and do it within six minutes, loading his pistol himself between shots, he might consider himself proficient; and it will be borne in mind that the muzzle-loading pistol took several seconds to properly charge.

Proficiency, of course, was not everything. It was quite as daunting to face a pistol at twelve yards as to face the sword at close quarters, and no proficiency at wafers would atone for nervousness on the ground. One ardent practitioner schooled himself with a contrivance of his own invention. He had the life-size figure of a man with a bracketed hand in which a pistol could be held at the "present," and by means of a cord from the trigger of the pistol in the dummy's grasp to his own belt, he discharged the weapon himself as he fired his own pistol, by slightly drawing back.

Great stress was laid on the importance of aiming at a small object. "Mark well one of the gilt buttons on his coat; a person can never fire with accuracy unless he aim at some small object." Which explains why the experienced duellist "went out" dressed entirely in black, that his person might offer no such mark as the gilt button of an older day.

Being in position, the men each held his arm well in to the side and raised his pistol to the proper level, keeping the head straight, the eyes turned as much to the right as possible, and the pistol directed steadily towards the small object—that gilt button, if the adversary were so obliging to wear such. "Move only the forefinger, and that with just sufficient force to discharge the pistol," was a rule supposed to be carefully observed.

Girl Climbs Church Spire

Miss Dorothy Willink, daughter of Canon Willink, rector of St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, climbed to the top of the church spire, 260 feet high, and scratched her name on the cap to which the weathercock is fixed. She climbed as far as possible by the steps inside the church, and ended the journey on the steeplejack's ladders, the spire being at present under repair.

The Battler Has a Reason

"Suspicion is a terrible thing," said Jimmy Britt, former champion. "One gets so he is afraid to trust anyone. I remember just before I was going to fight Bat Nelson for the championship a newspaper wanted us to pose in fighting position for photographs. We both consented. When we came to pose I was watching Bat and he was eyeing me. Both of us were suspicious. Bat refused to pose at all unless I got in one position and let him assume another. My suspicions were aroused. We wrangled ten minutes. Finally I consented, but was ready to pump him full of right hands if he made a crooked move. Nothing happened, and for years I wondered what the matter was. Then, a short time ago, I met Bat, and we had a long talk. I asked him about it. 'You sure had me guessing,' I remarked. 'Why did you insist on that position?'

"'Well,' said Bat, 'I didn't want this worst cauliflowered ear to show in the picture.'"

As light as lager, but better for you.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. —Good Work Promptly Done—

WHAT COAL CAN DO

Does anyone realize the power of coal as a worker? A man was set to work a pump as hard as he could [illegible], and at the end of ten hours it was found [illegible] and done just as much work as a little less than 2 ounces of coal could do.

Take all the energy put forth by a hard working man during one whole year, the same amount of force would be furnished by 36 pounds of good coal —or, say, 40 pounds of average coal.

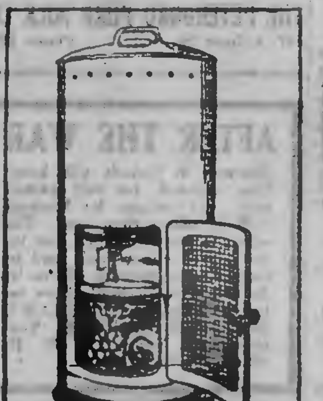
Of course, even in the best engines, the greater part of the working energy of coal is wasted. But even if only one-tenth is turned to account, 150 pounds of coal is equal to a man working for 300 days of the year.

A horse can do as much work as ten men, but 1½ pounds of coal has as much working force as a horse expends in one day. So that a ton of coal, if we could use all its force, would do as much work as six horses working for a whole year!

ICELESS REFRIGERATOR

Keeps the Contents at a Desirable Temperature by Use of Water

The iceless refrigerator is not intended to put the ice man out of business, but is meant for service in localities not traversed by that august individual. This cooler consists of a stout wire mesh, covered with an absorbent cotton cloth. The base and top are of metal, with provision made for accommodating a quantity of water. After this has been poured into the interior of the cooler it is conveyed to the cloth by means of several wicks, so that the cloth is always moist as long as there is water in the tank. The evaporation of this water on the exposed surface of the cloth causes the temperature to lower, so that the interior is maintained at a temperature of about 50 degrees, which is sufficient for a great many purposes.



REFRIGERATOR WITHOUT ICE.

VALUABLE FISHERIES

Many Fish Found in British Columbia Waters

The fisheries of British Columbia are the most valuable in the Dominion. Of the $35,000,000 worth of fish produced from all the Provinces in Canada in one year, this one contributed fish to the value of $14,000,000. Salmon, halibut and herring are the three chief varieties of fish which inhabit the waters of British Columbia.

The Fraser River, especially that section of it flowing through the lower mainland, contributes most liberally to the fisheries of the Province. The salmon pack in all parts of British Columbia in a year amounted to 996,576 cases, of which the lower mainland district, including the Province's largest canneries at New Westminster, contributed 173,321 cases, or almost twenty per cent. of the entire pack.

The fishing business on "the coast" is only in its infancy. The rivers of the northern part of the interior are practically unknown, so far as their fertility is concerned, and the fishermen on the coast are only beginning to realize the immense wealth which lurks in the numerous bays and inlets of the Pacific coast.

A Share of the Catch

In the French fisheries on the Newfoundland banks the fishermen do not work for wages, but for a share in the catch. Before they leave France they receive an advance payment varying from $75 to $150, to be deducted from their future earnings. If as not infrequently happens, a man's share at the end of the season is not sufficient to cover the amount advanced to him, the owner of the vessel loses the difference, and the man himself comes home with empty pockets. The fisherman's total earnings in seven months of hard labor and exposure probably do not average more than $150. Strangely enough, the men appear to be content with their lot and all the reforms that have been effected toward improving their wages and the conditions under which they labor have been initiated by naval officers, administrative officials and enlightened ship-owners.

Wholesale Smuggling

Wholesale smuggling of horses, cattle and grain across the Canadian border, amounting to thousands of dollars was unearthed by Collector of Customs Judson La Moure, Jr., of the district of North and South Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. According to information from Hallock, Minn. near the centre of the smuggling district the operations were carried on along the border between St. Vincent and Warroad, Minn. There is no customs port between these two points, which are about 100 miles apart.

Frightened by a Mouse

A mouse dangling before her eyes caused the death of a Bolton, England, schoolgirl. The child, Ethel Asball, was returning home from school with some of her schoolmates when one of the latter, laughingly swung the mouse at the end of a string before her. In her fright the girl ran off the footpath beneath the wheels of a passing lorry, and was killed almost instantly.

ONTARIO'S PREMIER APOSTLE OF THE NORTH

Hon. W. H. Hearst an Energetic Man Who Knows the Wilderness by First Hand Experience

From private life to the Premier's chair in six years, taking all the hurdles of office as he went, is the record of the Hon. William Howard Hearst, K.C., Premier of Ontario. His career has been a remarkable one, and it is all the more astonishing when one remembers that outside of New Ontario the name of Hon. Mr. Hearst was more or less unknown when he was called upon to form a government.

Since the North is a country which lives on work, Mr. Hearst was able to thrive and learn that lesson of economy which is taught by stern living. They say that he numbers his personal friends by thousands, and that they are among the class which breeds strong men—lumbermen, miners, settlers, loggers, and the hundred-and-one other castes which grab a living out of the North. In fact, the Hon. Mr. Hearst's liking for the North amounts to a passion. It is his dream, it is his rising star before which he is always willing to extinguish all other torches. Doubtless Mr. Hearst understands the heart of the country, for assuredly he has lived close to it. While others idled away summer vacations at fashion resorts, the Hon. Mr. Hearst time and again headed exploration parties into the unknown and undeveloped wilderness, and each time he came back with first-hand information, which in the end enabled him to fill the chair of Lands, Forests, and Mines in the Ontario Government.

Hon W.H. HEARST

When a railway company approached the Government with a proposition to tap the timber and clay belts, the Hon. Mr. Hearst did not take their statements as say-so, but he climbed into wilderness togs, spent some weeks scouting through the district in question, and came back prepared to talk business. Some people say that Mr. Hearst is urbane, at the least he is very approachable. Approachableness does not always mean that the visitor gets what he wants, but he does go away with the impression that the Hon. Mr. Hearst is personally interested.

Combativeness is one of the Premier's strong cards, but Irish ancestry brings that to him quite by nature. Upon the floor of the House he has always proven himself willing to take up the gage of battle. When it comes to fighting verbal battles he doesn't stoop to hitting under the belt, and he seldom wastes time on the witticisms which might be expected from one of his nationality. Straight, outspoken, and as vigorous as a battering-ram are his political speeches, stripped entirely of fancy oratory. In speaking the style is pretty much his own, and has sometimes been likened to the fire of a machine gun, both in its directness and its vigor. At the same time it is to be noted that it is a very peculiar speech of the Hon. Mr. Hearst which does not find place for some reference to New Ontario and its development.

Personally, when circumstances permit him to drop the garb of office, the Hon. Mr. Hearst is a very pleasant man. He can forget that there is such a thing as work in the world, but he quite fails to harken to the call of society, or sport, or any of the dozen and one other cries of private interest or private amusement.

Steel Railroad Ties

Steel railroad ties are being extensively used in Switzerland. At present 65 per cent. of the Federal Railways employ them. They have the form or profile of a trough into which shape they are rolled at the mills. The ends are bent down, the profile of the trough being thus closed. Holes are provided for the attachment of the rails by means of clamp plates and no tieplates are used under the rails. The weight of the trough profile is 56.47 pounds per meter and the ties complete, with holes bored, weigh 159.84 pounds each. According to the requirements of the Federal Railways an entire trough piece shall admit of being bent together on its back without showing any breaking fissures.

Canada's Great Fisheries

Canada has the most extensive and best stocked commercial fishing waters in the world, including 5,000 miles of Atlantic and 7,000 miles of Pacific coast, and 220,000 square miles of fresh water. The value of the yearly catch is about $30,000,000. Canada's fishery equipment is worth $24,000,000; and something like 85,000 persons are employed by the industry.

Only 10 per cent. of Canada's foreign trade is carried in Canadian bottoms; the rest by British and foreign shipping.

Historic Structure Gone

The old east-end "tower" in the G.T.R. yards at Stratford, where the famous inventor, Thomas A. Edison, is said to have begun his apprenticeship as an operator, was torn down recently to make way for a modern signal tower.

Plenty of Highways

The public roads of the United States total about 2,225,000 miles in length, or more than the highways of all of Europe.

Canada has 2,181 registered steam vessels. Gross tonnage, 644,836.

WEATHER PROPHETS VERY UNRELIABLE

That is, the Unscientific Forecasters Who Base Their Guesses on Mere Superstition

There is no other subject around which such a mass of signs and superstitions has arisen than the weather. In spite of the repeated assertions of the most careful scientists, people will probably go on to the end of time talking of "wet" moons and "dry" moons and looking for weather changes with the varying phases of the moon. Most meteorologists are inclined to say that the moon can have no effect whatever in the making of weather changes, while some will suggest that the only possible influence it can have upon the atmosphere is similar to the tidal effect upon the ocean waters, but that even this must be so slight as to be insignificant.

Another favorite superstition is that of the equinoctial gales. Careful calculations made by the observatory officials at Toronto, based on tables of gales in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces covering a period of forty years, lead them to the conclusion that there is no marked increase in storm energy about the time of the equinox, and that a term of any other six days in any other part of the months of March or September would give quite as many gales occurring, whether moderate or heavy, as is shown to have taken place between the 19th and 24th.

There are millions of persons who cling faithfully to the belief that if rain falls on St. Swithin's Day—July 15—it will rain for forty consecutive days thereafter, and that in spite of the incontrovertible scientific fact recorded by the Greenwich Observatory for twenty years that not once did it rain for forty days.

On a par with these superstitions is our belief that a certain cold day is the "coldest ever"; and that when it gets really warm, "it never was so hot," and also that "the weather of the country is changing." It is of interest to note the information on this point in an article on "Meteorology in Canada" as reprinted from the Journal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada:

"In order to gather information as to whether any attention was paid to Meteorology and Climatology in the early days of Canadian history, the 'Relations of the Jesuits' have been carefully gone over, and all references to climate phenomena have been copied and arranged under various headings, such as winter, summer, drought and other phenomena; and from these notes it has been possible to draw conclusions as to the general character of the seasons in Canada during the 17th and 18th centuries . . . and a study of the notes leads to the conclusion that the only valuable information to be gathered from this source is that this climate then was just about the same as it is now."

LORE OF THE SEA

Drastic Rules Which Portuguese Sailors Once Observed

Some remarkable advice to seafarers is given in an old Portuguese book, published for the guidance of mariners. Amongst other things it deals with the rights of captains to assault sailors, and the methods in which the attacks are to be legally met.

The sailor is advised to bear calmly any verbal abuse that an irate skipper may hurl at him, but if words passed to blows he was to run away into the bows and firmly take his stand beside the anchor chain.

Should an infuriated master, armed with a belaying pin or other lethal weapon, chase him to his stronghold, the mariner was to slip around to the farther side of the chain. Should he still be pursued, he was to call his messmates to witness that the master had broken the rules by circumventing the chain.

Then, at last, he was to defend himself! Other little matters of discipline are set out, and they show a noble effort to make the punishment fit the crime.

The ship's clerk, a privileged person who acted as bookkeeper, purser, and cargo-master, was liable to be branded in the forehead, to lose his right hand, and to forfeit all his property if he made a wrong entry in the ship's book, or connived at such an entry.

A seaman who fell asleep on his watch was only put on a diet of bread and water, unless the offence was committed in hostile waters. In that case he must be stripped naked, flogged by his messmates, and ducked thrice in the sea.

If he were an officer, however, he would only lose all food except his bread, and have a pail of water flung over him from the head downwards.

Hand-power Propeller

For propelling boats a Frenchman has invented paddle wheels which may be attached to any boat and revolved by a man pulling at eccentric handles.

Sticks Post Stamps

An absorbent pad to hold water for moistening postage stamps or envelope flaps that is fastened to the back of a person's hand has been patented.

Cement in Far East

Discoveries of extensive deposits of limestone and silica in the Philippines have led to the formation of a company to manufacture cement there.

Port Hope Guide: A Pollock who boarded with his sister, Mrs. Mazur, left town on Monday and at the same time $695 mysteriously disappeared from the Mazur residence. Instead of depositing the money in the bank the boarders gave it to Mrs. Mazur to keep for them. She placed it in a tin box and hid it under the cellar floor. The Pollock who left the town has been out of work for some time and had no money. Monday he purchased a ticket for Toronto, and naturally the suspicion rests upon him. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.
